Smaller Bus Firms Facing Pressures

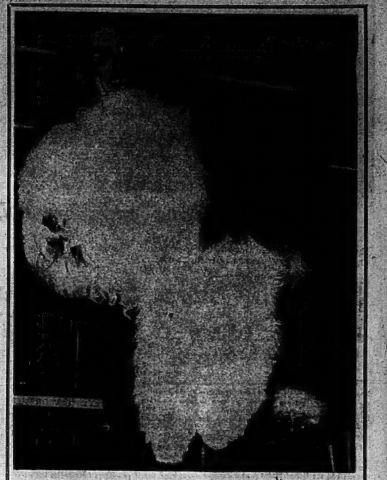
Margaret Murdoch

School Routes Big Plum

By Lenny Williamson
Staff Reporter

The squeeze is on small private bus operators in Ontario, and it is crowding close to the borders of Hastings county.

Big operators are putting small bus line owners out of business, "forcing them out," in the words of one operator, in the competition for board transportation contracts.



One report today says 500 school bus operators have gone out of business since county boards were formed in 1968.

It names Charterways Ltd., its subsidiary, Skinner Bus Lines Ltd. of London, Ont., and Trailways of Canada Ltd. of Richmond Hill as the provincial largest operators of school buses.

County bus operators claim Trailways is moving east, now owning or negotiating to buy school bus companies in Peterborough, Lindsay, Port Hope and Kingston.

One Hundred Pounds—and Cuddly

His name's Shaggy Shoes MacDuff, and he's a thoroughbred Old English sheepdog. But to his fond owner, Don McColl, Birmingham, Mich., he's just plain Duffy, a delight to have and — even at 101 lbs. — to hold, spectators at Belleville international dog show discovered. Weekend event, first of its kind in city, was judged top-flight success. (For details, see Page 2.)

Picton firemen are almost obliterated by smoke as they fight weekend fire on town's Bridge Street. Blaze at the two storey Ralph's Garage caused damage estimated at $30,000.

Douglas, Schreyer Split Over Policy

WINNIPEG (CP) — Discussion and dissent over the invocation of the War Measures Act drove a wedge between policy discussion and party action at the 1970 Manitoba New Democratic Party convention Sunday.

It started with an impassioned speech by federal leader T. C. Douglas, who compared the invocation of the act to the rise of Nazi Germany and ended with a young man being hissed down for shouting into a microphone that he wanted to be disassociated from remarks made by Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer.

The young man was reacting to a speech by Premier Schreyer, in which the premier accepted his acclamation as party leader and explained to 650 delegates why he supported the federal government's action in the Quebec crisis.

The federal chieftain said the implementation of the act could have been a political move to keep the present Quebec government in power.

The Douglas speech was punctuated by four ovations.

Later in the day, Premier Schreyer took Mr. Douglas' Nazi Germany analogy and turned it around.

"On whom lies the greater guilt?" he asked, "On the people who placidly sat by and let the laws be passed, or on the people who caused the civil disorder which led to the laws being passed?

"I hope we do not have to contemplate analogies like this much longer in Canada."

Earlier in the day, the younger segment of the party attempted to pre-empt the approved agenda and proceed immediately to a resolution dealing with the Quebec crisis, urging the conference to give unanimous consent to the stand taken by Mr. Douglas and the federal caucus.

The rejection of the motion brought the shout that the convention was not supporting he national leader...which in turn prompted Resources Minister Sidney Green to say the ovations given Mr. Douglas was an indication of the convention's support of him.

It wasn't until late Sunday afternoon that the delegates got around to discussing policy and even that got sidelined by the war measures discussion.

Bodies Piled Up at Doors In French Hallowe'en Fire

ST. LAURENT DU PONT (CP) — French authorities from cabinet rank down pressed an investigation today to determine why 146 persons died in a weekend dance hall fire in this mountain town 24 miles northwest of Grenoble.

Firemen pulled 142 bodies from the ruins. Ten other persons were injured, and one of them died today.

From accounts of the 26-odd survivors of the Halloween night fire, it appeared that the young dancers panicked and piled up against the exit doors.

There were reports that the four exits of the single-storey, steel-frame building were locked and even boarded up, but others contradicted this.

About 1:45 a.m., according to Josila Dondey, the 21-year-old cashier, flame smoke started coming from the ceiling, then flames burst out." She was dragged out of the hall with her hair burning.

When the firemen broke into the building they found burned and twisted bodies piled up five or six feet high near the exits.

"It was a horrible sight," said fireman Georges Roslan. "Bodies were stuck to the doors and it seemed they were still pushing to get out. ... Dead bodies everywhere, unrecognizable, broken up."

Officials, including State Secretary Jacques Baumel, heard reports that the blaze was caused either by a short circuit or by a cigarette tossed playfully on to someone's coat.

One survivor, Dominique Guette, 17, said the exit doors had been padlocked and planks nailed over them to keep out gatecrashers.

"We pulled at the planks and tried to break open the door," said Dominique, who joined in the vain rescue efforts after escaping. "Behind it was a mass of people with arms outstretched. Five minutes later they were all dead."

Daniel Bellenin, 21, a cook from the hall's restaurant, said the doors "were simply locked from the inside with a knob and could have been opened easily without a key." He said a barrier and five customers escaped through one of the doors.

Ecuador Officer Released

QUITO (AP) — The air force commander of Ecuador says his kidnappers abandoned him in the jungle, four days' walk from civilization, after a searching helicopter flew close to their hideout.

Pale and unshaven, Gen. Cesar Rohn Sandvel, 46, stepped off a bus Sunday at Mercical Sucre air force base on the outskirts of Quito. He had a superficial scalp wound, but doctors said otherwise he was in "perfect health." He had been kidnapped five days earlier.

Defence officials released only sketchy details of Rohn Sandoval's story but said more information would be divulged "when circumstances permit."

They said three men took the general into mountainous jungle northwest of the capital last Tuesday, and the helicopter scared the abductors away the next day.

Hydro Rates To Go Up Jan. 1

Ontario Hydro chairman Georges Gathercole yesterday announced that utility will increase its rates to municipal utilities and a sector of its industrial market effective Jan. 1, 1971.

Although this will increase the cost of power to municipal hydro commissions, it does not mean immediately and automatically consumers will pay higher rates," he said.

"Some of the municipal hydro commissions will be able to absorb all or a portion of the increase under their existing rate structures. Others will be forced to pass it along.

"In the long run these higher costs will affect municipal rate structures.

Belleville Public Utilities Commission manager Ernest L. Burnham said, "no idea how much will be added on" to Belleville rates.

But he was firm in his statement that the PUC "operates at cost ... we haven't any particular fund to draw on" for the increase.

'No Doubt Coup Planned'

Some Troops May Leave Quebec This Week

CALGARY (CP) — Defence Minister Donald Macdonald said Saturday that the government plans to take a hard look this week at the continuing deployment of troops in Quebec.

Mr. Macdonald said in an interview there is "no clear indication at the moment the situation is that secure in Quebec that we could make a total reduction" in the number of troops.

"In the coming week we'll be taking a hard look at our deployment there to see the extent to which the civil authorities may be able to carry out their functions better."

However, Mr. Macdonald emphasized that there does not seem to be any basis for assuming substantial withdrawal of troops could be made.

He said he did not think there was any doubt that the Front de Libération du Quebec was planning a coup against Premier Robert Bourassa's government and this was one factor on which the War Measures Act was invoked.

"And I think that the FLQ were planning the creation, in the first place, of a state of disorder in the province so that the existing forces of the government couldn't operate," he said.

"One has to follow from that, that having created this state . . . they would take advantage of the situation to create a situation where they could come to control the levers of power."

Mr. Macdonald was asked whether the federal government's expressed willingness to share the cost of deploying troops in Quebec was not a precedent-setting move considering that the National Defence Act requires provinces to pay the full cost when military assistance is requested by them.

"Not necessarily," he replied. "It seems to me that the interests of all Canada were involved and this was more than just a local situation."

Mr. Macdonald said the last time the troops were called into Quebec—during the strike by police in Montreal—Quebec paid the cost.

Mr. Macdonald was in Calgary to accompany members of the North American Treaty Organization nuclear planning group on an unofficial tour of southern Alberta.

First Dog Show Such A Success Dates Reserved for Next Year

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reprier

The Belleville and District Kennel Club already is seeking large quarters for a 1971 encore of its spectacular weekend international dog show success.

Response to the show — first of its kind in Belleville and drawing 1,100 entries from Canada and the United States — has left its organizers an ecstatic as a dog locked in a hamburg stand.

The event Saturday and Sunday jammed dogs, owners, handlers and spectators into the Ben Bleecker auditorium—the only suitable accommodation available at the time.

It's very success created a problem that organizers now are anxious to avoid in future shows.

At times, it looked like there wasn't room to swing a cat in the crowded auditorium.

The club already has booked the show for next year. But, imperative to its continuing success, is the need to locate a roomier arena, believes kennel club president Lew Barks.

Indications are now, says Mr. Barks, that the 1971 show will have as many — if not more — entries than the weekend event.

Owners and handlers of the aristocratic thoroughbreds on the show circuit of which Belleville is now a part, don't like being crowded during exhibitions, he said.

"If we can't come up with an answer for a bigger show then we'll lose entries next time," said Mr. Barks.

Despite bad weather which dogged the show with continual rain, public response to the show was good.

Sunday alone, about 900 spectators thronged to the auditorium.

"It was a terrific success," said Mr. Barks.

The show also created a minor boom in local hotels and motels as participants flocked to the city for the show — staged between similar championship events in Toronto and Ottawa.

Judging both days took up to 11 hours.

Top dog of the event was a Scotch terrier — Schaeffer's Gentle Ben — handled by James Reynolds, of Ottawa. Ben took the best - of - show awards both days.

Dates for next year's show have been set at Oct. 23-24.

Blown Mailboxes Major Damage

A rain - soaked Hallowe'en sparked few incidents in the Quinte district this year.

But neither rain nor dark of night discouraged real - life ghouls in Belleville.

City police today were seeking the pranksters who handed youngsters apples containing a razor blade and a sewing needle.

Most serious malicious damage — during a night once marked by hi - jinks — was the blowing up of three mail boxes in the Carrying Place area.

The quieter-than-usual celebration of Hallow'en was reflected across Canada, a Canadian Press survey shows.

In Ottawa, it was partly because of the troops, who have guarded leading, political fig-

Garage Damage $30,000

PICTON (Staff) — Fire level a two-storey auto repair garage on Bridge St. yesterday morning causing an estimated $30,000 damage. Picton fire chief Leonard Tripp said firemen were called to Ralph's Motors, owned by Ralph Duetta, RR4, Picton, by mechanic Horace Thomas. Mr. Thomas reportedly entered the garage stockroom for a few moments, and returning to the garage, discovered flames.

"It was a stubborn fire but we kept it under control," commented Mr. Tripp. The fire chief added, "There was no chance of saving the building. It was an inferno when we arrived."

Two fire trucks manned by 15 firefighters assisted by numerous volunteers battled the flames for almost eight hours. Through their efforts a storage shed adjoining the garage escaped destruction in the blaze. Two snowmobiles and a tow truck were removed from the shed during the fire.

In the main garage two cars brought in for repairs burned with the building. Fire Chief Tripp remarked: "We never could have controlled the fire without our new fire truck. It is the second time we've used it, and yesterday 1,000 gallons of water a minutes were being pumped on the fire." He noted that the new truck was first used in putting out a fire this spring at a Main St. West residence. Its efficiency kept damage to a minimum.

tures since last month's kidnappings in Montreal. Soldiers kept children away from homes of leading members of parliament, but handed out treats at the roadside.

Several Ottawa - area municipalities also enacted curfews for fear of terrorists.

Busiest scene in Belleville was at the city armory where an estimated 1,100 young people turned up for a Hallowe'en Howl, sponsored by the Jaycees.

The rain — 2.46 inches fell on the district Friday and Saturday — dampened down the flow of youngsters seeking shelitods.

The two incidents now under police investigation were reported by: Brenda Wellman, 14, 85 Purdy Street, who cut into an apple among her treats to find a needle imbedded in it.

Dorothy Wallace, 3, Canniffon Road, who found a razor blade in an apple.

Meantime, provincial police have sent one of the three mail boxes shattered at Carrying Place to the Toronto crime laboratory to determine what sort of explosive was used.

Officers believed some kind of explosive powder was detonated by a lighted fuse, but could not say if the incidents were linked to recent theft of benzoyl peroxide in Belleville.

Mail boxes destroyed were owned by Carman Wellman and Walter Terry, RR 1, Carrying Place on Amelias-burg township's second concession and Mrs. Elma Buchanan, RR 2, Carrying Place, near Gardenville.

Mrs. Buchanan's daughter, Darlene, 16, said she was letting the family dog in the house at the time. She saw a car driving away at the instant of the explosion — which she first thought was a shotgun being fired.

In Picton, police chief George Pitt said police had 25 complaints Hallow'en night although no property damage was reported. Elsewhere in Prince Edward County there were reports of roadblocks and signs damaged on county roads.

Meantime, 12-year-old Margaret Roy, RR 4, Belleville, was in hospital today with head and internal injuries suffered when hit by a car on Highway 2, near Point Anne lane.

She was on a shellout expedition with three girl friends— one of whom, Lou Anne Walsh, 11, RR 4, Belleville, was released after treatment for minor injuries at Belleville General Hospital.

Police said the driver of the car, Ross Tripp, 61, RR 4, Belleville, had been charged with impaired driving.

As usual schoolchildren used the opportunity of Hallowe'en to canvass funds for UNICEF.

Some 7,000 collection boxes were, distributed throughout Hastings County, although the total financial returns won't be known for a week.

Hallowe'en Not Only For Young

Rain may have dampened the enthusiasm of some of the younger children in the community but it did not affect the Hallowe'en celebrations of some of its senior citizens.

Saturday afternoon residents of Yeotes Court were entertained at a party in the decorated recreation room of the Turnbull Street centre.

Assisting at the party were Mrs. Richard T. Potter, Mrs. Miriam Graham, Mrs. Chester Woods and Mrs. Jones Broad. The party was sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Donald Soutter.

Saturday night was also a busier than usual night for many residents. Youngsters who visited the centre were greeted by Cecil Cherry and the member of grandchildren paying visits was higher than usual.

School Bus Monopoly Feared

morning that his company is now a subsidiary of Trailways, and he is remaining as manager. No change of rates is involved.

The transfer was accomplished with no objections at public hearings this week conducted by The Ontario Highway Transport Board and the Federal Transportation Commission.

The Cobourg company which operates buses under contract for the Northumberland-Durham board of education has been sold to Charterways.

The question is likely to come to the legislature through Liberal member for Toronto York Centre, Donald Deacon who said Sunday the provincial 2,000 private operators are involved in a cut-throat struggle for survival, with payola one of the weapons.

Mr. Deacon said he has evidence that some school board transportation officers have been paid off by large school bus operators.

He cited one example in which a transportation officer of a school board started taking long vacations after a contract had been awarded to a large school bus operator.

He said it was found that another transportation officer had been driving an expensive car owned by a large operator who had awarded school bus tenders to be reopened in his area.

Mr. Deacon did not give names or other details in either case he cited.

Evidence of the struggle for survival is found in the high business failure rate among school bus operators.

Since Jan. 1, 1969, when the province's school boards were reorganized into 123 county boards from 1,325 smaller boards, about 200 school bus operators have gone out of business.

Many of those forced out were small operators, unable to provide equal service to large ones, The investment involved in increasing their fleets was too large and they often sold out to bigger operators.

Mr. Deacon said recently in the legislature that one school bus operator had built an "empire" in about 3 years and now controls bout 1,400 buses.

Thus several hundred individual school bus operators, who might have one, two or three buses, but certainly small operators, are being pushed out of business."

Mr. Deacon, who has taken up the cause of the Ontario School Bus Operators Association which represents 425 operators, said he believes big operators are striving for monopoly control.

Most small operators work on a one-year contract, but it can take five years to pay for a bus — a 65-passenger one costs about $10,230.

Another problem faced by small operators is the quality of buses. Standards vary in school districts, and large operators can move buses from areas where high-quality is demanded into those were standards are lower. Then, the big operators can undersell smaller ones because their equipment may be older and their costs less.

Bryan Elwood, project director in the educational planning department of the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education, said in an interview it is essential the province set standards and specifications for school buses.

Hastings county board of education has contracted with 198 bus operators who service 278 routes. Thirteen more routes will be added soon to run late buses from secondary schools.

In Prince Edward county 56 buses, combined with late-run buses by Prince Edward Collegiate and special runs for home economics classes, give a total of 75 runs.

Largest operator in Hastings county is believed to be Hallowell Bus Lines Coach, which operates 27 to 38 buses in Hastings and Lennox and Addington counties. Prince Edward's largest operator, McGinnis Coach Lines, Picton, runs 30 per cent of the buses in that county. Runner-up to Hallowell in Hastings is Franklin Smith Bus Line of Marmora ,which operates 12 buses.

"Some of the big operators in the province are trying to force small operators out instead of buying them out," said one county operator today.

Small operators are fighting back through the Bus Operators Association.

And one of its chief allies in this part of the province is the Hastings county board of education.

"We operators appreciate the Hastings board's stand on what is going on in the province," said C. R. Richmond, Bus Operators Association. We are happy with the board and administration—they are trying to protect us."

If they don't organize, small operators will be squeezed out, Donald Tedford, secretary and general manager of the Bus Operators Association told The Intelligencer this morning.

The bus organization would not eliminate competition and resulting cost parting of tendering procedures, he said.

"Everyone would be required to adhere to the same set of conditions, thus bringing rates to a more equal basis for the medium-sized and small (one or two bus) operators," he said. "We are prepared to document our costs to show a board exactly what it costs to operate any route."

Many boards across Ontario prefer to negotiate contracts with a few large operators instead of dealing with several small ones.

"York county started it," said Mr. Tedford. "Before school board amalgamation there were 17 operators in York. The board made it clear it would negotiate with a minimum of two and a maximum of four operators and 14 operators were forced out of business in the first year of the board's operation."

"We are trying to equalize rates in the county," said the assistant superintendent of the county board charged with liaison between bus operators and administration.

J. M. Cousins said the rates are now within two or three cents a mile of one another's tenders.

"Our situation fi unique in Ontario," he added. "We operate an in-service training project for all operators, consisting of evening workshops conducted by two department of transport inspectors, Lorne Colin Godin, our head of psychological services, myself and our transportation manager John Bancroft."

"My feeling is that every child should have a seat," he added, putting his finger on a factor that has been debated by the county board several times.

The weighing formula used by the department of transport results at present in a few standees in school buses.

But the buses are not usually overloaded until near the end of their runs, says Mr. Richmond—no standees have only a short distance to travel.

In common with Mr. Tedford, he called for standardized seating regulations on school buses.

"There is no school bus law," he said. "We also need a minimum school bus standard to put all operators on an equal footing for tender pricing."

School buses are not built like highway coaches, having lighter chassis among other things.

"But if we had to provide buses up to highway coach standards, the expenditures for boards would be outrageous and we would be limited on where we could go," said Mr. Richmond. "We couldn't operate a bus like that on the Oak Hills routes for example."

Building Permits Hit $2 Million

A building permit for the new Edith Cavell School of Nursing at Belleville General Hospital boosted the city building total to more than $2 million in October.

The permit for the nursing school was for $1,280,000 with the month's total being $2,135,000.

Included in the month's building list was the permit for the new covered rink on Hamer Drive at $300,000; a big total to more than $2 million in October.

Hydro Rates To Go Up

Belleville officers of the Ontario Hydro explained that the seven per cent increase was only wholesale.

"The utilities face the same problems (that have brought about this increase) as the Ontario Hydro. These are such costs as increases in materials, wages, expanding power plants, and taxes.

"This increase could possibly come to the consumer as high as 10 to 12 per cent, or more. Who knows?"

He advised The Intelligencer that decisions could only be made based on various utilities commissions concluded studies which would be necessary.

He predicted that these studies might possibly not be ready until January or February.

Apple Pie Must Be Like Mom's

The youngsters got the treats Saturday night, but a sweet-toothed thief, not to be denied, got the pastry Sunday night during a sneak attack at Albert College.

Police Chief Douglas Cassidy said this morning that a break-in into Albert College resulted in the theft of an apple pie and a quantity of date cookies.

The theft was discovered at 9:15 Sunday night and is believed to have occurred just prior to discovery.

Mr. Gathercole, in a recent statement, said "if the province is to expand, hydro is self sufficient and new plants are being financed at interest rates that are nearly double those of a few years ago.

On the local scene, Mr. Burnham said that city rates have "progressively gone up . . . 11 per cent effective Jan. 1, 1970, 11 per cent Jan. 1, 1969," to a monthly cost in the neighborhood of $150,000, the highest recently reported being $180,000 in Jan. of this year.

According to the PUC manager, "material costs are constantly increasing including new water mains, electric poles, wire . . . at the same time trying to improve the quality of the construction, maintenance, etc."

Commission board member Gerry O'Connor stated that "the increased costs are present and we hope that this didn't happen this morning, it's been coming on us for some time."

USUAL TV BARGAINS AT IRELAND'S

Because of Ireland's popular TV sales policy, there's a number of television sets (both black and white and colour) in the company Belleville area homes, purchased within the past two years —while these sets are in good working order, they are viewed with brand new stock and are disposed of at nearly give-away prices.

For example: a good 19-inch portable set with walnut trim that formerly sold for $268, in this sale can be had for $99. There are also a few 23-inch and 19-inch consoles in this category, sets at similar bargain prices.

All of these sets have been checked over and serviced by the usual warranty. They are going to be sold at this low time trying to improve the quality of the construction, maintenance, etc.

Commission board member Gerry O'Connor stated that "the increased costs are present and we hope that this didn't happen this morning, it's been coming on us for some time."

Shadow Play

Claude Ryan, publisher of Montreal Le Devoir, is one of Canada's most influential newspapermen, but he has done the country, and particularly the government of Quebec, less than justice in these recent testing times. Not content with siding with Parti Quebecois diehard Rene Levesque in urging that the government enter into negotiations with the FLQ terrorists, his latest utterance concerning a "provisional government" in the province is far less satisfactory.

Mr. Ryan claims he had discussed the possibility of a provincial government in a professional sense only, in a 'free examination' of possible implications of the kidnapping, including what might develop should the Bourassa government be unable to cope.

What nonsense! Has the Quebec government shown any sign of faltering or of being unable to cope? We do not think so. Premier Bourassa may have aged far beyond his 36 years, because of what has happened, but we think he has come through the crisis thus far in a manner that can only be described as calm, cool and collected. But no thanks to Mr. Ryan, and those of like mind.

When the kidnapping crisis was only days old, Mr. Bourassa went to New York as scheduled, to discuss business prospects in the province with the Americans. More recently he was in Paris. His public utterances have been levelheaded, thoughtful, betraying no hint of panic or that either he or his government were about to collapse under the pressure of events.

Both the Quebec and federal governments acted swiftly, in the face of dangerous, escalating events. We could say that they could have acted long ago, in fact this newspaper has been among the few which has tried to alert the Canadian public to the threat of subversion.

For example, before the present crisis erupted we had this to say, in the concluding portion of an editorial entitled The Subversives: "In the jargon of the day Canada presents a 'bad scene' which has all the potential for getting worse. When we have the CBC (more restrained these days), the campus radicals, the Black Panthers, university faculty members, the Mafia and sundry Communist agents from abroad all working their subversive way through our relatively small population of 20,000,000 it is time for the Government to take stock and start tightening up immigration policies as well as weeding out undesirables already living here."

Strangely prophetic! But was anything done . . . did the Government heed this or any other warning given (by Montreal's Lucien Saulnier for instance)? The answer is no. But now at last the Government, both federal and provincial, is standing firm. It must continue to do so; it must be thus far and no farther for terrorism in Canada.

Population And Resources

A letter on this page today, together with a Toronto Globe and Mail report of the continued strain on world resources of population growth, must surely give the skeptical further pause for thought — and action — in this matter.

Admittedly Canada, with the world's second largest land mass (after China) and a population of only 20,000,000 has a lot more room than most. Australia is in a similar position, yet it must be remembered that in both countries huge tracts are uninhabitable and there is a growing tendency for the population to concentrate in the cities.

According to a recent United Nations survey, both the world's birth rate and death rate are down, but the population is such that there will be more than seven billion people on earth by the year 2000. Compare this with the July 1969 figure of a mere 3,552 million.

We would not want to see anything as drastic as abolition of the baby bonus and income tax deductions as suggested by Professor Plowright, for that would entail financial hardship for many. Nor can we envisage any arbitrary limitations on the size of individual families; nevertheless the need for family planning, in the circumstances outlined above, must be taken seriously.

The title problem in with the growing menace of pollution and we have a twin threat to the resources necessary to support life. Hollywood, it is interesting to note, is taking a look at this theme. Actor Cornel Wilde is director and producer of a new film entitled "No Blade of Grass" which stars his wife, Jean Wallace, and Nigel Davenport and is a harrowing story of what happens when pollution takes over, with wild bands marauding the countryside as the world starves.

Other Hollywood personalities, we may note in passing, are joining the pollution fight with brief mentions on their programs. Carol Burnett and Glen Campbell are notable examples. Over-population and pollution then — they are very much a concern of us all.

11,500 Letters...98 Per Cent Support War Measures

Another 1917 (for Canada) Had Ottawa Not Acted—P.M.

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's steamrolling of the opposition in the Commons appears to be part of his main objective: To dampen down the feared fires of insurrection in Quebec.

Informants said Mr. Trudeau does not want one snippet of information to be made public that might serve only to feed further the flames of speculation and thus cause more confusion in his native province.

For the fifth consecutive Commons sitting day Thursday, the prime minister declined to confirm or deny statements attributed to others about terrorist and revolutionary dangers or to expand on the reasons originally given for the Oct. 16 proclamation of the War Measures Act.

He is said to feel that he has the great majority of the public behind him on the issue, no matter how much an annoyed and newly aroused opposition complains about the effects of the law.

Mr. Trudeau's office said the prime minister has received 11,500 letters, with the help of affairs in Quebec of which 97 or 98 per cent back the government. The support is proportionately the same in French- and English-speaking Canada.

The prime minister, apparently was not throwing out an idle thought in the Commons last week when he advised MPs to look up what happened to Premier Alexander Kerensky of Russia in 1917.

What happened was the successful Communist revolution after Kerensky declined to keep the revolutionaries locked up.

Informants say Mr. Trudeau has related the principle of the 1917 Russian revolution to the present situation in Canada by way of hinting whether history might have been drastically changed if Kerensky had jailed the revolutionaries for three months.

Under the War Measures Act, a person can be detained for 90 days without being brought to court for a trial date.

Sources say the attempt to damp down "apprehended insurrection" has taken these aspects:

—The police now have authority to get Front de Liberation du Quebec communiques before they go through scores of hands at radio stations or of other recipients.

—Broadcast or publication of the latest FLQ message has been blocked.

—Firebrands who might continue to be stirring up the situation as they were before proclamation of the emergency powers have been put in jail, temporarily at least.

—The CBC has stopped an outpouring of what the government calls hate and possibly harmful speculation.

There is patience, growing thin in some quarters but apparently not in Mr. Trudeau's, that the police will penetrate the FLQ cell apparatus and break the case.

One of the greatest areas of disappointment within the federal cabinet is that more prominent Quebecers did not rally to the support of the province in the crisis immediately following the kidnappings of James Cross and Pierre Laporte.

This is said to be one of the chief reasons for Mr. Trudeau's statement concerning confusion in Quebec which, in turn, was one of the chief stated reasons for proclamation of extraordinary powers.

Mr. Trudeau is said to feel that many leaders in Quebec who suggested negotiations with the FLQ were speaking only for themselves and not for the groups they represented.

In my opinion, officials said, the prime minister's mail indicates that this is the case.

Ordinarily, Quebecers do not write to the prime minister— any prime minister—on major issues. But they are now, and by the thousands.

To Mr. Trudeau, they seem to be seeking the leadership they did not get in the current situation from the band of reformers who fought the Duplessis regime a decade and more ago.

One of those reformers was Mr. Trudeau himself and that has made his disappointment with old colleagues doubly depressing.

Property Assessment Queried By Stirling Reader

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In the Stirling News-Argus, Wednesday, October 21, there was a comment about a business man of Stirling contesting property assessment.

I would like to pass a few comments without prejudice' regarding same.

This property assessment has been explored from many angles seemingly without success and is still continuing to be done. I am amazed at an elected body of representatives of the village of Stirling flatly refusing to act on a request for consideration, when sections of Acts of Amendments were quoted as having been enacted by the Department of Municipal Affairs and the Ontario Government and approved by the Minister of Municipal Affairs.

The sections quoted in the following paragraphs are copied from a letter from the Hon. W. Darcy McKeough, Minister of Municipal Affairs, at the same time as the amendment to the Municipal Act was passed, a number of amendments to same Assessment Act were also approved. One of these allows individuals to make application to the Assessment Review Court for a cancellation, reduction or refund of taxes which have become unduly burdensome as a result of a re-assessment.

An application under this section must be given in writing to the municipal clerk who is directed by the legislation to "immediately transmit" this notice of application to the regional registrar of the Court.

The Assessment Review Court can only reduce taxes under this new legislation if the municipal council has approved the application for a reduction and has set out a maximum amount of taxes which may be cancelled, reduced or refunded, by a municipal by-law. The relevant subsections read as follows:

76 (1) An application to the Assessment Review Court for the cancellation, reduction, or refund of taxes in the year in respect of which the application is made, may be made by any person.

(2) whose taxes are unduly burdensome by reason of an increase resulting from a difference within the municipality made in the year 1965 or thereafter.

78 (2a) Taxes levied by a municipality shall not be cancelled, reduced or refunded on an application under clause (g) of subsection 1 unless the application and a maximum amount of taxes that may be cancelled, reduced or refunded has been authorized by a by-law which may be passed by the council of the municipality".

Now, how any elected body of any municipality can refuse to follow instructions is certainly questionable. When such representatives are duly elected they take an oath stating "I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully and impartially perform all the duties pertaining to the Office in which I have been elected, to the best of my ability and until a successor is elected and installed in my stead".

I would suggest that a resignation should be in order of the entire elected representatives as they all acquiesced to a "No Action Plan".

Until Sargent hypocrisy is allowed to be exercised is more than I can understand and if conscience has any bearing, whatsoever a resignation could be in order forthwith.

If you will carefully note that a statement was made whereby 58 per cent of the taxpayers could be in the high assessment category in order to carry the 50 per cent which were considered under-assessed.

Do you call this 100 per cent equalized assessment.

When properties be assessed in a realistic way with west-pocket editions of Code of Values so that all property owners can understand and endeavor to reach a more equitable property value?

I was under the impression that elected representatives of municipalities were there to assist the property owners and offer help to the troubled property owner as well as to legislate for the protection and good of the electorate.

Why can any business or residential properties be developed or expected to exist or even encouraged to settle in what could be a prosperous village?

Mr. Property Owner and Mr. Farmer, it is entirely up to you to get into this unreasonable taxation problem and

Society Placing Strain on Ecological Balance

By BRIAN UPTON in the Toronto Telegram

OTTAWA — Canada must act immediately to slow population growth if the current quality of life is to be sustained 30 years from now, a zoologist told a Commons committee.

Prof. Gerald Hardy Plowright of the University of Toronto said free abortion, incentives to birth control and, illegally, a ban on immigration will be required to stabilize population growth.

Even if the present growth leveled off by the end of the century, there is no guarantee the environment would be saved, he said.

"Per capita increase in consumption and technological development are just as important."

Prof. Plowright said the consumer - oriented, high standard of living in North America is putting as much strain on the ecological balance as populous underdeveloped countries such as India.

Unless Canadians adopt voluntary population controls, life will become not only miserable but perhaps impossible when it is too late to do anything, Prof. Plowright told the first meeting of the Environmental Pollution Committee.

The first step, he said, would be to set up a council on population and environment.

The council would have to reach a consensus on the optimum population the country could sustain and seek a new yardstick other than simple economic expansion for measuring a life quality, he said.

Practical moves that would be taken to bring about a two-child family as an average would be to abolish the baby bonus and income tax deductions, he said.

Prof. Plowright indicated that Canada may already be over-populated when the growth rate, the eventual drain on energy resources and pressure on natural resources from the U.S. is considered.

Because the U.S. is now using 30 to 50 per cent of the world's mineral resources a year — a figure that will climb at current expansion rates to 80 per cent before the end of the century — the probably political repercussions on Canada are "frightening" to think about, he said.

It was a "dangerous misconception" Prof. Plowright said, to think Canada was isolated from the world over-population problem.

"Uncontrolled growth of population and technology threaten this country just as they threaten the rest of North America."

"In the short term, the threat is primarily directed toward food. Plowright indicated that Canada may already be over-populated when the growth rate, the eventual drain on energy resources and pressure on natural resources from the U.S.

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I thought your paper might like to reprint the enclosed article from a recent issue of one of the country's daily papers, in reply to Mayor Scott's recent statement concerning the establishment of a local family planning unit by "Zero Population Growth".

Although I am not a member of this group, I would imagine that no thinking person could find fault with their aims. It is a fact that the birth rate in Canada being unoccupied. I wonder if it has occurred to the Mayor that a goodly part of Canada is barren tundra and I shouldn't imagine that it will be settled in the near, or even distant future. (There is lots of room on the Sahara Desert also, but one could hardly say this is a subject worthy of support a large population!)

And as for the population question being a "joke" as the Mayor states, might I suggest that since he finds this so humorous, that he widen his reading and attempt to learn something of the issues that threaten our world today.

MR. AND MRS. DOUGLAS DICKEY

Dickey – Clarke

Canon DeSoia Wright officiated at the recent wedding of Sandra Elizabeth Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Clarke of Belleville and Douglas Raymond Dickey, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dickey of Belleville. The ceremony was at Christ Church, Belleville and music was provided by J. Withers at the organ who also accompanied the choir boys.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal empire style A-line gown of white faille. Small guipure lace flowers were appliqued on the bodice and stand-up collar. The gown had long sleeves and a buttoned-down bolero jacket from which fell a cutaway cathedral train with a matching applique of guipure lace. Small pearls and guipure lace covered the pill-box style headdress from which flowed a three-quarter length veil with a matching trim. She carried a bouquet of white orchida and stephanotis.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Linda Halsey of Cobourg wore a floor-length gown of moire taffeta in a pansy shade. The empire waist had a large bow trim while the full sleeves and stand-up collar enhanced the bodice effect. The skirt was gathered from the waist and fell in a soft A-line.

The bridesmaids Miss Barbara Thompson, Miss Jane McCoy and Miss Brenda Clarke, the bride's sister wore dresses identical to the matron of honor. All carried bouquets of white mums in interwoven ribbon with white pansy carnations. They wore pansy appliques in their hair.

The best man was David Halsey and the ushers were Donald Doyle, James McLaren the bride's uncle, and Charles Leger.

The reception was held at the Belleville Shrine Club. The bride's mother wore a long sleeved moss green peau de soie ensemble with a roll collar enhanced with jewellery. She had matching accessories and a corsage of yellow gladioli buds. The bridegroom's mother wore a brown and beige crimplene dress with a fur jacket, beige accessories and a corsage of salmon gladioli buds.

For the wedding trip to the States, the bride left in a mauve dress set off by a mauve and green scarf, black accessories and a white orchid corsage. Upon the return the couple will reside at 6644 Fielding Ave., Montreal.

MR. AND MRS. TERRANCE LYNCH

Lynch – Spinelli

Sharon Irene Spinelli, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Spinelli was married in Terrance Archibald Lynch son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lynch at the Church of St. Michael and Archangel, Belleville. Rev. Father McGillivray conducted the ceremony and Mrs. Dorothy Cooper played the organ and Bob Burns, soloist, provided music for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an empire style gown of crystal-peau de soie featuring a wedding band collar trimmed with Alencon lace. Self buttons accented the front of the bodice and the long lily point sleeves were trimmed with lace. A lace edged cathedral veil fell from the headpiece made of matching lace. Her bouquet was composed of colonial pink roses.

Miss Patsy Roote as maid of honor wore an American beauty rose dress of nylon chiffon over taffeta with an empire waistline trimmed with pink rosettes. The dress had a rolled collar and long, full off - white chiffon sleeves with tight cuffs.

Bridesmaids Miss Maribeth Lynch and Miss Gail Spinelli were dressed identically to the maid of honor. Both carried colonial white and pink posies.

The bridegroom was attended by Bob Lynch as best man and the ushers were Barry Murphy and Wayne Spinelli.

The reception was held in the Trenton Legion Hall, where the bride's mother was in a royal blue princess line dress of polyester crepe with a scoop neckline and a wide beaded border. The full chiffon sleeves had tight beaded cuffs. Matching accessories, a draped fuchsia hat and a corsage of pink roses completed her attire. The bridegroom's mother wore a two-piece ensemble consisting of a sleeveless mock turtle-necked Alice dress and an empire waisted coat of royal purple peau d' ange. The dress had a double wing collar and full puffed sleeves set off by tight cuffs. She wore a corsage of pale pink carnations.

The bride's going-away outfit featured an off-white dress trimmed with black and set off by black accessories and a corsage of red sweetheart roses. When the newlyweds return from their wedding trip they will reside at 885 Oxford St., Oshawa.

Sidney South W.I. Enjoys Tour

Twenty-five women met at the home of Mrs. I.W. Short for the September meeting of Sidney South W.I. From there the group drove to Corby Distilleries, where they were taken on a conducted tour of the plant by Miss Mary Lou Macadie and Mrs. Doris Newman. After the tour, they were served coffee and cookies and each person was given a souvenir tea towel.

The members returned to Mrs. Short's home for the business part of the meeting, with Mrs. J. Campbell presiding. Several items of business were discussed and Mrs. Roy Nobes, and Mrs. H. Regensburg, were appointed leaders for the Senior Training School on Desserts. Lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

A Perfect Night to Howl -- Indoors That Is!

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

Cloudy skies, and an intermittent drizzle made the atmosphere on Hallowe'en morning as dull and gloomy as one would expect when witches and ghosts are supposed to be walking around but nevertheless it was bitterly disappointing to hundreds of children who had eagerly looked forward to dawning costumes and going on "trick or treat" rounds.

So Mrs. Lee Duxsmmr of RR 7, Belleville had a bright idea. If the kids couldn't go out, she thought why not have a Hallowe'en party for them in her home? Robert McDermott, her grandson aged five who lives with her thought it was a great idea too. So she invited about 30 children between four and 12, most of them from the neighborhood and including a friend, Mrs. Betty Thompson, she set to work turning her recreation room into a witches' den, planning games and preparing refreshments.

At 7 p.m. the 'kids' began to arrive dressed in the weirdest costumes they had managed to get hold of and all set to enjoy an evening of fun which promised to be almost better than going out for "trick or treat". Ghosts and witches made the atmosphere in the recreation room pleasantly eerie and a tape recording of eerie sounds was an immediate hit with the kids. So was the off-white Hallowe'en cake with a great big pumpkin on top and they stayed until nine enjoying themselves playing games and eating cake and sandwiches. Each one left with a bag of goodies. So Hallowe'en night was great fun after all in spite of the damp, miserable weather.

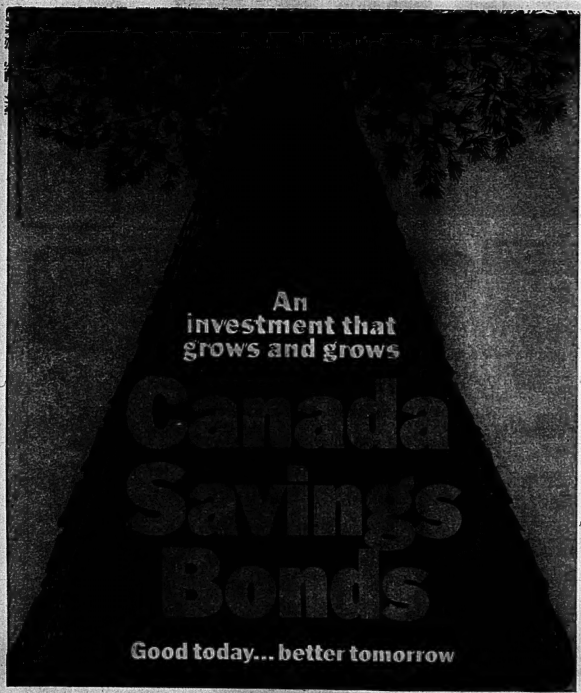
Many Services Available for Blind

At the recent business meeting of the White Cane Club, president Pat Baverstock presided and welcomed members and friends.

Mrs. Maude Rollins provided the piano accompaniment for the club song. One minute's silence was observed in memory of Mrs. Violet Waite, a past president and valued member for many years.

Roy Lesperance, assistant field secretary and Miss Alma Brough, rehabilitation teacher from Kingston were warmly welcomed. Alma spoke briefly concerning her work with the visually handicapped in this area.

Roy Lesperance described the various services available to the blind, on the local level as follows: library service, the small 7 oz cassettes or recording tapes are now available and easy to handle; home teaching and local bus and theatre passes may be obtained upon request.



Certain concessions are made by inter - city bus companies, the railways and steamships. The income tax exemption for a blind person was also explained in detail.

The holiday centre at Lake Joseph, Muskoka, the most up-to-date centre of its kind in North America, was described. More members were urged to take advantage of this specially equipped camp for the blind.

Following the question and answer period, Doug Huffman thanked the speaker for attending the meeting and imparting so much valuable information.

Mrs. Rollins read the correspondence and the Kinettes served refreshments.

The president thanked the Kinettes and the members of the Lions Club who provide the transportation.

Ann Landers

Drug Users World Only Temporary

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am getting fed up with your insulting remarks about drug users. You give your readers the impression that drug users are mentally ill. This is a Fascist lie. Drug users are the only sane people left in this crazy world.

I'm a speed freak and I defy anyone to prove I am mentally ill. I am sick of war, conflict between black and white, and sick of seeing poor people living in hovels that aren't fit for pigs. I'm also sick of phony politicians, filthy water and polluted air. The only way a person can keep from cracking up these days is by smoking grass, dropping acid or popping pills.

People say the youth of our country is rebelling but it's untrue. We are creating our own world because we can't live in your world of hatred, violence and pain. Anyone who can tolerate what is going on is nutty or subhuman.

I don't expect to see my letter in print because you have no answer. — DOWN WITH THE ESTABLISHMENT.

DEAR DOWN: I too am sick of war, conflict between black and white, shameful housing for the poor, phony politicians, filthy water and polluted air. But I'm hanging in there — without drugs, thank you — trying to keep it all together, attempting to cope with problems and looking for some possible solutions.

Unfortunately, the world you escape to is a private world — imaginary and temporary. It's only a place to visit. It you can't live there it takes guts to keep your head up straight — to fight ignorance, prejudice and injustice. But it's the only chance the good guys have to win. President John F. Kennedy said, "The most valuable natural resources of any nation are its young people." If the youth of our country opts to cop out (and drugs are a copout no matter what you say), we are finished. The next ten years will be a period of crisis in world history and we can't meet the challenge with a whole generation of tried brains.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Friendship is a beautiful thing. Why do so many people kick it around and abuse it? I've just performed my last favor for a "friend." I am through being a sucker. I've cared for 4 pets, loaned her money, let her in my apartment, my clothing; my car, picked up mail, watered lawns, sat in hospitals with relatives after surgery, signed notes at the bank, brought complete dinners to sick people — just name it and I've done it.

These are the phrases that wised me up, and I'm ashamed to tell you how long it took: "Sorry I spilled something on your dress. I didn't have time to take it to the cleaners. Send me the bill."

"Too bad about the broken ash-tray and the cigarette hole in the sofa. I have no idea who did it."

"Are you sure the phone wasn't broken by one of your kids?"

"I wish you wouldn't remind me about the money I owe you. I'll pay you when I can."

"Gee, I didn't realize the gas tank was down so low. Sorry you got stranded. I guess I should have filled it."

Can you tell me why I was a fool for so long? It might help others. — FORMER JACKASS.

* * *

DEAR JACK: Some people enjoy doing favors for friends. But there's a whole of a difference between being considerate and running yourself ragged for chiselers. People who continue to do favors after they've been kicked in the teeth are pathetically insecure. They can't believe that anyone could love them for themselves, so they do favors to insure acceptance.

Can you tell me why?

The Experts Say

Makeup Is Essential

MONTREAL (CP) — The founder of a chain of Canadian beauty clinics advises that women—especially those past the age of 30—who refuse to wear makeup are discarding their "most powerful trump card."

In her recently published book, World of Beauty, Edith Serel writes that while most women want to look fashionable and elegant, they must first look like themselves.

"Nothing is more harmful than the beauty advice given by our good friends, even the best-intentioned ones. A woman whose makeup is unsuitable does more harm than good to her appearance."

Mrs. Serel is a firm believer in the use of false eyelashes by every woman—"the bold as well as the shy, those who like a discreet look and those who prefer a more flamboyant touch."

The whole secret, she says, is in the selection and quality of the lashes.

"Visualize the desired effect and choose the lashes according to the color and shape of your eyes. A suitable modification of the shape of the eyes can usually be brought about by introducing variations in the cutting of the false eyelash strip."

The wearing of glasses is not an obstacle to false lashes, Mrs. Serel maintains.

"If you need do is select fine-textured and short eyelashes. You can overcome any defect of vision by using a magnifying mirror. Select a well-lighted mirror of the type made for shaving."

Black is recommended for light eyes, except those belonging to natural redheads whose own sparse lashes "tend to make the eyes look expressionless."

"Brown-colored eyelashes should be selected to avoid any suggestion of artificiality and to preserve the tender look of the eyes. It is important for a redhead to select fairly thick false eyelashes ... since their color takes second place to their thickness in enhancing the expression of the eyes."

Mrs. Serel also suggests that because "the years deal unkindly with the natural elasticity of the eyelids," older women should stop using eyeliner and shadow and invest in a pair of finely textured and lightweight false eyelashes.

"Their color matches the color of the natural eyelashes, and they lend a new expression and elegance to the eyes."

She advises women to apply a little mascara before putting on their false lashes. Then, "once they are on, give them a slight curl with the brush to make them look even and natural."

Most sets of lashes carry a standard set of instructions, recommending that a mirror be placed flat on the table and the false strip pressed on as near as possible to the natural lashes.

Another procedure, less well known but explained by Mrs. Serel, is to buy the lashes in 10-inch strips and a separate tube of glue.

"Cut out a few small groups of two or three lashes from the strip," she writes. "Obviously, these little clusters are much easier to handle than a series of single lashes."

Put a drop of glue in your hand, pick up the lashes with a pair of tweezers and place the edge of the lashes in the glue. Place a small group of false lashes between two natural ones and at the same level. The length of the lashes should increase from the lower to the outer corner of the eye. If they are well put on, they'll look perfectly natural.

Successful Living

Many Are Prim When They Should Be Tolerant

By DORIS CLARK

People still have vague notions about the place of sex in marriage. Without knowing about it, they tend to blame a spouse's temperament, his selfishness, her moodiness, her unhappy times. Each needs to understand more about the very normal and natural urges of the human body.

So much of what we think and are, is a product of our early impressions. We are prim when we should be tolerant, reserved when the best we care about needs all the affection we can give.

Love without knowledge is not enough, for the joy which marriage should bring. "Joy is just as holy as pain."

There are books, literature, personal counselors. My list of recommended reading about "Sex, Marriage and Birth Control" can get you started. Write to me, enclosing 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

Dear Doris: Enclosed is 10 cents and a stamped envelope for which please send me your booklet "Mother Knows". I would like to have this for a meeting of our Women's Institute. We are having a "Grandmother's Day" so any ideas along these lines for a program would also be appreciated. — New Pres.

Dear Pres: Have you thought of:

(1) Putting on a Granny's Fashion Show? There must be some choice little fashion numbers packed away in local attics. Dressing up is heaps of fun. Maybe a dozen of your members would enter the parade.

(2) Searching local newspaper files for social notes about some of your Grannies, when they were in teens or twenties? The girls in the office will help you.

(3) Music of 50 years ago? Either a barbershop quartette, or a singsong, or a quartette leading a singsong?

(4) Appropriate refreshments? Granny's prize cookies, or cake, or a savory dish a la early 20th century, would be just the thing.

"Conflicted" Is Don't Agree: I wouldn't think of raising such a question. The young lady was making her declaration about a religious practice, and belongs to a denomination which prohibits infant baptism. She wanted help with handling a touchy situation with in-laws, and that is what I gave.

Yet I honor the conviction which prompted you to write in. Come again.

Dear Doris: Nothing I do is right any more. My mother just won't let me learn to cook or sew. She tells me I would make a mess of it-anyhow.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Betty confides in me and Sue, but she never tells me a thing. I don't think I'm strict or critical, but she just doesn't seem to want my advice about any of her problems. I feel hurt that she would think Sue is more understanding than her own mother."

Even understanding parents may seem to be too much involved in a teen-ager's life for her to talk to them freely. A young girl's reluctance to discuss her problems with her mother may merely be part of her battle to achieve independence.

Mother: "I'm glad Betty can talk to you about her problems, Sue. I think it's sometimes hard for teenagers to discuss things with their parents. You have a younger viewpoint and I'm sure it helps her just to have you listen sympathetically."

Survival Story Ranks with Greatest

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — There have been many great stories about pilots stranded in the barrens, lost to the rest people of this northern Saskatchewan community, none can equal that of helicopter pilot James Hamilton.

Other northern flyers have spent more time in the mercy of the arctic cold and many have suffered injuries and hardships more severe than his.

Jim Hamilton's story is different because, unaided, he brought himself to safety with few or no ill effects after 30 days alone in the wastelands of the eastern Northwest Territories.

Mr. Hamilton, 45, a helicopter pilot for four years, disappeared with his craft Sept. 30 and was not seen again until Friday when he walked into a lonely weather outpost at Snowdrift Lake, N.W.T., 600 miles north of here.

"He didn't do anything wrong," Jim Munro, chief helicopter pilot for Athabasca Airways, Mr. Hamilton's employer, said in an interview.

Mr. Hamilton spent 25 days beside his downed helicopter and then walked 21 miles through muskeg and snow-covered tundra to the weather station. He made a small tent out of the craft's engine cover and a heater from a 10-gallon fuel drum.

Our pilots carry survival gear, which includes an arctic sleeping bag, rifle, knife, fishing equipment and dehydrated rations for 48 days," said Mr. Munro. "But he still had to be a steady fellow. Anything could have happened. He could have stumbled into a crevice and broken a leg and that would have been the end."

He lost 46 pounds.

Another famous northern flying saga involved Robert Gauchie of Fort Smith, N.W.T., who was marooned for almost two months on a windswept lake 850 miles north of Edmonton before being found.

Last November, John B. (Bev) Woolying, 47, walked 40 miles through deep snow in a 19-day ordeal after his plane was forced to land on the arctic coast near Inuvik. He suffered from frostbite.

Also last fall Roman Catholic priest Emil Auger was found accidentally 22 days after his aircraft was forced down in rugged bush country in northern British Columbia. He walked 60 miles and suffered frostbite and exhaustion and lost 40 pounds.

Seven years ago, Ralph Flores, 42, and Helen Kidney, 21, went down near the Yukon-British Columbia border and lived for 56 days mainly on toothpaste and melted snow before being found.

THE FOLLOWING IS THE FULL TEXT OF THE PRESENTATION BY RATEPAYERS MADE TO THE HASTINGS AND PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY R.C.S.S. BOARD . . . Presented October 29th Concerning Mr. Fred Allore:

TO: THE HASTINGS AND PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY R.C.S.S. BOARD

MR. CHAIRMAN:

This delegation is here for the third time.

The Department of Education was visited by members of this delegation on Monday, October 26, 1970. This Department revealed to its unanimity that the matter had been referred to our Board on June 25, 1970. That is 4 months and Not until October 2nd, 1970, did the Department in Toronto receive requests from the local Board to solve this matter, On September 28, 1970, at our first meeting with you, Mr. Chairman, you stated that you were awaiting a reply from the Department in Toronto.

How do you account for this delay of four months? Mr. Chairman, it was your responsibility and that of this Board to bring about an effective reconciliation with Mr. Allore. We have reason to believe that did not even a personal reconciliation documents to the Board—nor have you ever made any serious attempt at reconciliation.

At this time we wish to disclose to you our bitterness concerning this deplorable situation.

It is known according to the Schools Administration Act, Section 23, that a Board may suspend its Superintendent for four reasons:—

(a) neglect of duty
(b) misconduct
(c) inefficiency
or (d) physical infirmity

You may choose "Inefficiency."

On May 26, 1970, a three member delegation of your Board visited Mr. Allore in his office bearing a unofficial letter asking for Mr. Allore's resignation — which letter, this delegation, would not allow Mr. Allore to keep.

Subsequently, on May 7, 1970, a meeting was called in order that Mr. Allore might hear the charges against him, and might have a chance to defend his position and his own conduct as Superintendent.

But before this Board heard Mr. Allore's comments — the motion was put forward by Mr. Kruess and seconded by Mr. Scott to suspend him. Members of the Board, this was unjust. You did not even try to reconcile your differences with Mr. Allore.

The Chairman then, with great speed, offered to the Board six reasons for suspending the Superintendent. We here invite interested persons to ask to see Minutes of this meeting. (Barkley says there are 'no minutes' — tell him he's out of order!)

Mr. Allore then had a chance to speak. First he asked for evidence or studies to support the above statements. None were put forward. He then made the following presentation:—

"I wish to emphasize first, that I am not contesting the Board's right to suspension, but rather am here in order to get a fair and just hearing. To know what the sum and substance of the charges are and to evaluate their validity in relation to the Board fulfilling its Charitable duty to recognition of my past and present contributions, and the potential destruction of my professional career. As well, this meeting affords all the possibility of an attempt at internal resolution of the problem."

Here Mr. Allore added:— "This talk was prepared with the conviction that if a meeting of this kind came, it would be at the end of the meeting."

"Since April 30th, 1970, was the deadline for the resignation of my position, particularly without an opportunity to go through the lengthy process of advising another position, a resignation at this time with facets of the situation spread amongst employees and perhaps others, I have been placed in a considerably untenable position as to my professional dignity, also because I believe my competence has been besmirched in the public sector outside the privacy of these corporate rooms."

"At this point it is my duty to point out what two alternatives you have" — and he here referred to:— (a) Section 23 of the School Administration Act — (b) The establishment of a committee to call in a management consultant firm.

He noted that there are serious problems within the present organization which must be cleared up, and that the resignation of an individual would only give momentary relief. He strongly recommended the second alternative saying,

"If the results of such a study indicate my deviation of managerial skills to be inadequate, and that charges presented here to be justified, any validity, then I shall consider alternatives."

At Mr. Allore's invitation, Board members could have taken the opportunity to respond to this but there was an embarrassing silence only.

A few responsible Board members then asked the Chairman and one other Trustee — whether or not these people were prepared to support their statements were available. Neither could supply these.

During this period some of the Trustees commented on the secret meetings of the past week, in which the Chairman invited only selected members of this Board.

We see that this meeting took the form of a planned coup, rather than a serious attempt to resolve a very unhappy situation.

Mr. Allore's concluding remark strikes a tragic note — "I trust and have confidence in your sense of logic, fairplay and respect for the rights of the individual, as well as those of society."

The Board had coffee and resumed after Mr. Allore left the meeting — after some hours of discussion the meeting finished with a vote on the opening motion, and he was suspended. We wish to hear the input of this meeting. Now we wish to proceed with the six charges which the Chairman read at this meeting: —

ITEM ONE:

Mr. Chairman you charged that there was a continuing lack of academic supervision.

The Superintendent, aware of the needs of supervision, wished to hire a qualified assistant and when such became available the Board rejected a qualified Superintendent's candidate, who was satisfactory to the Superintendent.

Furthermore had the Superintendent had a trained and experienced business administration staff, would he not have been able to pursue academic supervision as he wished?

Great regulations alone require specialized knowledge and experience, and this added burden should not have taken Mr. Allore's time.

ITEM TWO:

Mr. Chairman you charged Mr. Allore for "financial implications in the pupil-teacher ratio into which we've been unable to fit."

In most responsible, regular class situations today the pupil teacher ratio can range from 15 to 29.

In a separate school outside Ottawa with an enrolment of 200 or so, the pupil-teacher ratio is 13. St. Michael's is a similar situation in a ratio of 30 to 40! While you may say that the ratio is low, children are in fact in classrooms of 30-40 pupils in many instances — an impossible situation.

We could ask many questions with regard to this alleration. One wonders what real understanding, if any, the Board has of the pupil teacher ratio and its significance in terms of quality education. Mr. Allore's report is a point-by-educational move.

1. With what established provincial norms did the Board compare the pupil-teacher ratio?
2. Was the Board apprised with financial aspects that they neglected the children as well as reasonable and desirable goals?

ITEM THREE:

Mr. Chairman, you charged that there was inadequate Department of Education support.

Surely if there were inadequacy in this area, the department itself would make the complaint!

1. What would be the code name and number of the forms inadequately completely?
2. May we see correspondence from the Department of Education to support your charge?
3. Could it be that mistakes were made by a member of the administration other than Mr. Allore?

ITEM FOUR:

Mr. Chairman, you charged that there was underemployment of facilities at, Georges Vanier School.

This school had been in operation for little more than seven months when this complaint was lodged. Visitors from other Boards had interested educators who observed this school in operation were agreeably pleased with what they saw. How do you account for this?

We have also had such a progressive approach in our system until now. It is possible that some of the Board members may not fully understand the nature of Special Education, nor the need to substitute developed requirements in the years ahead. They are not future oriented.

ITEM FIVE:

Mr. Chairman, you charged that there was a constant disregard of employer and personnel practices.

How strange! Six months were to pass between the date when the Superintendent developed a bucket policy (Feb. 20/70) and when it was adopted by your Board. (April 20/70)

In the absence of a complete register of personnel policy, is not the practice of other Boards to follow the Chief Executive Officer discretionary power in this area?

ITEM SIX:

Finally, you charged Mr. Chairman, that there was a constant and growing dissatisfaction, Mr. Allore's part to get along with second line staff.

When the conduct of certain members of the administrative staff appeared to be contributing to disorder, Mr. Allore held conferences with these members. It would seem that the Chairman mistakenly interpreted this matter as his inability of Mr. Allore "to get along".

The Chairman privately and individually, and without the Superintendent's knowledge, contacted these people adding further to their sense of answering to no one other than the Chairman. (Reorder you Mr. Chairman to th- week of Jan. 27/70).

The Superintendent was charged to see that these gentlemen were to carry out their assigned duties.

(a) Why was the Chairman undermining Mr. Allore's effectiveness by this type of interpretation?

(b) Why did the Chairman not insist that these two employees follow a legitimate grievance procedure?

We think of Mr. Allore's long hours each day devoted to educational concerns, his numerous addresses on education, his ever-present willingness to consider the needs of an individual child, and your shabby decision fills us with sadness.

We will not cease from exploration and the end of it all is to see Mr. Allore reinstated.

We have at this time further comments concerning your long-overdue answers to our original questions.

1. Re "Secret meetings".

(a) If you answer that there were no 'official' Board meetings held in secret, we state that of course secret meetings are not official. This is evasion.

(b) If you deny that you have had these meetings, you are on dangerous ground indeed, for some of your own members say that you did. Another way to put this question is—"Were there meetings to which some of the elected trustees were not invited?"

(c) If you answer that these meetings were caucus meetings or Committee meetings, we remind you that these should have been called by the Board as a whole and would be meetings of legitimate committees.

(d) If you answer that you did meet in secret we wish to hear where, when, whether you kept tapes or minutes, and what decisions about.

(e) Again, if you answer 'YES' then you have not conducted the affairs of this Board properly and according to Schools Administration Act, Section 34—

QUOTE—"Every Board shall fix times and places for meetings of the Board, and the mode of calling and conducting them, and keep that a full and correct account of the proceedings thereof."

2. With regard to the Grant questions.

(a) If no one is trained to interpret the grants in their historical context as well as in current legislation, how can you get interpretations to benefit the interests of the children rather than other interests?

(b) With regard to any statements you make concerning Grants, will you please provide (A) the date of the memorandum which verifies this statement (B) the part (that is: 1, 2, or 3) and section of the General Legislative Grants Regulation. We know that interpretation of these part is complex.

(c) We also know that the government does not allow grants on business establishments like chinery or builders. But this Board purchased Mr. Allore's home at the rate of about $100,000.00, a house for $40,000.00. In spite of the fact that it still pays rent until December for the old premises. In one case a business machine was purchased in November when the purchaser had no signing authority until January. Can you tell them, the machine sales we don't need as other Boards don't have them, cost invoices of over $200,000.00, and signing authority never did exceed $200.00 at anytime. Nor was he given permission by the Board to buy this machine according to your Minutes.

This will be a great expense to ratepayers.

We know that polarization has occurred in this Board. We know from dialogue with some Board members that a state of disintelligence prevents some members from reflection upon the conflicts which have been done. Perhaps the three members of this Board have constituted a pressure group and conceivable others have fallen into a regrettable line of action. We would like to think that serious reflection this evening would lead some of you at least into newer perspectives and a clearer view of this unfortunate situation.

It would be too easy for this Board to conclude that for a fair and peaceful solution, the Superintendent must be dismissed.

We ask you, Board, is the system really worth anything if it can so summarily dismiss this competent and creative educator?

We deeply regret the distress that has already been caused to Mr. Allore and his family by such generalities and innuendo—and dread of substance. We ask again, that you reinstate this good man, this creative administrator.

Finally, ladies and gentlemen, the unfolding of this regrettable event in such a fashion can be the cause of a possible need to resort to judicial decision of a great extra cost to ratepayers, and further distress to all concerned. Do you really wish to add the cost of a court case to your already excessive debt of $100,000.00, for which you are all unequivocally responsible?

If this goes to court do you not think that many ratepayers will withdraw their financial support?

—Can the Christian Community not make a concerted effort at this point to resolve this dilemma in an honorable and intelligent manner? The hour is late, but we would respect your real concern for children, teache-s, ratepayers and for Mr. Allore.

If you fail to support the reinstatement of Mr. Allore this evening, then we ask you to resign.

Signed,

Political Novice Picked Manitoba's Liberal Leader

WINNIPEG (CP) — I. H. (Izzy) Asper, a political novice who began campaigning less than three weeks ago, is the new leader of the Manitoba Liberal party.

Mr. Asper, a 38-year-old lawyer, tax consultant and author, won the leadership Saturday by a wide margin over his only opponent, Jack Nesbitt, 45. The vote was 720 to 228.

He takes over a party that has been leaderless for 16 months and reduced to third-party status, with a promise that he will lead Liberals out of the political wilderness along a course of moderation between the governing New Democrats and the opposition Conservatives.

"People must not be forced to choose between the extremes of socialism and conservatism," he told delegates.

Describing his own philosophy as "combining a dedication to the advance of the human condition with a system of fiscal honesty and fair taxation," he called on the party to spread a message of "a new and true liberalism that will no longer permit erosion of rights through totalitarian statism or government indifference."

Mr. Asper is the party's third leader in less than two years. Gildas Molgat, leader since 1961, resigned in February, 1969, to be succeeded by R. W. (Bobby) Bend.

Mr. Bend, a 55-year-old veteran of former premier D. L. Campbell's cabinet, held the job for less than two months. He resigned after suffering personal defeat in the June, 1958, provincial election, an election that saw the Liberals return only five members to the 57-seat legislature.

The appointment of Mr. Molgat to the Senate that month, and the defection of a second member to the NDP caucus, left the Liberals with only three members, and at the lowest ebb in a political decline that began when Duff Roblin's Conservative's ousted Mr. Campbell's 10-year-old regime from office in 1958.

Although there will be a byelection in rural Ste. Rose riding to fill the seat left vacant by Mr. Molgat's appointment to the Senate, Mr. Asper said it is unlikely he will run.

Passengers Evacuated After Bomb Threat

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — The last run of CNR passenger train No. 671 to Owen Sound from Toronto Saturday was marred by a bomb threat and a steel-backed bench being placed on the track.

The bomb threat proved to be a hoax but conductor T. W. Donaldson of Colpoy, Ont. said the bench could have derailed the train had it not slowed to 25 miles an hour from 60 as it rounded a curve.

Vandals also laid torpedoes, small explosives the railways pin to the tracks to warn engineers to use caution, and passengers became alarmed after hearing the explosions.

Fifty-six passengers were forced to evacuate the train at Palmerston, 32 miles south of Owen Sound, as police searched for a bomb. Police did not say how the threat was received.

The Canadian transport commission has allowed the CNR, which operated a daily service between Owen Sound and Toronto, and the CPR, which had a thrice-weekly service, to discontinue their operations because of declining business. Owen Sound had had the service for 97 years.

The CPR had its last run Friday.

When the last run Saturday reached Owen Sound, there were nine persons on board, including four news reporters and three crew members.

Ontario.
Is there any place you'd rather be?

Ontarians are the kind of people who would not be here if there was any place better. We are people who came from a hundred lands and stayed to build. People with backbone and brawn and a hunger to succeed. Men and women who've created a standard of living in decades that other lands worked centuries to build. If we have a flaw it's our chronic modesty. Ontarians may be proud to be Ontarians and Canadians . . . they just seldom tell anyone. From an economic point of view that's wrong. The more people we have boosting Ontario and Canada the better it is. And we've got a lot to boost with. At a time when the dollar is having many demands made on it, Ontarians can note that provincial taxes have held the line in 1970. And we had a surplus to boot. Yet, needed programs have not been neglected. The Ontario Housing Corporation for example, has housed 120,000 people to date and currently has almost a billion dollars worth of programs active in nearly 200 Ontario Communities. We need a vigorous economy of course, to support these important programs. And, that's where you come in. Though our productivity has doubled in ten years and our incomes in twelve, Ontarians don't sit on their successes. There's a demanding decade ahead full of challenges and opportunities to make the quality of our lives better yet. To meet these challenges we've got to believe in ourselves. Which, when you think about it, isn't such a bad idea.

Everytime you boost Ontario . . . Ontario and Canada get a little stronger.

Galt Hornets signed centre Cec Hoekstra Friday night and the Winnipeg native wasted little time in showing his value to the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A club.

Hoekstra, a veteran of 16 professional seasons—seven of them with Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League—scored twice Saturday and once Sunday in Galt victories.

Hornets crushed Oakville Oaks 9-0 at home Saturday—and gained a 5-4 overtime win over the Crescents at Owen Sound Sunday.

In other Sunday play, Orillia Terriers extended their win record to eight games, winning 4-3 over Kingston Aces; Barrie Flyers kept pace, posting back of the Terriers by beating Belleville Mc-Hawks 7-4 and Oakville outscored Woodstock Athletics 10-4.

Hoekstra was joined in the two-goal category against Oakville by Ron Smith and Bruce Reier. Billy Reay, Ron Hergott and Bob Ertel shared in the rout with single goals.

Hornets were forced into sudden-death overtime Sunday before defenceman Ron Hergott unloaded a screened drive from the blue line past Owen Sound netminder Chuck Jewell for the winning score.

Reier, Hoekstra, Reay and Ertel also scored once for Galt while Bill Abbott, Garry Vaughan, Mike Donaldson and Drew Baldone replied for the Crescents.

At Kingston Sunday, the Terriers stretched their win string with the help of four straight goals in the second period. A crowd of 1,500 watched Bob Cunningham, Dave Nicholaisen, George Vail, Gary Mallroy, Connie Mandala and Tom McCarthy score once each for the Terriers. Peter Ford, Rod Jenkins and Eddie Long answered for the Aces.

Oakville and Woodstock scored on almost every third shot in front of 1,000 Oakville fans before the Oaks prevailed. Defenceman Pat Boster led the winners with three goals and Charlie Cipolla scored twice, including the winner in the third period. Other Oakville scorers were Ken Knapton, Dickie Smith, Frank Rincks, Cal Rossel and Dave MacDonald.

Marc Pernin led the Athletics with three goals. John Dobby and Wayne Coste had two each and Mac Westgate once.

Gary Gervais, Jack McCabe, Norm Hoxford and skip Stan Reardon show some of the curling form that brought them a win in the Annual Quinte Golf and Curling Bonspiel. Ordinarily members of the Quinte Curling Club and the Bay of Quinte Country Club split the events with nine holes of golf and an eight-end curling match. Because of inclement weather, however, this year's contest was restricted solely to curling. The Reardon rink won out over the 96 other foursomes entered in the event, which was closed with a roast beef banquet. The curling club's official opening will get under way tonight at 5:30 p.m. in the Quinte Mixed Opening Bonspiel.

Peterborough B's Haunt Fairways With 4-0 Sunday Victory

PETERBOROUGH (Special) — Peterborough sprung a delayed Hallowe'en trick on the Belleville Fairways by treating themselves to a 4-0 home win Sunday.

The big Eastern Ontario Junior B leaders outskated and out-smacked the Fairways en route to a well-deserved shutout win. Only some good goaltending by Ron Jury in the Belleville nets managed to hold them to their four-goal total.

In front of Jury things were far from impressive. "We gave away three of the four goals," said coach Floyd Crawford. "They were gifts. We weren't skating at all out there. Our defence certainly didn't play well, but you can't place all the blame on them because our forwards weren't backchecking."

The Fairways did manage to come on in the third period, holding the winners to a scoreless draw over the final 20 minutes but couldn't dent the tough Peterborough defence.

"We played better in the last period," noted Crawford. "I'm not going to use the old 'wait until we get you in our rink' bit, but I think that we might give them a surprise the next time we meet."

Belleville was minus the services of regulars Dave Smith and Kevin Dockrill for the game because of illness. Smith a vital cog in the Fairways' top line with Danny Lapointe and Cliff Jezdach, may have commonwealth, and it is not known how long the hustling right winger will be out of the Belleville lineup.

Bob Gagner and Rick Nobes scored in the first period for Peterborough with Gord Flyer and John Grant adding second frame goals.

Centre Jim Johnston starred on outstanding game for the winners, while defencemen Peter Ackerman and Tim Yohn turned in steady performances for the Fairways.

Peterborough picked up 11 of the game's 17 penalties, which included majors to Randy Spencer and Belleville's Brian O'Con.

The Fairways next game will be Sunday night when they entertain the Kingston Frontenacs.

Loyalist Teams Drop Two Weekend Games

Loyalist - Lancer sports teams had a tough weekend as they dropped a pair of exhibition games to Durham College in Oshawa.

In basketball, the Lancers were handed a 53-47 loss by the Durham Lords.

After a see-saw first half, Durham managed a late surge to lead 27-25 at half-time. Loyalist came back early in the third quarter to grab a slim lead, but the Lords fought back to lead 48-47 with one minute to play. A personal foul and a field goal accounted for the final Durham points.

Rick Webster was the top Lancer scorer hooping 14 points, followed by Blair Colham with 12. Dale Lingard, Brian Muyschaey and Dale Ducarme also played well for the losers.

Three goals in the final period helped ice a 7-3 win for the Durham hockey team over Loyalist.

The winners sandwiched two goals around a marker by Len Taft to take a 2-1 lead at the end of the first period.

Gary Thompson tied the score in the second frame, but the Lords pumped in two unanswered goals to lead 4-2.

In the last period Durham scored twice more on starting goalie Terry Murphy and once on replacemen Dick Beare before Gary Goyer counted the final goal of the game.

In Sunday's loss Bobby Crawford collected a hat trick and Steve Kirby and Eric Powell with one goal apiece.

In midget-play Sunday, the Blake Kerr Imperials dropped an 8-7 decision to Kingston. Rob Foster and Russ Herrington counted a pair of goals for the winners with the others going to Dave Taylor, Andy Ricketts and Jim Richardson.

Defensive Sags Prove Costly In Mo-Hawk Loss to Barrie

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

A potent 3-D attack wasn't enough to overcome the almost total lack of a fourth D — defence — as the Mo-Hawks lost a 7-4 decision to the Barrie Flyers Sunday afternoon.

Digging wingers Ralph Plane and Les Colligan, along with the dipsy-doodle playmaking of centre Doug Senior were the sum total of the Belleville attack throughout most of the game.

Defensively, the only bright spot was goalie Steve Rexe, who turned aside four of the six Barrie breakaways during the course of the contest, in which he faced 41 shots from the second-place Flyers. The only play in which Rexe could be at all faulted was the sixth goal when he was caught moving the wrong way on a deflection by Pete Panagabko.

Belleville coach Dave Jones was somewhat less than happy after the loss. "You can't win a game when you only take two penalties on your home ice. You've got to be ready and check all game (a third-period belt by Gerry Marchen)" snapped the irate coach. "You can't win a game with only three men and the goalie playing hockey. We've got to change our attitude."

For the opening 20 minutes it appeared as though the Mo-Hawks were heading for an upset win over the Flyers, who had won their six previous games.

Ralph Plane opened the scoring at 7:59 of the first period, when the lanky left winger combined with Doug Senior on a two-way passing play to jam the puck past Ken Payne in the Barrie net.

DOUG SENIOR

Minutes later Rexe received some indication of things to come when he was called on to stop a breakaway attempt by Mike Dubeau.

Senior gave the home team a 2-0 edge, collecting a pass from Plane off a face-off in the Barrie end and drilling the puck past Payne.

Belleville held a wide territorial edge in the first period, particularly in the early stages, but were unable to finish off a number of good scoring chances.

Barrie came back to narrow the margin to one goal near the end of the opening frame when John McMillan was left unchecked in front of Rexe. McMillan beat the Mo-Hawk backstop with a low shot into the right-hand corner.

Barrie tied the game in the second period on a goal by Bob Stackenbrook as once again the Mo-Hawk defence left a man uncovered in front of the net.

Belleville pulled ahead 3-2 when a perfect leading pass by Lionel Boily, who was the steadiest of the Mo-Hawk rearguards, sent Senior into the clear for his fifth goal in two games.

Second period tallies by George Ford, Panagabko and John McMillan gave the Flyers a lead they never relinquished. McMillan's tally, which proved to be the eventual winner came on a breakaway with the Mo-Hawks holding a man advantage.

Plane brought the losers to within one goal of Barrie scoring after only 25 seconds of play in the third period. The power play goal came on a pretty three - way passing play with Senior and Les Colligan as Plane tipped in Colligan's goalmouth pass.

Panagabko scored goal, along with one by Fern St. Onge finished off the scoring in the game.

The Flyers held an eight shot advantage for the course of the game, with many of the winners 41 tries coming on difficult chances for Rexe as the Mo-Hawk rearguards were repeatedly caught up the ice.

Senior picked up a pair of assists to give him eight points in the two games that he has centred Colligan and Plane. The Belleville captain added an assist in his two-goal effort, while Colligan chipped in a pair of helpers.

A big blow to the Belleville

RALPH PLANE

offence was the surprisingly ineffective play of George Godson, Lorne O'Donnell and Al Ferguson on what was supposed to be the Mo-Hawk's top scoring line.

Barrie picked up three of the game's five penalties, all minors. Belleville's next game will be Tuesday night when they travel to Kingston to take on the Aces.

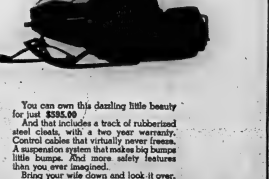
Our Slip Is Showing



It seems that Moira's speedy halfback Dave Rutherford is often as hard to pick up from the sidelines as he is on the gridiron.

A number of mistakes were made in Saturday's report by The Intelligencer of the Bay of Quinte junior football championship.

Rutherford was responsible for two of the touchdowns in Moira's 23-6 win, as well as the two passes to John Loder for conversions. It was also Rutherford not Dave Hillborn, who fumbled the punt that led to Centennial's only touchdown.

Boston Records Weekend Shutouts To Gain First Place Tie with Rangers

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

His words lacked the eloquence of a William Shakespeare, but one would find it difficult to argue the case put forward by Boston Bruins' Gerry Cheevers.

Earlier this season, even before the National Hockey League champions reported to training camp, the 23-year-old goaltender from St. Catharines, Ont., remarked: "We put it all together one night last April in Boston Garden."

He was, of course, referring to their Stanley Cup semi-final playoff with New York Rangers. With the series tied two apiece and the Rangers leading the fifth game 3-1 after two periods, the Beantowners rebounded for a 3-3 victory.

They won nine straight playoff games, leading to their first Stanley Cup celebration in 29 years, and so far have lost none of nine starts in the 1970-71 campaign.

Their two latest victims were the Rangers 6-0 Saturday and Minnesota North Stars 5-0 Sunday with Cheevers in goal. The wins moved the Bruins into a first-place tie with New York in the NHL's East Division, each with 15 points.

In other Sunday games, the Rangers bounced back with a 5-2 victory over Chicago Black Hawks, West Division leaders. Dave Keon's two goals paced Toronto Maple Leafs to a 5-4 win over Detroit Red Wings, Philadelphia Flyers opened a 3-2 lead in the game against New York Rangers before Bill Barber, with two goals, Peter Mahovlich, Gerry Byers and Tom Cassidy replied for the Rangers.

Chief scout Fred Litzen handled the St. Catharines coaching duties. He replaced coach Punch Imlach, who was suspended indefinitely by the OHA for an incident during a Friday hockey scrap at Toronto.

Ottawa, holder of third spot, one point ahead of Toronto and Hamilton, twice rallied from behind to win at London.

The Knights, who led 1-0 in the opening period, grabbed a 3-2 advantages in the early stages of the third on a slap shot by Dave McLaren deflected off a skate and through the legs of Ottawa netminder Danny Larocque. Peter Gaw then tied the score 3-3 and Murray Wilson shot the winner for Ottawa.

Brian McSheffrey and Wayne Merrick also scored for the winners, Don Jones and Dick Decloe completed the London scoring.

The Junior Canadiens scored three times without reply in the third period to beat Hamilton in front of 5,491 fans at the Montreal Forum.

Robert Lalonde, with two goals, Andre St. Laurent, Camille Lapierre and Richard Martin scored for Montreal. Rick Kehoe provided the Red Wings with a 2-0 lead, scoring with less than two minutes left in the opening period and 48 seconds gone in the second.

GERRY CHEEVERS
0 lead then hung on for a 3-2 trimming of Pittsburgh Penguins, and Los Angeles Kings defeated Buffalo Sabres 4-2.

Saturday night, Montreal Canadiens used the scoring efforts of six different players in dropping Vancouver Canucks 6-3, the Maple Leafs were frustrated by the goaltending antics of veteran Gump Worsley in a 3-1 loss to Minnesota, three first-period goals carried Chicago to a 5-2 win over Pittsburgh and St. Louis Blues recorded their fifth straight, home-ice victory, 3-0, against Los Angeles.

All Boston Sunday. Johnny McKenzie set up the game's first goal, then came back from a high-sticking wound that required 10 stitches at the end of the second period to score early in the third period.

McKenzie's goal was one of two Boston tallied while Minnesota defenceman Barry Gibbs, who inflicted the wound to the Jerry Bruins winger's left forehead, was serving a five-minute major.

Boston centre Phil Esposito, the NHL's scoring leader with 19 points, was thwarted continually by goalie Cesare Maniago who faced 50 Bruins shots. Esposito managed only one assist despite his 13 shots on goal.

However, his three assists in the game against New York helped pad his scoring lead to three points over McKenzie and snapped the Rangers' win string at seven.

His weekend point production also moved the 28-year-old native of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., over the 300-point plateau, the 42nd NHLer to reach that total. His career totals now include 298 goals and 294 assists for 592 points.

Boston defenceman Bobby Orr, who dislodged Esposito as the scoring champion last year, registered a goal and three assists against New York as veteran Ed Johnston turned in the first Boston shutout of the year.

The Rangers extended their home-ice winning streak to six as they scored three times against Chicago's Vezina Trophy winner, Tony Esposito, in the first period enroute to their Sunday win.

At Detroit, the Maple Leafs were in an uphill battle all the way as Frank Mahovlich, with his first of two goals, and Nick Libett gave the Red Wings a 2-0 first-period lead.

But with Keon's two goals and an assist, and steady goaltending from Bruce Gamble, Toronto finally clinched victory when rookie Guy Troulier broke a 4-4 tie with his third-period goal.

Larry Hale's goal early in the third period gave Philadelphia a 3-0 lead but the Flyers were hard-pressed to make them stand up as Nick Harbaruk and Giles Seiber shot the Penguins back into contention.

The Los Angeles victory, with Eddie Shack and Bob Berry scoring 47 seconds apart in the third period, snapped a three-game Kings' losing streak and extended the Sabres' losing string to four, dumping them into last place in the East Division.

The Canadiens, who earlier in the week lost high-scoring Yvan Cournoyer for two to three weeks with a fractured left foot bone, saw defenceman Jacques Laperriere shelved for a week to 10 days after he was checked heavily into the boards in their game with Vancouver.

The injury was diagnosed as an acute neck sprain. The veteran defenceman is reported under observation in hospital, will undergo additional examination Tuesday or Wednesday.

Mike Corrigan broke a scoreless tie midway through the second period, but the Vancouver lead was short-lived as Rejean Houle scored just 43 seconds later and the Canadiens went on to tally twice more in the period before adding three in the final 20 minutes.

Bobby Hull and Bryan Campbell scored within a space of 38 seconds of the first period at Pittsburgh, and Dennis Hull put the game out of reach for Chicago with two goals in the third period.

At St. Louis, Glenn Hall recorded his 88th NHL shutout with remarkable ease. He was called on to make only 17 stops. Christian Bordeleau's second-period goal, while St. Louis was shorthanded, was the winner.

Veteran Jim Roberts, Blues' ace penalty-killing specialist, set up the play when he intercepted a Los Angeles pass and fed rookie Bordeleau who beat Kings' goalie Dennis DeJordy with a 40-footer.

Hudson Turns On

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lou Hudson poured in 43 points for his season high Sunday night and sparked Atlanta Hawks to a 131-107 National Basketball Association victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Team-mate Bill Bridges contributed 25 points—also a season high.

Hudson hit for 14 points in the second quarter and 13 in the third as the Hawks shot ahead and put the game out of reach of the winless Cavaliers, who lost their 10th straight.

Cleveland led briefly in the first half, but Hudson put the Hawks on top to stay late in the second period with a layup that made the score 51-50.

The game was the only one scheduled Sunday night.

Two NFL Teams Pack Winning Wallop

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The fight games, which picked up some extra wallop a week ago at Atlanta, is on the upswing in another heavyweight division—the National Football League.

A pair of brawls enlivened the NFL card Sunday, rivaling last Monday night's Muhammad Ali-Jerry Quarry set—to and playing major roles in New York Giants' decision over New York Jets and Oakland Raiders 17-17 draw with Kansas City Chiefs.

Fran Tarkenton scrambled out of a third-quarter tackle in the first regular season meeting of New York's dynamic Fearsome Foursome and keyed a quick-striking Giant counter-attack that floored the Jets.

A last-minute deadpbrook Kansas City helped the Raiders salvage a tie on George Blanda's 48-yard field goal with three seconds to play.

Elsewhere, Minnesota Vikings swept over Detroit Tigers 30-17, Baltimore Colts stomped Miami Dolphins 25-6, San Francisco 49ers topped Green Bay Packers 28-10, Buffalo Bills drubbed Boston Patriots 45-18, St. Louis Cardinals slaughtered Houston Oilers 44-6, Dallas Cowboys trimmed Philadelphia Eagles 31-17, Los Angeles Rams subdued New Orleans Saints 30-27, Washington Redskins startled Denver Bronco 19-3, Chicago Bears bounced Atlanta Falcons 23-14, and San Diego Padres turned back Cleveland Browns 27-18.

Cincinnati Bengals' game against Pittsburgh Steelers tonight brings the NFL season to its midway mark.

The Giants trailed 10-3 in the third quarter when the Jets' defensive stopped Tucker Frederickson's fourth-down plunge inches short of the end zone and Tarkenton was swarmed under after taking a futile lateral from Pro Football Hall of Fame halfback Bill Mathis in the whistle blew the play dead.

Tarkenton came off the ground huffing and puffing, exchanged words with his tacklers and then squared off against Jet defensive back Earlie Thomas, a former Golden Gloves boxer. The benches emptied and several scuffles broke out before the teams were persuaded to return to football.

The Giants promptly called Chuck Mercein for a safety and Tarkenton fired two touchdown passes in the next two minutes, turning the game around.

"The fight fueled our guys up," said coach Alex Webster, whose Giants have won four in a row after an 0-3 start.

"It didn't hurt any," Tarkenton conceded. "Our guys were emotionally aroused."

Tarkenton couldn't recall throwing a punch in the scuffle.

"If I'd have landed one, it wouldn't have hurt anybody anyway," he added. "I couldn't crush an egg. I'm not planning to challenge Muhammad Ali anytime soon."

A punch Otis Taylor denied throwing touched off the fireworks at Kansas City and ultimately cost the Chiefs a vital victory in the American Conference's Western Division race.

With 1:08 to play and the Chiefs leading 17-14 on a Len Dawson to Taylor TD pass, Dawson spotted 19 yards to the Oakland 39-and was smacked by big Ben Davidson after the whistle.

A penalty flag was dropped, signifying a 15-yard stepoff against the Raiders, but when Taylor lit into Davidson, he was ejected from the game and the 15-yarder nullified by a 15-yard penalty against the Chiefs.

The Chiefs then punted and Daryle Lamonica, eyeing the clock, drove Oakland upfield to set up Blanda's tying three-pointer.

Tie Gives Tiger-Cats Eastern Title

By PETER LLOYD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hamilton Tiger Cats, ruled out of contention for first place in most pre-season forecasts, wrapped up top spot in the Eastern Football Conference Sunday with an 18-18 tie against Montreal Alouettes.

The final game of the regular CFC season in Montreal meant the difference between first and third place for both teams as well as a one-week layoff for the Ticats who earned a berth in the league final with the tie.

Toronto Argonauts, who edged Ottawa Rough Riders 19-17 Saturday, wrapped up second place with their win and will host the Alouettes in the conference semi-final in Toronto next Saturday.

For Montreal, a team vastly different from the one that finished in the EFC cellar last year, the tie shattered the dream of a first-place finish in Sam Etcheverry's first year as head coach of the team.

But the Als battled the Argonauts and Tiger-Cats right to the wire. Final standings show Hamilton with 17 points on eight wins, five losses and a tie, Toronto one point behind with an 8-6-1 record, Montreal in third place with seven victories, six losses and a tie.

The 15,886 fans at the Autostade saw the battle for first place go down to the final gun with Montreal unable to add single they needed for the win.

Hamilton jumped into a 10-9 first-quarter lead on the Alouettes' safety back to go ahead 11-10 early in the fourth quarter before Montreal added another touchdown, forcing Montreal to scramble for the tie.

After the game, each coach felt his team should have won the game.

"We should have won it," Hamilton coach Joe Restic said. "I hated like heck to give them that last touchdown."

"I'm not saying we played that well but when you get that far with that quarterback—"

Etcheverry said his Alouettes "should have been leading by 10 points in the first half" but were stymied by two interceptions and two fumbles.

Even in the dying seconds of the game, the ex-Alouette quarterback was confident his team could come up with a win.

With only 49 seconds of play left after Moses Denson's touchdown and George Springate's convert tied the game, many spectators left the stands as expected Montreal to try to retain possession of the ball with a short kickoff.

Restic sent in the Hamilton short-kickoff return squad.

But Etcheverry outwitted the powerful kicking leg of Justin Canale would be enough to boost the Als to victory and sent the ex-National Football League player in to try and kick the ball into the end-zone on the kickoff.

"Justin Canale can kick ball out of the ball," he said after the game. "We thought Justin would kick it into the end zone."

But Canale's kick dropped seven yards short of the goal line and Hamilton ran out the clock on their next series of plays.

Hamilton's place kicker, Tommy Joe Coffey, opened the scoring at the 14:32 mark of the first quarter when he booted a 15-yard field goal after Montreal fullback Dean's Duncan fumbled the ball on his 33-yard line and the Ticats recovered.

Two-minutes later, Hamilton ran the score to 10-0 on a 17-yard touchdown by end Al Irwin on a pass from quarterback Wally Gabler and the convert by Coffey.

Montreal struck back early in the second quarter when Tom Pullen soared a five-yard touchdown pass from Sonny Wade, who went all the way as quarterback for the Alouettes.

Springate's 35-yard single on an attempted field goal narrowed the gap to 10-8 at 5:17 of the third quarter and Montreal jumped into an 11-10 lead in the first quarter on the last quarter when Springate kicked a 36-yard field goal.

Dick Wesolowski's 24-yard run up the middle and the subsequent convert put Hamilton in front 17-11 with the quarter half over. Coffey widened the margin to seven points with a 22-yard single at 11:40.

Wade then directed the Montreal offense on its best drive of the game, moving the ball from the Alouettes 25 to the Hamilton one-yard line in 10 plays before Denson leaped into the end zone for a touchdown.

Final statistics showed Montreal with a net offence of 438 yards to 321 for the Tiger-Cats while Montreal held a 25-15 margin in first downs.

Coffey's six-point performance gave him the EFC scoring title for the second year in a row. He piled up 113 points compared to a record 148 points last season.

Jo Toronto Saturday, the Argos needed an 18-yard field goal by Dave Cutler with six seconds left in the game to nip Ottawa and guarantee them second place in the conference.

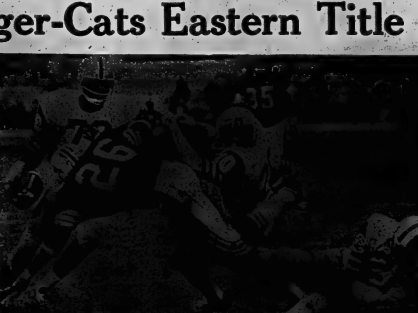
Toronto was eliminated from first-place contention last Saturday when they dropped a 27-7 game to Hamilton at Civic Stadium.

The Argos opened the scoring on the slippery CNE turf with a 25-yard field goal by Cutler near the end of the first quarter.

They extended their lead to 13-3 by half-time on two singles by Mann, a safety touch conceded by Bill Van Burkleo, a 34-yard touchdown by Chip Barrett on a pass interception off Gary Wood and a convert and 34-yard field goal by Jonas.

Fadden's touchdown came on a 15-yard pass from Wood and Jonas' convert.

Ottawa's only other scoring came on a 30-yard field goal by Jonas in the second quarter.



Quarterback Gary Wood completed 16 of 30 passes for 211 yards and one touchdown.

Toronto's Barrett caught seven passes for 104 yards.

Cutler's 25-yard field goal was the only scoring in the third quarter.

Toronto's Jonas, who had kicked a single in the first quarter, added another touchdown, forcing Montreal to scramble for the tie.

Block Party

Montreal Alouettes' Moses Denson tries to elude a block by Hamilton 'Tiger-Cats' Mac Sauls (20) and Garney Henley (26) while trying to get at ball-carrying Allan Ray Aldridge (78) during the National Football League game in Montreal Sunday. The two teams tied at an 18-18 finish, but the Hamilton Tiger-Cats came away with first place in the Eastern Conference.

Keys Has Unique CFL 'Problem' As Roughriders Win 14th Game

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If the most impressive record in the Western Football Conference can be called a problem, coach Eagle Keys of Saskatchewan Roughriders has got it.

His club just keeps ending the WFC race about two weeks too early.

"God here, all you have to do is win," said Keys after his team trumped British Columbia Lions 29-16 Saturday for its 14th victory of the season.

"We had only 19,000 fans for our Edmonton game. If the weather's cold and we've got first place, they stay home."

Now Eagle and the Roughriders sit and wait for winner of the Calgary Stampeders-Edmonton-Eskimos semi-final clash Nov. 8. By the time Saskatchewan has an opponent for the WFC final, the fans should be storming the box office.

The Stampeders ended their season too, with an 11-6 win over last-place Winnipeg Blue Bombers as placekicker Dave Robinson established a Canadian Football League career record for field goals.

Robinson's 39-yard field goal in the third quarter in Winnipeg gave him 115, one more than now-retired Don Sutherin.

In Vancouver, the Lions, knocked out of playoff contention last weekend, had nothing to lose but their pride and for one quarter, it looked as though they would escape with that.

B.C. snuffed out Saskatchewan's 7-6 first-quarter lead by scoring all its points in the second on two field goals by Ted Gerela and a seven-dive touchdown from the one-yard line by veteran fullback Leon Lowe. Chapman, which Gerela converted.

It was the best 15 minutes the Lions had spent in their 14 games to date, but backup quarterback Vidal Cartin threw it away in the third quarter with three interceptions, two of which turned into touchdowns.

Linebacker Chuck Kyle grabbed off a Cartin pass early in the quarter and threw a lateral to defensive halfback Ted Dushinski, who was brought down on the B.C. 50.

Three plays later, Ron Lancaster tossed a 16-yard strike to Gord Sarvell in the end zone. Place-kicker Jack Abendschan, who had three converts in five tries for the afternoon, was good on that one and the Roughriders never looked back.

His three points gave him 116 for the season and the WFC scoring title. Gerela was second with 107 points, one more than Dave Cutler of Edmonton.

Rookie quarterback Gary Lane, who gave Lancaster and his ailing arm a rest, scored on a one-yard run with 35 seconds remaining in the quarter, but Abendschan's convert was blocked.

Brothers came back to call the signals early in the final quarter and was roundly booed by the 23,739 fans.

Six minutes later, Saskatchewan defensive back Bruce Bennett picked off a pass intended for A. D. Whitfield and romped 44 yards to the Lions three.

R. C. Gamble, replacing George Reed at fullback, went the rest of the way for the touchdown and the crowd started filing out of Empire Stadium.

Those who stayed saw flanker Alan Ford fake a punt and hit tight end Dave Denny with a 30-yard pass to the B.C. five with 13 seconds remaining.

Offensive halfback Silas McKinnie took the handoff and crashed over the Roughriders final six points.

The only bright spot for Vancouver fans was running back Jim Young, who rolled up 76 yards on seven catches to become the West's top pass-receiver with 1,041 yards. 15 more than runner-up Herm Harrison of the Stampeders.

Young missed catching Hugh Oldham of Ottawa Rough Riders by two yards for the Canadian Football League title.

In Winnipeg, the mercury dipped to 39 degrees for a sparse crowd of 10,131 which watched the Blue Bombers suffer their 14th and final loss of 1970.

Calgary got inside the Winnipeg 40-yard line only five times in the game, but scored on three of them.

Harrison scored the Stampeders' touchdown in the second quarter, ending a 180-yard march that started with Frank Andruski's interception.

The Calgary defensive unit came up tough inside their own 20-yard line three times in the first half, intercepting two passes and recovering a fumble to keep Winnipeg scoreless.

Quarterback Larry Lawrence took Calgary 89 yards on six plays before the rowing four yards to Harrison for the touchdown. Robinson converted it.

Winnipeg signal-caller Benji Dial scored himself in the third quarter, one kick failed.

Robinson booted his record-breaking field goal before the quarter ended, but it took to settle for a single when he was wide with no. 116 from 34 yards. Dial's fumble on the soaked field didn't stop the clubs from piling up more than 600 yards in offence.

Eastern Scoring Leaders

Tommy Joe Coffey topped off the 1970 Eastern Football Conference scoring championship Sunday with six points in Hamilton Tiger-Cats' 18-18 tie with Montreal Alouettes for a season total of 113 points

Quarter-back-place-kicker Don Jonas of Toronto Argonauts finished second with 100 points.

Coffey added a field goal, two converts and a single Sunday for a season total of 29 converts, 15 field goals and nine singles to go with his five touchdowns.

Place-kicker Jack Abendschan of Saskatchewan won the Western Football Conference individual scoring race Sunday as his team downed British Columbia Lions 29-16.

Abendschan kicked only three converts in the game, but boosted his point total to 116, nine more than his closest rival, Ted Gerela of the Lions.

Gerela picked up seven points in the game on two touchdowns and a single, and eased into second place one point ahead of Edmonton Eskimo place-kicker Dave Cutler.

Four Canadians Among Nine Killed in In-Flight Collisions

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two in-flight collisions involving light planes — one over Seattle and the other over Missoula, Mont. — took the lives of nine persons including four Canadians Sunday.

Five persons died when a two-passenger plane and a larger aircraft carrying members of the University of Montana Silver Tip Ski Driving Club collided over Missoula. There was one survivor.

In the Seattle crash, four Canadians were killed when their light plane and another collided in flight. The light plane lost a wing and plummeted to the ground. The second plane, carrying two persons, landed safely at Seattle's Boeing Field.

The victims of the Seattle crash were Nicholas H. Dody, 34, and George Romanack, 47, both of South Burnaby, B.C.; and their sons, Don Dody, 13, of Vancouver, and Howard Romanack, 8.

They had taken off from Pitt Meadows Airport near Vancouver en route to Boeing Field.

Their aircraft went down in a maze of trees and brush on the east slope of Beacon Hill, a long ridge adjacent to the airfield.

"The wing fluttered down," 15-year-old Gary Simpson, a witness, told authorities. The wing landed in a yard next to the home the Kent, Wash., youngster was visiting, but none of the several people in the yard was hit.

The pilot of the second plane, Daniel Banks of Seattle, brought his craft down without incident. He and his wife were uninjured.

The survivor of the Missoula mishap, James Lochrer, 41, of Great Falls, Mont., bailed out of the larger aircraft after the two planes hit. He landed unconscious in a high school football field. He was treated for shock at hospital, then released.

Another one of those in the larger plane also bailed out but was found dead in an irrigation ditch.

The five victims were: William La Fleur and Judy Barrett, both of Great Falls; Marcia Kantowicz, Chicago, Ill.; pilot Bob Loeck of Missoula; and Clayton Leakey, 37, of Avery, Idaho, alone in the smaller plane.

"I was inside the house," said Mrs. D. M. Rose of Missoula, whose home was beneath the collision. "I rushed out and looked around and saw two persons coming down. Then I saw all kinds of metal objects land all around me. I saw the plane coming down. It was horrible."

The sound of the crashing airplanes startled many of the 40,000 residents of the western Montana college town who had been enjoying a 50-degree plus afternoon. Debris from the crash pounded rooftops across a two-mile area.

A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration said the smaller plane "remains a mystery at his point."

It was believed the craft had taken off from the Wallace-Kellogg, Idaho airport. It was registered out of San Antonio, Tex.

Leakey had not filed a flight plan with the Missoula FAA and officials could not say where he was headed.

"She's a terrible housekeeper! Did you happen to notice the dust behind her bedroom dresser?"

Polish Official Dies During Karachi Visit

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — A witness said a man shouted "Down with communism!" as he drove a cargo truck into an airport reception line for Poland's president. The deputy foreign minister of Poland, Pakistan's deputy intelligence chief and two Pakistani photographers died.

Polish President Marian Spychalski was unhurt, but Warsaw's ambassador to Pakistan and about 30 others were injured. Spychalski broke off his five-day visit to Pakistan to accompany the body of Zygfryd Wolniak to Poland.

Police did not confirm that the killing on Sunday was intentional, saying that its cause "seems to be failure of the brakes of the vehicle." But they said they were questioning a man named Feroze Abdulah.

The witness said he heard the truck driver shouting, "I have completed my mission!" and "Down with communism!" as the bodies lay near Spychalski's chartered plane.

"Everyone was surprised when this man drove the van from behind the aircraft and in the twinkling of an eye accelerated toward the spot where the Polish president was shaking hands," the witness said.

"The driver apparently thought the deputy foreign minister was the president, and after crushing him, raised his hands in the air and shouted: 'I have done my job! I have completed my mission!'"

The witness said police overpowered the driver, but the man continued shouting slogans against communism until an officer clamped a hand over the man's mouth.

In addition to Wolniak, 48, the victims included news photographer Mohammed Yasin; Mohammed Ashraf, photographer for Pakistan's information ministry, and the security official, Chaudhri Mohammed Nasir.

Wolniak was regarded as a coming man in Poland's Communist government. He joined the ministry of foreign affairs in 1946 after fighting in the Polish underground movement during the Second World War.

He served as consul in Montreal, Ottawa and Tel Aviv between 1949 and 1954 and on the International Control Commission in Indochina from 1958-1966.

He had also been ambassador to Canada, Burma and Cambodia.

Spychalski had just arrived from Lahore for the final stop of the tour. A spokesman for Pakistan International Airlines, which owns the truck, said it was parked near the plane to restock its galley and take away catering material. The witness said the man driving the truck apparently was not an on-duty employee of the Pakistani airline.

The Pakistani government appointed a commission of inquiry under a Supreme Court judge, and President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan expressed "deepest sorrow and profound regrets" for "the terrible tragedy that took place as a result of the accident at the airport."

Polish news media called the incident a "tragic accident" in early stories, but the phrase was dropped during the evening.

Atlanta Man Charged in Robbery

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — An Atlanta man with a lengthy police record has been charged with the robbery to which more than 100 fans were lured by engraved invitation after the Montreal All-Jerry Quarry boxing match here.

The fans, who thought they were attending a party, were stripped of money, jewelry and clothing when they arrived.

Police identified the man as Houston Jimmy Hammonds, 27, a resident of a fashionable southwest Atlanta neighborhood, and said he had admitted purchasing a shotgun discarded by one of the masked bandits as they left the home with loot officials said totaled more than $300,000 figure first estimated.

Fired Teacher Says Don't Grieve

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadians should not grieve for Pierre Laporte and James Cross, a British Columbia school teacher who was fired for his political views, said Saturday.

Arthur Olsen told a rally that in the eyes of the FLQ, British Trade Commissioner Cross is a political prisoner and Laporte, the murdered Quebec labor minister, had committed treason.

"Let us not grieve for Cross and Laporte," Mr. Olsen told the rally of about 200 people assembled to protest the War Measures Act.

Clair Culhane, chairman of the Emergency Committee to Restore Civil Liberties, described Mr. Olsen as the first B.C. victim of the War Measures Act.

Mr. Olsen was fired by the Dawson Creek, B.C. school board Oct. 20 following complaints from students and parents that he had expressed support for the FLQ.

Two days later, Attorney-General Les Peterson announced a provincial order-in-council forbidding the employment of any teacher who advocated the policies of the FLQ or the overthrow of democratic government by violent means.

Mr. Olsen told the rally the act is racist. He said it was first used against the Japanese during the Second World War and its application in Quebec was every bit as racist.

WIND OF CHANGE

GOTEMBA, Japan (AP) — It was an ill wind for Naoji Umashikata of Tokyo, a company president. When he stopped for gas he left his wallet on the truck of his car, then drove off down the highway scattering ¥1,353 worth of paper yen. Police found about two-thirds of it.

Labor to Establish Stands Based on Position Papers

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Delegates to the Ontario Federation of Labor's 14th annual convention got a taste Sunday of several issues which will be placed before delegates to the three-day meet.

About 1,100 delegates were on hand for today's official opening of the convention.

They have all received position papers on several issues to be discussed, including the role of labor in fostering social change, and labor's image in the mass media.

Sunday night, President David Archer called a news conference to announce that the 69-member OFL executive will present a resolution opposing the imposition of the War Measures Act.

The war measures resolution, which is to be considered Tuesday, finds fault with the use of the act by the federal government but stops short of condemning Prime Minister Trudeau for invoking it.

It also condemns the violent tactics of the Front de Liberation du Quebec, but calls for repeal of the act as soon as possible.

Ontario New Democratic Party leader Stephen Lewis commented at the news conference that the resolution is an example of the variance between views of organized labor and those of the provincial and federal NDP, which both condemned outright the use of the act.

The social action position paper couples a plea for increased social actions by unions with an emotional plea against government incursions into labor-management disputes.

The paper says organized labor must be prepared to move out of the union hall and get involved in such contemporary issues as tenants' rights, community planning and youth problems.

It also suggests the labor movement must become "a mass consumer lobby, to roll back prices on essential commodities," because government has seen fit to blame unions for its own "failure to keep down prices," and "disastrous economic policies."

The media paper decries the "almost insurmountable problem" of getting labor's viewpoint to the public through the mass media.

"It is still difficult to hear labor's voice on radio and television." The paper suggests that the mass media fail to give a correct representation of trade unions.

On the eve of the convention, the federation's public relations officer, Morden Lazarus, said the 60,000-strong federation expects affiliation bids this week from "one or two white collar unions," that would bring in 50,000 new federation members.

In a speech Sunday night, Mr. Lewis told a pre-convention political rally he thinks Ontario Premier John Robarts will call an election for June next year and that the NDP will be the Progressive Conservative government's chief election opponents.

Two More Tape Decks Are Stolen

Belleville City Police are investigating the latest in a pair of stereo tape deck thefts. Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said this morning.

Two more tape decks were stolen over the weekend from cars parked on Front Street and in the parking lot adjacent to Hitchon Radio and Television.

Chief Crosbie said one of the cars was locked, the other unlocked at the time of the thefts. Admittance was gained to the locked car by prying out the window on the right side.

Bourassa Says Medicare Best Act in North America

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's compulsory medical insurance program, described by the government as one of the most advanced pieces of social legislation in North America, went into effect Sunday after three months of hectic dispute.

Clearly skeptical about gaining new concessions from the fee schedule imposed by the plan, the 4,000-member Federation of Quebec Specialists re-opens negotiations with the government today in efforts to iron out some of the contentious issues that have already led the specialists to strike.

The specialists are still smarting from special legislation passed Oct. 31 ordering them back in their jobs with the alternative of facing heavy fines or going to jail.

The specialists broke off negotiations in mid-September and went on strike on the issue of fees.

The government is optimistic that the progress will run smoothly. Premier Robert Bourassa has said the doctors must show good faith in giving the population "the best piece of social legislation in North America."

The premier appealed to the "social sense" of the doctors and asked them to enroll in the plan which has several opting-out possibilities.

Health Minister Claude Castonguay called in the province's doctors Sunday to give the plan a chance before taking any drastic stands against it.

Mr. Castonguay said the doctors should wait at least several months to see how the plan will work before contemplating strike action again or leaving the province in large numbers.

He was confident the program would run smoothly "although this period of adaptation and adjustment will present some flaws."

Meanwhile Montreal hospitals, hard pressed during the partial strike by the specialists, reported no problems on the first day of medical care insurance. Major hospitals resumed normal days.

Dr. Raymond Robillard, president of the specialists federation, said his group will carry on the negotiations today "diligently and in good faith."

Similar bargaining with general practioners, dental surgeons and optometrists involved in the plan proceeded through last week.

Dr. Robillard said negotiations will be held in spite of statements by the government health and finance departments there would be no modification of monetary offers to the specialists.

The special session of the national assembly which passed the legislation ordering the striking specialists back to work is in effect until Nov. 15 after which, the government says, a special committee will keep an eye on the situation and report any major disorders.

Mr. Castonguay said the special committee will report on any major absenteism or exodus from the province by doctors.

"We will make adjustments as they appear appropriate and if we feel certain major changes are necessary after the plan has been in effect for awhile, we will do our best to meet the demand."

"However, we are optimistic and have no presumptions at this time."

Police Forces Returning to Normal Routines in Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — An atmosphere of near normality prevailed in Montreal during the weekend as the outward tensions of the kidnap crisis began to fade.

As armed troops continued guard duty at public buildings and 10 persons were arrested under the War Measures Act, members of downtown nightclubs was returning to normal. Children made their regular Halloween rounds Saturday night and voters in 17 suburbs voted Sunday on councillors and mayors.

Police, returning to regular squads after four weeks of concentration, to be search for Front de Liberation du Quebec kidnappers, made liquor raids on clubs and bars.

However, customers were subjected to more than the normal questioning. All identification was checked and policemen carried pictures to track five prime suspects in the kidnap-murder of Labor Minister Pierre Laporte of Quebec and the abduction of British diplomat James (Jasper) Cross.

No public word on the fate of Mr. Cross, kidnapped four weeks ago today, has been heard since a letter confirming he was alive was found Oct. 18, hours after the body of Mr. Laporte was found in a car trunk.

With many provincial policemen, called to the city at the peak of the crisis, back now at postings across Quebec and with the discontinuance of roadblocks on bridges, the crime rate in Canada's kidnap capital also showed signs of returning to its pre-kidnap level.

The underworld, driven into hiding by extraordinary police patrols since Mr. Cross's abduction, staged several holdups.

The trend began late last week when, gunmen raided a bank and three men shot a grocer to death while robbing his store.

Meanwhile, police reported that 124 persons were still being detained in the kidnap investigation. There have been 499 arrests under the War Measures Act since its proclamation Oct. 16.

Detainees given access to legal counsel last Thursday are expected to mount an all-out drive beginning today for their release.

Visiting privileges for two hours a morning on weekdays and 2½ hour in the afternoon, seven days a week, were also in effect during the weekend.

Prime Minister Trudeau told a CBC French-language television audience Saturday that the FLQ kidnappers have brought the tide of "revolution" on themselves.

He said the citizens themselves have been the first defenders of order during the crisis.

In Quebec City Sunday night, Creditiste leader Real Caouette blamed the Quebec education system for allowing teachers to promote revolution. He told party followers at a rally that young Canadians should be forced to serve terms in military services to teach them discipline and rid them of revolutionary ideas.

New Emergency Legislation Expected Today

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation designed to replace the emergency powers proclaimed two weeks ago under the War Measures Act is expected to be introduced in the Commons today.

The government promised such legislation Oct. 19 just before a Commons vote on a motion calling for House approval of the government's action in invoking the War Measures Act. The motion was passed 190 to 16.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen told the Commons powers under the War Measures Act would not be revoked until the legislation is passed. "How long that will take is difficult to foresee."

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said at a Halifax news conference over the weekend the legislation should be introduced in two steps.

A temporary bill dealing with the Quebec crisis could get quick approval from the House, he suggested.

Then the government could bring in permanent legislation and everyone could be allowed to express an opinion.

But Mr. Stanfield said if the government plans to bring in one bill only to be permanent law there is little hope of it being passed quickly.

The Commons also is expected to resume debate today on second reading of a government bill to allow taxpayers to plead their own cases before a reconstituted tax appeal board.

Under current rules, persons appealing tax assessments must have legal counsel.

Justice Minister John Turner said Friday the new system will be less expensive for taxpayers and also will be less formal.

The board would be responsible to the justice minister rather that the revenue minister as it now is.

Citizens First Defenders Says Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Saturday night that Quebec terrorists have brought "a tide of reprobation" on themselves.

In an address on the CBC's French-language television network, the prime minister also said that "the citizens themselves" have been the first defenders of order during the current kidnap crisis.

And he emphasized that Ottawa, Quebec City and Montreal have worked together throughout the emergency.

"A handful of small-minded persons would have you believe that this is scandalous, as if any agreement between the three spheres of government was bound to hurt Quebec and help Ottawa."

In fact, Mr. Trudeau went on, all that such government did was exercise its own powers in the sole interest of collective security.

"This co-operation had the clear support of the great majority of citizens, which shows that the people regard their elected representatives as the authentic interpreters of their will and spokesmen for their aspirations."

Mr. Trudeau's pre-taped talk on the program La Politique yesterday was delivered entirely in French. French and English texts were released to the press before delivery.

The terrorists have resorted to every conceivable tactic to alarm the Quebec people, Mr. Trudeau said. Through it all, the people had shown "admirable composure."

"And the first defenders of order during this crisis were the citizens themselves.

"The terrorists have tried to subvert public opinion" in the province, but have only succeeded in unleashing a tide of reprobation against themselves."

Since there is no proof that the terrorists have abandoned their efforts, governments have a duty to remain alert and vigilant, Mr. Trudeau said.

"The people must therefore continue to keep cool and resist with the same clear-sightedness the confusion into which certain persons would like to draw them."

It was at the express request of Quebec that Canadian troops were called out in the province, said the prime minister. They will return to their bases as soon as Quebec asks.

Similarly, when requested by Quebec, the federal government "did not hesitate" to invoke the War Measures Act. Provisions of the Criminal Code were not adequate to deal with the situation.

"Whatever his political affiliation, every Quebec member of the House of Commons approved this decision."

Mr. Trudeau admitted that the powers given the government under the act were too sweeping, and said a bill better adapted to the circumstances is about to be introduced in the Commons.

Offer of Reward Said Not Accepted

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker has suggested that a group of Toronto businessmen has offered to provide a reward of $50,000 to help secure the release of British diplomat James Cross, kidnapped in Montreal more than three weeks ago.

Mr. Diefenbaker disclosed the information during a Commons exchange with Solicitor General George McIlraith Friday.

The former prime minister, who raised the reward issue more than two weeks ago, asked Mr. McIlraith why the government had not offered a reward.

The solicitor general replied that the matter was under consideration by the government but no reward has yet been offered.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that if the government did not intend to offer a reward why had the offer of the Toronto businessmen not been accepted?

Mr. McIlraith said that Mr. Diefenbaker had misinterpreted his answer. He had not said that the government did not intend to offer a reward.

Scotland Yard Put on Alert

LONDON (CP) — A spokesman for Scotland Yard said today he cannot comment on reports circulating in London that British police have been put on the alert to watch for five men wanted in connection with the kidnapping in Montreal of James (Jasper) Cross.

A newspaper story published here says Interpol, the international police organization, placed Scotland Yard on the alert Sunday at the request of authorities in Montreal.

The mass-circulation Daily Mirror says Canadian police believe the five men "may try to come to Britain because their chances of staying undetected for long in the United States are slim."

Another story says the Yard has been sent a special report by Canadian police about the kidnapping of Cross, a British envoy who was abducted Oct. 5 by the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

The five, who are also are wanted in connection with the kidnapping and murder of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, "are thought to have already fled Canada with the help of an underground group called the Internationalists," says The Daily Express in a front-page story.

It quotes Mrs. Cross as telling police that one of the abductors of her husband spoke English without an accent.

The London paper concludes from this that "an Englishman may have been involved" in the kidnap plot.

Fullback Steve Worster scored four touchdowns to steer top-ranked Texas to a 42-15 college football triumph over Southern Methodist Saturday. Worster missed a fifth touchdown by inches only because "I was so tired I couldn't see the goal line." Second-ranked Ohio State stayed on a path toward the Rose Bowl with a punishing ground game that crunched 9th-ranked Northwestern 24-10. The Buckeyes were down 10-3 at the half, but hit the bullseye with a five-touchdown second-half attack. Third-ranked Notre Dame found Navy an easy mark, cruising over the Middies 56-7 as the Top Ten college teams in the United States played it according to form Saturday.

Gee-Gees Bounce Guelph Gryphons While Bradley Gives Gators Aid

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa Gee-Gees and Bishop's Gaiters gobbled berths in the Central Canada Intercollegiate Football Conference Saturday at Ottawa Saturday with home-field victories during the week-end.

Ottawa bounced Guelph Gryphons 29-24 as Pete Ribbons scored two touchdowns and added the Gaiters beat Loyola Warriors 27-23 on the strength of Terry Bradley's 13 points.

In other weekend action, Carleton Ravens dumped Windsor Lancers 21-10, RMC Paul Military College Redmen blanked Macdonald College 39-0 and Laurentian Voyageurs of Sudbury clinched their first of the year, a 39-1 decision over old rivals York Yeomen of Toronto.

At Ottawa, Ed Monsour and Mike Leveille added two other Gee-Gees touchdowns. For Guelph, Don Wettlake picked up two touchdowns and Rod Fabaweich added two more.

Bradley's production at Lennoxville, Que., consisted of three touchdowns, Larry Smith and Ron Perowne added a touchdown each with Charlie MacLen kicking a field goal and four converts to complete the Gaiters scoring. Frank Schreiber, with two touchdowns, Jim Lynch with another, and Bob Miele's field goal and four converts made up the Loyola scoring.

Don Gormley, who ran for 99 yards and caught three passes for another 185 yards, scored all three Carleton touchdowns at Windsor. Tom d'Alolia's touchdown, Jim Watchman's convert, a Mike Scime single and a safety touch accounted for the Windsor scoring.

Three second-half touchdowns by Trev Kennedy, John Millar and linebacker Al Maddox carried RMC to victory over winless Macdonald at Kingston. Marcel Perraton converted two of the touchdowns.

Sudbury's Laurentian, winless since its 1968 season-opener at Windsor, vaulted the OUAA's Western Division cellar with the win over York at Toronto.

Laurentian quarterback Jack Hurst directed a solid ground attack that provided touchdowns by Wally Schlaiter, Don Waddell and Russ Steel. Hurst also passed to Guy Vatrie for another touchdown and a two-point conversion. Don Redreck and Steel each kicked a convert. Dick Dickinson's 29-yard punt single was the loss York point.

Churchill Implied Invasion Threat When Rebuffed by Ireland

LONDON (AP) — Eamon De Valera rejected with suspicion a 1940 offer by Winston Churchill to work for uniting Ireland if the republic abandoned neutrality in the Second World War and joined in the fight against Hitler's Germany.

The American-born Irish patriot, now president of the republic, defied an implied threat by Churchill to invade Ireland if he didn't agree.

At the same time, Nazi Bureau Chief Hermann Goering promised De Valera with a clear indication that a German victory would mean the end of Irish partition.

The secret manipulations over Ireland's neutrality were disclosed Sunday in a 198-page biography, Eamon De Valera, going on sale today.

The Earl of Longford, a British former Labor cabinet minister, and Elizabeth Pakenham, Thomas O'Neill, wrote the book — given complete access by De Valera to his records.

The story tells how Churchill, rebuffed by the man who was condemned to death by the British in 1916 in Ireland's fight for independence and reprieved only because he was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., went into a rage.

The authors commented: "On the evidence, it would not be quite true, though close to the truth, to say that Winston Churchill urged the invasion of Ireland."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 3

Your birthday today: "Paradox" describes your life in the coming year. What seems to the outside world as difficult is really simple; what seems easy is very hard to achieve. Your intuition is sometimes odd to your logical conclusions sometimes indicate contrary reality under the surface. Prepare for strong changes in your personal views. Today's natives have a gift of understanding; the ability to recover from reverses of fortune.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your mood is likely aggressive, perhaps on matters you have neglected, and your choice on important issues now, seriously, but don't squabble.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Shedules must be adjusted and lapses covered. It's a pleasant time for co-operation with mate and family, not so peaceful among fellow workers.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You seem impelled to keep on the move and you should be making a clear expression of your decisions. Speculative ventures now become outright gambles.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Express your views on public issues early in the day, you can. Reach a little further toward agreement, confer on home matters instead of simply making arbitrary decisions.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You get along with powerful or dramatic people better today than with those you're used to working with. Resist the temptation to be in a hurry.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): What looks like a clear chance for a large gain may be something else — is it insight or wishful thinking? This is the day to ask for what you really want.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Changes need to be rushed. Relations with associates endure stress and become strong-er. Today's decisions will be important; choose with both intuition and thought.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Risks need no over temper. Use vehicles or anything mechanical with caution. Channel your energy into career advancement. There will be news to celebrate this evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Money comes into questions depending on how you have been making investments. Important people are very helpful. Your search turns up surprises.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22—Jan. 19): Passing moments of discord with associates shouldn't tempt you into calling in outsiders. Save your expansive potential for a better occasion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Fresh opportunity shows up in the least expected places. Give people a chance to adjust to changes you are likely to make. Plan further tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Friends and borrowed money simply don't go together. Travels promise well. Voice your views on public issues where it carries weight.

Smith Uses Canada As Example

LONDON (CP) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith cites the Canadian emergency situation as an argument for taking tough measures against "terrorism" in his country.

The head of the breakaway colony has cabled The Sunday Express in reply to a document from a segment of the British Council of Churches urging Christians in Britain to support violent revolution in southern Africa as a means of freeing blacks from oppression.

Smith, head of an all-white government, writes:

"It is easy to condemn and criticize—but it is a different matter when one is on the receiving end.

"Look at Ireland, Jordan and Canada today. They are experiencing the savagery of terrorism which we experienced and they have been forced to take far sterner measures than those employed in Rhodesia.

"We tell you about anxiety, fear, frustration and even suicide and depression. About how your nerves work. How they affect your special senses (sight, hearing, touch, etc.). How they affect heart, stomach and intestinal symptoms. How they induce insomnia, fatigue and tension.

"How nerves are tied in with thyroid disease, hypoglycemia, hyperventilation. About the nerve complications in Parkinsonism, myasthenia gravis, multiple sclerosis, brain tumor, head injuries and epilepsy. We talk about nerves in impotence, frigidity, sterility and menopause. About "nervous" and sex education.

"Nerves are also a "problem" you will admit. We promise no magic formula for universal solution. Nevertheless, few people have written this book if we did not believe that it would help you Master Your Nerves.

"The book opens this way: "Are you nervous? It is evident that this is a purposely absurd question. The answer is: Who isn't nervous? No person, normal or otherwise, is completely free from some degree of fear."

And it closes: "We repeat one final, urgent plea to all readers: Learn to master your nerves and you will automatically improve your physical condition.

"Be the master, not the servant."

If you, Mrs. O. (and others), get around to reading the book, we hope it will accomplish what we set out to do: convince both doctors and its readers that the commonly used assertion "It's only your nerves" be dumped into the wastebasket.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is it possible, when one has only one ovary, to have a normal, healthy baby? I had mine removed at 15. I am now 18. — Miss A.

COMMENT: Yes. Why not doublecheck with the doctor who performed the operation?

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Just before our family doctor died, he told me I had a sluggish thyroid and would need to take hormones for it. But the doctor I am going to now is treating me with water pills and diet pills. I can't understand why he won't take thyroid tests to see if my first doctor was right about my thyroid when he called my condition hypothyroidism. What would you do? — Mrs. G.

Comment: I'd ask for consultation with an internist interested in metabolic diseases. Let him be the judge in the matter. He will take tests that will determine whether there is need to reverse the decision of your present doctor — and uphold your first doctor's diagnosis. If your thyroid is underactive (sluggish) then hormones taken in pill form will help restore its normal function.

Child-Proof Pill Box Advocated

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — About 2,000 accidental poisonings of pre-school children this year, some of them fatal, could be avoided by a child-proof pill container, says a voluntary group combatting such mishaps.

The Canada Association for Control of Accidental Poisonings says in a brief to the Ontario College of Pharmacy that if a special pill container used in the Windsor area were to be used throughout the province, a reduction in accidental child poisonings of 87 per cent could occur.

Dr. Henri Breault, association president and director of the Windsor Poison Control Centre, said in the last four years of use, poisonings recorded at the control centre have dropped 68 per cent.

By comparison, the most recent figures of Ontario, from 1966 to 1968, show poisonings in the province rising 25 per cent, when Windsor figures are excluded.

Churchill made his offer to De Valera, then Ireland's prime minister, only seven weeks after he took over as prime minister in Britain's darkest days of the war.

The Irish republic remained neutral throughout the war, although about 200,000 young Irishmen enlisted in the British forces to fight on the side of the Allies.

Only one German bomb was dropped on Dublin during the war. And it was never determined whether it was deliberate or dropped accidentally by a Luftwaffe plane on a raid on England.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF
By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Nothing frustrates me so much as when I hear my doctor say: "It's only your nerves!" Don't you agree that thousands of patients don't know where to turn to next when they are told they are imagining what bothers them? — Mrs. G.

Comment: True. In fact, so true that Dr. David A. LaPia (well-known Miami, Fla., neurosurgeon) and I have co-authored a book: How To Master Your Fears, recently published by Cowles Book Company, New York City. We wrote it because we are convinced that there are many like you, Mrs. G.

Reading it will prove that it isn't inevitably true that "it's only your nerves."

Sydney J. Harris Says

What Do Words Mean?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Antics with Semantics:

When most people blame "science" for something, they really mean "technology," which is as silly as blaming the multiplication table because our arithmetic has turned out wrong.

In petitionary prayer, the operative phrase has been changed from "Thy will be done," to "My will be done."

A "conservative" is a man who is tenacious in his defence of what he would have called "radicalism" 50 years ago.

"Ill-bred" is an adjective we apply only to others; the ill-bred man calls himself "down to-earth."

A "war criminal" is a pariah whose side lost.

When a man says "I'm not in business for my health," you can be sure he's not in it for yours, either.

When someone prefaces a statement by saying humbly, "I may not know much about the subject, but . . ." he is just about to tell you a great deal more than he knows.

A "persuasive orator" is a speaker who confirms what we came already prepared to believe.

We pride ourselves on being "average" — but we disparagingly refer to someone else as "mediocre," which means exactly the same thing.

It's always the defeated candidate who thinks the "real issues" weren't brought home to the public.

In show business lexicon, "fresh new talent" means some performer who has been struggling and starving for 10 years in basement bistros, and has been "discovered" just on the verge of a breakdown from nervous exhaustion.

And, in the films, "raw human emotion" means a cast of characters who behave toward each other as inhumanly as it is possible to get.

I am "adjusted" to my situation, but you are "resigned" to yours.

It's indicative of our verbal tendency to depreciate others that we have a word "shortcomings" to describe a person's lacks, but no comparable "longcomings" to describe his virtues.

"Gossip" is what others communicate about us: "human interest material" is what we communicate about others.

A young boy of poor parentage may be "misled," but a youth of affluent background is simply "hyperkinetic."

"Give us the truth," the people cry — but given a truth that is unpalatable, they reject it on the grounds that "all truth is relative."

Mrs. Meir Thinks Peace Will Come

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Golda Meir of Israel told a cheering audience of 3,000 Sunday night she is confident the Arab nations will eventually agree to make peace.

Addressing a rally of the Canada-Israel Committee, Mrs. Meir said she looks forward to "a generation of Arab leaders with the ambition to build, not to destroy."

"Until then, we must be strong."

The Prime Minister said Israel is not prepared to "move back to the borders that existed before the six-day war of 1967.

"That war broke out when we were at the 1967 border," she said. "What was its purpose, to keep us at the border of 1967?"

Israel felt the only solution was the establishment of a defensible border agreed upon by Israel and her neighbors.

Earlier Sunday, after arriving in Toronto under tight security, Mrs. Meir addressed the annual convention of the Labor Zionist Movement in Canada.

She spoke to a gathering of about 800 delegates who met in the ballroom of the King Edward Hotel. After she arrived, doors were locked and no one in the room was permitted to leave.

An organizer for the movement said:

"It's not so much the fear in Canada about the FLQ, but rather that there could be one crack-pot around." Mrs. Meir her comments at today's youth, especially "the radical left and Afri-Zionists."

She said that youth who have no other aim than revolution are abnormal and should be pitied.

"Never before," she said when talking about Jewish youth in the world, "has it been so essential that youth believe in, believe what we are fighting for.

$150,000 Reward For Kidnap Cells

New Act Ready

OTTAWA (CP) — The government moved Monday to bring its anti-terrorist laws from under the umbrella of the War Measures Act, but the proposed replacement will continue to give police sweeping powers.

Justice Minister John Turner introduced the bill, entitled the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, which would modify parts of the powers now in effect under the War Measures Act, but would continue to provide for search without warrants, detention without bail and —for shorter periods—arrest without charge.

The new act, which would automatically revoke present regulations under the War Measures Act, would expire next April 30 unless it is earlier renewed by government or continued by Parliament. By that time, the government plans to have permanent amendments to the Criminal Code to deal with peacetime emergencies such as terrorism.

Basically, the new measure follows the line of the regulations now in effect in that it outlaws the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec and provides jail terms of up to five years for members or those assisting the organization.

The new legislation also provides that an arrested person can have immediate access to a lawyer. There is no provision for this under the War Measures Act.

A person now is assumed to be an FLQ member if he attends one meeting of the organization. Under the new legislation he would have to attend a number of meetings to be charged for doing so.

Safe Passage Still Offered

MONTREAL (CP) — Rewards totalling at least $150,000 have been jointly offered by the federal and provincial governments for information leading to the apprehension of the kidnappers or murderers of former Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte and the kidnappers of James Jasper Cross, senior British trade commissioner here.

In Ottawa, the federal government has introduced legislation designed to soften the rigid terms of the War Measures Act, invoked Oct. 16 to deal with the terrorism which has hit Quebec province.

In announcing the reward offer in Quebec City Monday, Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said the government is still offering safe passage to Cuba for terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec kidnappers in return for the release of Mr. Cross.

Mr. Cross was abducted from his home here Oct. 5 and has not been heard from since Oct. 18 when a letter in his handwriting was found. The discovery of the letter occurred about 12 hours after the body of Mr. Laporte was found in the trunk of a car in nearby St. Lambert.

Rewards are also being offered for information leading to the arrests of Paul Rose, Marc Carbonneau, Jacques Rose, Bernard Lortie and Francis Simard, all wanted in connection with the kidnap of Mr. Laporte Oct. 10.

Paul Rose, 27, described as a part-time teacher and Carbonneau, 37, a former taxi driver are also both wanted for kidnapping Mr. Cross.

Mr. Choquette said police authorities will determine the amounts of the rewards to be made in each case and also said the identity of the informants will remain confidential.

The new Ottawa legislation would continue to outlaw the FLQ which has claimed credit for both abductions.

Under the War Measures Act, the period of detention for persons arrested could extend up to 21 days, at the discretion of provincial authorities.

The new legislation would shorten the time to seven days.

With the new legislation a person can be detained without charge for three days only unless the attorney-general of the province in which the person is being held has issued an order extending the period of detention to seven days.

Meanwhile two men in their 20s, Jean-Guy Lalierre and Victor Daudelin both of Montreal, were arraigned Monday on charges of conspiracy to steal machine-guns and military uniforms from a military base at St. Johns, Que.

They were the first to have been charged since the War Measures Act was proclaimed.

Police said the men were not members of the FLQ. They planned to steal guns and uniforms and sell them. A third man was being sought.

Rail Union Bids Said 'Highly Inflationary'

MONTREAL (CP) — Railway unions representing about 85,000 workers presented new contract demands Monday which Canada's two major railways promptly called "highly inflationary."

Canadian National Railways and CP Rail said in a joint statement demands made on behalf of about 85,000 non-operating employees and 20,000 trainmen would cost them $132.8 million annually.

The UTU is asking an hourly increase of $1.50 to the $3.40 now paid yard operators and an increase of 16 per cent over two years for conductors, brakemen and baggage men earning an annual average of $8,200.

Demands by the unions representing the non-operating workers would increase average pay to about $3.95 an hour after two years from the present $3.28.

The non-operating unions are asking an eight-per-cent increase plus 15 cents an hour in the first year and a further seven per cent plus 15 cents an hour in the second.

Dick Smith, chairman of the non-operating unions' negotiating committee, told a Montreal news conference he expects a "trying time ahead" because of the atmosphere created by the current anti-inflation campaign.

U.S. Vote to Be Light Despite Virile Campaign

WASHINGTON (CP) — Americans vote today in an election that will leave vital judgments to future trends in United States politics even though it lacks the glamor of a presidential duel.

More than any other president in history in a mid-term vote, Richard Nixon has campaigned throughout the country on the theme that the breakdown of law and order is the principle crisis in the fabric of American life today.

The people Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew calls "liberal-radicals," and Democrats in general, are blamed.

Whether voters respond to this theme, or to the Democratic charge that the state of the economy is more important, will be reflected in several key contests:

In final shots, Nixon and Democratic Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine shared a half-hour television time Monday night.

Nixon called on "the great silent majority" to speak out in the polling booth "against the appeasement of the rock throwers and the obscenity shouters in America."

Muskie, vice-presidential candidate in 1968 and a likely presidential candidate against Nixon in 1972, accused the Republicans of trying to scare voters into the Republican camp.

He charged Nixon with leading, inspiring and guiding a political campaign built on lies, slander, name-calling and "deception of almost unprecedented volume."

Despite this last-minute show of high political spirits, and the staunchly personal campaign across the land by Agnew, the election has been marked by apathy and uncertainty. Many among the 134 million eligible voters expressed indecision or even lack of interest right up to election eve.

Public Fury At Disaster

ST. LAURENT DU PONT, France (Reuter) — Weeping Moslem and Jewish friends attended a funeral service today for the 144 young Halloween revellers who died when fire swept through a dance hall early Sunday.

Roman Catholic, Protestant, Jewish and Moslem religious leaders officiated at the ceremony, held in a school gymnasium converted into a mortuary chapel after the disaster.

More than 100 of the mutilated victims have been identified, and their bodies will be handed over to parents for burial.

The remaining bodies, burned beyond recognition? will be buried in a little cemetery in this small town north of the city of Grenoble.

The police inquiry into the fire continued as public fury at the disaster grew throughout France.

Anger at the disaster centres on allegations that several serious safety violations were responsible for the huge death toll at the Cinq Sept Dance Hall, which opened last Easter and was one of the most popular in the region.

Some of the few survivors and firemen have said that emergency exits were boarded up with planks, while the main door was blocked by a turnstile.

The sole survivor of the dance hall's three directors, Gilbert Bass, said the emergency exits had not been blocked.

GM to Test Rotary Engine

NEW YORK (AP) — General Motors Corp. has announced agreement with three other firms to a $50 million licensing deal in which the auto-maker would acquire worldwide rights to manufacture and sell the Wankel rotary combustion engine.

General Motors said Monday the proposal, entered upon with Curtiss-Wright and the West German firms of Audi-NSU and Wankel GMBH, would facilitate GM's "further intensive research and development of the Wankel rotary combustion engine to determine whether it is suitable for GM automotive application."

The rotary engine was described as a potential reliever of automotive air pollution.

The engine, which was invented by Felix Wankel and patented in 1954, has no parts moving back and forth as the convention internal compustion does.

Instead, each of three triangular-shaped rotors revolves around the crankshaft as they go through the same four strokes of the reciprocating piston engine used in most automobiles today.

The heart of the engine is the triangular-shaped chamber and the insides spin around with the combustion of gasoline in contrast to the up-and-down movement of the pistons in a conventional gasoline engine.

Middle East Talks

Israel Stand

Move Missiles Or No Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — Israel will not negotiate for a permanent settlement of the Middle East conflict until Soviet missiles emplaced in Egypt in violation of the 90-day ceasefire are withdrawn, Premier Golda Meir said Monday night.

The lady premier told a news conference at the conclusion of a one-day visit here Israel is agreeable to extension of the ceasefire, which ends this week, so long as it is mutually binding.

"We won't shoot as long as there is no shooting on the other side."

However, she said it is reference to SAM-3 missiles stationed on the Egyptian side of the Suez Canal in the last three months: "If undertakings can be broken immediately on coming into force, I don't see what sense there is in negotiating new agreements."

Mrs. Meir said the ceasefire agreement carried a commitment that neither side in the Arab-Israeli conflict would derive strategic advantage from it. She held that the Egyptian missile buildup constituted a violation of this undertaking.

"We ask one thing, that the missiles be taken away and the ceasefire restored to what it was originally," said Mrs. Meir.

The small, grandmotherly Israeli leader told reporters her talks with Prime Minister Trudeau and External Affairs Minister Sharp on the subject situation were "extremely pleasant." There had been a "very thorough and frank discussion of our problems."

Nevertheless, she appeared to chide Canada along with other countries for not speaking louder against what she said were violations by the Arab states of solemn undertakings.

If governments and foreign ministers agree the ceasefire has been violated they should apply the same standards to the Arab states as they apply to other countries, she said.

Trenton Police Station Is Termed 'Inadequate'

TRENTON (Staff) — The town police force is "handicapped by a lack of space" in its station house on the municipal square, Hubert Campbell, chairman of the police commission told council last night.

"It is impossible to maintain morale under the present conditions" he said, adding that councillors "get the action going" so that the cost of providing new facilities for the local constabulary might be included in next year's budget.

Either a new police building should be built here or additional office space should be provided in the existing station, he contended.

Town engineer Andrew Campbell, has drafted a plan for renovating the present quarters at a cost of $30,000 but both the police commissioner and Mayor Duncan McDonald contended that temporary facilities could be provided there at less cost.

Arthur Campbell's plan includes certain alterations to the ground floor of the station house and an extensive overhaul of the upstairs portion of the building.

The new arrangement would provide two interrogation rooms, a lunch room, an exhibit room and separate offices for the police chief and deputy chief. Space is also given for a photographic department.

The police commissioner and councillors that the chief and deputy now share the same office. Trenton police photography is now done in daily rifle and interrogation of prisoners must be held in the staff lunch room.

Initial estimates of $18,000 for the renovations to the station does not include the expense of new furniture or photographic equipment.

If council decides to turn the second storey of the station over to the department, accommodation for the provincial court chambers housed there will have to be found elsewhere.

Hubert Campbell's presentation to council last night was based on a report by the chief of police and others by the Ontario police advisory commission and the grand jury — all agree that the station is inadequate for the needs of the expanding force.

Council took no action on the matter yesterday. However, the police commissioner and councillors say they will meet to discuss temporary renovation plans for the present building.

Sidney Replaces Snow Equipment

Approval was given yesterday for the purchase of new power sanders to replace units destroyed when the roads building annex Sidney Township equipment burned in July.

Council selected the two Hi - Way model units manufactured by General Supply of Belleville for a cost of approximately $6,500.

The model H sander fits neatly into a dump truck and during winter is used to spread sand onto icy roads.

Ed Mackey, superintendent of roads for the township he replace destroyed items are a tractor with a mounted blade, a snow blade, differential and tow bar for the van, and a model board for a snowplow wing attachment for graders.

The township has purchased the equipment at a cost of less than $34,000 received from their insurance company.

Separate Schools Under Capacity

Several schools belonging to the Hastings and Prince Edward separate school board are operating under capacity, a report from the trustees' auditor department has revealed.

Schools in the west side of Belleville are seriously underoccupied. J. J. Sheridan, supervisor of plant indicates in his report.

Bancroft separate school also has excess accommodation over enrolment, due to the closing of the mines and the subsequent loss of population. The school was built to house 210 elementary school pupils and now has 84 pupils, 125 under capacity.

The junior school at Marmora with an enrolment of 136 and accommodation for 213 is operating at 79 under capacity.

However, several schools are at or near their capacity and should be given first consideration for expansion. They are St. Mary's and St. Peter's in Trenton, St. Michael's Academy and junior school, St. Joseph's and Nicholson senior school all in Belleville.

The three separate schools in Belleville's west hill are larger than enrolment appears to warrant.

George Vanier School, built in 1969 has an enrolment of 238 this year, 134 less than its rated capacity.

Holy Rosary, built in 1949 and enlarged in 1966 has an enrolment of 176 under its capacity of 213.

Our Lady of Fatima, built in 1960 is 77 under capacity, with 126 pupils this year.

The separate school board approves 19 schools in Hastings and Prince Edward counties and the district of Nipissing.

It now is planning an addition on St. Carthagh's school in Tweed, at an estimated cost of $150,000. There are 324 separate schools pupils attending the school there, where portables have been rented from the public school board until the addition is completed.

Picton In Jail Cost Delegation

PICTON (Staff) — Picton mayor H. J. McFarland will be one of several delegates to the Ontario police commission seeking a satisfactory cost system of transporting county prisoners to to Napanee's Regional jail.

The delegation headed by the mayors of a number of the municipalities involved was formed following a resolution passed by Hastings county council. The resolution stated that establishment of the regional jail at Napanee serving the counties of Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward and Frontenac will entail "considerable transportation costs" for municipalities within the region.

Trenton council resolved to petition the commission when seeking transportation of prisoners by the Ontario Provincial Police be a new administration of justice cost to the province. Support of other concerned municipalities, among these Picton, was urged as a further measure.

Mayor McFarland told council that with the exception of Trenton's mayor, all mayors involved have now been lettered agreeing to a mayor's delegation to the attorney general. Mayor McFarland added that the matter is still under discussion in Trenton. Picton councillors endorsed the resolution forwarned from Trenton and further action was referred in Mayor McFarland.

UFO Sighted Near Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) — By several reports, an unidentified flying object burned along Lake Ontario and in over the Trent River last night.

Const. Stuart Mercer of the Cobourg detachment, Ontario Provincial Police reported this morning that a Scarborough man stopped in there to tell his story.

William Markland told Cobourg OPP that he was travelling west on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway shortly before 7 p.m., when he saw a UFO cut over the lake between Colborne and Brighton.

The object was travelling fast, Mr. Markland said, adding that he first thought that it was a meteorite.

He told the provincial police that he left the freeway to report the sighting because he thought it may be a disabled aircraft as he saw "two separate flames when it turned and went away".

Officials at the Search and Rescue Co-ordination Centre, CFB Trenton, also recorded reports last night filed by Trenton area residents.

Both Thomas Madden and A. Mac of Frankford who were travelling the river road into Trenton last night in separate cars say that they saw a UFO over the Trent River at Batawa.

Mr. Yuhe, an insurance agent, told The Intelligencer last night that he saw an object that "looked like the nose of an airplane" over the river at about 8 p.m.

He said the object was about 1,000 feet over the river for about three seconds. The silver vehicle let off what appeared to be "two very minor explosions" and left a couple of spots of red ashes", Mr. Yuhe explained.

"It then turned and went away" disappearing instantly, first from west to east, he added.

Separate School Issue

Last week's confrontation between the Hastings-Prince Edward separate school board and a group of ratepayers seeking the reinstatement of suspended superintendent F. B. Allore made no progress toward resolving its unhappy matter.

Indeed it served only to compound further the atmosphere of confusion, misunderstanding and intrigue that has surrounded the affair from the beginning. About all the public can be sure of at this moment is contained in an observation by Monsignor J. P. Sullivan: "The positions of the board are polarized . ."

Msgr. Sullivan withdrew a motion he had considered earlier, to reinstate Mr. Allore, because to present it now would "further polarize the situation and jeopardize the department's decision when rendered."

The latter was a reference to the fact that the matter is in the hands of the Department of Education and that a final decision rests with it. In this lies the only hope of an issue to this business. As board chairman E. J. Buckley put it: "The entire issue is in the hands of the minister . . . he is the referee."

Meanwhile, when Msgr. Sullivan spoke of polarization (a word much bandied about these days and meaning presumably, in this context, that the situation is at an impasse) we can understand why. For Mr. Buckley, on the one hand, has said all along that details of the suspension must be held in confidence "until such time as a mutual release of the information was approved upon." Mr. Allore, on the other hand, says he made no agreement with the board to withhold information about "the methods used and the reasons for the suspension of May 3, 1970."

Such an impasse can only be resolved now by the provincial minister. Mr. Buckley told the meeting he had hoped a decision would have been in the board's hands that evening. It was not, and we can only say that it should not be allowed to suffer any further postponement. A decision should be made without delay.

Zwick's Island Scene

It is a wise decision of the Parks Board to make haste slowly with regard to development of Zwick Island's park (formerly the city dump). For one thing it will give the public a further opportunity to offer suggestions for this project. Citizens have been notably slow in this regard.

Meanwhile there is the three-stage development proposed by a firm of consultants, including tennis, lawn bowling, swimming, golf (par three course) and tobogganing facilities. These are what the board should be accountable to many — tennis for example is becoming increasing popular in the area — but it is correct to point out, as one board member did, that additional golf courses will be available in the area next year. Still, a par-three course could provide interest and fun for those who ordinarily do not play golf on a serious membership basis. Many of our young people who complain so bitterly that Belleville has nothing to offer) would fall into this category, so that the board should take this into consideration.

The whole project, however, is very much in the embryo stage and it will be some time before it takes shape. Nevertheless, with the prospect of grading and seeding at least, next year, it will be interesting to observe the progress of what promises ultimately to be a wonderful new recreational facility — one which will help compensate for the loss of those beautiful poplars which until recent days flanked Zwick's Island.

Another One Gone

A few reflections on Hallowe'en — now that it is over for another year: you learn a lot about kids; some are shy, some are cheeky; some are brash if not cheeky; some are pushy, some are greedy (like the youngster who knocked loudly on the door, barged in ahead of his pals and scooped up practically all the remaining candy, leaving nothing for the others). And, one overriding impression, very few said "Thank You." Lips only a couple out of about six groups. They are still welcome, but how much more so when they show some appreciation . . . and not forgetting that some adults in the past have had much to answer for, like "goodies" laced with razor blades.

Dissension in Conservative and NDP, Ranks

War Measures Act and the Opposition's Bleeding Hearts

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Less than a week, in fact, but a few short if fraught days after Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, deputy to Premier Bourassa, was put to work an obscene death by FLQ terrorists, the bleeding hearts in the Houses of Commons, Conservatives and New Democrats alike, were hemorrhaging.

Not, mind you, over the seven years of FLQ terror with its bombings in which five innocents had died, the many "exercises" and riots, the fires and assorted sabotage, the raids on armories and the theft of hundreds of guns and thousands of sticks of dynamite, not even the kidnappings and deaths.

No, indeed.

They were, of course to be deplored.

All the bleeding was for the several hundred suspected FLQ sympathizers and their supporters rounded up under the War Measures Act.

What was happening to civil rights, and did not all this threaten repression, cried the Opposition?

Not all of the Conservatives and New Democrats, but their leaders and enough of the rank and file to make it seem, look and listen that way.

There were the Conservatives and New Democrats too outraged in the Commons over the presence of troops in the Nation Parliament Hill, which, to name only one, Parry Rensd- Muskoka Tory MP. Gordon Allum. to use his own words, found "revolting."

Ever- since the early Stalin when the first of the F L Q bombs rocked Montreal, the Opposition had been lamenting the government's inaction.

But now, finally, in the explosion of the terror when something was done — hard and fast, and how else could or should it have been — here they were, still weeping, this time over what they mourned was government overaction.

They were helped, even goaded by those activist elements of the press, radio and especially TV whose representatives, lacking on a new role of semi-official tormentors of the opposition, increasingly hostile, questioned, criticized and even openly attacked — but seldom objectively reported — the Prime Minister and the government position.

Not all of the Opposition nor of the press.

In fact, not really many of them.

But enough to stimulate unrest, create uncertainty, and give aid and comfort to the civil liberalarian fringe that, even now can rationalize the FLQ.

On the other side — in the majority ranks of the Conservatives and a minority of the NDP who supported the necessarily tough government action — there was dismay with Opposition leadership.

Among the Conservatives, now, take Ontario Tory MP Alexander Dryden Ralea, of Wellington, a 12-year Commons veteran. Cool, steady, dependable.

Whatever you might have thought about Pierre Elliott Trudeau before, this time, says AV Ralea, he was the right Prime Minister in the right place at the right time.

"He had as tough a decision to make as has faced any Canadian Prime Minister, and he made it," says AV Ralea.

With that decision to use the War Measures Act, a Draconian action, Pierre Elliott Trudeau made AV Ralea "prouder than ever to be a Canadian."

The Wellington Conservative — and he was in the big majority of his party — let it be known that "I was going to back with the Government on the War Measures Act no matter what the rest of my might do."

As it happened, many of "the rest of it" did keep feuding and fussing about the WMA repression of civil liberties and it was only the defection of the Laporte death that Conservative ranks closed, and four strong New Democrats sided it was Leader Tommy Douglas' side to support the Government.

Mark Rose, of Nanaimo Valley West, publicly confessed that as a result of the New Democratic "I could not be elected dogcatcher now in my riding."

NDP Leader Douglas admits, soberly, for once unchearful, "No, I am sure we not only did not win many votes; I guess we lost more than maybe we will ever know."

The socialists have been talking an enormous, public pondering.

Liberal MP Jean Roy of Timmins openly accused the s-m of supporting the FLQ in the name of civil liberties of Pierre Laporte.

Another Liberal MP, Prosper Boulanger of Quebec's Mercier constituency, equated the NDP with the separatist Parti Quebecois, revealing that a New Democratic candidate in the last federal election in his riding had been treasurer of the QP. candidate in the recent provincial campaign.

Four NDP members broke with Leader Douglas and his deputy, David Lewis, but the New Democrats as a party stood its ground against all others in Parliament and for days on end continued fighting the civil war "repression" of the civil liberties, temporarily in the War Measures Act emergency, of FLQ suspects.

And Conservative blood continued to spill for the "martyred" freedom of the few whose emergency detention police and troops hoped might provide a lead to the tunnel to the underground of organized terror.

Both the NDP and Conservative leaders made it sound as if the comfort and convenience of the minute suspect minority had priority over the security of the vast majority and the safety of the state.

Had Mr. Stanfield looked to either side of him, he might have read in the story faces of almost all of his followers stunned looks of unbelief.

"She's got a bigger alice! . . . No, his is bigger! . . . He's got more icing . . . That's his second helping! . . . Nyet! . . . Who stole my fork? . . . Oh yeah, get your elbows off my plate! . . .

Politics, Democracy and the CBC

Kingston Whig - Standard

. . . In the wake of two kidnappings, a murder and the proclamation of the War Measures Act some misguided Members of Parliament have trained their sights on a favorite target—the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. What these bold defenders of democracy want is clear. They want to see the pall of censorship wielded over those responsible for CBC programming.

Speaking in the House of Commons, Creditiste leader Real Caouette called the CBC a refuge for rebels who are well-fed at the expense of the public. Unusual he did not elaborate. Mr. Caouette asked whether the corporation would be placed under trusteeship for a "clean-up." Another arbiter of what Canadians should see and hear, Conservative Lloyd Crouse, called the TV program Legacy of Lenin a documentary for revolution. Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier, who reports to the Commons for the CBC said that he would pass on the suggestion that the program be cancelled. The program has been "postponed".

Mr. Pelletier did not reply to Liberal back-bencher E. B. Osler who questioned a CBC-television panel discussion on the War Measures Act aired Sunday evening. According to Mr. Osler, the discussion was of doubtful taste and merit. Creditiste Fabien Beaulieu praised the CTV decision to postpone programs dealing with political or premeditated crime, Mr. Pelletier said that he would be glad to know more about this policy, particularly as it applied to commentaries, and suggest it to the CBC.

Conservative J. J. MacLean reportedly drew applause from both Liberal and PC back-benchers when he asked about having the CBC "even going abroad to interview people who are not allowed into Canada. Mr. Pelletier again promised to pass the suggestion along. To his credit, however, he added that one recent interview abroad for example, unveiled the intentions of certain subversive people.

There is a sickness in Canada today and it is not confined to the ranks of the FLQ terrorists. Even as thoughtful Canadians should reject any suspect interference with the free dissemination of information, so too should they reject all suggestions to this effect. If Canadian democracy is to flourish its MP- are prompted to suggest that the CBC be muzzled in certain areas, Canada is in serious trouble.

Ottawa Journal

The relationship between Parliament and the CBC, subject of much new discussion in recent days, has long been a concern of broadcasters, politicians and public.

The 1957 report of the Royal Commission on Broadcasting, headed by Robert Fowler, said:

"There is here an underlying dilemma between the need for public scrutiny and the need to avoid too much of it. Broadcasting is a developing and dynamic enterprise and must be responsive to changing needs. It should be open to inquiry, subject to public scrutiny and answerable to public opinion. But it can be impeded and damaged by too much supervision and too many inquiries."

In 1965 a Committee on Broadcasting, of which the same Robert Fowler was chairman, declared:

". . .Parliament should set the goals clearly and precisely and the task of achieving those goals . . . Parliament should not thereafter be concerned with the details of administration and programming."

The complaint that has arisen about CBC's over-dramatizing the news and opinion surrounding the terrorist cases as compared with the case of law and order, has not been a complaint about details and programming but about ethics, perspective and responsibility.

The 1957 Royal Commission was right when it contended "there is probably no real or final solution" to the CBC relationship between CBC and Parliament.

But in the meantime CBC t.'ght dig back for a letter sent to Mr. Diefenbaker in 1962 by Dr. Andrew Stewart, chairman of the Board of Broadcast Governors. Dr. Steward, discussing an item he felt was poorly handled by CBC news, suggested that if the CBC "cut out the nonsense . . . we would try to keep out of your hair."

Windsor Star

The CBC's decision to postpone indefinitely a television discussion of Lenin "because of the current state of concern and anxiety" is a sad sign of these troubled times in Canada.

The decision to cancel the highly - promoted show was apparently due to some backbench muttering in the House of Commons. What happened in the good old gutsy CBC, the whipping boy of virtually all parliamentarians? What, indeed, is happening to Canada?

It is hard to believe that a documentary on Lenin would incite people to violence. On the contrary, a knowledge of Lenin would help Canadians to understand the revolutionary fervor which has been simmering in the world.

But, as in Orwell's Oceania, it is apparently deemed wiser to keep the people in ignorance. No Lenin documentary — why, people might even begin to question the government.

OMB Boss Wants Job As Reporter on His Retirement at 70

From The Globe and Mail

Mayor William Dennison bellowed with laughter when he was told about it. Alderman David Rotenberg said it couldn't be any worse than it is now. And a spokesman for a ratepayers' group said he would look forward to it.

They were commenting on the future of Andrew Kennedy, the 69-year-old chairman of the Ontario Municipal Board, who says he wants to be a newspaper reporter when he retires in two years.

"I would like to report hard news," Mr. Kennedy said. "I would like to get on a beat — something like City Hall or Queen's Park. It would give me a lot of personal satisfaction, or perhaps I would be rudely awakened."

After Mr. Dennison's laughter subsided, he said: "I'm afraid he'd be prejudiced, but it's an interesting thought."

Mr. Rotenberg, who has not always agreed with Mr. Kennedy, said: "It couldn't be much worse than what we've got now in the rogues gallery. However, I think in many ways we need a more accurate reporting and more in-depth reporting from Mr. Kennedy. That kind of guy might be good. I would welcome him."

James Heal, the former president of the Confederation of Residents and Ratepayers Association (CORRA), said he would be delighted to see Mr. Kennedy's decision applied to newspaper reporting. "It certainly would look forward to reading his stuff. It would be well worth reading."

Mr. Kennedy was a reporter for about three years before he entered law and later became chairman of the OMB. Since he has earned the reputation of a man who has no fear of the establishment, especially when it comes to dealing with developers and municipalities.

In 1918, he worked for the Sudbury Star and, before his mother made him go back to school, for two other newspapers. "I always thought I was God's gift to journalism. I thought I was another Lance Cowley. I always like to look back in the glory of others' days when I could have been better off in journalism."

Ontario Legislature Votes Extra $22 Million for Welfare

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature Monday voted an extra $22 million for welfare on the assumption that unemployment will continue to rise at least until next spring.

The $22 million in supplementary estimates is in addition to $278 million already budgeted for the department of social and family services.

Welfare Minister John Yaremko said earlier in an interview that figures now before the treasury board predict increases in unemployment to the March, 1971, end of the fiscal year.

Two bills were introduced: One to give about 51,000 civil servants a choice of collective bargaining agents and the other to permit men and women to drink together in beverage rooms at public hooms. That bill would also permit resort establishments in otherwise dry areas to serve alcoholic beverages to their guests.

In the wake of a weekend announcement of Ontario Hydro rate increases, Premier John Robarts said he is not prepared to take unilateral action toward letting an independent commission such as the Ontario Energy Board review increases in Hydro rates.

The premier said he wanted to hear the opinions of municipal hydro commissions.

George Kerr, minister of energy and resources, told the house Hydro's 1971 costs will be about 14 per cent higher than this year's. He said the province will withdraw about $45 million from its reserves to help keep the rate increases down. Most of the $45 million would be replaced later.

The rate increases are seven per cent for local hydro commissions and eight per cent to 88 large industries that get their power directly from Hydro. They go into effect Jan. 1.

A nine-per-cent increase to rural customers, announced last month, also is effective Jan. 1.

Premier Robarts told the legislature last month that the government would look for an appropriate forum to review future rate increases.

In reply to questions by Liberal Opposition Leader Robert Nixon, ministers rejected suggestions that the government transfer medical health officers to the department of energy and resources and that it should have persuaded the sale to United States interests of Ryerson Press of Toronto.

The sale of Ryerson to McGraw-Hill Canada Ltd. was announced earlier Monday.

Stanley Randall, trade and development minister, said there was "no way" the province could have stopped the sale of Ryerson, which was owned by the United Church of Canada. He said he asked Ryerson to present financial statements to the government but the company did not respond.

Health Minister Thomas Wells told Mr. Nixon that a private report on pollution contained little news. The report, by Pollution Probe of Toronto, said local health units responsible for policing waste disposal were incapable of doing their job.

Mr. Wells said the report failed to mention "things that have already happened."

A report tabled for the revenue department showed that personal income tax remains the biggest source of revenue for Ontario.

Civil Servants Will Be Able to Choose Unions

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton introduced a bill in the legislature Monday that opens up the Ontario civil service to competition among unions.

The bill, called an Act to Provide for Collective Bargaining for Crown Employees, gives a choice of bargaining agents by providing that employers or employees may apply for decertification of a unit or another union may apply to replace a bargaining unit.

The proposed legislation will affect 51,000 civil servants, including those in Crown corporations. It will give the right to form employee associations for collective bargaining to employees of the Workmen's Compensation Board and to staff at Ontario's colleges of applied arts and technology. Neither group had collective bargaining before.

About 9,000 civil servants in management positions are excluded from the bill, as are employees of Ontario Hydro and the Ontario Northland Railway.

The bill, which Mr. MacNaughton says will go to a committee for study after second reading, reaffirms that Ontario civil servants are not allowed to strike. It also forbids employer lockouts.

The minister said outside the house "it remains to be seen" whether the government will put the legislation through before the house prorogues.

He said the bill does not rescind the Public Service Act but that act may have to be amended.

The bill provides for appointment of a mediator if the parties are unable to reach a collective agreement. If the mediator is unable to settle the dispute after 30 days, it would go to compulsory arbitration. Either side may refer the arbitration board decision back to the board within 19 days.

The proposed legislation would make employee associations affected by the bills legal entities—that is, they could be sued. Management groups have been asking for similar provisions under the Ontario Labor Relations Act.

The bill sets up a new Ontario Public Service Labor Relations Tribunal, made up of one or more persons appointed by the cabinet.

The tribunal would have the power to:

—Inquire into employee grievances and order an employer to rehire a person.

—Enter any premises of the employer to inspect and ask questions.

—Declare a strike illegal after an employer complaint and after hearing from the employees.

All tribunal hearings are to be in public unless matters of public security or intimate financial or personal matters might be disclosed.

The treasurer said the legislation closely follows the recommendations of Judge Walter Little, who looked into civil service and collective bargaining and reported a year ago.

Under the bill, there is no automatic certification of a union or bargaining agent without a vote. A vote can be called when an agent has 25 per cent of employees signed.

Other Crown agencies covered by the act include the Ontario Provincial Police, Liquor Control Board, Liquor Licence Board, Ontario Hospital Services Commission, Ontario Housing Corporation, and the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Excluded are casual or temporary workers, managers or members of professions such as dentistry or engineering employed in a professional capacity for the civil service.

The bill makes employee organizations under the act do not include those that receive money from their employees for any political party.

Unionist Says Rackateers Make Millions

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A charge that "millions and millions of dollars" are "being made in illicit profits by gangsters and racketeers" in Ontario construction hagr been made by union leader Gerry Gallagher.

The secretary-treasurer president of the Toronto Laborer's Union Monday renewed his call for a government investigation of the Ontario construction industry and asked for the backing of the 400,000-member Ontario Federation of Labor at its three day convention here.

He said he and his 30 Laborer's Union delegates would draft a resolution urging the OFL to take up the investigation and would submit it to the convention today or Wednesday, the convention's final day.

"We're anxious for an investigation, we demand an investigation and we want the federation to back us up. The investigators can start with our union—we have no Mafia link and nothing to hide."

Delegates from the other 99 building trades unions were less than enthusiastic about Mr. Gallagher's proposed emergency resolution.

"I can only conclude they don't want to be investigated," he said after a shouting match at a stormy meeting. "I can't say why."

However, OFL President David Archer said in an interview he had no objections to airing the entire matter at the convention, providing Mr. Gallagher submits a resolution conforming to the labor organization's constitution.

"I'd have no hesitancy at all bout it reaching the floor. I have no objection to us resisting our position on the affair.

Spokesmen for other construction unions said the matter was not discussed in any formal way during the caucus sessions. One said the fight at the building trades caucus had to do with other matters not related to the Mafia or he resolution.

Mr. Gallagher said he has asked repeatedly for a government investigation of the industry ever since his own 5,000-member union was "tarred with the Mafia brush" last year.

"The contractors don't want an investigation—even those honest construction firms without Mafia links are making exorbitant profits they don't want revealed."

A flurry of activity was set off here and at the weekend convention of the Ontario Building and Construction Trades Council last weekend at London, Ont., by allegations by Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Toronto High Park.

Delegates, expressing concern that Dr. Shulman's allegations could damage the reputation of all construction unions, approved a resolution opposing Mafia infiltration of their unions.

Singled out by Dr. Shulman in the legislature was Bruno Zanin, organizer for an independent union, and Charles Irvine of the plasterers' and cement masons' union. He linked them to Mafia figures.

"The rackets are out of this world and the profits are out of this world," said Mr. Gallagher. "We want to get the whole thing out into the open because we are sure the laborers will be vindicated."

Unionists Under Fire

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A trade unionist took her fraternal brothers to task Monday at the Ontario Federation of Labor convention for keeping women off every important committee—except the women's committee.

Shirley Carr of Niagara Falls, a national vice-president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, told delegates the OFL hasn't any women doing important jobs.

"Something drastic has to be done because women have a right to membership on these committees," she said, adding that the OFL is supposed to represent all trade unionists, not just male trade unionists.

The CUPE executive made her remarks during debate on a resolution to approve officers' reports. She said she made similar statements at last year's convention but nothing had been done.

"As soon as you stand up people think you are on a bandwagon for women's liberation. But I'm talking simply as a trade unionist."

In other resolutions, the OFL urged:

—Introduction of high school courses dealing with labor organizations to "make the job of organizing the unorganized easier."

—The provincial government should assume the full cost of education, instead of financing schools through property taxes.

—Establishment of citizen review boards as a forum for complaints against police."

—Legislation to abolish private employment agencies.

—Establishment of day-care centres at places of employment.

Sunday Openings Opposed

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The Retail, Wholesale Department Store Clerks Union plans to picket stores and supermarkets that remain open in Toronto on Sundays.

Hugh Buchanan, area director of the union, said in an interview Monday it will be informational picketing only.

"We won't attempt to close the stores down. We just want to demonstrate our opposition to stores that remain open for business on Sundays."

SACRED HEART SCHOOL

A special meeting of the Catholic Parent - Teacher Association of Sacred Heart School, Marmora, on Monday, was held to give parents a better understanding of the religious education in the school. The program featured a panel discussion led by Rev. Fr. Francis of Bancroft, religious consultant for this area, and taking part were Rev. Father T. G. Scanlan, and teachers of each grade in the school.

Outlining the new program, which is called the Canadian Catechism, and is approved by the bishops of Canada, Sr. Francis said that the same doctrine is taught, but only the method used is different. The value and success of the new method depends on the family, the school, the parish, and the whole community. It is important that an atmosphere should be created in the child's home and environment where he can grow and live out his faith. Parents have the first responsibility — and delegs — to teach their children, and they teach by the way they themselves live. The formal teaching at school is to develop in the child a basic attitude of God the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit, and the only way the child can get to know them is through himself, other people, and the world around him.

A general idea of how this is achieved at each age level was given by the panelists.

Teacher panelists contributing to the program were Mrs. Jim Hughes, Mrs. Jim Trevion, Mrs. Bill Jones, Larry Brintnell and principal Robert Bartsch. A question and answer period comparing the new and former methods of religious teaching proved most enlightening, and it was noted that there is no grading in religion as it has to be lived, and the only way a child could be graded would be to see how he gets along with other children.

President of the CPTA Mrs. Ann Maloney, thanked Sister Francis for her assistance in presenting the parents with a most valuable insight in the new program, and a further meeting of this nature was planned for Nov. 23.

In the short business meeting which followed, the names and responsibilities of the newly elected student council were announced: president, Jamie Hughes; vice - president Ann O'Connor; secretary-treasurer, Dan Bedoye; grade representatives - grade 8 Donnie Black; grade 7 Janice VanVolkenburg; grade 6 Jean Meehan and grade 5, Anne Marie Doyle.

Club Activities

CNRA LA

Plans for the Christmas party were discussed at the Tuesday evening meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Club Canara held at Club Canara. The Christmas party will be held in November. The exact date will be announced later.

The meeting was chaired by Mrs. Alice Storms. Two new members were welcomed. At the close of the meeting the group led by Ellen Gullyer entertained the members and served lunch.

L Syer Given Life Membership

Lloyd Syer, Parks Superintendent in Belleville was presented with a life membership in the Belleville Horticultural Society at their recent meeting in the Sunday School auditorium of Tabernacle United Church.

In making the presentation, Mrs. Ivan David, a director in the Society, spoke of the great contribution which Mr. Syer has made to the beautification of Belleville since he came here six years ago.

Mr. Syer, who was the guest speaker at the meeting, described the different kinds of parks which meet the needs of a district. There are regional parks such as Ontier Park and Vanderwater Park which serve more than one community. Zwick's Island Park and Riverside Park are subregional parks. Special parks have a purpose. They may be greenways, arboreta or zoos. Neighborhood parks are within walking distance for everyone in their vicinity. Stanley Park and Parkdale Park are examples of neighborhood parks. Corby Park and Riverside Park are considered to be positive parks while Alemite Park is an active one.

Green belts break up the housing congestion and give breathing space to the city. Green areas could become a reality in downtown streets when the urban renewal system comes into being.

Mr. Syer pointed out the location of the local parks on a large detailed map of the city and, by using colored slides, showed how parks within the area were developed. After the meeting, members of the audience examined the map more closely and asked many questions which Mr. Syer answered for them.

The November meeting will be addressed by Arthur Buckley, senior horticultural consultant, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, who will show slides of England.

SHOESTRING SERIES — Arelene Hill and Joan Manuel are producing their own television series for children on the Peterborough Cable Company's local channel. The first four shows of the series have been produced on a budget of $15. Mrs. Hill narrates the stories and Mrs. Manuel designs the sets. (CP Photo)

New TV Series for Children

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — With a slight school course and $15, two women have begun to produce a television series for children.

Arelene Hill and Joan Manuel are taking advantage of the Peterborough Cable Company's local channel for a personal project.

They are producing as program they call Storyland, to introduce children to favorite books. Their show is on the cable channel every Monday morning.

Mrs. Hill is the one with the slight course. She and her husband took a community college course on communications and the media. Otherwise, Mrs. Hill has no training or experience.

She interested her friend, Mrs. Manuel, in doing set designs. Mrs. Manuel has no experience, either.

"I've never painted, but I was interested in dramatics and set painting when I was in school. I'm a natural scrounger, so I enjoy making toys and clothes for my children from odds and ends that seem to accumulate in our house."

The set for The Vegetable Men by Lilias Porter included a cart made from oranges and apples and driven by a mushroom and a tailboat made of celery and lettuce.

Another set features a toy stuffed squirrel, once a hand puppet in the Hill family.

Mrs. Hill said they spent $15 to produce their first four shows.

Mrs. Manuel added: "Because we're strictly volunteers, we're not trapped by a routine or company rules. The cable people have done everything possible to help us, because so far this is the only locally produced television program for kids."

In each program, Mrs. Hill, the narrator, asks children to go with her in imagination through a tiny door in a brick wall to Storyland. The camera then switches to a miniature set based on illustrations in the book she is reading.

"We're hoping children will want to read other books for themselves once they realize how much fun story reading can be."

The shows are shot with one camera. Background music is provided by a high school concert band.

The women have 12 shows planned to be shown before Christmas.

"After that we'll re-assess and try to find out if we are reaching the children. If there's no response, we'll have to scrap the idea and maybe try something else."

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Make Maple Cream for Christmas

By MARY MOORE

In a sparkling effort to be efficient I rounded you now to clip any of these recipes that relate to Christmas entertaining. This recipe is one. A big slab of this truly creamy maple cream, chock full of nuts, would be an ideal homemade Christmas gift and look ever so Christmasy wrapped in red cellophane with a pert bow on top. So, candy cooks, clip it now.

IRISMAPLE CREAM
(About 1½ lbs.)

2 cups light brown sugar (golden yellow)
2-3 cup milk
1 tbsp. corn syrup (or ¼ tsp. cream of tartar)
2 tbsps. butter
1 tsp. vanilla
½ to 1 cup chopped walnuts
In heavy pan (I used my small aluminum pressure cooker) combine sugar, milk and corn syrup (or cream of tartar). Wipe down sides of pan and boil, without stirring, to 235 deg. Fahr. (soft ball stage when a bit of drop is tested in cold water). Remove from heat at once and add butter and vanilla, but do not stir them in. Allow to stand still until you can hold the palm of your hand on the outside without discomfort (about ½ hr.).

Beat until when you let some dribble from side of spoon it leaves a very small mound about ¼" above surface — about 8 min. Immediately stir in nuts and pour onto buttered pan (I used a layer cake tin). working quickly, and using strong rubber scraper to clean out pot.

Make some now.

NOTE: On Thursday, Nov. 5 I will give you my new recipe for 1976 White Christmas Cake.

COW BRAND BAKING SODA

Only Two Little Words Make Big Difference

By DORIS CLARK

As the two chattering women passed through the store door which was being held open for them, without even a glance of appreciation for the courtesy, the quiet grey eyes of the elderly gentleman flashed and a bit of a grim look could be seen on his face as he too passed into the building. The day had been somewhat trying, and there had been disappointments.

That evening as the Markhams were entering the apartment house they had to hold it open for a young sixth-floor tenant. Utter silence. Suddenly Jim's wife was astounded to hear her usually severe even - tempered husband raise his voice in a loud, angry, "Don't you ever say thank you." The long-haired lad withdrawn, youth with sideburns and tight trousers, rather sheepishly mumbled, "Yes."

The Markhams got off in elevator on the third floor and Jim's wife wondered if her husband's outburst would have any future effect on the young man's sense, and expression of appreciation. — Sadie Sanding, CCB Outlook.

Personally, I think it would. All many of our thoughtless young folk need is a reminder.

Dear Doris: I have been married for a year now to a man who had been divorced for five years and living with Mamma and Dad. She waited on him hand and foot and he figures there's no one like Momma.

I took it good-naturedly, saying, I just couldn't make pie like her, and so on. This worried him till we've had a few adjustments to make due to his ex-wife and family. Now he eats at Mom's, all meals, unless she's away.

His sister can't realize what she's doing. I've mentioned this to him and he says, "Don't say a word against Mamma!"

I feel very sure this is being done to break up our home as now all of a sudden they have accepted his ex-wife and family, which they did not, do believe. — Mamma's Boy of 45.

Dear Mommy's Boy: Trouble: You've been too goodnatured, too long. Hubby is still letting Mamma run his life.

I can't see anything but an ultimatum from you, somehow or with some good cooking. Present him with three choices: Live with Mamma, or go back to his first wife, or make a life with you, including eating the meals you cook.

Peace now, from you, reasonable rations later.

* * *

Dear Doris: First, my fiance's parents threw him out because I got pregnant time, though they got along well now. His mother has been remarried, and his father is about to be. If we set them at the bridal table along with the mother and step-father, there will be two divorced people.

The second problem is my fiance's adopted brother, whom we want for the best man. I believe it is customary for him to be seated beside the groom and next to the groom's father.

These two will not speak to each other. This coldness is so obvious that everyone will see it at once, so is there some way to separate them? — Confidery.

Dear Confidery: You don't put parents at the bridal table; just the bridal party. So this keeps the best man and the bridegroom's father from eating each other up.

It makes it easier for the assorted pairs of parents, too. Each parent may bring his or her present mate and all can chatter happily at a second table set up for parents, clergyman and any very close friends — we hope!

Ann Landers

One Woman's Way Of Beating Inflation

DEAR ANN LANDERS: There's a certain nut in town who bragged to me just yesterday that her grocery bill for the last month was less than $6. She buys milk, bread, occasionally a dozen eggs and a few apples. How does she manage? It's very easy. She watches the newspapers for weddings, funerals, political receptions, church socials and Bar Mitzvahs. She has learned how to get in anyplace without a ticket or an invitation. She dresses to suit the occasion (formal, if necessary) and conducts herself as if she belongs there. Is it a Polish wedding she does the polka. If it's a funeral she cries.

ANN LANDERS

Last Sunday this woman attended the wedding of the most socially prominent people in town. She described the reception and dinner as fit for royalty. "Did you know anyone there?" I asked. "Not a soul," she replied. "The groom's people assumed I was from the bride's side, and the bride's people assumed I was from the groom's side."

Transportation and an occasional corsage are her only expenses. She usually finds someone who will drive her home, but she must get there on her own.

At first I was flirred at how I rather admire this nut's ingenuity. How do you read it? — NON PLUSSED.

DEAR PLUSSED: I wouldn't put her on my "most admired" list but she certainly has found a way to beat the high cost of living. Thanks for letting us know how one woman is handling inflation.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I had a brief but passionate affair with a young student. He was 20 and I was a few years older — and married. It was one of those things that clicked in a magic moment.

My husband began to get suspicious and I decided to end the romance for fear of what might happen to the young man. When I told him we had to stop seeing each other, he threatened suicide. I didn't believe he meant it, but I was wrong. Three days later he was found dead from an overdose. His family believes his death was accidental. He always had trouble sleeping. It was not uncommon for him to take several drinks before retiring and then a strong sedative.

The morning he was buried I received a letter which he had written and mailed just before he took his life. It unnerved me so completely that I was unable to attend the funeral. Now I feel that perhaps I should go to his family and confess. I need your advice and I need it now. — SILENT MOURNER.

DEAR SILENT: His family has probably suffered enough. Don't add to their grief. Maintain your silence.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was pleased with the reply you gave to the psychology professor who thought sex in marriage was "vastly overrated." My wife and I celebrated our golden wedding anniversary ten years ago. She is 80 and I am 81.

We aren't as active sexually as we once were but we do enjoy sex twice a week. Do you have a word for us, Ann? We'd welcome it. — JACKSONVILLE COUPLE.

DEAR JACK: Yes, I have a word for you. Congratulations.

Mother: "I guess I'll have to buy you some new shirts. These are so ragged. I'd be ashamed to have you wear them. Why didn't you buy a couple of shirts before you spent all your clothes allowance?"

Son: "My shirts are all frayed looking and I don't have enough money for new ones."

Mother: "I'm sorry, but you'll have to wait until next allowance day. We agreed, that advances would be only for real emergencies."

Oakville Ace Retires From OHA Senior A Hockey Wars

OAKVILLE (CP) — Jim (Obie) O'Brien, Oakville Oaks' slick centreman who was appreciated more on the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series circuit than he was at home, retired Monday night.

In announcing the retirement in a statement, the Oaks said business pressure forced the 28-year-old former American Hockey League star to call it quits. He is opening a clothing store in Grimsby.

The league's all-star centre last year, O'Brien was jeered by Oaks followers during home games.

However, his performance earned him the league scoring title, the league's most valuable player award and the Referees' Trophy, a sort of minor league Lady Byng Trophy that goes to the player best combining sportsmanship and ability voted on by game officials.

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States, England and Argentina are co-favorites in the 13th annual World Cup golf matches to be played over the Jockey Club course in Buenos Aires, Nov. 12-15.

The 72-hole competition has drawn hand-picked teams from 44 nations, the newest members being the Dominican Republic and Libya.

Canada is represented by Al Balding of Toronto, who won individual honors in this tournament in 1958 in Rome, and Bob Cox of Vancouver.

Gary Bowerman, Toronto, and Billy Wright Jr. of Edmonton are alternates.

The United States, which has won 28 team titles since the event was inaugurated as the Canada Cup in 1953, will be represented by Lee Trevino, 1968 U.S. Open champion, and Dave Stockton, the reigning PGA titleholder.

The normal format is for the United States to use its Open and PGA champions, but this plan was wrecked when Tony Jacklin of England captured the Open—the first Briton to win it in 50 years.

Coach Claims Wellesley Will Be One of CFL 'Big Backs'

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders have an unaccustomed long winter to reflect on one of their most unrewarding recent seasons in the Eastern Football Conference.

And, after the defending Grey Cup champions slithered to the conference cellar in a single year, there seem to be more retirement rumors than in the past.

Veteran halfback Ron Stewart, who missed a good part of the schedule with a broken arm, has talked retirement after previous seasons and is doing it again this year but with the rider:

"I won't make up my mind now—there's no hurry."

Much more determined about it is defensive half Joe Poirier, 33 and with 12 fine professional seasons behind him.

Coach Jack Gotta said Monday he has not heard officially from anyone, although acknowledging:

"Joe Poirier told me he's going to call it a day. But I suggested he think it over and then see me again in two or three weeks."

One of the strongest arguments Gotta will have in his favor is the pride of the players, few of whom would be content to leave after the down season the Riders experienced this year—catching fire only after they had been eliminated from playoff contention.

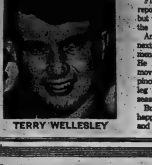
Linemen Moe Racine and Tom Beynon also are talking about hanging them up.

Beynon, who missed much of the year with a broken arm, is entering hospital to have scar tissue removed from his forehead and says he has no idea what will happen to this football.

Racine, many times an all-star says of going into a 14th season:

"I'll have to see how I feel next spring."

Flanker Whit Tucker also is reported thinking about retiring, but was not available to confirm the reports.



Another question mark for next year, but not from retirement, is lineman Doug Collins. He is entering hospital for removal of a disc that has been pinching a nerve leading to his leg and which troubled him all season.

But all the Riders aren't unhappy. Rookie Terry Wellesley and Wayne Smith already have been in to talk about next year with Gotta, who says:

"I honestly believe Wellesley is due to be one of the big backs in Canadian football and Smitty has shown us he's got the size and the talent to do a tremendous job for us."

As if he's not big enough already at 245 pounds, rookie defensive lineman Gus Ravenberg is so enthused about the action he saw during the season, he's planning on getting bigger.

"I finally got my chance," he said Monday. "and it's great. I'm 248 now and I want to build myself up to 252."

TERRY WELLESLEY

Hugh Oldham, who finished 1st out of the Continental League to rks 13 touchdown passes from quarterback Gary Wood, got a present of sons and neys Monday.

He was rewarded at a dinner at the top offensive player on the team this year.—Gerry Campbell was named the top defensive player—and then had to head straight home to Dallas where his father died early Monday morning.

Russ Jackson, retired Ottawa quarterback and winner of the award last year, made the presentation.

Junior Trojans Looking For COSSA Repeat

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Moira Junior football coach Gord Smith scoffs at any notion that his Trojans approach the status of a "super" football club. "I'm just naturally a pessimistic individual, I guess," claims the head coach. "But I had my doubts that we could beat Centennial for the league championship."

Cold statistics would seem to indicate, however, that Moira is, at the very least, a few healthy cuts above average. In seven Bay of Quinte games, including playoffs, the Trojan juniors have wrecked up 273 points, while allowing only 39. Moira has also recorded shutouts in five of their seven games with a top scoring output of 66 points against Napanee.

Sparking the Moira attack are salt and pepper halfbacks Peter Stafikovich and Dave Rutherford. Each possesses different skills, which seem to complement the other, adding to the effectiveness of the Trojan offence.

"Pete's a tremendous blocker and the kind of runner that can go inside," says Smith, "while Dave is faster and probably has better hands, as well as being able to throw the ball. Stafikovich is more likely to make a long run by breaking tackles, while Rutherford relies more on speed." Stafikovich has counted 16 touchdowns this season, while Rutherford has crossed the goal line 11 times.

Rounding out the running back contingent in Moira's fullhouse backfield is fullback Rick Bombay, a converted tackle. "He gives us strong inside running and I think that's one area in which we're tremendously improved," says Smith of his fullback.

Completing the starting backfield are quarterback Steve Kirby, a weak passer, but good runner and wingback Dave Hilborn, who runs many of the Moira couriers.

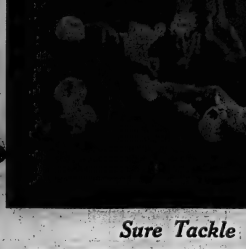
"We can go inside, but I guess it would be fair to say that much of our offence is set up around our sweep," claims the coach, "even when it isn't working well the other leaver have to respect it."

The only real weak spot in the junior attack may be in passing, although Rutherford can fill in at quarterback when a passing situation occurs.

On the offensive line, guard Keith Stather and tackle Nick Adams have filled holes caused by graduation and turned in a solid performance all season.

Defensively, the Trojans use a number of sets, shifting from a basic 5-4 Oklahoma (linebackers in tight) as the opposing quarterback calls the signals.

They feel that by changing defences they can cause some confusion on the blocking assignments, leaving clear paths for the Moira leaders.



Sparking the defensive unit has been the play of deep defenders Dave Hilborn Scott McDonald and Rob Howes. Other key personnel include Cliff Ralph, a really long-armed defensive end and inside linebacker Larry Kirby, who calls the defensive signals.

"I think that much of the reason for our success is that we play pretty heavy defence and defence, I think that it's better to have a rested player who may not have quite as much ability, but can go all out rather than one who is tired from going both ways," says Smith.

Asked to compare this year's team to the 1969 COSSA champions, he smiles, "I was afraid you'd ask that. I can't honestly say. All year I've thought that we were a bit weaker, but maybe not. You'd have to say that our offensive backfield is better balanced but only time will tell."

The first big test for the Trojans will come Wednesday, when they travel to Pickering to play the COSSA semi-finals. The winner of the match will advance to the COSSA finals against the winner of the Adam Scott — Lake Ontario winner.

Sure Tackle

Moira linebacker Brian Spencer cracks into wingback Dave Hilborn during a scrimmage of the Bay of Quinte junior football champions. The Trojans will be looking for a balanced backfield to lead them to their second consecutive COSSA "AA" title.

Family Feud

Moira Junior Trojans face each other in a practice session at the YMCA grounds. The Trojans, who finished the year undefeated will be playing Pickering, Wednesday for the right to compete in the COSSA championships, one week later. Gord Smith's club piled up 273 points in Bay of Quinte play this season, while allowing only 20.

Larks Hurting After Hamilton Game

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Alouettes suffered more than a demotion to third place in the final Eastern Football Conference standings when they tied Hamilton Tiger-Cats 18-18 Saturday.

After the game head Coach Sam Etcheverry said the team received no major injuries during the last game of the regular EFC season but it was discovered Monday that cornerback Richie Davis suffered a broken jaw and Moses Denson, the flashy running back, a broken nose in the hard-hitting contest.

Dr. Ted Percy, the Alouette's physician, wired Davis' jaw and the cornerback is expected to be available for the EFC semi-final clash with Toronto at CNE Stadium Saturday.

Despite his injury, the Alouettes were also counting on Denson for the semi-final game.

Etcheverry expressed satisfaction with the Montreal performance against Hamilton after viewing the game films.

He said quarterback Sonny Wade played "his best game" of the year "and we blocked well too."

"Sonny was dropping back deeper than he has all year and this gave him plenty of time to throw the ball.

"Really our offence played pretty well. One of these days this team might just put everything together and surprise some people."

Etcheverry said the field in Toronto, badly ripped during the Argo's win over Ottawa Saturday, will not be much of a factor "as long as it doesn't rain."

"We played on that field just after they had scooped it in our last game and it wasn't too bad. When you play on those fields in the rain though they come apart.

"The new and just hasn't had time to take root and hook on."

The Montreal head coach said his team should have no problem getting emotionally set for the game against the Argonauts.

"The playoffs are a whole new world," Etcheverry said. "Most of our veterans have never been in them before, and for the kids it's just a whole new experience.

"They know how important it is. I really don't expect much of a problem getting them ready for Toronto."

Quarry Not Harboring Any Retirement Plans

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Heavyweight boxer Jerry Quarry said Monday he has no plans to retire and will move to have his California suspension lifted by paying a $1,000 fine assessed by the state's athletic commission.

Quarry, of Bellflower, Calif., was stopped by Muhammad Ali in Atlanta Oct. 26 when a bad cut over his left eye ended the bout after the third round.

"I've got one cut left eye that's going to heal quickly and I'm ready for him," said Quarry, who hopes for a rematch against Ali, also known as Cassius Clay.

Quarry was suspended in California last spring in a controversy over contracts for a bout against Mac Foster of Fresno, Calif., in New York City. Quarry stopped Foster in that battle.

The suspension was lifted by the commission which assessed the $1,000 fine because Quarry had fought a boxer who was under suspension in California.

When Quarry failed to pay the fine, he was suspended again.

Quarry and lawyer Paul Caruso told a news conference they would appeal the fine and also fight the attachment in Atlanta of the fighter's $42,000 share of the live gate from the Clay fight.

Tiger-Cats Have Two Players In Final CFL Trophy Ballot

MONTREAL (CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats, this year's Eastern Football Conference champions, today hold two of the six nominations following a second ballot conducted to determine the Canadian Football League's top three players of 1970.

The names of three EFC and three Western Football Conference standouts were selected in three categories by football writers and sportscasters in the nine CFL cities. The categories are: outstanding player, Canadian player-of-the-year, and lineman-of-the-year.

Tommy Joe Coffey, the veteran Ticats' offensive end and place-kicking specialist, was named as the EFC representative for the outstanding-player award. Hamilton's Angelo Mosca, a veteran tackle, will represent the East for the lineman title.

Quarterback Ron Lancaster, the lithly scrambler who led Saskatchewan Roughriders to the WFC title again this year, will oppose Coffey. Linebacker Wayne Harris of the WFC Calgary Stampeders will be Mosca's opposition for the lineman award.

Al Phaseol, a sophomore defensive halfback with Montreal Alouettes and last season's EFC rookie award winner, will battle Jim Young, a fourth-year running back with R.C. Lions, for top honors as the best Canadian performer in the CFL.

The winners in each category will be revealed Nov. 28 in Toronto during the CFL week.

Coffey was a first-ballot nominee for the same award in both 1968 and 1969. In the 1968 season he broke an 11-year scoring record with a new high of 148 points, and topped the conference again this year with 111 points.

Lancaster's consistently high record for passes thrown and completed, won him the Jeff Nicklin Trophy as the WFC's most valuable player in 1966, 1968 and 1969.

Mosca was nominated on a first ballot for the lineman award in 1963 and was named an all-star in 1965 and 1966.

Harris previously won the Schenley Award as lineman-of-the-year in 1965 and 1966 and is looking for his third title.

Young was runner-up last year to Montreal Russ Jackson for the Canadian player award when the former Ottawa Rough Rider quarterback walked off with the outstanding player and top Canadian titles.

Bradshaw Shuns Role Of Hanratty Back-Up

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A frustrated Terry Bradshaw vows he won't play second fiddle to Terry Hanratty after this season.

The golden-haired Pittsburgh Steelers rookie quarterback has not been the cure-all he was billed to be for the National Football League pick now he admits he's pressing.

Pittsburgh defeated Cincinnati Bengals 21-10 Monday night, but it was Hanratty, coming off the bench, who bailed out the Steelers in the fourth quarter. He threw one touchdown pass and led them to another major. "I'll never sit on the bench behind a second-year man," Bradshaw said. "It's obvious (Coach) Noll will have to make a decision at the end of the year.

"He's given me all the chance in the world but I haven't done anything. And if I'm going to be on the bench, I want to play behind a veteran so I can learn.

"If I get beat, if Hanratty beats me out—then fair and square."

Bradshaw started the nationally televised game, but Hanratty took over midway in the first quarter with the Steelers behind 10-7.

Hanratty kept silent after the game.

"Each to his own," he replied when asked about Bradshaw's remarks.

"Every quarterback wants to start," he said. "But I'll leave the decision up to the coach."

Hanratty unleashed a 72-yard touchdown bomb in the fourth quarter to tight end Dennis Hughes on a play which called for him to pass to Dave Smith. But Smith was covered.

Hanratty then led the Steelers 75 yards in nine plays for another touchdown in the fourth quarter. Warren Bankston scored from the one.

Neither team sparkled in the first half. The Bengals scored on a one-yard pass in the second quarter from Virgil Carter to Eric Crabtree after Crabtree had caught a 29-yard pass, taking the ball to the one.

But the Steelers took the kick-off and drove for the tying score.

Jockey Club Posts Reward In Effort to Solve Case

TORONTO (CP) — The search for persons responsible for drugging four horses entered in last Friday's fifth race at Greenwood racetrack continues. The Jockey Club posted a $1,000 reward for information which would result in a conviction by the courts or a finding of responsibility by the Ontario Racing Commission.

A similar reward, matching the Jockey Club's, was expected to be made by the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association, a former NHPA director, Carl Chapman, said Monday.

John J. Mooney, executive vice-president and managing director of the Jockey Club Ltd. who made the reward announcement at the end of the last race at Greenwood Monday, said three of the four horses scratched from Friday's fifth race had definitely been drugged.

Urine samples taken from Sri Monlague, owned by George Gardiner, a Jockey Club director; Pine Tree Gal, owned by Rodger E. Leslie; and Patapouf, owned by another Jockey Club director, Jean-Louis Levesque of Montreal, were positive.

A negative reading was taken from Arc O'Five, owned by Brenmore Stables, as well as from the other four horses entered in the race—Anita's Warrior, Sir Ribota Lady, Flim and Jewels Joy.

Track officials speculated Monday that a different type of drug was used on Arc O'Five, a type that would not show up in a urine sample.

Edward Gorman, supervisor of thoroughbred racing for the ORC and handling the intensive investigation of the druggings, said similar negative reports were received in urine samples taken from horses doped last winter at standardbred tracks at London, Ont., and Windsor, Ont.

He said Arc O'Five's urine sample is clean "to this point."

"But sometimes it takes three or four tests before something shows."

Controversy Continues Over 'Davidson Incident'

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Controversy over Oakland Raiders 17-17 tie Sunday with Kansas City Chiefs continued today in the National Football League but there was clarification on one major point:

Oakland's Ben Davidson was justified in tackling Kansas City quarterback Len Dawson, the incident which touched off a wild melee with only a minute remaining.

It was the manner in which Davidson tackled Dawson which caused referee Bob Finley to step off 15 yards against Oakland.

The fight started after Dawson ran 19 yards to the Oakland 39. Davidson jumped on Dawson, then wide receiver Otis Taylor of the Chiefs jumped on Davidson and started swinging.

All fans, it was believed Davidson piled on Dawson after the quarterback was tackled. Films show that Dawson had not been touched but stumbled to the ground when he tripped over one of his own players.

When Taylor dived into Davidson, he drew a 15-yard penalty, offsetting the Davidson penalty, nullifying the play and returning the ball to the original scrimmage line.

Mystery still existed over whether Taylor was ejected from the game. Taylor says he was but doesn't know why.

Mark Duncan, the league's director of officials, says he wasn't.

After order was restored eight or 10 minutes later, the Chiefs had to kick and the Raiders moved to Kansas City's 41-yard line on Daryle Lamonica's passing. With three seconds left, George Blanda tied the game with a 48-yard field goal.

Oakland's tie lifted it into first place in the American Football Conference's West Division. A Kansas City victory would have elevated the Chiefs into a tie for first with Denver, but Kansas City remains in third place.

Sports On All Fronts

HAMILTON (CP) — Halfback Ed Buchanan, who aggravated an old knee injury in Hamilton Tiger-Cats' 18-18 tie with Montreal Alouettes that gave them the Eastern Football Conference title Sunday, will be in hospital until the weekend, Ticats' team physician, Dr. Jim Charters, said Monday Buchanan suffered strained left knee ligaments and can't put any weight on the leg.

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Gary Phillips, 15, a halfback on the Andrea High School team, died Sunday night of head injuries he received in a football game Oct. 22, School officials said Phillips never regained consciousness after he was kicked in the head while being tackled in a game against Austin High School.

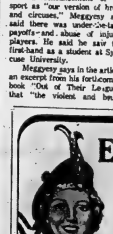
EAST STROUDSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Joe Frazier broke camp Monday and prepared for a motor trip to Detroit where he will continue training for his Nov. 16 title fight with light-heavyweight champion Bob Foster. In preparation for the Detroit bout, Frazier boxed 17 rounds and got his weight down to 214 pounds. His trainer, Yancey Durham, said Frazier expects to enter the fight at 205 or 210 pounds, the heaviest he has weighed for a bout. Durham said Frazier has shown no ill effects from the fracture of his right leg, suffered in a right club accident in Las Vegas in March.

Former Linebacker Puts Down Football

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Meggyesy, former linebacker for St. Louis Cardinals who quit pro football because he claims it is "dehumanizing," said in Look magazine Monday that "a lot of NFL trainers do more dealing in drugs than the average junkie."



In a denouncement of the sport as "our version of bread and circuses," Meggyesy also said there was under-the-table payoffs and abuse of injured players. He said he saw this first-hand as a student at Syracuse University.

Meggyesy says in the article, an excerpt from his forthcoming book "Out of Their League," that "the violent and brutal player that television viewers marvel over on Saturdays and Sundays is a by-product."

When I got to the National Football League, I saw players fed, at an astonishing rate, not only steroids, but also amphetamines and barbiturates.

"Pro football is the only team that dispense amphetamines and barbiturates like penny candy."

Esposito Sets Sights On Own NHL Scoring Record

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins has become the 42nd player in National Hockey League history to record more than 500 regular-season points.

But in addition to that feat, Esposito appears to be taking dead aim at his one-season record of 126 points, an all-time NHL high he set two seasons ago.

After Boston's first nine games this season, Esposito has 19 points, including a league-leading 12 assists. In the 1968-69 season when he set the 126-point scoring record, Esposito had only four goals, four assists and eight points in the first nine games.

So far the rangy centre from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., has picked up at least one point in eight of Boston's nine games. The only time he failed to record a point was Oct. 12 at Vancouver as the Bruins beat the Canucks 5-3.

Esposito leads team-mate John McKenzie by three points in the current scoring race. Another Boston right winger—Ken Hodge—is third with 14 points, two fewer than McKenzie and one more than centre Jean Ratelle of Montreal Canadiens.

Yvan Cournoyer, the little Orr collected six points in Montreal Canadiens right winger who currently is on the injured list with a foot fracture, still leads in goals with 10, including eight scored on power plays. He is tied with John Bucyk of Boston. Alex Delvecchio of Detroit Red Wings and Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks.

Each has 12 points.

Bobby Orr, Boston's all-star defenceman, who won the scoring title last season, moved into the list of leading scorers last week.

Boston's three victories to move his season total to 11 and a tie with five other players.

The New York combination of Gilles Villemure and Ed Giacomin leads the goaltenders with a combined goals-against average of 1.98. Ernie Wakely and Glenn Hall of St. Louis are next with a combined 2.09 mark.

Three teams have recorded two shutouts each and in all instances the shutouts were in successive games.

Ed Johnston of Boston blanked New York Rangers 6-0 Saturday night and then teammate Gerry Cheevers duplicated the feat against Minnesota North Stars, 5-0.

Sticky Situation

Roger Desmeres takes care of lacquered hockey sticks as they move slowly along the drying line following the dipping operation at CCM's St. Jean, Que., plant. Following this operation, the sticks will be stamped and shipped across Canada. (CP Photo)

Hadfield Finally Goes Straight

NEW YORK (AP) — Vic Hadfield fingered the straight blade of his hockey stick and a devilish grin curled his lip.

"You know," said the New York Ranger left winger, "it's a funny feeling to have a backhander again."

Hadfield, like several other National Hockey League shooters, has rediscovered the backhand shot as an effective weapon now that the curved stick has been all but legislated out of existence.

Chicago's Stan Mikita and Bobby Hull, who started the hooked blade trend some eight years ago, Phil Esposito of Boston and New York's Hadfield and Rod Gilbert were the players most affected by the NHL's ruling last summer which cut the allowed curve down to a meagre one-half inch.

"It's the goalies," said Hadfield. "They were always complaining.

"And you know. They're always making new rules to hurt the shooters."

If the goalies were complaining about the curved sticks, it wasn't without reason. The hooked blade made stick-handling an even more hazardous profession than it already was.

At the height of the curved stick craze, blades were hooked 1½ inches, providing a neat pocket in which skaters could cradle the puck. But the hook necessarily eliminated the back-hand as an effective manoeuvre.

That didn't seem to bother Mikita, Chicago's slick little centre, who is credited with introducing the first curved stick when he stuck a blade under a dressing room door. He could manoeuvre the puck almost as if it were on a string with his curved blade. Now he is in a quandary.

"I can't seem to find the right lie with a straight stick," said Mikita. "I haven't found one I can use." The lie refers to the angle of the stick to the ice.

Hull made the curved blade a dangerous weapon and used it to set a single-season record with 58 goals a couple of years ago. He wasn't happy about having to discard it.

"With the big hook you could pull the puck in and fling it," Hull said. "Now you've got to stay with it and follow through or else it will slice. It bothers the velocity of my shot."

It was one of Hull's sticks that got Hadfield started on the hook. He had broken a stick in a pre-game practice in Chicago a couple of years ago and Hull lent him a spare. Hadfield enjoyed immediate success and adopted the curve. Now he's not sorry to give it up.

"I've found I have more control over the puck now," said Hadfield. "Especially in the corners. With the hook, the puck seemed to always slide off the stick. Not it doesn't."

Esposito, who adopted the curve when he played with Hull and Mikita in Chicago, set a record of 126 points two years ago, when the 1½-inch hook was allowed.

Clay May Fight In NY Garden

NEW YORK (AP) — Madison Square Garden has thrown its hat into the ring in an attempt to get the Muhammad Ali-Oscar Bonavena fight.

"We're working on it, and we should know in 24 hours," Harry Markson, the garden's boxing director said Monday night.

Several places, including arenas in Atlanta and Miami, have put their bids in for the Dec. 7 heavyweight fight.

Ali, who beat Jerry Quarry a week ago in Atlanta, signed to oppose Bonavena for Chris Dundee, a Miami Beach promoter.

"But Ali is more interested in having the fight here," said Terry Brennan, the Garden matchmaker," and Dundee is willing to turn the contract over to us for a fee."

Ruel Keeps Count

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Claude Ruel will count heads at today's practice before deciding which members of Montreal Canadiens will travel to Minnesota for Wednesday's night's National Hockey League game against the North Stars.

Improbable starters are defenceman Jacques Laperriere and forwards Yvan Cournoyer, Henri Richard and Marc Tardif.

Defenceman Jacques Laperriere will definitely not make the trip, Laperriere suffered a pinched nerve in his neck in Saturday's game against Vancouver Canucks.

The lanky defenceman is expected to be out of the lineup for at least four more days.

Centre Henri Richard has a badly pulled groin and rookie Marc Tardif practised for the first time Monday after being shelved for a week by an infected arm.

Ruel has not ruled out the possibility that defenceman Serge Savard will make the trip to Minnesota. Savard has been sidelined since he suffered a broken leg last March in an NHL game against New York Rangers

"Serge has been coming along well and he looks better in every practice," said Ruel.

Savard doesn't seem too enchanted with the idea of playing against Minnesota.

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — Nijinsky, Europe's racehorse of the year, left by air today for the United States to go to stud. In New York, he will transfer in a special plane for the trip to the stud farm of A. J. (Bull) Hancock in Paris, Ky. Owner Nijinsky, syndicated by owner Charles Englehard for more than $5 million dollars, won 11 of his 13 races, collecting $571,200 prize money.

Noel O'Callaghan, director of the British Bloodstock Agency, supervised Nijinsky's departure and said, "He went aboard in his usual fashion with no trouble at all. He's one of the great travelers."

First Year Phenoms Fail To Unseat CFL Veterans

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

First - year men performed well in the Canadian Football League this season, but some old-timers proved too tough to dislodge from the pinnacles of their chosen specialties.

The CFL issued its final 1974 statistics Monday and among the newcomers high in the rankings was Gary Wood of Ottawa Rough Rider, top passing quarterback in the Eastern Conference and candidate for all-star honors at that position.

Wood threw 340 passes, completing 174 for 2,775 yards. He had 27 intercepted and 18 went for touchdowns.

Veteran Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders threw 386 times, completed 178, for 2,781 yards. He had 22 intercepted and 16 touchdowns.

Wood and Jerry Keeling of Calgary shared the honors for touchdown strikes, each with 18.

Don Jonas of Toronto Argonauts, third among the EFC passers, was tops in the EFC as a kicker of converts. A veteran of Continental League play with Orlando Panthers, 1970 was his first year in Canadian ball.

Al Marcella, an Ottawa rookie, led the entire CFL in kickoff returns.

And one of the top place-kickers was first-ager Ivan Mac-Millan from Alexandria, Ont., just outside Ottawa, in his first year for the Rough Riders.

In scoring, three of the top five in the East were newcomers. Veteran Tommy Joe Coffey of Hamilton Tiger-Cats led the way, but he was followed by Jonas, MacMillan and Hugh Oldham of Ottawa, then by holdover Dave Fleming of Hamilton.

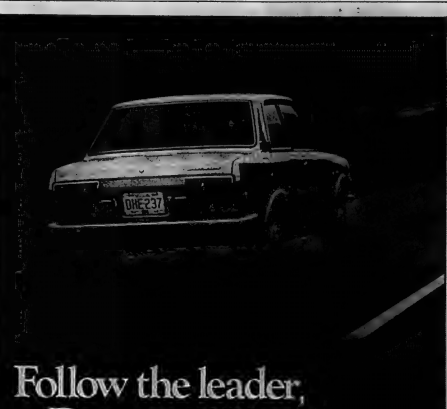
In the WFC, however, the top six were veterans—Jack Abendschan, Saskatchewan; Ted Gerela, British Columbia Lions; Dave Cutler, Edmonton Eskimos, Larry Robinson and Herm Harrison, both of Calgary.

The top rusher in the country was Hugh McKinnis of Calgary with Jim Evenson of the Lions right behind him. McKinnis is a rookie, Evenson a veteran of three years.

Bill Symons and Dave Raimey of Toronto led the East with 936 and 839 yards respectively, well off the 1,135 rolled up by McKinnis and Evenson's 1,961. The WFC clubs, however, had two more games in their schedule than the EFC teams.

Oldham rolled up 1,843 yards on 45 passes in the EFC and carried 13 of them for touchdowns. Harrison caught 70 passes for 1,624 yards and 12 touchdowns.

The only rookie to show in the WFC punting statistics was Fred Dunn of Edmonton, and he came 10th behind Ken Phillips, B.C.; Ed Ulmer, Winnipeg Blue Bombers; Al Ford, Saskatchewan, and Ron Stewart, Calgary.



Totals, respectively, were: 5,704, 5,504, 5,434, 5,336 and 2,216. The punters are graded by average yards per kick.

In the East, Dave Mann led the way. His average of 44.8 for Toronto was slightly better than Phillips' 44.6, although Mann's total yardage of 5,292 came on 118 kicks, compared to 128 for Phillips.

Bill Van Burkleo of Ottawa was second to Mann with 4,600 yards and, slightly ahead of Montreal's Sonny Wade with 4,217. Joe Zuger, who did much of Hamilton's kicking, had 2,909 yards.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Pipes and Cigars Also Dangerous

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: These days we hear much about the dangers of cigarette smoking. Will you please clear the air on the comparative dangers of smoking cigars and pipes?

A young man I know thinks nothing of sitting in the living room and smoking three- four, five or more cigars or pipefuls of tobacco during an evening. The place becomes unlivable for anyone else in the room.

He really sits in the midst of smoke when he smokes. How harmful would you say this is to him? — and to others in the same room? His wife ends up with a headache from the smoke. There is a small child in the family.

I know that cancer and heart trouble are more likely to be caused by cigarette smoke. But what is the score on emphysema? And how does young man convince himself that he has a right to be this impolite — even should there be no other serious consequences? — Mrs. J.

COMMENT: I'd like to try answering question by question, but you may have problems (emotional, physical, psychological) I hope you forgive me for replying in generalities.

I have never been convinced — although many doctors disagree — that "it's all right to indulge in pipe and cigars." These are supposed to be blameless as causative factors of lung cancer or heart disease. All on the basis of thinking that people who smoke cigars and pipes don't inhale.

But many pipe and cigar smokers do inhale, whether they realize it or not. I used to smoke cigars and pipe. Try as I might, I recall that I inhaled. Some inhale more than others. In considering disease, I think it is safer to go on the assumption that pipe and cigars are as potentially guilty as cigarettes.

The doctor is hedging when he tells his patient, "Give up your cigarettes, but smoke pipe or cigars instead."

I haven't suddenly turned evangelist. I did not stop smoking yesterday. I made up my mind years ago that all tobacco was bad. (Incidentally, Mrs. J., it is also bad for many innocent nonsmokers who have to put up with people who "make the living room unlivable.")

Emphysema? Bronchitis? Coronary artery disease? Trouble in the leg circulation? I consider pipe and cigar as nefarious as cigarettes. (I'm hereby putting on my suit of armor in ward off the blows from readers who pride themselves on "only" smoking pipe or cigar.)

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband has been threatening for years that he will become a vegetarian. For the past few weeks he has refused any meat at all. This has put me on the spot. I have to prepare separate dinners for him. The children and I still eat meat.

What I am concerned about is whether or not he is receiving proper nourishment. He works hard and needs to be strong. He is not a complete vegetarian. He still is willing to take milk, eggs, etc. I'll be interested in hearing from you. — Mrs. M.

COMMENT: He's what some call a "lacto-vegetarian" since he is willing to take eggs, cheese and other milk products. For proteins be sure to also get the vegetable proteins such as nuts and dry legumes. Also whole grain cereals, in addition to vegetables and fruits.

These should insure adequate amounts of calcium, B vitamins, protein, iron and other minerals. If you play safe, it would be advisable that he also take supplemental vitamins and minerals.

Be patient, Mrs. M. He may take you off the spot. I've known many on a vegetarian kick, who have suddenly reverted by way of a request for a juicy tenderloin.

Heroin Treatment Drug Now Peddled

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal authorities are moving against a new and growing form of drug abuse—peddling of the drug methadone which has been in use to treat heroin addicts.

The federal food and drug directorate and the Canadian Medical Association have formed a joint committee to prepare guiding principles for doctors prescribing methadone to treat narcotic addiction.

Narcotics control officers say that increasingly in British Columbia and Alberta supplies of methadone are being diverted from treatment to illicit traffic in the drug culture.

And, they add, it is being used in Montreal to bring drug users down from LSD trips.

Methadone itself is capable of producing addiction although it has been in use by doctors to block the craving of heroin addicts and enable them to function more normally in society.

An experienced enforcement officer Monday said most heroin addicts attempt to obtain additional supplies of methadone, distributing a portion to companions, increasing their own dosage or selling it.

Several doctors may be hoodwinked into providing prescriptions to a single addict, who peddles it. Several convictions have been registered in various parts of Canada.

One enforcement official estimates methadone use has grown five times although its only acceptable official use is as treatment of heroin addiction.

In its monthly bulletin for doctors, the food and drug directorate says there is growing evidence in several countries that heroin addicts derive little or no benefit from treatment by doctors who are inadequately informed or who cannot exercise proper patient control.

A meeting here earlier this year of enforcement and regulatory authorities discussed the problem of addicts shopping around for extra methadone supplies from doctors.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Trends Will Be Unclear

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Nobody, of course, knows how the U.S. will vote today.

In numerous local and state elections. But quite a few firm conclusions can be drawn from the results, and will be, by tomorrow.

The voting pattern will demonstrate that the country is drifting leftward in some areas, and moving toward the right in others.

The election of "dove" candidates will indicate that the nation is tired of the war and wants to end it as quickly as possible.

The election of "hawk" candidates will show that the nation's confidence in President Nixon's policy in Vietnam.

Many younger men will unseat their older rivals, proving that the country is looking for new blood.

At the same time, many veteran incumbents will succeed by beating back the bids of newcomers, for the electorate prefers experience to youth.

Three candidates accused of monumental crookedness will have overwhelmingly rejected at the polls, because the voters are in a reform mood.

Three others, however, under as big and black a cloud of corruption, will be returned to office with larger majorities than before.

More black officials will be elected; but none of the white dailies will be repulsed.

Candidates with "liberal" economic views will win a number of Congressional seats and candidates with "progressive" social policies will win about an equal number.

There will be a half-dozen "upsets" in state races, the winners delighted at their victory as "part of a national trend" and the losers blaming their defeat on "smear, half-truths, and a million-dollar television campaign" mounted by the opposition.

Four narrowly-beaten candidates will demand recounts, charging ballot-stuffing and malfeasance of election officials. And one of them will withdraw their demands upon sobering up to the recognition that there was just as much hanky-panky on their side.

Political commentators will find trends, tendencies, patterns, waves and probability curves where there is only confusion, contradiction, ignorance, fear, passion, bigotry, greed, wistful idealism and rampant cynicism.

Somewhere between a third and a half of the eligible voters will bother to go to the polls. Ninety per cent of them will vote their pocketbooks or their prejudices. And the Nation Will Have Spoken.

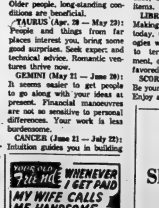
Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.



Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, relief was so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Uniform Package Labelling System Is Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill to bring the tax appeal board closer to the ordinary citizen, and another providing for federal incorporation of co-operatives operating in two or more provinces passed second reading in the Commons Monday and were sent to committee.

The Bills were scheduled to resume debate today on second reading of a bill that would establish national marketing agencies and a national farm products marketing council.

Also scheduled for debate today was a bill described by Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford after its introduction Monday as a measure "to provide a uniform labelling system which will give everything a person needs to know before making a decision on buying the package."

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Canada has tightened its restrictions on trade with South Africa, in line with the latest resolution of the United Nations Security Council.

The ban now extends to vehicles and equipment used for military and para-military activity, as well as parts for such equipment, Mr. Sharp said.

Given second reading and sent to the justice committee was a bill designed to make the tax appeal board—to be renamed the tax review board—more accessible to ordinary taxpayers.

The major aim of the bill, the justice department says, is to bring the board closer to taxpayers with a less formal and cheaper procedure of appealing decisions of the revenue department.

Marc Saltzman (NDP—Waterloo) said his party supported the bill, but urged the government to introduce better-defined tax laws.

Only if the distinction between income and capital gains were removed, he said, would this type of case load disappear.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), Conservative financial critic, agreed that the board's methods should be made less formal.

Mr. Basford said the Corporations Act, under which co-operatives operating in two or more provinces now are regulated by the federal government, was not the "proper vehicle" for the job.

He said co-operatives differ from companies in that they distribute profits to members or clients on the basis of patronage, not the number of shares held; and each member has one vote in a co-operative, while company shareholders have as many votes as shares.

The legislation would permit co-operatives to register with the corporate affairs minister, and switch from provincial to federal jurisdiction with permission of their home province.

It would give the minister power to refuse registration. The minister would have to approve certain changes in bylaws of federally-incorporated co-operatives, including organizational changes and the raising of capital.

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) said the bill had long been advocated by the co-operative movement.

Les Benjamin (NDP—Regina-Lake Centre)—said his party would also support the bill, with "some improvements."

Gerard Laprise (Creditiste—Abitibi) said he hoped the bill would be enacted as soon as possible.

In the debate on the farm marketing bill, Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson promised he would consider proposals to amend the bill before it goes through the Commons.

He said it is almost exactly the same as a bill that died in the last session after prolonged attacks by opposition MPs.

Harold Danforth (PC—Kent-Essex) said he was impressed by Mr. Olson's remarks, adding that the Conservative party would cooperate in making the bill the best possible.

Under the bill, marketing agencies would be set up for all farm products except grain and dairy products, already covered by existing legislation.

Debate on the bill is expected to be completed today. The bill will then be referred to the agriculture committee for detailed study.

The minister said he would be willing to accept changes to the bill to require boards to have producer representatives.

Much of the Conservative attack in the last session aimed at the fact that producers were not expressly included in the membership of these boards.

Broadcasts In Ojibway Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — An organization largely supported by the Company of Young Canadians will ask approval next month to set up a mobile radio service in northwestern Ontario.

The brief says the area served by the mobile van would include Nipigon, Pays Plats, Gull Bay, McKenzie, Longlac and Areland in the eastern half of northwestern Ontario.

Each community would be visited once every two weeks for two-day periods. The station —if a dio Kenozhewin—would broadcast three hours a day, half in English and half in the language of the local Ojibway Indians.

The brief says about half the people in the six areas to be served are Indian or Metis. Many are either unemployed or seasonally employed and a great deal of bitterness exists between whites and Indians.

Politicians Deceive Says Camp

TORONTO (CP) — The former national president of the Progressive Conservative party says politicians deliberately polarize opinion and do not tell the truth.

Dalton Camp, now an advertising executive, told the Canadian Club Monday that "government information agencies are growing.

"It is said by those who govern this apparatus that it has been raised to inform us. You and I know—if we know anything—that it is being raised to propagandize us."

Mr. Camp said the contemporary politician believes he must explore two avenues to retain power.

"The first is what we see—the construction of a modern, efficient instrument of propaganda. The second is vastly more sophisticated, and complex, which is the manipulation of the media. . . .

"While the country has been driven to a condition of crisis more grave than any in our history, while opinion has been deliberately and perhaps eternally polarized, we are not being told the truth."

Byelection Candidates Are Named

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Official nominations closed Monday for Nov. 16 federal byelections in the Quebec ridings of Frontenac and Labelle and the Manitoba riding of Lisgar.

The Liberals and Conservatives are contesting all three ridings and the Creditistes the two in Quebec. The New Democratic Party, Social Credit and one independent are after the Lisgar seat.

Standing in the Commons now is: Liberals 153, Conservative 72, NDP 22, Creditiste 13, independent one and three vacant for a total of 264.

The Liberals are generally expected to win Labelle, and the Conservatives Lisgar with the toughest battle expected in Frontenac.

Despite an expected emphasis on local issues, party leaders are expected to take a hand.

The byelections will provide the first opportunity for 18-to 20-year-olds to vote federally.

Compensation If a man is off work because of a job accident, we send him a tax-free compensation cheque every two weeks.

Vocational rehabilitation If a worker requires rehabilitation services, including job retraining, before he can return to work, we will provide them. There is no limit to the amount of time and money we are able to spend to help a man get back on the job.

Help us to help you

We give every claim the same fast, fair and thorough attention. But to give everyone all the help they are entitled to in time of trouble, we need the co-operation of many people.

We need a prompt report of every accident We can act on a report from the injured man, from his employer, or from his doctor. From the day we hear of the accident, we can put the first compensation cheque in the applicant's hands in five days.

The disabled worker needs your goodwill Whether you're an employer or a fellow worker, give him a chance to show what he can do. It's a man's abilities that count, not his disabilities.

Prevention is better than compensation Most important of all, we need everybody to join us in our effort to reduce on-the-job accidents. Accident hazards will always exist; the way to avoid them is to work defensively.

Our job

Our job is to see that you get all the benefits of the Workmen's Compensation Act. This Act is financed by assessments on employers, and offers protection in the case of on-the-job accidents to more than two million men and women working in Ontario.

Hubert H. Humphrey (Dem.), was elected to the Senate from Minnesota. After serving as senator from 1948-64, he was vice-president under Lyndon B. Johnson and was defeated by President Nixon in the 1968 presidential election. He takes over the seat vacated by Eugene McCarthy.

But Democrats Rule Congress

NEW YORK (Reuter) — One of the few clear results of the most expensive and bombastic off-year election campaign in American history is a deep-running bitterness that will make it harder than ever for President Nixon to govern his divided nation.

Never before in modern times had a president followed such a hard line against his political opponents in an election in which the White House was not at stake—and never had a president enraged them as he did in the last few months.

The returns from Tuesday's election indicate that, while Nixon may have achieved the "ideological" Senate victory he was after, he faces even more trouble from a Democratic-controlled Congress ex-

The election results encouraged Democrats to believe that the president, who won the White House with only 43 per cent of the popular vote in 1968, would be highly vulnerable in 1972, especially if the inflationary economy does not improve.

The initial impression here was that the electorate was more interested in the status

Arms Cache Found

ST. GERMAIN DE KAMURASKA, Que. (CP) — Police and soldiers, acting on an anonymous tip found a large cache of weapons Tuesday in an abandoned mineral water plant on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River.

Police said the arsenal included about 20 revolvers, 30 rifles and shotguns, three machine-guns and a bazooka as well as quantities of ammunition.

As a safety measure, dynamite and detonators found at the scene were blown up on the spot by demolition experts.

Police said the arsenal was not necessarily a terrorist cache, but might have been assembled by a collector. In addition to modern weapons, it contained helmets and swords of the period of the American Revolution.

Residents of the area said the mineral water plant near St. Germain de Kamouraska, 180 miles northeast of Quebec City, had not been in production for about 15 years.

Hees Believes FLQ Infiltrated Police

HAMILTON (CP) — George Hees, Conservative member of Parliament for Prince Edward-Hastings, Tuesday termed "quite likely" the idea that the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec has infiltrated the Quebec Provincial Police.

Mr. Hees, former minister of trade and commerce in the Diefenbaker government, was replying to a question in an interview with McMaster University Radio on whether such infiltration was possible.

He later gave a lecture to a political science class at the university.

He said in the interview Canadian police forces had never "fully been tried before the turmoil in Quebec, and called for an investigation "when all this is over" to see where police lack in ability.

"What is particularly surprising is that the RCMP, who some Canadians have thought of as wondermen, have not been able to get their man," he said.

He also suggested that one of the prime reasons that the killers of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte and the kidnapers of British diplomat James Cross have not been apprehended is that they have a great number of supporters "glad to see somebody with the guts to do this dirty job."

Mr. Hees said he agreed with the government's implementation of the War Measures Act from the beginning. Even though it gave more power than was needed, he said, it gave the police the element of surprise needed to find Mr. Laporte and Mr. Cross.

Of the public order (temporary measures) Act introduced Monday as the first step in replacing the War Measures Act, he said that most members of the Opposition agree with the provisions.

Smuggling Of Pills Charged

CLEVELAND (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda faces a judge today on a charge of assaulting a policeman during a hassle over her arrest on a charge of pill smuggling.

Due next Monday is a preliminary hearing on a federal charge of fraudulently bringing stimulants and tranquilizers into the United States from Canada and assaulting Edward P. Matassini, a customs agent.

The lively scene at Hopkins International Airport began when Miss Fonda, 23-year-old wife of French film director Roger Vadim, was detained Tuesday after a flight from London. Ont., where she made a speech to a college group Monday night.

The pill charge was based on a "small quantity" of prescription Dexedrine. Compazine and Valium pills found in Miss Fonda's handbag, her lawyers said.

But Assistant U.S. Attorney Edward Molnar said 202 vials containing some 2,000 other capsules were found in a suitcase and were being analyzed.

Marooned Trio Saved Off Alaska

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (CP) — A routine 12-hour voyage became nine days of terror for three young Canadians rescued Tuesday from the rock-bound coast of Alaska's Prince of Wales Island.

"We are lucky to be alive," said Charles Taylor, 24, of Excelsior, and the owner of the 36-foot converted trawler that smashed on the shores of the northern island last Wednesday.

"All the credit for us being alive should go to the boat . . . It was really well-built."

With Taylor were two other men, Jean-Paul Yirka and his brother David, 21, from Kitchener, Ont.

The three left Prince Rupert Oct. 25 and started a 180-mile trip across Dixon Strait to Sandspit in the Queen Charlotte Island.

"I went out when I shouldn't have gone out," said Taylor. Storms hit the area during the opening hours of the trip, a week ago Sunday.

A sea-anchor was made from three used ties and 300 feet of rope and they drifted close to Meliakahila Island and anchored on the rocky ocean bottom Tuesday night.

But the anchor broke loose and they drifted another overnight and all day Wednesday, finally breaking up on rocks off windy point on Prince of Wales Island.

"We jumped ashore while she was breaking up," said the owner.

They managed to get a fire going and were spotted from the air Tuesday by John Brusanick, a pilot scavenging for logs.

Seal Stuffers Hard at Work

With Christmas just around the bend in Belleville and most parts of the world, Christmas seals are once again a focal point of work by Tuberculosis and Respiratory Diseases Associations in Canada.

And the Belleville area is no exception, as testified last night when several local people and Hastings County Tuberculosis and Respiratory Diseases Association members got together to begin mailing of this year's Christmas seals.

The scene at the home of Mrs. Margaret Hallam, was one of organized enthusiasm as members of the IH-C organization at Tuberculosis United Church joined in placing seals in the first third of 20,000 letters that will go out to people in the Belleville area.

Tonight, COIT members of College Hill United Church will take over insertion duties. Tomorrow night members of the student parliament at St. Mackenzie Bowell Public School will complete the letters.

Each letter contains a quantity of seals and a small leaflet describing some of the work of the Christmas Seal Association.

Spree Winners Plan Strategy

Two Belleville women will know what it's like to have a bargain hunter's dream come true — they are the winners of the three-minute shopping spree at Belleville Plaza tomorrow.

Miss Anne Marie Deryaw and Mrs. W. E. Bush will each make a short sprint around plaza supermarkets to collect as many groceries as they can within the time limit.

Miss Deryaw will do her shopping at Dominion store and Mrs. Bush at A and P.

Both intend to practise beforehand and have their plans an intensive spot of home work.

Rules allow each shopper to take only one of each item, she was told, so she is mapping out the shortest route today to find the shortest route between the most desirable items.

"I've never won anything before in my life," she noted. "I'll try to get what I can, and I'll be thankful for that."

Had she chosen to start at the Plaza when her ticket was drawn, Mrs. Bush would have won a 45-minute shopping spree. But she's not complaining.

"My nerves couldn't stand six minutes of it," she confessed.

The winner thinks she will start out at the cash register and make a bee-line for the near-by cigarette display, then head to the freezer section for frozen shrimp.

"But I'm not sure yet," she said. "I'm going to the store today to map out my route and time it."

Miss Deryaw, termed her win "perfect timing." She has just moved into an apartment and deposited her winning coupon last weekend when she visited the plaza to buy her first groceries.

She is less certain of her strategy, but determined about one thing.

"I intend to have a lot of fun in that three minutes," she declared.

Deer Hunt Off To Slow Start

The snows of yesteryear may now be cooling the 1970 success rate of Quinte district deer hunters.

Early reports from district hunting areas indicate a slow opening to the deer-hunting season which started Monday.

Some 3,023 hunters checked by game wardens in the first two days had shot 90 deer, the lands and forests department report-ed here today.

Initial reports on what is termed the success rate — the ratio of deer killed to hunters — are rarely dramatic, the department spokesman says.

This year, however, there may be extra factors contributing to a poorer-than-usual season.

A mild autumn could be what appears a lighter than population — caused by warm conditions in past winters.

Blockbuster snow has pro-ved the likelihood that the deer population in Hastings, the richest region in the Quinte area, says the lands and forests official.

Parking Authority To Consider Garage

The feasibility of a "high-rise" parking garage to help solve parking problems in downtown Belleville will again be considered by members of the city police commission at their December meeting.

At the meeting, authority members will discuss what to come up with a capital works program for the next five year period.

Authority chairman Douglas Dunmide said it was time to "talk big" in providing a better service to the Belleville public. He suggested a multi - storey parking garage could be a project in which the authority and council might be willing to become involved.

Local downtown merchants and the Sales and Lofl club had asked when the authority was going to do something to improve parking conditions, he said.

A parking garage had been considered by the parking authority some years ago but was dropped in favor of additional surface parking lots.

However, as it turned out, the rapid development of the Don Har property on Front Street worked out to almost the same cost per space as a parking garage.

The cost of a garage with a capacity of 400 cars was tentatively estimated at one-half million dollars.

Dunmide said this was too big a project for the authority to embark on alone.

But before any definite plans are made, the authority will have to get the approval of the city's downtown urban renewal study now being prepared by town planners Proctor - Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon.

The report is expected to indicate whether a parking garage is needed in downtown Belleville — and if so, where it would be best situated.

PE County Ag Rep Is Transferred

PICTON (Staff) — Ivan Bell, agriculture representative for the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food in the Prince Edward County during the past 1094 years will transfer to Ontario County in December.

Mr. Bell, who arrived here from Victoria County where he had worked as an-viate agriculture representative will be succeeded by Lorne Robinson, now an associate agriculture representative in Essex County, a native of Oxford County. Mr. Matheson graduated from the Ontario Agriculture College in 1965.

Mr. Bell will work from an office in Uxbridge following his transfer to Ontario County at the end of the year. He will succeed Ontario's first agriculture representative H. Lynn Fair.

While associated with Prince Edward farmers Mr. Bell worked toward expansion of the county's crops and revitalization of the berry industry. He admits that no great success has yet been marked in these efforts but feels that future results are promising.

Mr. Bell suggested that one of the most noticeable changes in Prince Edward agriculture since his arrival in the county is the steady decline in the number of dairy herds and a corning crop acreage. Grain crop acreage, however, has increased substantially in the past 10 years. New canning crops such as snap beans and lima beans have made their local debut.

Active with farm organizations and in service club work Mr. Bell has been a director of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce for several years. He is a member of the Picton Rotary Club and a director of the Prince Edward Agricultural Society.

His work with farm groups includes a past presidency of the Quinte Branch of the Ontario Institute of Professional Agrologists. Mr. Bell also has acted as program chairman for the Institute's annual convention this year at Trent University. He has been an associate director of the Soil and Crop Improvement Association, the Farm Safety Council and the Prince Edward Holstein Club.

Council Agrees Rock Festivals Should Pay Costs

CAMPBELLFORD (Special) — Campbellford town council thinks promoters of rock festivals, such as that held last summer at Mosport, should pay for such services as fire protection, police supervision and health services.

At their last meeting council passed a resolution to Hastings-Marmaville resolution asking that the promoters of festivals be required to pay for such services.

Permission was granted for the Campbellford Lions' Puppy tag day and for a Remembrance Day parade on Nov. 11 at 10.45 a.m. Also granted for a tag day on December 4 and 5 in support of the Minor Hockey Association.

The Chamber of Commerce was given a grant of $100 for the annual Santa Claus parade on Dec. 5. Councillors Carter and Westlake were named to the parade committee.

Mr. E. Hutchison will be asked to attend the next meeting of council to clarify the request of O. and R. Construction for Elmore Street to be given speed limits in Front Street to Burnbrae Road.

Mr. Hutchison had also asked for the municipality to supply water and sewer services to Elmore Street but council is not familiar with subdivision plans.

Campbellford Council Wants A Game Warden

CAMPBELLFORD (Special) — Members of Campbellford town council will receive their request to the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests for a game warden to be established in the area.

A 600-acre provincial park has been established in the Campbellford district and hunters from the Toronto area are ignoring warning signs with indiscriminate firing of guns creating a danger to residents.

One such accident occurred October 31 when three carloads of hunters arrived and created a problem for local and provincial police.

Council members feel the problem should be handled by a game warden, but under present circumstances warrants must be called in from Prescott, Lindsay or Peterborough which is considered too far away to be effective service.

In a resolution, council decided to ask Russell Rowe, MPP for Northumberland, to arrange another meeting with the Minister of Lands and Forests, to present facts and renew the request for a game warden.

A previous request for a warden resulted in no action being taken by the department.

Reeve Hepburn Heads Provincial County Body

PICTON (Staff) — Picton reeve Bernard Hepburn recently became president of the Ontario Association of Counties and Regions during an annual convention in Kitchener. Formerly first vice-president of ACRO, Mr. Hepburn was among 450 delegates and officials attending the three day meeting. Prince Edward delegates included reeves Bernard Hepburn, Picton; Harold Harrison, North Marysburg; George Vanson, Hallowell; George Foster, Sophiasburg; Douglas Marvin, Wellington; deputy reeves Fred Stafford, Hallowell; Roy Brooks, Sophiasburg and county clerk - treasurer, Thomas Walker.

Mr. Hepburn was chairman of the ACRO convention and Howard Zeigler acting as chairman for the resolutions committee for Waterloo County. Mr. Hepburn opened the convention which began last Monday with the introduction of ACRO president, Ralph Hunter, Alliston. A general business session was followed by a delegates' luncheon. In the evening delegates and their wives enjoyed a banquet Octoberfest held at the Concordian Club.

Elections supervised by Thomas Walker opened Tuesday's program. A nominating committee brought in its recommendations for officers and a president, first and second vice-presidents and five directors were elected to office. A banquet Tuesday evening was attended by 322 delegates, their wives, special guests and resource personnel. Mr. Hepburn commented that the convention was "very successful with every county and region in Ontario represented."

The following day delegates discussed governing business and closed the convention with a dinner during which Mr. Hepburn made his acceptance speech as ACRO's new president.

He later noted that ACRO is one of four municipal associations in the province of Ontario. The other three are the Ontario Municipal Association (O.M.A.), Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves (AOMR), and the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities (OARM). Each association has its special function with ACRO serving as the voice of county and regional governments.

As president of ACRO Mr. Hepburn will be a member of a liaison committee organized about a year ago and consisting of members from the four municipal organizations. Chairman of this liason committee originally suggested by ACRO is Kingston mayor Valory Swain. The liason committee meets periodically with Ontario cabinet ministers. The views of all counties for regional areas kept in mind as committee members work for a better understanding of each area's best interests.

Mr. Hepburn, describing ACRO's involvement in municipal affairs in the past, said: "We shall continue to speak fearlessly on behalf of the counties and regions of Ontario. The province has listened to us in the past, it will continue to do so."

Two in Hospital After Collision

A two-car crash on Highway 14 near the city of Belleville last night sent the drivers of both cars to hospital.

Ernest Lloyd Trumble, 29, 310 Dufferin Avenue, is under intensive care at Belleville General Hospital with chest and abdominal injuries. Frank Stevens, 40, R.R. 2 Stirling, is being treated for face and leg injuries.

Police said both cars were writefts after the collision at the intersection of Thurlow township's fourth concession.

Free treats and a visit with Santa will highlight the day for Prince Edward youngsters.

Mr. Kingma has urged all potential paraders to plan their entries now for Santa's Picton stopover.

NE Bramalea Plant Struck

About 2,500 workers went on strike at Northern Electric's Bramalea plant Tuesday night.

The walkout has no involvements for the company's Belleville plant.

The Bramalea employees, members of Local 531, United Electrical Workers, rejected a company offer of wage increases of seven per cent in the first year four per cent in the second and a cost-of-living bonus to begin in October.

The local is asking for a 15 per cent increase in an 18-month contract. Half the employees, on average, weekly paid $2.46 an hour minimum, and $2.82 maximum. Similar rates for men are $2.75 and $4.05.

Northern's Belleville plant does not have a UEW local. Earlier this year, the company settled contracts with the two workers' bargaining agencies — the United Automobile Workers and Northern Electric Employees Association.

Speaker Says Man Can Populate Himself Out of Existence

"Man has had a pretty good lasting; now it's someone else's turn."

This ultimate, and not too long deferred, disappearance of man is the pessimistic conclusion to be drawn from world overpopulation and consequent pollution problems, an entomologist told a Belleville group this week.

Dr. P. S. Corbet, director of the Canada Department of Agriculture's Research Institute here, threw this thought into a sober discussion of the interaction of man and his environment at St. Margaret's - on - the - Hill Church. He spoke to the Anglican Church Women on behalf of Zero Population Growth Inc., an organization dedicated to stabilizing the world's population.

Dr. Corbe suggested a second, more optimistic solution to the problem of over-population.

"We can level off, then decline the population, to allow future generations the sustainable use of available resources," he said.

The 55 per cent of man's 1.5-million-year history he lived like chimpanzees and gorillas of today, gathering and hunting his food, living mainly on a vegetable diet.

He had little affect on his environment. It regulated his activities, rather than the reverse.

Then, in 10,000 years, the species went from dependence to apparent dominance of its environment. With the rise of cities, and the opening of the industrial age, population sky-rocketed.

Two factors produced the population boom, from one billion people to 3.6 billion in 100 years.

Public health measures and medical advances removed the control formerly exerted over population by disease, and man increased his productivity to raise the amount of food available.

The population outburst was due to the temporary availability of fossil fuels — coal, natural gas and crude oil," said Dr. Corbet. "We increased the energy capacity of earth by use of these non-renewable resources. Today, more energy is fed into harvesting of crops than the crops yield — 30 per cent more in fossil agricultural operations for example."

But at the present rate of consumption, the fossil fuels hidden under the earth's crust will be exhausted within 30 to 100 years. And the world's population will have doubled, to seven billion, within 30 years.

Scientists estimate that, without utilization of fossil fuels, the earth can support about one billion people in a relatively static relationship with their environment.

Unless governments retain their ability to govern, and take action to change social and economic attitudes, the consequence in about three generations, will be chaos. And that, said Dr. Corbet, is where Zero Population Growth comes into the picture — forming a strong lobby to force governments to take action.

A catastrophe is not inevitable, at that point in history when an overpopulated earth ceases to yield enough food for its billions of people, Dr. Corbet said.

Rather, the forced decline in the world's human population will begin slowly — may perhaps be under way now.

"Disease would be the first population controlling factor — like the Black Death in Europe in the 14th and 17th centuries," he suggested.

"There will also be a wearing down of population due to the interrection of people to each other," he added. "We may be seeing some of this now in big cities with high population densities — in the callous attitude we display to the toll of automobile accidents and violence in the streets."

Less personal freedom and more and stricter legislation is another consequence of increased population density, the director noted.

"More people, more regulation," he said. "If family size in not regulated voluntarily, society must ultimately have the say on the number of children in a family."

Dr. Corbet gave links between that other types of energy would come to the rescue of the human race.

Nuclear power given mankind its best chance of buying time to reduce its population by voluntary means a fossil fuels run out. But thermal pollution of water and air from nuclear power reactors could eventually burn out the earth.

Solar energy could not be harnessed to provide enough power for the present world population. Light and heat from the sun can only be used effectively in a band around the middle of the earth between 37 degrees north latitude and 37 degrees south latitude.

The only effective approach is through organizations and lobbies to focus and channel strong feelings on the issue, said Dr. Corbet.

"But people are incapable spontaneously by the time they reach maturity it is too late," he said. "Religion, politics, democracy versus communism and plain emotion cloud their thinking."

And voluntary stabilization of the population is only a step in the right direction to be followed, not the ultimate solution.

"What can you do?" asked Mr. Smyth.

"I believe in the power of the individual if that individual is an activist," he answered. "Democracies are run by two or three per cent of the people who are the activists of their society."

The speaker urged members of his audience to become better informed on international issues and write to their members of parliament with their questions and their views.

"Your member of parliament may not know a thing about the issue you raise, but before he can answer your letter he will have to find out, and then he will be informed too," said Mr. Smyth.

"Write letters to the editors of newspapers and put your ideas before the public. Join international organizations such as the UN association and World Federalists.

"We have left international affairs to the experts in the past," he concluded. "I believe the individual can apply common sense to these situations and play an important part in the solution of world crisis."

Remembrance Day Arrangements Are Announced

Forty nine years ago, in November 1921, a group of veterans met together and, as a result the first poppy campaign was inaugurated in Canada, and within two years, spread right across the Dominion.

The poppy, that blood red flower that grew so profusely over the graves in the Canadian battlefields overseas, is a natural choice for the emblem of sacrifice made by those who have served, and while fighting as a part of the Canadian forces in all wars in which Canada has been engaged.

The poppies, wreaths, sprays and crosses are bought for remembrance and in tribute to those who did not return.

Originally the Poppy Fund was started to aid the dependents of men who had fallen but, as it grew, its scope was extended to disabled and destitute veterans and dependents. A large number of disabled veterans are employed under the supervision of DVA in the manufacture of all goods offered by the Poppy Fund.

On Friday and Saturday Nov. 6 and 7, volunteers, including Air, Navy and Army cadets will offer poppies for sale on the all. Wreaths can be ordered from Branch 59, RCL a nd from the Duke of Edinburgh's Own, ANAF and the purchase will be delivered as the shipments come in.

In the case of shops and stores these can be displayed in the show windows until they are picked up to be laid at the cenotaph on Nov. 11.

The Veterans of Belleville Committee have arranged the following program for Wed., Nov. 11, Remembrance Day.

Parade Marshal Sid Scott will call markers on the Armory floor at 10:15 a.m. Order of march.: Combined Co'or Party led by Color Sergeant George Chrichgow; Duke of Edinburgh Pipe Band, two sections of Quinte Veterans, AFB Pipe Band, AFB section, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment Cadet Corps, RCSC Cadet Brass Band, Sea Cadets, Air Cadets and wreath bearers.

The Salvation Army will supply the music for the service at the cenotaph. Five members of the Belleville Ministerial Association will conduct the service and wreaths will be laid under the supervision of the Parade Marshal.

There will be transportation from the Armory for veterans who wish to attend the service but are unable to march. Veterans are asked to wear berets and medals if possible.

In the evening a banquet and dance will be held in the Ben Bleecker Auditorium to which ladies are invited to come with their escorts. The banquet will start at 7 p.m. There will be a bar leaving the Market Square at 6.15 p.m. for veterans needing transportation. Tickets for the meal are on sale and can be obtained from Cdr. Tom Pyrah and his committee at the Legion Hall and from Archie Jordan and his committee in the ANAF Hall or may be purchased at the door of the auditorium the night of the banquet. The banquet sum of $3 per person for the meal, the banquet and dance. A well known past resident of Belleville, Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, will be the guest speaker for the evening.

Those who wish may attend the dance only for $2 a couple.

The hardest thing in the world to sell is ideas, Air Canada's public relations director Ross Smyth told Women's Sales and Ad Club members last night. With Mrs. Joy Bowerman of the club he inspected the flight bag his company donated for the dinner meeting.

WSA Speaker—

Individual Activists Should Exert Influence

If the world is to survive, its people must develop a new concept of world citizenship.

And attitudes must change more in the next 25 years than in all the past history of the world, members of the Belleville Women's Sales and Ad club were told last night.

Ross Smyth, Air Canada's director of public relations, told his audience they faced the hardest selling job of their careers — the marketing of ideas.

Think of yourselves as world citizens," he urged. The sense of belonging to the human community must dominate national pride."

Mr. Smyth defined four areas of action needing the attention and involvement of individuals — the arms race, the improvement of the environment, the relation of the population explosion and the closing of the gap between rich and poor countries.

"We are spending billions for bullets and pennies for peace," said. "Canada ranks eighth in the world in her expenditures on national defence and armaments. We spend $1.8 billion a year, or $80 per capita on arms, and 25 cents a year per capita as our contribution to the annual budget of the United Nations.

The oceans of the world are dying, the speaker said, and would soon be unable to generate the oxygen the world needs to breathe.

The oil tanker breaks up every week," said Mr. Smyth. "An international control body is needed, but countries hate to give up their authority to an ocean control committee.

And people of the western world must stop decrying the population explosion in underdeveloped countries and do something about their own skyrocketing birth rate.

"A baby born today in North America has more impact at times as much pollution during his lifetime than a baby born in India, and an underdeveloped country," he said.

The gap between the rich and poor countries is being emphasized by the communications explosion, Mr. Smyth said. "Canada and the press perpetuate the differences between peoples. And the have-nots may invade the territory of the haves to steal their wealth if steps are not taken soon.

Plant Pollution

Our Picton representative has told of Prince Edward tourist Operator Merland Pearsoll's favorable impressions of pulp mill operations at Glens Falls and Ticonderoga in New York state, but we are wondering if Miss Pearsoll got the full picture.

Miss Pearsoll returned with favorable observations of almost odorless mills, occasioning no pollution threats and employing hundreds of workers, and passed on this information to the Chamber of Commerce.

She told the chamber that the Glens Falls mill was "a lovely plant," and that foam at the water's edge was visible (according to a plant official) for only three miles.

Now it so happens that the July issue of the National Geographic Magazine made references to this Hudson River scene at Glens Falls and we touched on the subject July 20 in an editorial on pollution. We referred to the closing of a tourist operation at Madoc's Crystal Beach, to the St. Lawrence fishermen deprived of their livelihood by factory contamination and went on to quote from the Geographic article by editor-in-chief Melville Bell Grosvenor.

With a view of family and friends, we noted, Mr. Grosvenor cruised 2,500 miles of U.S. and Canadian waters in the ketch White Mist. It was a trip interrupted principally with historical aspects of the Hudson and St. Lawrence rivers, but an accompanying picture entitled "Fifth Afloat" illustrated the threat to the environment.

The caption read: "In a picture worth ten angry words, scum-coated wood ducklings paddle through Ford Edward Lock in pollution-clogged Champlain Canal."

In another scene, at nearby Glens Falls, a riverside plant is shown flushing the chemical waste of paper-making into the Hudson. "Pollution, the caption states, "left a greasy bathtub ring" around White Mist's hull — a stain she carried with her for much of the voyage."

It rather looks as if Miss Pearsoll was looking at the same scene as Geographic editor-in-chief Melville Bell Grosvenor, but with rose-tinted spectacles. Perhaps of course the Glens Falls plant has managed a spectacular clean-up in the meantime.

To the Point

When we listen to all those tiresome arguments about the War Measures Act being a case of over-reaction, overkill or whatever, and/or the equally tiresome, convoluted epistles in the same vein by university professors, we have further proof of the degree of subversion which this country has been undergoing for many years.

Now that is culminated in an open threat to the integrity of the nation by the FLQ it is good to see the Government at last taking firm counter measures. In this situation Premier Bourassa of Quebec continues to impress us with his air of articulate assurance. Mr. Bourassa seems to have the knack of saying his piece in language that is well-phrased and to the point.

As, for example, the other day, when he said it would have been "stupefying inaction" to depend on normal methods (of countering the threat in Quebec). "In times like these," he added, "we must bypass or eliminate traditional methods. We are fighting a new kind of terrorism — one where a small group can effect a kidnap. It is not easy to fight this form of action."

Mr. Bourassa makes sense, which is more than we can say for those who are concerned more for the FLQ and those who sympathize with their cause than for example with their victims, like the late Pierre Laporte, and James Cross.

Indian Summer

Balmy November — it just does not seem possible, but we are getting the kind of weather more appropriate to October and which was missing then, just as it was in September. Last year, we recall, there was snow by this time — even if it did go away to return later. Of course there has been all that rain, and we could have done with less. Anyway, may the current mild spell linger on a bit; yesterday, a fellow was cutting the Armories lawn. Imagine — November!

A Dim View of Queen's Park

Absenteeism, Inattention, Boredom—and A Few Fireworks

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I have just returned from a week in Toronto during which time I had the opportunity to watch the Ontario Legislature in action (or should I say at the Ontario Legislature's inaction).

At the three evening sessions I attended, each for the 30 minutes from 9 to 10:30 p.m., the attendance of members was very poor. On one evening, the debate had to be temporarily suspended until additional members could be found to make a quorum.

The government benches were particularly thin. During a speech on pay reform by Patrick Lawlor (NDP—Lakeshore), six members were evident on the government side of the House. Of these, two were engaged in an earnest conversation, three were occupied in another conversation, and the member for York-Forest Hill gave the impression of being in a state of suspended animation as, with his eyes closed and his head resting on the desk behind him, he gave no sign of life for 20 minutes or more. No wonder that NDP leader Stephen Lewis angrily rose to his feet in the middle of Mr. Lawlor's talk to criticize the government for its "disreputable conduct". At that time there were less than 20 government members in the House, as well as five Liberals and 11 NDP members. Mr. Lawlor then piloted in, calling the government members a "bunch of hankheads" and said that the public should be aware of the attendances in the Legislature for such an important debate as that on tax reform.

No doubt many members find the debate on matters as tax reform boring and uninteresting. Certainly, Mr. Lawlor's speech, on tax reform was not inspirational but tax reform is not an inspirational topic. The speaker was well prepared, and more members should have attended.

The Reid's speech on education, especially the problems faced by Indian children, was well prepared and thoroughly documented. Perhaps it was too well-documented since it tended to rely heavily on quotations. Mr. Reid has much to learn about presenting his material.

The two best speeches were those delivered by Stephen Lewis and Morton Shulman. NDP leader Lewis showed himself to be a forceful, dynamic and intelligent speaker in the most fairly high degree and the attention of the press gallery to it much higher degree. A dozen reporters listened attentively as music notes rapidly as he unveiled the first part of (what apparently will be a lengthy description of) the nature of organized crime in Ontario. The Provincial Police officers on duty in the public galleries seemed ill at ease as Dr. Shulman suggested that a police leak in Ontario had thwarted American Labor Minister Dalton Bales in task for his apparent lack of concern for Ontario workers, especially those who had lost their jobs when several plants had closed because of the competition from cheap foreign goods.

Mr. Shulman attracted the attention of the Legislature to a number of plans to nab an underworld group in Ontario who were about to smuggle narcotics into the USA. They drug shipment — to be concealed in Canada — was not made, Dr. Shulman does have the government and the press on their toes.

On the government side where the Premier, Attorney-General John Roberts and the Education Minister William Davis were present, William Davis' was the most coo speech. Premier Grossman and one or two others appeared as the most competent Conservative parliamentarians.

It would seem to me that the evening sessions are almost a total waste of time, at least as they operate at present. The situation could be improved either by cancelling these sessions and having additional committee meetings to which the press could be invited, or by insisting that more members attend the evening sessions and that the speeches be shorter, less repetitive, and more relevant.

Unless some action is taken to improve the quality of these sessions, the people of Ontario may as soon as later — be asked not only whether suggested during the debate — may as well scrap and remove the members.

So Many Dropouts—Yet So Much to Do

Brockville Recorder and Times

S. I. Hayakawa, the embattled president of San Francisco State university, was the first speaker to this idea. How members college president has spoken in favor of some kind of mandatory public service by youth. It is an idea that would prove useful in Canada too.

Dr. Phillip H. Shriver, president of Miami University (Ohio) proposes that all high school graduates put in two years of required public service. This service could be selected from a number of fields, including the "blue ark", pollution abatement, military, hospital or conservation.

A general "picking and cleaning up" of the entire nation.

"Many of our nation's youths are suffering from an acute case of boredom," says Shriver, "of frustrations over what seems to be their chances of a clear sense of what it is they were really cut out to do, what contributions they can make to the betterment of their fellow man.

"Bored and frustrated, they line our city parks, experiment in drugs, show reprehensible adult behavior, adopt new and weird life styles, and generally rebel against what they perceive to be the inherent deficiencies in the system.

"I see these young people on the one hand, and I see the thousand and one things that need to be done all around us . . . and am heartsick. For somehow we seem incapable of matching the talents and energies of the most activist generation we have ever had in this country with the myriad jobs that need to be done."

There is room for argument about the details of a period of public service for all youths, particularly the "mandatory" aspects of it, but few will dispute the accuracy of Shriver's depiction of the condition of so many of America's young people.

"Hold it, we can't film that! What if he's thinking subversive thoughts?"

Floating Dollar...Exports in Jeopardy?

Bankers Unhappy with Lower Interest Rate

By IRVING C. WEYNOT
Canadian Press Business Editor

Just about a year ago Finance Minister Benson was saying that interest rates were "too damn high."

At that time the best rate you could negotiate for a bank loan was 8½ per cent.

A bit more than a week ago Mr. Benson was saying that banks should reduce rates and he would talk to them about it.

The rate then was eight per cent.

Now the banks have cut their prime rate—the interest they charge on low-risk loans to their best customers—to 7½ per cent. You can also get a mortgage on a single-family dwelling for 10 per cent, at least one-half percent below the rate a year ago.

Does all this signal a return to lower interest rates generally? There is little doubt that it does.

But the bankers, who admit they aren't happy with the reduction—at least not at all times—say there are other factors which forced their hand and they don't especially like it.

They talk about the uncertainties of the floating Canadian dollar, the unsettling effect inflation of our export trade which they don't expect to last forever, and the political moves.

"Everyone likes to take a pot-shot at the big boys, and the banks are natural targets," they argue.

The problem for the bankers, is they see it. If knowing who to listen to.

They point to this sequence of events as the type of quandary they find confusing:

Governor Louis Rasminsky of the Bank of Canada made a speech in Regina a few weeks ago. Reading between the lines, the bankers concluded that the government thought the country's economic structure was fine for now.

Then Mr. Benson made his statement in the Commons saying he thought banks should reduce their rates.

The bankers countered by saying the interest rate on Canada Savings Bonds issued by the government was tending to push the interest rate up by attracting funds which otherwise might come to the banks as deposits.

Most bankers now are still contending that the time wasn't ripe for a rate reduction when the Toronto Dominion announced its rate. The others quickly followed suit.

President W. Earle McLaughlin of the Royal Bank said markets trends point toward lower interest rates generally but he felt "the reduction is low soon."

Off-the-record, most other bankers agreed the timing was off.

What does the latest prime-rate reduction to 7½ per cent from eight per cent mean, to borrowers and the banks?

To the borrower, it means that a $1,000 loan for a year now will cost $75 rather than $80 in interest.

To the banker, it means he gets $5 less on the loan.

But at the same time the banks have reduced the interest paid on savings and deposit accounts to 5½ per cent from six.

Under the old rates, the bank paid six per cent on deposits and charged eight on a loan for a profit margin of two per cent or $20 on $1,000.

Under the new rate, the banks pay 5½ per cent and charge 7½ per cent and wind up with the same $20 profit.

Donegal's Legendary Shoreline

Michael Stanley in the Globe and Mail

The littoral of Donegal offers breathtaking seascapes for the artist or photographer, and one is always conscious of the presence and force of wind and sea, even when inland. Copses of trees are rare except in sheltered spots although paradoxically it is the absence of forests that adds to the lure of this bracing region of Ireland.

Creators of travel posters and folders are fond of showing so-called swinging aspects of holiday destinations — bikini-clad girls, being spied by tanned youths, or la - ire confrontations over swivable sticks, the convolutions of modern dancers. You won't run into these kinds of things in Donegal, which is not the same as saying that it is square or old - fashioned. Not at all, unless you equate modernity with traffic jams, dark bars, over - amplified music and tainted air and water. Donegal is for the holidayer who believes that the natural state is superior to the synthetic one.

The favorite drink, as it is in all Ireland, is Guinness although Irish whiskey, gin, even Scotch are available everywhere. The traffic hazards are not other cars but startling donkeys, wandering cows and sheep and the odd gaggle of geese.

Some of the loveliest beaches I've ever seen are in Donegal—great long, wide white strands, often with no one at all on them.

My wife and I spent about four hours wandering along a fourmile-long beach on Sheep Haven Inlet near Rosapenna without seeing another living thing apart from a few seagulls. The air blowing in from the Atlantic, warmed by the Gulf Stream, was as fresh as it must have been on the day of Creation.

Other plants had moved in the night to new locations. At times, Mr. Lewis seemed almost too ruthless in his attack on the policies of Mr. Rules and the government.

Nor did the speaker for one minute stop to consider that the closing of some companies might be related to excessive wage demands by labor and/or the inadequate productivity level of some of our workers. Further experience in the Legislature may mellow Mr. Lewis. However, it would be very unfortunate if this mellowing caused any decline in his effective debating methods.

Mr. Shulman attracted the attention of the press gallery to a number of plans to nab an underworld group in Ontario who were about to smuggle narcotics into the USA. They drug shipment — to be concealed in Canada — was not made, Dr. Shulman does have the government and the press on their toes.

On the government side where the Premier, Attorney-General John Roberts and the Education Minister William Davis were present, William Davis' was the most coo speech. Premier Grossman and one or two others appeared as the most competent Conservative parliamentarians.

The situation could be improved either by cancelling these sessions and having additional committee meetings to which the press could be invited, or by insisting that more members attend the evening sessions and that the speeches be shorter, less repetitive, and more relevant.

Unless some action is taken to improve the quality of these sessions, the people of Ontario may as soon as later — be asked not only whether suggested during the debate — may as well scrap and remove the members.

Vitamin A Fights Cancer

Gennes Fraiures

BONN—Doctors from Bonn's Jankerche Klinik have turned up astonishing results in the past two years in treating cancer with vitamin A.

The clinic's Dr. Wolf gang Scheer and Munich biologist Dr. Karl Rauberger reported their findings at the Tenth International Cancer Congress in Houston, Texas.

Since 1968, the clinic has been testing a new type of vitamin A emulsion which has proven highly effective in the treatment of various kinds of breast and bronchial cancer, diseased respiratory and digestive organs and abdominal cancer in women.

Medical science has long eyed Vitamin A as a possible weapon in the fight against cancer, but until now higher doses of the vitamin have always been associated with serious side effects.

The side effects are now removed through use of the preparation developed at the Jankerche Clinic.

The medicine can be administered in large quantities over long periods of time. Its composition is similar to mother's milk and is fed into the blood over the lymph system.

Although clear successes have been observed in all 250 patients so far treated with the emulsion — most skin cancers and malignant tumors disappeared completely — German doctors are cautious. They say a five-year observation period is not sufficient to prove a definite cure.

Legislature Roundup

Figures Indicate Yearly Hydro Rate Increases Possible

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro may have to raise its rates to retail customers annually, figures released Tuesday indicate.

Assumptions which could apply equally to cost increases projected for each of the next seven years were heard at a legislature committee sitting. The assumptions defended rate increases effective next Jan. 1.

However, Hydro Chairman George Gathercole said that estimated figures beyond 1971 were "made on presumptions that may be unrealistic." They included a forecast that capital expenditure required to meet power demands will increase to $1.041 million in 1977 from $447 million in 1969.

Released to the legislature's committee on government commission, the figures said the total cost of producing power will rise to $1.3 billion in 1977 compared with $460 million last year.

Hydro's retail cost of power will soar to $108.24 per kilowatt in 1977 compared with $30.62 in 1969.

Mr. Gathercole told the committee Hydro will have to borrow $5.3 billion between 1971 and 1977 if it is to meet the increased power demands.

"The meeting was to hear Hydro arguments for the Jan. 1 increases when the rate for rural customers is to go up nine per cent. The case for municipal hydro commissions will rise by seven per cent and for 88 direct-customer industries by eight per cent.

In other business, Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton would not say whether the government wants to put through a bill revising collective bargaining for civil servants before the legislature prorogues.

A Liberal spokesman asked him to allow ample time for the Civil Service Association of Ontario and other interested parties to prepare their positions on the bill, given first reading Monday.

On other matters:

—Labor Minister Dalton Bales said there is "no way" compulsory arbitration would ever be introduced in a labor dispute by a proposed industrial inquiry commission. He said the commission is intended as a fact-finding body.

—Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said the provincial government has no emergency powers or plans to deal with a major oil spill on the Great Lakes and "it's only a matter or time before a catastrophe like this does occur."

—Bert Lawrence, minister of financial and commercial affairs, introduced legislation which would prohibit some activities of loan and trust corporations and place them under additional supervision.

—Trade and Development Minister Stanley Randall said the government is pursuing "a new line of thought" that could provide some financial help to Canadian book-publishing firms, who face takeover by foreign firms. He declined to elaborate.

"I knew I'm working too hard, and probably killing myself, but I'm making so much money I can afford it."

Political Use Of Hydro Fund Is Liberal Charge

TORONTO (CP) — A cabinet minister contradicted the chairman of Ontario Hydro Tuesday as provincial Liberals tried to prove the Progressive Conservative government was using Hydro funds for political purposes.

For two days the Liberals had been trying to determine why $65 million from Hydro's $180 million stabilization fund had been used to limit an increase in Hydro rates this year when the commission would not use the fund for that purpose in 1969.

Hydro rates are to go up effective Jan. 1 by seven per cent for municipal power commissions, by eight per cent for direct-industrial customers and by nine per cent for rural customers.

The Hydro fund is built up year by year according to its assets to stabilize the rates the provincial commission charges its customers and to meet emergency situations.

Hydro Chairman George Gathercole, at a morning meeting of the legislature's committee on government commission, was asked by Richard Smith, (L—Nipissing) if "you were under any direction from the government to use the stabilization fund this year?"

"None whatsoever," Mr. Gathercole replied.

"The Conservative government and Hydro are manipulating hydro rates for political purposes," Mr. Smith suggested.

Although Hydro is an independent commission, it replies to the legislature through George Kerr, minister of energy and resources management.

In the legislature later in the day, Mr. Kerr was asked whether he had suggested to Hydro "that they use the stabilized fund to reduce the impact of the increase in rates?"

"During the course of our discussions with Hydro . . . the whole aspect of the stabilization fund and its use to stabilize rates . . . was discussed, certainly" Mr. Kerr replied.

"Did the minister in fact indicate the extent to which the stabilization fund should be used?" asked Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Downsview).

"I'm the minister aware that the chairman of Hydro . . . indicated to the committee this morning that he had no instructions or that the government did no indicate to him that he should use the stabilization fund to lower the increase this year?" asked Mr. Smith.

"If the chairman used those words I am very surprised," Mr. Kerr said.

Fall Election Nixon Predicts

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Nixon of Ontario said Tuesday "there is gossip that Premier Robarts is stepping down" and "there will be a progressive Conservative leadership convention in February."

In an address to a Liberal women's club, Mr. Nixon predicted there will be an election next fall, with the Conservatives using a leadership campaign as pre-election publicity.

"I would say the answer to that was yes as well," Mr. Kerr replied.

$92,000 Payment 'Exorbitant'

TORONTO (CP) — Hugh Peacock (NDP—Windsor West) said Tuesday Ports of Call International Ltd. of Toronto was paid the "exorbitant amount" of $92,000 for providing managerial services for the Ontario pavilion restaurant at Expo 67 in Montreal.

Mr. Peacock told the Ontario legislature the firm received, on pro-arrangement with the province, six per cent of gross sales of the restaurant. Gross revenues came to $1,100,000, he said.

He said the province agreed to pay for all the costs of operating the restaurant, including payrolls, supplies, equipment and insurance coverage.

No effort was made in the agreement or on the part of the provincial auditor to put a ceiling or limit on the management fee. In addition, he expressed "skepticism" that Ports of Call submitted the lowest of six tenders.

"Quite obviously the corporation was not tendered but was awarded by the department to the proponent which asked the lowest fee of the three food service organizations which it approached."

Unlisted Drugs May Be Bought

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Thomas Wells said Tuesday it is possible that his department is buying from companies whose drugs are not listed under the government's Formet program.

He said his department calls tenders on the generic name of the drug, accepts the lowest tender and tests the actual batch of drugs purchased.

Worst Death

LIBREVILLE, Gabon (AP) — To combat a growing crime wave, this West African country has announced a new penalty called "civil death" which can be imposed only by the president when committing a death sentence. Under it the prisoner is officially declared dead, his property is divided and he is banished for life to a secret prison where he communicates with no one except his guards.

Friend Leaves Ring Around Bathtub

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter, Hilda, is 28 years old, not sexy and map-crazy like most of the girls she works with in the insurance office. She is quiet and has always been reserved. Two years ago Hilda began to go out with a fellow who works in the same office. "Go out" might not be the right phrase because they don't actually don't go anywhere. Elliott comes to our home for dinner every Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday. After dinner we play cards or watch TV. Then he goes upstairs and takes a bath.

At first when Hilda asked if Elliott could use Laundress number, he it was because the plumbing in his rooming house was out of order. Then it got so he liked taking a bath here because our tub was larger and we always had plenty of hot water.

I don't mind this, Ann, except for one thing. Elliott never cleans the tub after himself. I have placed the can of scouring powder where he can't possibly miss it, but he doesn't take the hint.

When my husband sees the ring around the tub he becomes very annoyed. Is it worth mentioning? I'd hate to ruin Hilda's romance because we think he'll marry her eventually. We'd like your advice. — UNDECIDED.

DEAR UN: Hilda should tell Elliott to clean the tub after himself. Apparently no one has ever taught him it is good manners to do so. If this "ruins the romance" Hilda should be grateful that she didn't waste any more soap and water on the guy. My guess is he only like she'll ever see is the one around the tub.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I would like to add a word to the letter from "Heartbroken" — the woman whose dear friend, a doctor's wife, died of cancer. She ignored a lump in her breast for several months and didn't mention it. Sixteen years ago I had a cancer of the cervix. The pap test was virtually unknown in those days. Millions of women died because they had no idea they had cancer — until it was too late.

After my operation the doctor told me he couldn't be sure all the diseased tissue had been permanently removed, and we'd have to wait five years before I could be declared "cured." Thank God I was allowed to live and raise my young family. It is impossible to describe those five years. The fear of death hung over me like a black cloud, yet I had to present a cheerful face to my family and friends. Every time I went to the doctor for a checkup, I prayed, "Dear God, don't let him find anything."

Now I can look back at those years as a bad dream. I was lucky. And because I was lucky I feel a responsibility to alert women everywhere to the importance of an annual checkup. The pap test takes only a minute and it could mean the difference between life and death. — COUNTING MY BLESSINGS.

DEAR COUNTING: Breast cancer is the Number One killer of women in the United States. Cancer of the cervix is second. The pap test is painless, quick and inexpensive. Every woman should have a pap test once a year. The chances for complete cure of cervical cancer, if detected early, are excellent. I urge every female who reads this to make an appointment for an examination now if it has been over a year since she was last checked by her gynecologist.

Late Hours Can Sometimes Ruin One's Reputation

By DORIS CLARK

Reputations can be made or lost at the kind of hours our young people keep. Not that the time of night is always connected with questionable behavior. It isn't.

Some groups may be up until all hours singing around a piano and dancing, having a whale of a time. And others who are in before midnight, may bring home with them some deep feelings of shame and anxiety because of what has gone on.

But keeping reasonable hours is pretty important. Health suffers with lack of sleep. Teachers find students irritable and stupid after too many late nights. Neighbors have a right to complain about noisy goodbyes in the middle of the night.

Teen counsellors note that it is often the young person who is not having a good time who tries to prolong the evening, in a desperate attempt to make it into a good time.

Just the sort of thing that can give the whole crowd a black eye!

Dear Doris: Where I board they have a son 21, who I am quite attracted to and I don't really know why because he makes me so mad sometimes. A couple of years ago, no one else was in the house but him and me. He had had a drink and was feeling pretty good and he came upstairs to my bedroom and woke me up.

I was scared because ordinarily he's quite strong, let alone when he's half crocked. Anyway you can guess what he tried to do. I got real mad. He finally asked me if I was a virgin and I told him yes and I intended to stay so until I got married. Then he told me I was a snob and left.

Now I don't know what to do. I'm not quite silly enough to believe that I am in love with him but the funny part of the whole thing is I still like him. I keep falling for him more all the time until I almost don't trust myself any more. — Doubtful.

Dear Doubtful: Look for a new boarding place. If you can't find one, keep your door locked. If there is no lock on it get one.

Looking at it from all sides, this is your only stand. If there is a chance of serious interest in this man, he will like you less if you give in to him. If there is no serious interest, it is doubly important for you to put up a strong barrier in your own defence.

Pleasant conversation when you see him, perhaps; but admission to your bedroom — never!

Dear Doris: I have a bachelor friend who is moving into an apartment. I would like to give him a new home gift.

It would have to be something that requires not too much looking after, meaning very good but simple.

Two things have entered my mind: One is a bottle of champagne, the other is a table lighter.

Do you think either of these would be suitable? I am open to more suggestions. — Bachelor Girl.

Dear Girl: Champagne suggests a happy celebration — if he drinks. A table lighter will do nicely — if he smokes. Personally I dread the thought of encouraging anybody in the lung - smudging habit.

When a fellow takes up housekeeping he is likely to be pretty happy about the whole thing, and your gift wishes him happy times. You are on the right track if you keep it impersonal and not so expensive as to embarrass him.

Other ideas? A paychedelic sofa cushion; an electric can opener; a food gift of assorted Norwegian sardines, or caviar, cheeses, pate de foies gras. He can serve such things on crackers at his next party.

TORONTO (CP) — The person who dominates a young child's time by teaching him specific skills is "almost sinful," a psychologist told a seminar on pre-school children at the Ontario College of Education. Dr. Robert Goode, a physical education lecturer at the college and the University of Toronto's physiology department, advised parents to expose pre-schoolers to all skills, not to concentrate on a few.

Rooms Given By Age

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — Accommodation for out-of-town students attending school in Whitehorse this fall has been arranged by age rather than by religious affiliation as in past years.

Commissioner James Smith said the territorial policy is to keep students in their home settlements wherever possible and that the Yukon government has increased school construction during the last few years to make the policy possible.

Residential areas, such as the two large dormitories here, will be reduced, but at present they are needed, he said.

Prison for Women Said No Answer to Crime

OTTAWA (CP) — A woman sociologist and psychologist who has travelled widely, visiting about 200 prisons on one trip in 80 countries, feels increasingly that prisons, especially for women, are no answer to crime.

Dr. Freda Adler, even more than men, women depend . . . on person-to-person response — joys, sorrows and anxieties," said Mrs. John Nevard, who has been involved in corrections for more than 20 years.

"They must relate to someone as individuals. In short they are women, a fact that should never be lost sight of."

Mrs. Nickels, who formerly worked in British prisons and has also been a visiting psychotherapist at the Kingston Prison for Women, now lives in Ottawa with her husband, director of the social education and chaplaincy services for the federal penitentiary service.

During her research into changing prison philosophy, she has found that concern is usually felt for the plight of male prisoners.

But she is constantly amazed at the lack of understanding of the very acute problem of the women prisoner, the mother abruptly parted from her young children, removed suddenly from her home and worrying about her husband trying to manage and bring up the children without her."

"Often the child must go into official care as the husband may also be serving a prison sentence. I find signs in one small English women's prison 10 per cent of the women had husbands also serving sentences.

"Of course two men mix their home and loved ones too, but to women who are essentially creatures of emotion the abrupt loss of home and children may bring about radical changes in personality and behavior which will need very fine-tuned understanding if they are ever to successfully join prisoners in the institution and gradually treat members of society when they go out."

Mrs. Nickels said some countries seem more aware of this need than others. Sweden and Switzerland, for example, were constantly updating their behavioral and occupational therapy programs.

She also thinks that the women prisoner is changing. The hardened, belligerent prisoner, anxious to co-operate with the authorities, was on her way out.

"In her place today there seems to be a softer, more indulged, work-shy, pill-dependent unco-operative type. Many are apathetic, withdrawn, not fit for work nor but also from entertainment, recreation, sharing of any sort.

"They are mostly lacking in inner resources. Education seems to make them unconscious of religion, which in the old days was often something of a refuge from despair and a comfort of sorts.

"Many have got into crime because, although passably intelligent, they have been defeated in the struggle to organize their lives by overwhelming economic responsibilities, coupled with emotional immaturity. Crime, to the bewildered and weak, often seems a way of escape.

"Many of these women are not basically bad, just inadequate. They are bad managers rather than bad women.

"The older ones turn to alcohol and theft sometimes leading to violence; the younger to prostitution, hustling and drugs. To these latter venereal disease and prison are both regarded as occupational hazards."

Enployed Women on Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of employed women has shot up in the last decade although their percentage in professional and technical jobs and managerial posts has remained almost constant, a report on women in the 1969 labor force shows.

The report, a project of the women's bureau of the federal manpower department, says there were 2.5 million employed women in 1969, an increase of one million or 66 per cent over the start of the decade. Nearly half the increase occurred between 1964 and 1969, indicating a steady trend.

But the report says there were increases of only a few tenths of one per cent in the women listed in managerial and professional categories.

"The female percentage increase was in sharp contrast with an increase of 21 per cent in the number of men employed and an increase of 33 per cent in the total numbers of employed persons in Canada over the same 10-year period.

The report shows that an increase in the proportion of women employed in industries to 23 per cent in 1969 from 29 per cent in 1964, was distributed fairly evenly in those industries where most women workers are found.

These include manufacturing, transportation, communication and other utilities; trade; finance, insurance and real estate; community, business and personal service; and public administration.

Designer Receives Assignment

ASSIGNMENT JAPAN — Designer Pat McDonagh of Toronto (left) is facing a challenging assignment — designing clothes for the Japanese market. TORONTO (CP) — Fashion designer Pat McDonagh, Manchester-born but a confirmed Canadian after five years in Toronto, is facing the most challenging assignment of her career—the Japanese market.

A Tokyo firm has commissioned her to design for them — which means grading sizes down to Japanese figures and altering her rather nonconformist look to suit more-conservative Japanese women.

The Tokyo group, which owns 16 stores, three knitting mills and a fabric factory, chose Pat over a number of New York and other Canadian designers.

Pat didn't originally plan on coming to Canada when she pursued her career in Manchester and London. But when her husband David Main, took a television position in Toronto she decided to come along because "we couldn't have a divided family."

So Pat, with daughter Louisa, now 9, son Dominic, now 7, and a large mongrel dog named George arrived to make their home in Toronto. The Mains now have another daughter, Kate, aged 20 months.

Pat didn't start out to be a designer. After graduation from Manchester University, she went to the Sorbonne in Paris on a scholarship to study romance languages. But at one point her scholarship money was late arriving and she needed money.

Happily for her future, she decided modelling might provide quick cash. She had no experience but wandered in to the famous Maggy Rouff salon and was taken on, perhaps because she is dark and vivacious and could pass as French.

Later she modelled for Claude Riviere and, by another quirk of fate, the London firm of Soolgrove arranged for a Riviere promotion in England.

Pat was booked as one of the "French" models. "I felt pretty silly being introduced on the runway in Manchester as Colette—with my family and friends out there in the audience."

She remained in England and for six months worked for an agency, modelling and teaching other would be models. Then in 1960 she opened her first shop, in Manchester, doing some of the designs herself. Later she and fabric designer Veronica Marsh opened a shop in London.

In the meantime she'd been doing some commercial TV and life seemed settled. Then David was offered the TV position in Toronto, where he now writes and directs films and commercials.

Once Pat and the family were settled here, she decided to continue with her design work and opened a boutique on fashionable Bloor Street. In a tongue-in-cheek gesture she called it The Establishment, since the clothes were definitely anything but conservative. Then she sold the boutique and started a small factory making what she called Re-Establishment clothes.

It grew too rapidly. She was piled with orders from New York and Toronto stores, and then one of the big houses to whom she had shipped a large order went broke. The Mains just hadn't the money to continue and also expand. Then a large firm in Toronto backed her and her Re-Establishment label again is an important fashion factor.

The Mains have bought a big old double house—once the home of Governor-General Roland Michener—in central Toronto. They are antique bugs and their finds range from bound copies of Illustrated London News for 1851 to the copper top of a London gas street light.

The long, narrow living room has two huge Victorian sofas, once horsehair but now velvet and fabric-covered. There are also two chaise longues, one in pink and the other in floral tapestry.

The basement panelled dining-room combines a 17th century Welsh cottage table with four aristocratic high- and narrow-backed Edwardian chairs, pink velvet seats and backs.

A cook who has the determination to bake or broil her salmon steaks perfectly is rare indeed but if he or she does she can outdo the professionals. Salmon steaks are so commonly overcooked that some folks think they should be. Not so. Salmon should be cooked only until it is opaque and should still retain its luscious moisture.

Marinating Salmon Steaks

By MARR MOORE

Because the six salmon steaks I was serving were to be marinated before baking I put them directly onto a Corningware platter. This could go into the oven and onto the dining room table resting on its cradle of course.

If you do not have one of these all-purpose platters you will have to transfer the cooked steaks to your china or silver platter, when baked.

MARINATED SALMON STEAKS (serves 6)

6 fresh or fresh frozen salmon steaks (approximately ¾" thick)
1-3 cup lemon juice (could be bottled)
1-3 cup genuine mayonnaise
1 tbsp. freeze-dried chives (or finely chopped green onion)
¼ tsp. tarragon or oregano
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper

Arrange salmon steaks in a single layer on a shallow pan or buttered Corningware platter. In a small bowl mix together all remaining ingredients and spoon half over top surfaces and let stand ½ to 1 hr. Then turn salmon steaks over and spread remaining half of marinade over. Let stand another ½-1 hr. If you have time. Bake at centre of oven at 400 deg. F.ahr. for about 12 min. Then examine largest one by separating flesh from bone with point of knife to see if it has lost its watery appearance and is opaque. If so it is done. Raise pan to with in 6" of preheated broiler until bubbling and speckled with brown dots — about 1 min. Serve at once, spooning some pan juice over each serving.

NOTES: 1) If frozen salmon steaks are used you can start them frozen but they should have the full 1 hr. marinating on each side. They quickly thaw to room temperature. 2) These were such a treat I was glad I had served them to some gourmet guests who arrived at the last minute. 3) Do not overcook your beautiful salmon steaks.

Father: "I don't know what you're thinking about. After getting all those honors in science and math in high school, you say you want a career in journalism. You would be better off to stick to a definite goal."

Father: "Many high school and even college students change their minds about their future careers. You have plenty of time to make up your mind. You can take some journalism courses in college and find out more about the field."

Part of a youngster's maturing process is discovering new fields and new abilities in himself. If he settles on a goal early, that's fine; if he doesn't, don't consider it a handicap.

Labor Convention to Consider Motion Endorsing Anti-terrorist Legislation

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Delegates to the Ontario Federation of Labor convention were expected to consider a resolution today supporting the federal government's new anti-terrorist legislation.

Joe Morris, executive vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, told the convention Tuesday the new legislation "is not perfect by any means" but is an improvement over the War Measures Act.

A resolution opposing the government's invocation of the act was withdrawn Tuesday morning when the new legislation was announced.

Mr. Morris said then he would like to see provision "for some very senior members of the judiciary to have continuing supervision of the application" of the new act in order to curb any excessive use of police powers under it.

He said Prime Minister Trudeau has not yet justified implementation of the War Measures Act although there may be sound security reasons to prevent him from doing so.

Also Tuesday, delegates voted unanimously to support the United Auto Workers strike against General Motors of Canada Ltd.

The federation agreed to circulate an appeal among its 600,000 trade unionists requesting individual unions, locals and members to contribute to the UAW fund.

The vote came after a UAW executive revealed that the union's $120 million strike fund will be exhausted by the end of the month.

Herb Kelly, assistant Canadian director of the UAW, said negotiators for the union will "do most an end to the strike.

"We'll stay out until we win," He said virtually all local issues have been settled since 60,000 workers in Canada and the United States went on strike Sept. 15 but many key issues no progress on the question of wages and fringe benefits.

The federation re-elected all 14 members of its executive, soundly defeating bids by three challengers for vice-presidential posts.

President David Archer, 58, and secretary-treasurer Terry Meagher, 46, have had their terms of office increased to two years from one by a resolution approved Monday. They are paid $18,000 and $16,000 a year, respectively. Vice-presidents are not paid.

Delegates also unanimously approved a resolution asking the Ontario government to redraft amendments to the Labor Realations Act.

Bill 167, now before the legislature, has been opposed by various labor organizations for collective bargaining with building trades unions and would increase the membership-percentage requirements for automaticanion certification.

The resolution says the bill is designed to destroy construction unions by preventing them from signing contracts with individual companies.

Amid Half Ton of Garbage, Speakers Denounce Pollution

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Labor solemnly pronounced pollution a global problem Tuesday—from a convention floor suffocating in cigarette smoke and littered with the garbage dropped by 1,200 delegates and visitors.

In an 11-point statement on environmental problems, the federation said that "accumulations of waste, phosphates and combustion smog all have an increasingly detrimental effect on our environment."

By the time the OFL got around to discussing pollution late Tuesday afternoon, tables were covered with coffee cups made of non-degradable plastic, hundreds of soda pop tins and overflowing ashtrays. Sheets of printed literature thrown away wafted across the floor every time convention officials opened the doors to ease the internal smog problem.

"One of the things this resolution says we should do is mobilize public opinion against the dangers of pollution," said a disgruntled delegate from the London area.

"We should spend more time mobilizing ourselves. Look at this place. We've turned it into a dump and we've only been in here eight hours."

A maintenance man for the Skylon Tower, where the convention is being held, estimated the trade-union pollution fighters would leave behind about half a ton of garbage by the time sessions ended today.

Book Publishers May Get Help To Prevent Foreign Takeovers

TORONTO (CP) — Some hope was held out Tuesday that help would be available in the future for Canadian book-publishing firms who face takeover by foreign firms.

Trade and Development Minister Stanley Randall told the Ontario legislature the government is pursuing "a new line of thought" that could provide some financial help to these Canadian enterprises. However, he declined to elaborate, in responding to questions from NDP Leader Stephen Lewis.

Mr. Lewis had asked whether the government was considering taking over Ryerson Press Ltd. of Toronto, sold Monday to U.S. interests, either through injunction or purchase. Mr. Randall said this step was not being considered.

In a later exchange, Education Minister William Davis rejected a suggestion from Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) that a Crown corporation be created to provide schools with Canadian textbooks and materials.

Takeovers Attacked

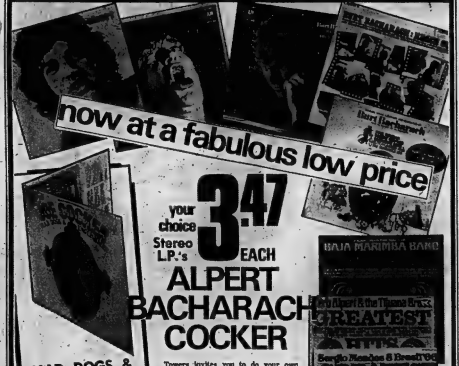
OTTAWA (CP)— Opposition members went after the government on U.S. takeovers of Canadian companies in the Commons Tuesday but got little satisfaction.

Prime Minister Trudeau squelched James A. McGrath (PC—St. John's East) when he asked whether the government would put publishing companies under the same Canadian ownership requirements as broadcasting companies and banks.

Mr. Trudeau said broadcasting and banks come under federal jurisdiction. Publishing companies did not.

Women Released

BRAMPTON (CP) — Two Jordan women from Kenora, Ont., who have been in reformatory here since August serving sentences for breaking windows during a drinking spree, were released Tuesday on personal bail to appeal their sentences.



Doris Henry, 23, and Agnes Land, 29, were met upon release by their husbands.

Both women pleaded guilty and were sentenced by Judge J. V. Fregeau.

Permission to appeal their cases was granted by the Ontario Court of Appeal last week after the cases were brought to the attention of the Ontario legislature.

QUESTION: We are motoring to Las Vegas, Nevada this winter and would like to know the prices of motels and meals while we are there also a good route to go.

ANSWER: Las Vegas is a spectacular, fantastic, incredible place and the most important, unexpected fact is that dollar for dollar Las Vegas is one of the best vacation buys in the United States. Neon turns the city into a glowing landscape and its lights parallels against the dark desert sky.

Gambling is the name of the game here. The lavish hotels and motels are inexpensive, and have superb entertainment and you don't have to keep spending at the tables. You can enjoy the resort life in Las Vegas and not gamble, but the temptations are there.

The lobby of your hotel, instead of having wall-to-wall carpeting and potted palms, will have, roulette, blackjack, and dice tables, surrounded by endless rows of slot machines meant to tempt the extra cash out of your pockets.

The hotels will be lavish, the rooms large and the prices comparatively inexpensive. The average hotel room will cost about $20 double occupancy. But it's the entertainment that will really dazzle you. All the large hotels have cocktail lounges with their small almost continuous shows that cost only the price of a drink.

There they are by the big rooms where you can see the superstars like Barbra Streisand, Elvis Presley, Dean Martin, Glen Campbell and other notables for only the price of a dinner. This comes to about $12 a person and covers a drink, dinner, tips and the show.

Last year Las Vegas had about 15 million visitors who did a bit of gambling, enjoyed the sun around the Olympic - size pools, the saunas, the good food and relatively inexpensive prices. They liked the clean desert air and they went sightseeing at Hoover Dam and fished and boated at Lake Mead.

A good first route down is as follows — Take 401 to Detroit, Michigan, interstate 75 to Dayton, Ohio, interstate 70 to St. Louis, Missouri, and route 66 to Kingman, Arizona, 93 north to Las Vegas. Distance, 2,531 miles from Belleville.

Gasbarrini Denies Knowing Union Chief

TORONTO (CP) — Contractor Daniel G. Gasbarrini of Barlington, Ont., said Tuesday he has never met Bruno Zanini, organizer for the Canadian Union of Construction Workers, or Charles Irvine, as international vice-president of the Plasterers' Union.

Mr. Gasbarrini was replying in an interview to a charge made in the Ontario legislature last Tuesday by Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member for Toronto-High Park.

Dr. Shulman said then that a Daniel Gasbarrini was present at a meeting in the 306 Club in Toronto last April 17 at which Mr. Zanini and Mr. Irvine met "with representatives of the Mafia."

Mothers Return to Housework After Doing School Cleaning

EDMONTON (CP) — Hundreds of mothers return to their housework today after two days of cleaning school floors and toilets and helping out in the boiler rooms while 1,100 caretakers and maintenance workers at Edmonton's public schools were on strike.

The strike, which started Oct. 22, ended Tuesday and all public schools were to open today. Forty-one of them had been operating Tuesday using volunteers, mainly mothers of school children, to replace the strikers. The volunteers were paid $3 an hour.

The negotiators for the school board and the Canadian Union of Public Employees—bargaining agents for the 1,100 strikers —agreed to a suggestion by the board of industrial relations that the contract dispute be placed before a single arbitrator.

The arbitrator, still to be named by the board of industrial relations, is to make an award which will be binding on both parties.

The union members endorsed the action of their negotiating committee at a meeting Tuesday.

Some 77,000 students had six days of enforced holidays before 36 of the 159 public schools were re-opened with volunteers on Monday. An additional 21 were re-opened Tuesday.

Before the school board withdrew its final offer, the sides were within three per cent of each other on wage offers in a two-year package deal.

The board had offered the 260 male caretakers average increases of $994, in a contract expiring on Dec. 31, 1971, bringing average annual earnings to $9,998.

The 300 maintenance workers make about $4 an hour. Fringe benefits, not wages, were the main issues in their contract dispute.

Both sides had agreed that the 300 women caretakers should receive two-stage, retroactive increases bringing their wages to $2 an hour. They earned $1.85 under the previous contract.

UN Expected to Issue Call To Extend Mideast Truce

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — The General Assembly is expected to issue a call today for a 90-day extension of the Middle East ceasefire which expires at midnight Thursday night.

But member states still disagree on how deeply the assembly should involve itself in the search for a diplomatic solution to the Arab-Israeli crisis.

Lengthy procedural manoeuvres reflecting the general lack of agreement were expected to delay proceedings when three resolutions embodying divergent views on the Middle East conflict are put to the vote today.

A group of 20 Latin American countries, which Tuesday introduced a middle-of-the-road resolution, could make a bid to obtain priority vote on their document, thus shutting the door on possible adoption of a rival Afro-Asian draft considered one-sided and hostile by Israel.

The Latin American resolution is generally interpreted as an attempt at compromise between the Afro-Asian point of view and another draft tabled by the U.S. and Liberia.

We May Be Eating Too Much Lead and Cadmium

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Science Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — North Americans may be consuming lead and cadmium in their diets at levels equal to or above those acceptable by health authorities, reliable sources said Tuesday.

As a result of this and also of indications of mercury contamination, the federal food and drug directorate has launched a special monitoring program.

Dr. R. A. Chapman, director-general of the directorate, said in an interview monitoring will cover all the heavy metals—lead, cadmium, arsenic, selenium, zinc, tin and nickel—plus pesticides, chemical compounds like aflatoxin which is produced by a soil mould, and polychlorinated biphenyls, known as PCBs.

PCBs are stable chemicals long used in paints, resins and plasters and as heat-exchange fluids.

Among the metals, lead, cadmium and mercury pose the greatest potential threat to health.

Federal authorities estimate the probable intake of lead through foods in North America is just about at the limit of acceptability—350 micrograms per person per day—established by the World Heath Organization. They consider that most of the lead found in foods may come from fallout from leaded gasolines.

Scientists estimate the daily intake of cadmium may be greater than the acceptable 175 micrograms per person. Research on cadmium toxicology is a priority item for federal laboratories.

Mercury in the food supply has been under investigation for some time. Action has included bans on commercial fishing in some areas and warnings to sport fishermen not to eat their catch.

The other metals—arsenic, selenium, zinc, tin and nickel—appear to pose no immediate threat.

Radio-Canada Suspends French Broadcaster

MONTREAL (CP) — Radio-Canada, the French-language network of the CBC, has suspended Bourdon for criticizing the CBC. Bourdon for criticizing the CBC in a teach-in organized last week by the Quebec Committee for the Defence of Civil Liberties.

His suspension was made public Tuesday by the Syndicat des Journalistes de Radio-Canada (CNTU), the unin representing CBC news staff in Quebec province.

The union demanded a "public and impartial" inquiry on the Bourdon case.

News director Pierre Charbonneau, in a letter to Mr. Bourdon Tuesday, said he was being suspended for the following reasons:

—Malicious criticism of management of the CBC's French-language news services and research which created "a climate of insubordination and disorder" in the newsroom.

—Abusive and incorrect use of confidential and privileged information obtained through his position as a CBC employee.

—Participation in a teach-in which Mr. Charbonneau said placed him in a position incompatible with his functions as a journalist. His presence there compromised the credibility and impartiality which was supplied to be the basis of reporting.

No Sinister Intent In Demand for Tapes

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Juneau, chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, said Tuesday night there is no sinister intent in the commission's request for radio and TV tapes of coverage of Quebec terrorism and kidnappings.

Mr. Juneau said in an interview he had asked 30 radio and TV stations across Canada to submit tapes or transcripts of their coverage of the Quebec kidnappings of British envoy James (Jasper) Cross and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte "as a matter of historical record."

Mr. Juneau said regulations under the Broadcasting Act require tapes of broadcasts to be held 30 days. He added it was necessary to request the tapes Monday before they were thrown out or destroyed.

"It's just a question of history: anyone can get newspapers that are 25 years old, but usually there's no way to get radio or TV records."

Mr. Juneau said he was aware of "serious grievances expressed publicly" about the way radio and TV covered the kidnappings. "But if it's really serious, if the grievances are really serious, then it's a matter for the courts."

If the CRTC had any intention to intervene in coverage of the kidnappings, Mr. Juneau said, the commission would have requested that the tapes be submitted within 48 hours.

Instead, the commission had given the radio and TV stations, mainly in Ontario and Quebec, 14 days to submit their tapes or transcripts.

Mr. Juneau said he would have preferred to wait until the terrorism crisis had passed before requesting the tapes. But because of the 30-day limit, it was essential to act now.

Breaking Point Near

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A Swedish social scientist has warned the United States is "not far from the breaking point" in the widening gap between the rich and the poor.

Dr. Gunnar Myrdal, an economist and sociologist at the University of Stockholm, called on blacks to unite with other minorities to solve what he termed a "poor people problem."

Nixon

Spiro T. Agnew hammered home over and over during the campaign.

The failure of the Republicans to win control of the upper house was good news for potential Democratic presidential candidates who won Senate seats with impressive majorities.

Although some big-name Democrats were victims of the president's onslaught, others will wield considerable influence in the Senate as they prepare for their search to the White House in two years' time.

The Democratic hopefuls include former vice-president Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, who came back to win a Senate seat after two years in the political wilderness following his defeat by Nixon in the 1968 election, and Senator Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, viewed as the leading contender for the party's presidential nomination in 1972. Muskie won re - election with ease.

Senator Edward M. Kennedy, who says he won't seek the 1972 Democratic nomination, is nevertheless a likely dark candidate following a blockbuster re-election victory in Massachusetts.

Although far short of the 74.3 per cent he got in 1964, his 69-plus per cent of Tuesday's vote seemed to prove that last year's Mary Jo Kopechne tragedy has been forgotten or forgiven in Massachusetts.

These three men will constitute a powerful force on Capitol Hill, leading some observers to wonder just how effective the "Nixon-look" Senate will be.

Republican leaders felt that, even if they failed to take numerical control of the Senate by knocking off two or three so-called "radical-liberals" and forging an alliance with disenchanted Democratic conservatives they could swing the balance of Senate power in Nixon's favor.

Nixon risked his personal prestige in a massive effort to break Democratic control of the Senate, and the outlook is for continued frustration for the Republican White House despite the strengthening of the conservative voice.

One major success the president chalked up was the defeat of liberal Senator Albert Gore of Tennessee, where the Republicans' southern strategy for the presidential election in 1972 met its first practical test.

Gore's defeat encouraged the Republicans to believe they could forge a coalition with southern Democrats who normally would support Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.

But the southern strategy failed elsewhere in the South, where Nixon's strenuous campaign failed to produce results.

He made an all-out effort on behalf of senatorial candidates William Cramer in Florida and George Bush in Texas, but both went down to defeat.

Republican losses in the governorship races in the south and elsewhere also put the president's opponents in a better position for 1972, with Democrats tightening their grip on patronage and influence important in a presidential election year.

Poverty Problem of Power as Well as Wealth

OTTAWA (CP) — Poverty is fundamentally a problem of inequality in the distribution of both wealth and power, the Manitoba government told the Senate committee today in a brief.

It said eradication of poverty thus required simultaneous action to redistribute wealth and power.

"Such action will involve changes in the existing social order—in those institutions and mechanisms which distribute wealth and power in ways that maintain and reinforce the vast inequalities of today," the brief said.

"Changes in financial assistance and social services are necessary, but alone will have limited effects in eliminating poverty."

The brief said poverty cannot be erased by any one government department but must involve all departments. Poverty also was best tackled within the context of over-all social development.

The brief said Manitoba is trying to establish a social development approach to government planning. It recommended that once poverty is a national problem, the federal government also move towards such an approach.

Suggestions for specific anti-poverty approaches included:

—A comprehensive investment policy;

—Preventive programs to deal with "the power redistribution aspects of poverty," including support for the efforts to create an environment where workers could participate directly in the management and decision-making of their plant;

—Operational decentralization of government with decisions made at the lowest possible level to enable government power to be more responsive and accountable to the people;

—A "truly progressive" taxation system;

—Separation of financial assistance from the provision of other social services.

The brief supported the basic concept of a guaranteed annual income, but cautioned that such an income would be only one element in an effective fight against poverty. It would also cost more than existing financial assistance and there was no assurance that it would effectively redistribute financial resources.

Human Rights Code Powers Called Sweeping

OTTAWA (CP) — Toronto lawyer R. N. Starr said Tuesday the War Measures Act with all its sweeping powers "is not in the same league" as the Ontario Human Rights Code.

He told the Supreme Court of Canada that the Code gives the Ontario labor minister and boards of inquiry set up by him "uncontrollable powers" in dealing with persons deemed to be guilty of discrimination.

Mr. Starr is appearing for Kenneth Bell of Toronto in the first appeal against the code, which prohibits discrimination against any person or class of persons because of "race, creed, color, nationality, ancestry or place of origin."

The case continues today.

In December, 1962, Mr. Bell declined to rent two floors of his home at 39 Indian Road to Carl McKay, a Jamaican. He denied a charge of discrimination but admitted that he told Mr.McKay the floors were rented when in fact they were not.

He also declined three invitations of the Human Rights Commission to discuss the matter. When a board of inquiry was set up to hear Mr. McKay's complaint, Mr. Bell sought to have the hearings discontinued on the grounds that it had no jurisdiction to hear the matter.

A judge of the Ontario Supreme Court upheld his appeal but the Ontario Court of Appeal ruled that the board did have the necessary jurisdiction.

Under the code, a landlord can not "deny to any persons or any class of persons occupancy

Scoharie Personals

SCOHARIE — Laymen's service was held at Bloomfield United Church on Sunday morning under the direction of the AOTS club. Gordon Fox conducted the service and Mr. L. L. Shewfelt, principal of Albert College, who was the guest speaker, spoke about what lay man should do to assist the minister and further the work of the church.

On Tuesday, October 27, a turkey supper was held in the Sunday School rooms of the United Church.

A number of people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Biggs on Saturday evening to congratulate them on their 50th wedding anniversary. Among those who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Keith Hanna, Also, Kathy and Jamie and James Hanna.

of any commercial unit or any self-contained dwelling unit."

Mr. Starr argued that the floors offered for rent by Mr. Bell were not self-contained because they did not have a private entrance.

He also said that the Supreme Court should spell out the powers given to the minister and the boards of inquiry under a section of the code.

It says the minister may, on the recommendation of the Human Rights Commission, issue whatever orders he deems necessary to carry out recommendations of the boards of inquiry.

Humphrey Senator

writer William F. Buckley.

Dale Bumpers (Dem.), defeated Winthrop Rockefeller as governor of Arkansas. Winthrop, wicked brother Nelson won an unprecedented fourth four-year term as governor of New York, was seeking his third two-year term.

Harry F. Byrd (ind.), who held a Virginia seat in the Senate as a Democrat last term, retained the seat as an independent. He decided to run as a Democrat in a dispute over his party's loyalty oath and became the first third-party senator since 1940.

Emanuel Celler (Dem.), won his 25th term in the House of Representatives in New York. The 82-year-old Celler is chairman of the House judiciary committee.

Philip Hart (Dem.), won a third term as senator in Michigan, defeating Lenore Romney, 61, wife of George Romney, President Nixon's housing secretary. Hart, 57, is a prominent liberal.

Louise Day Hicks (Dem.) 51-year-old Boston grandmother who achieved fame as a foe of busing of students to achieve racial balance in schools, won a Massachusetts seat in the House of Representatives.

Charles R. Rangel (Dem.), won the House of Representatives seat held for many years by Adam Clayton Powell, outspoken and controversial Negro from New York's Harlem district. Harlem Democrats picked Rangel, a Negro, over Powell earlier this year and he gained endorsement from the Republicans.

Ronald Reagan (Rep.), re-elected in his second four-year term as governor of California over Democratic Assemblyman Jess Unruh. The former movie actor, strong on law and order, received campaign help from President Nixon and several persons prominent in the film world.

Nelson Rockefeller (Rep.), won an unprecedented fourth, four-year term as governor of New York. He defeated Democrat Arthur Goldberg, former justice of the U.S. Supreme Court and U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Hugh Scott (Rep.), re-elected senator from Pennsylvania, is the Republican leader in the Senate. A senator since 1958, he is regarded as a "moderate" Republican and has occasionally voted against the Nixon administration.

John Stennis (Dem.), a member of the Senate since 1947, was re-elected handily over an independent Negro challenger in Mississippi. Stennis is chairman of the Senate armed services committee.

Adlai E. Stevenson III (Dem.), won an Illinois Senate seat against a Republican candidate strongly supported by President Nixon and Vice-President Spiro Agnew. He is the son of Adlai H. twice U.S. presidential candidate, former Illinois governor and former ambassador to the United Nations.

John V. Tunney (Dem.), son of former heavyweight boxing champion Gene Tunney, ousted Republican Senator George Murphy in California. The loser, a one-time film star, was strongly supported by President Nixon and his family.

Democrats Retain Control

Nixon Claims Slender Senate Gains Turned Tide of Tradition

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Republican party, heaped by the intensive campaigning of its two White House leaders, won across key Senate strength in Tuesday's congressional elections that gave the Democrats rebuke control of both houses of Congress and stage a remarkable paid on Republican control of state governorships.

Although the Democrats suffered losses in several vital seats, they turned back a determined Republican thrust to retain control of the Senate and appeared certain to boost their margin in the House of Representatives.

Nevertheless, aides to President Nixon reported the president was pleased the Republicans had "turned the tide of tradition" with their slender Senate gains.

In the last two decades, the party of a president in power has lost an average of three seats in the Senate and 29 in the House in these "off-year" elections, so called because there is no presidential contest involved.

Although the Democrats picked off Republicans in Illinois and California, Vice-President Spiro Agnew said Nixon "will have a working majority in the Senate," referring to expected support from conservative southern Democrats.

There were 35 Senate seats up for election Tuesday and the same number of governorships.

The entire House of Representatives is elected every two years, with one-third of the Senate elected to six-year terms in each election. The presidential election comes every four years.

Latest reports early today indicated the Democrats had elected 21 Senators, the Republicans nine. Two Independents also won. The Republicans were leading in two seats and a Democrat in one. The count was 57-43 for the Democrats in the last Senate.

Since the Democrats had 32 members in the Senate not up for re-election, their victories Tuesday assured them of continued Senate control.

In the House, the Democrats had elected 231 and the Republicans 139 with 45 seats undecided. The last House had 243 Democrats and 188 Republicans.

But the Democrats made their strongest surge in the state house elections, where the Democrats showed a net gain of at least nine governorships. The Democratic victories included three of the biggest states—Ohio, Pennsylvania and Florida —in what seemed a certain reversal of the Republican party's heavy pre-election dominance of 32 of 50 state houses.

It was the 16th consecutive election in which the Democrats won control of both the Senate and the House, but the first election since the 1964 Lyndon B. Johnson landslide in which they took a majority of the state houses.

The losses were difficult to separate on a national basis and there was little evidence of a major swing in either direction by the voters. Although the Republicans appeared to capitalize on a right-wing appeal in some areas, the Democrats elected several liberal candidates in others.

It appeared the traditional economic appeals of the Democrats worked well against the strong "law-and- order" campaign which Nixon and Agnew waged on an unprecedented level for an off-term election. And in many state-wide races, local issues—especially races—dominated the battle.

Two influential Democrats in the Senate, Albert Gore in Tennessee and Joseph Tydings of Maryland, were defeated and the Democrats had three of their biggest names back in the Senate and well in contention for the 1972 presidential nomination—Hubert Humphrey in Minnesota, Edward Kennedy in Massachusetts and Edmund Muskie of Maine.

The biggest Republicans among the governors, Ronald Reagan of California and Nelson Rockefeller of New York, swept back into office easily in the two largest states.

But elsewhere, the Republicans fared poorly in the races for state houses.

Although presidents generally stand aloof from the midterm election campaign, Nixon broke tradition by becoming deeply involved in the Republican effort. Nixon campaigned in 23 states and Agnew in 32 but their efforts succeeded in only a handful of Senate races.

The high points came in Tennessee and Connecticut, where Republicans took both governorships and Senate seats, and in New York where Conservative James L. Buckley, embraced by the White House, defeated Republican and Democrat opponents.

Buckley's election over his two liberal rivals was noted by Agnew in a post-election statement in which he said there had been a "philosophical shift" toward the administration despite the slim Republican gains.

Although Buckley defeated a Republican, the administration counts on his support. And in Texas, a conservative Democrat took over a seat formerly held by a liberal Republican—which will probably indicate a net gain for the administration on most issues.

But against these conservative triumphs, there were victories for liberals, as well.

In California, John V. Tunney, son of former heavyweight boxing champion Gene Tunney, knocked out right-wing Republican Senator George Murphy. And in Illinois, Adlai E. Stevenson III, son of a two-time Democratic presidential nominee and ambassador to the United Nations, defeated Republican Senator Ralph Tyler Smith.

Stevenson and Tunney, along with newly-elected Gov. Gilligan of Ohio, emerged as leading new national figures for the Democrats.

Agnew bemoaned the unexpected Democratic strength in the state house contests but added:

"It is important to note that an important ideological change has come about in the Senate regardless of party."

Lawrence O'Brien, national chairman of the Democratic party, said Nixon and Agnew "would be hard put to call this anything but a defeat."

One of the more surprising results for the Nixon-Agnew strategy was its failure to break the traditional Democratic hold on Texas, where George Bush was beaten by Democrat Lloyd Bentsen.

Ideological Win Says Agnew

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew said early today the Nixon administration had won an "ideological majority" in the Senate although Republicans did not gain as many seats as the White House hoped in elections Tuesday.

The vice-president said President Nixon would have a working majority on foreign policy issues and national defence controversies such as the anti-ballistic missile system.

Agnew said Nixon fully shared the sentiment that the administration gained a working majority "along philosophical lines" even though it fell short of picking up the necessary seats to win organizational control of the Senate.

He made the comments in an early morning appearance at headquarters after watching returns and discussing them by telephone with the president.

Larry O'Brien, Democratic party national chairman, disputed Agnew's claim and said he did not see how it could be considered a Republican victory at least seven governorships "our position in the Senate." and 10 to 12 House of Representatives seats "and maintaining our position in the Senate."

Battle of Celebrities

Kennedy Wins Re-election Won't Run for President

BOSTON (CP) — Senator Edward M. Kennedy easily won re-election Tuesday, polling some 67 per cent of the vote, and immediately disclaimed any idea of entering the 1972 presidential race.

Kennedy, a Democrat, defeated Republican Josiah A. Spaulding to gain a second term in the Senate.

The strong support given the survivor of the Kennedy brothers showed that Massachusetts voters had largely discounted the tragedy at Chappaquiddick where Mary Jo Kopechne was drowned when a car driven by Kennedy went off a bridge.

Until today, Kennedy had been considered a strong contender for the nomination as Democratic party candidate for president in 1972. Even afterwards his name was frequently mentioned.

He told his supporters in Boston Tuesday night:

"I look forward to returning to the U.S. Senate. I look forward to being a voice of peace in the U.S. Senate.

"I am committed to remain in the U.S. Senate. The people of Massachusetts expect me to remain there and I have every intention of doing so."

White House Strategy Succeeds in New York

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Right-wing Senator-elect James L. Buckley emerged today as the star of the New York state election, overshadowing such events as Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's brawling of Democrat Goldberg and the renewal of Republican control of the state legislature.

Rockefeller and his teammates ran pretty much according to form, although the governor's nearly 700,000-vote plurality was larger than expected.

It was Buckley who provided the excitement and suspense in the tallying of Tuesday's votes, bringing electoral triumph to the splinter Conservative party in the U.S. Senate race.

Buckley, an avowed supporter of President Nixon, undoubtedly evoked smiles in the White House by ending the Senate career of incumbent Charles E. Goodell, the unorthodox Liberal Republican who was appointed last in the three-man race.

Forging a coalition of conservative-minded voters, Buckley produced a narrow minority win over runner-up Richard L. Ottinger, the Democratic congressman who had competed with Goodell for the more liberal majority vote.

The result was an indicated plurality of about 130,000 votes for the 47-year-old businessman, an enrolled Republican who had entered the campaign as a distinct underdog.

Nearly complete returns gave Buckley 2,258,944 votes, or 39 per cent, Ottinger 2,111,626, or 37 per cent, and Goodell 1,421,274, or 24 per cent.

Meanwhile, Rockefeller rolled to an easy victory over Goldberg, the former U.S. Supreme Court justice and ambassador to the United Nations. Making his first try for elective office, Goldberg was thought to be leading early in the campaign, but Rockefeller finished strong.

In winning an unprecedented fourth four-year term, the 62-year-old governor ran better than ever.

Goldberg also 62, had been ruled his toughest opponent, but the governor's plurality far exceeded any he had compiled in his previous victories.

President's Automobile Bears Marks of Rocks

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — The U.S. Secret Service has exhibited dents in President Nixon's limousine as proof that it was the target of a barrage by anti-war demonstrators during his motorcade in San Jose, Calif., last week.

Lilburn D. Boggs, assistant director of the Secret Service for protective forces, said Tuesday the visible damage "could only have been caused by rocks or other hard objects."

Following statements that reports of the violence were exaggerated, the Secret Service took a group of reporters to the Western White House and asked them to inspect the vehicle which came under attack on Thursday night following a speech by the president.

The inspection showed the limousine was marred or dented in several places.

San Jose Police Chief Ray Blackmore had said Monday the president never was in danger, only a few rocks were thrown and reports of the violence had been exaggerated.

Elaborating Tuesday, Blackmore said: "I was in the lead car and it wasn't hit. The president was in the second car right behind me and I have verified that if rocks struck the limos and had to be repaired."

Gene Tunney's Son Whips Filmland Senator George Murphy

LOS ANELES (AP) — Representative "John V. Tunney's defeat of Senator George Murphy adds a newcomer with a touch of Kennedy political style and vigor to the next Senate's Democratic lineup.

Tunney bucked a Republican law-and-order campaign blitz led by President Nixon in defeating Murphy in Tuesday's election.

Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan won a second four-year term but his margin over Democrat Jess Unruh fell short of the 900,000-vote- edge he received four years ago over the then Democratic incumbent, Gov. Edmund Brown.

Democrat Tunney, 36, son of former heavyweight boxing champion Gene Tunney, said his victory "represents a rejection of the politics of fear." He accused Murphy, 68, of waging "the dirtiest campaign I've ever seen," including exploitation of last Thursday's rock-and-egg throwing at Nixon's limousine at San Jose.

Murphy, like Reagan a former Hollywood star, went to bed Tuesday night saying in a voice left hoarse by a 1,882 operation for throat cancer: "I can't find it in my heart to concede."

Reagan, 59, retired without claiming victory although he held a comfortable lead over Unruh. Democrats charged the state assembly who attacked Reagan as the "front man" for special interests such as oilmen and insurance firms.

Tunney's victory gives California's two Democratic U.S. senators for the first time since before the American Civil War. Alan Cranston was elected two years ago.

Twelve Republicans Ousted

When It Came to Governors It Was Democrats All the Way

EASHINGTON (AP) — In simple numbers, and in states where state house control adds clout to the 1972 presidential drive, it was Democrats nearly all the way Tuesday.

They ousted at least 12 Republicans from governorships, while giving up only two. The burn in Democratic fortunes, after a steady decline in state house occupancy in the 1960s, was the most dramatic development in Tuesday's election.

State houses were at stake in 35 states. Republicans went into the voting with a 32 to 18 edge.

The governorships of California and New York, the biggest trophies in the bag, eluded the Democrats. But they scored important victories in the other big states: Ohio, Florida, Minnesota, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, all previously in Republican hands and all the recipients of campaign visits by President Nixon, Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew—or both.

Republican unseated Democrats only in Connecticut and Tennessee. Both were expected.

It was difficult to explain the Democratic success only in terms of the national campaign themes of the two parties. Local issues and personalities often overrode the Republican law-and-order thrust as well as the economic emphasis of the Democrats.

In early morning, with a few governorships still undecided, the results of Tuesday's elections looked like this:

Democrats: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Kansas, Maryland, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Texas, Wisconsin.

Republicans: Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Iowa, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, Oregon, Tennessee, Vermont and Wyoming.

Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew, who campaigned in 32 of the 35 states that elected governors, called the election outcome bittersweet. The sweet, he indicated, was what he called the "working majority" the president now has in the Senate with the Republican-southern Democrat coalition.

The bitter, Agnew said, is "seeing so many men I know well as the governor of Maryland losing in their gubernatorial races."

Among those who lost re-election bids were Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas, Claude Kirk of Florida, Don Samuelson of Idaho, Dewey Bartlett of Oklahoma, Norbert Tiemann of Nebraska and Frank Farrar of South Dakota—all Republicans.

Republican Nelson A. Rockefeller had no difficulty in winning a fourth four-year term as governor of New York, setting a modern record. Neither did Ronald Reagan of California. Their opponents were Arthur Goldberg, former Supreme Court justice, in New York, and Jess Unruh, former Democratic assembly speaker, in California.

Other Republicans who renewed leases on governors' mansions were Francis Sargent of Massachusetts—a state neither Nixon nor Agnew visited, by request—Walter Peterson of New Hampshire, Deane Davis of Vermont, Robert Ray of Iowa, John Love of Colorado and Stanley Hathaway of Wyoming.

Robert Docking, Kansas' Democratic governor, did what his father couldn't do before him: he was elected to an unprecedented third two-year term in a notably Republican state.

Maryland's Marvin Mandel, a Democrat named governor by the state legislature to fill Agnew's term, easily won election. Democrat John Burns of Hawaii also was re-elected.

So was Preston Smith of Texas, another Democrat who had to withstand a Nixon-Agnew campaign onslaught.

Among the new faces in state houses was a familiar one—Alabama's governor George Wallace, governor of Alabama from 1963 through 1967, who had no Republican opposition. But a black challenger, Dr. John Cashin, got about 100,000 votes. Wallace's was at least five times that number as he regained his power base.

In Georgia, Democrat Jimmy Carter followed the ineligible Lester Maddox into the governor's chair, taking Maddox along as lieutenant-governor. Hal Suit, a former television newscaster who had the help of the Nixon-Agnew team, trailed far behind.

Chuvalo Not Making Plans for Early Boxing Retirement

MONTREAL (CP) — Every time George Chuvalo, the Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, climbs into the ring for another fight, someone starts wondering why he doesn't quit.

But Chuvalo, a 33-year-old father of five from Toronto, has the answer.

"I like to fight... I won't fight to live and I've still got plenty of hopes, ambition and ability."

Chuvalo will tackle Tony Ventura of Buffalo here Thursday night in a 10-round, non-title affair that sets the scene for a bout between Canadian welterweight champion Donato Paduano of Montreal and Don Ross of Toronto. The Paduano-Ross bout is also over the 10-round distance and a ten-title match.

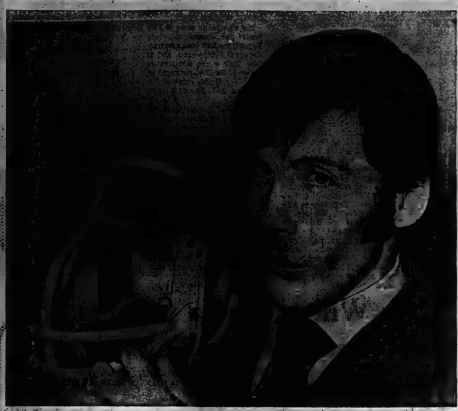
Chuvalo has been a pro for 14 years. During that time he has had 79 fights, won 65, lost 12 and has fought two draws. Of his 65 wins, 35 were by knockouts. He had an extensive amateur career before turning pro and estimates he has been boxing for close to 20 years.

"I've rated fifth and seventh in the world, and all I need is one good fight and I'm back on top," Chuvalo said.

"Sure I've been inconsistent," Chuvalo admitted. "But I'm not in a permanent rut. I know I can't fight all my life. I just won't be the same fighter.

"If I ever put two or three bad nights together in the ring, then I'd consider looking somewhere else," he added.

George is fighting for the glory," said manager Irv Ungerman. We had a chance for the title, but we lost it—there's still a spark left there, though."



Chuvalo will draw $5,000 plus expenses for his appearance here.

My future is on the line every time I climb into the ring," Chuvalo said. Each fight is a gamble, but I think I'm really lucky doing what I want to do.

"I've no reason to quit," he added. Why, if I was hit with all of those punches I was supposed to be hit with, well I'd have to find my way out of the house with a cane."

Chuvalo lost a 15-round decision to former heavyweight champion Cassius Clay at Toronto in 1966, beat challenger Jerry Quarry, recently knocked out by Clay, in seven rounds, and in turn was stopped by current world heavyweight champion Joe Frazier at New York in four rounds.

Flood Returns To Baseball Fold

WASHINGTON (AP) — Controversial Curt Flood officially becomes a member of Washington Senators Tuesday in a three-for-one trade, assuring his return to baseball after a year-long court battle against the reserve clause.

The announcement of Flood's signing was imminent after the Senators acquired his contract from Philadelphia Phillies in a deal that sent first baseman Greg Goosen, outfielder-first baseman Gene Martin and pitcher Jeff Terpko to the Phillies.

The Senators' announcement did not indicate whether Flood had signed his contract, but it was believed the 32-year-old outfielder would soon put his signature on the normal pact containing the reserve clause.

Robert Short, Senators' owner, announced during the World Series that he had obtained the right to negotiate with Flood, who sat out his last season after he was traded from St. Louis Cardinals to Philadelphia and instituted a $4.1-million suit against baseball.

Short said Flood apparently had agreed to the terms of the contract, calling for a salary estimated at about $110,000 a year, nearly 19 days ago but had to iron out other legal difficulties.

Flood, who said he was a victim of the reserve clause and that the St. Louis-Philadelphia trade violated his rights, lost the first part of the suit when a federal judge ruled against him and in favor of baseball's defendants. An appeal is pending.

The reserve clause prohibits a player from negotiating with any team except the one which holds his contract.

Turn Down Allan Cup Tourney

TORONTO (CP) — The Allan Cup senior amateur hockey championship will again be a best-of-seven affair this season with tournaments in Eastern and Western Canada to determine the contenders, says Gordon Juckes, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association executive director.

A meeting of the CAHA senior council last week decided against a proposed Allan Cup tournament involving both East and West teams, Juckes said Tuesday in a telephone interview.

"After some discussion there was general agreement that we should not plan for one big tournament in the East," Juckes said. "Instead, the Allan Cup will again be a best-of-seven series between the winners of separate tournaments to be held in the East and West."

Juckes said Eastern senior executives now are conducting meetings to make plans for the Eastern tournament, a four-team round-robin event.

"They could have two games a night for three successive nights with the top two teams playing off perhaps in a best-of-three final."

One tournament participant would come from the Newfoundland-New Brunswick area, another from the Northern Ontario-Thunder Bay districts, another from Quebec and one from the Ontario Hockey Association circuit.

Punch Plays 'Buffalo Shuffle'

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Shuffle Off to Buffalo had a modern beat added Tuesday as Punch Imlach conducted his own score of the 1920s hit song in an effort to bolster his sagging Buffalo Sabres.

The fast-moving, fast-talking Imlach completed three deals in a matter of hours, deals he hopes will improve his first-year National Hockey League team.

He claimed veteran defenceman Bob Baun from Detroit Red Wings for the $26,000 waiver price, then promptly traded the 34-year-old hardrock to St. Louis Blues for two players—defenceman Jean-Guy Talbot, a 38-year-old defenceman and penalty-killing specialist, and winger Larry Keenan, 30.

Earlier in the day, Imlach secured right winger Paul Andrea from California Golden Seals. He began his wheeling and dealing Monday by taking winger Steve Atkinson from the Blues.

The expansionist Sabres, who had a litany of fourth places in the East Division about a week ago, have since tumbled into the division basement.

Imlach will get a chance to see if his personnel shuffle pays off Thursday night when the Sabres are at home to Vancouver Canucks, another expansion team this year who currently hold fourth spot in the East.

After two days of inactivity, the shakeups rejuvenated Imlach with five games. Montreal Canadiens tied Minnesota North Stars at Bloomington, Minn., Los Angeles Kings are host to Toronto Maple Leafs, New York Rangers are in Oakland against California Golden Seals, Detroit Red Wings visit Chicago Black Hawks and Vancouver is in Pittsburgh against the Penguins.

In other NHL developments Tuesday, the Rangers assigned defenceman Mike Robitaille and forward Jim Krulicki to Omaha of the Central League. Their departure reduced the New York roster to 19.

It was announced in Montreal earlier in the day that the 14 NHL teams now may dress 18 players plus two goaltenders for the remainder of the season.

The league's general managers had ruled earlier that each club was allowed to dress 17 forwards and defencemen plus the two goalies for each game until Nov. 1.

Previously the clubs were allowed to dress only 16, including the two goaltenders.

The North Stars announced the retirement of Lac Bolvin, 36, veteran defenceman who attended the Minnesota training camp but had not played any regular-season games. He will remain with the club as a player scout.

Strong Skating Forward Lines Leave Mo-Hawks Holding Most Aces

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Last Sunday the Belleville Mo-Hawks opened for two goals against Barrie, only to lose in a seven - high straight. It was entirely different team last night, however, as Belleville came up bolding all the Aces — or at least most of them — in their 5-2 win over Kingston.

LORNE O'DONNELL

The Mo-Hawk forward lines played a major role in the win, contributing a strong two - way skating effort which allowed the Belleville defence to stand their ground and keep the speedy Aces bottled up.

"That's the name of the game", agreed coach Jones, "when you're wingers are coming back it allows the defence to stay up and stop them. Our biggest improvement over Sunday, was our skating, particularly in the first and second periods. We let down a little in the third and let them come to us, but we were protecting a 5-0 lead at the time."

Jones, himself, dressed for the first time this season, pairing with rookie Mike Rexe on defence. The veteran Senior - A performer made a couple of early defensive lapses, which forced him to take penalties, but at the same time he did a good job of moving the puck out of his own end for most of the game.

Regulars Lou Kanowski and Lionel Body played steady games, as all the defencemen as well as Steve Rexe had a relatively easy night because of the strong forward effort.

Despite being outshot 15-5 in the first period, the Mo - Hawks picked up a 2-0 lead, keeping most of the Kingston shots from long range.

Belleville's third line, which showed a vast improvement over Sunday's loss to Barrie, accounted for the first Belleville score. Rick O'Donnell dug the puck out of the corner and passed to Wayne McConnell, who drifted a high centrally screened shot past Mercer.

The Mo - Hawks scored again late in the period as former Ace, Doug Senior, deked recently - acquired Terry O'Malley at the Kingston blueline before backhanding a pass that Les Colligan tipped into the net.

The winners played particularly well in the middle period, limiting Kingston to six shots on goal, while pumping another pair of markers past Mercer.

Belleville got a lucky break on their third goal, when a Kingston clearing pass hit a lineman and deflected to centre Doug Senior, who beat Mercer with a high shot to the glove side.

The goal came just seconds after the Kingston netminder had fanned a pad in front of a tough deflected shot by Senior. That, and an earlier save on George Godson, who was in all alone were the only strong points for Mercer, who was replaced by Dave Gevel in the final period.

Lorne O'Donnell applied the crusher scoring at 13.39 with Al Ferguson sitting out a holding penalty. George Godson slid O'Donnell in the clear and the left winger made no mistake drilling a shot into the top corner.

The pair were flying all night particularly on penalty killing assignments, and their vengeance provided a big boost to the Belleville offence.

Al Ferguson scored the fifth Belleville goal at 2.46 of the final period getting in Lorne O'Donnell's rebound with John mercer sitting out a match penalty for running into the referee.

Rod Graham ruined Rexe's shutout firing the puck into the open net after the Belleville goalie had slid out to make the initial save on Bob Collins.

Kingston's only goal was awarded to Les Pavarino, although centre Bob Clayton appeared to deflect the 40-foot drive, Clayton was easily the best player on the ice for Kingston, skating miles in a strong forechecking effort.

The final shots on goal were 33 for Kingston and 30 for the Mo-Hawks. The two teams have a return engagement at 9 o'clock Friday night in the Belleville arena.

Lancer Basketball Squad Showing Improvement

Loyalist Lancers are facing the tough task of all "expansion teams" in their first year of competing against the established community college powers, but at least one team appears to be making headway.

The Loyalist basketball Lancers gave an improved showing despite a 47-40 loss to the Queens University junior varsity squad. The difference in the game was a strong rebounding effort by Queens, who controlled the backboards throughout the contest.

Queens led 18-12 at half-time and while Loyalist narrowed the gap on several occasions they couldn't maintain the pace set by a well-conditioned full-strength Queens team.

Loyalist dressed only nine players for the game, including two newcomers.

Blair Cullen led the Lancers with 13 points with Rick Webster adding another eight.

The hockey team didn't fare quite as well absorbing an 11 defeat by St. Lawrence college.

Loyalist's best period was the second, when they held the winners to only one goal.

Dick Beare did a fantastic job in the Lancers' net turning aside 60 shots in the first two periods. Len Tait converted a pass from Dan Dixon for the only Loyalist goal.

The winners collected 17 of the game's 33 penalties.

Saints' Cannon Misfires

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The misfire of a ceremonial cannon, which sent one man three fingers and seriously injured another man, has brought repercussions concerning half-time extravaganzas staged at New Orleans Saints football games.

More than 77,000 fans were in the stands Sunday when the cannon, ancient field pieces fired by a team from a national parks association, boomed during the halftime show.

One misfired and sent two of the crew sprawling.

David Widdicombe, 22, of Memphis, Tenn., lost three fingers and part of his right hand.

Leslie Germain, 34, also of Memphis, suffered second- and third-degree burns and cuts which required 30 stitches.

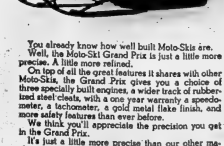
The cannon apparently fired properly while a bag of powder was being rammed down the barrel.

A charred rose was also on Sunday's bill and a nurse running from the first-aid station to the spot where Widdicombe and Germain were injured almost was caught in the horses' path.

The stretcher used to take Germain from the field was narrowly missed by one of the chariots.

A cowboy and Indian had a horse race around the field at halftime, but the trailing Indian was hard-pressed to stop his horse as the race ended near the north end stands.

All of this went on while Widdicombe and Germain were being rushed from the field, their injuries unknown to many in the big crowd. Germain ran from the field with blood streaming down his arm while Widdicombe, his face bathed in blood, lay on the field in the end zone.



Harry Holmes, public relations director for the Saints, said the halftime programs "definitely will be reviewed. We have decided we will not use any more cannons at halftime."

Maki Not Looking Back to Stick-Swinging Duel with Green

MONTREAL (CP) — The agony of the 1969-70 hockey season is "back there, gone," for Wayne Maki of Vancouver Canucks.

Tonight Maki will be in Pittsburgh for a National Hockey League game against the Penguins where he will try to improve on the six goals and four assists he has recorded in 11 games as a left winger with the new-born Canucks.

Almost 14 months ago Maki was involved in a stick-swinging duel with defenceman Ted Green of Boston Bruins during a pre-season NHL game at Ottawa. Green suffered a fractured skull in the incident.

Last March Maki was acquitted of assault causing bodily harm in an Ottawa court in connection with the stick-swinging incident. Green was acquitted two months ago of common assault.

Both men had been punished by league president Clarence Campbell with 13-game suspensions without salary and $300 fines for their match misconduct penalties.

Green returned to the Bruins this season after recovering from the fractured skull caused by Maki's stick. Maki, after playing most of last season with Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League, was picked up by the Canucks in last June's expansion draft.

"It was a bad year, a real bad one," Maki said, before the Canucks left for Pittsburgh Tuesday. "That (the Green incident) happened and it was on my mind.

"Then St. Louis sent me down after the suspension and I still wasn't myself, even in Buffalo. When I went back with St. Louis I still wasn't with it.

"It seemed I was always travelling. Ottawa for court, Buffalo, trips, always trips," said Maki, who will be 28 Nov. 28.

"This is a new year and a new team," Maki said. "I'm down to playing weight. I'm going into the corners again and I guess I'm more aggressive than I had been after [Green] happened."

He admits he always loved the combat in the corners, where many players are reluctant to venture, "but if I don't go into the corners, I'm not playing my game."

"A bit strange," is how he describes the feeling the first time he played against Green this season, "but we didn't do any more than nod."

"When you're playing this game, you don't talk to the opposition," he said. "They're taking money out of my pocket and I'm trying to take it from them.

Gus Ising Maki said he discovered during his troubled 1969-70 season, is that "people are pretty nice."

"I fall strange the first time I played in Boston, but they've been in the league a long time," he said. "The fans are mature, they know what hockey is all about—they know the things that can happen and they didn't resent it me or the fca."

Alouettes Place Duncan, McCarthy On Suspension

MONTREAL (CP) — Three days before their Eastern Football Conference semi-final contest against Toronto Argonauts, Montreal Alouettes face some major player shuffles following the suspensions of Dennis Duncan and Bob McCarthy.

Running back Duncan, the EFC's leading ground gainer in 1969, and wide receiver McCarthy were suspended by the club Tuesday for the remainder of season because of what head coach Sam Etcheverry called "conduct detrimental to the football team."

Team officials refused to comment on the nature of their offences but Etcheverry said the two were suspended "for violations of certain rules we lay down for team members."

The head coach said the violations were committed off the field.

"I'm sure I'm one of the easier disciplinarians in the football coaching ranks but I do have a few rules and I expect them to be followed.

"Both of these players had been warned and then they went out and did it again. That's nothing more than contempt for my rules. You take action."

The Montreal coach said Bruce Van Ness, who replaced Dick Smith at shortback when Smith was traded to Winnipeg Blue Bombers, will be used in Duncan's spot against the Argos.

Bobbie Davis, normally a defensive halfback, will likely move into the slotback spot and Tom Pukas, who alternated with McCarthy, will remain as wide receiver.

Etcheverry said defensive halfback Bob Storey will be used as a relief man on offence and Lew Cook, who came off the injured list Tuesday, will play in Davis' regular position.

"I'm aware there could be criticism," Etcheverry said of his decision to suspend the two players. "I've been fair and this was something I had to do."

The former quarterback in his rookie season as a coach said the Alouettes will fill the gaps left by Duncan and McCarthy and that the player shuffle will confuse the Argos, coached by Leo Cahill.

"In any event," Etcheverry said, "this should give Leo something to think about with his defences."

In Toronto, Cahill was already thinking about the effect the suspensions might have on Saturday's game and he gave no indication the suspensions increased his optimism about the sudden-death playoff.

"During the regular season, when all things are equal, it might give us an advantage," he said.

"But now that we're into the playoffs, the suspension of these two players could have one of two effects. First it could lull our players into a false sense of security not having to face these two players, or secondly, it could rouse their players into trying that much harder to make up for the loss."

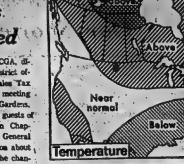
Sales Tax Changes Explained



Clarke W. Fraser, CGA, director of the local district office of The Retail Sales Tax Branch, is a dinner meeting held at the Sun Luck Gardens, told the members and guests of the Belleville-Kingston Chapter of the Certified General Accountants Association about retail sales tax and the changes recently introduced to the Act.

The interest of these professional accountants as it affects their employers or clients as well as consumers was evident from the many questions asked on this subject.

Mr. Fraser pointed out that many administrative changes had been implemented that would save the taxpayer time and money as well as the branch, such as, less frequent filing of returns by small vendors; that collections are relatively small amounts, and where no taxable sales are made, the permit may be cancelled resulting in no returns having to be filed.

He also stated that tax bulletins are issued periodically to all registered vendors that will be accountants, lawyers and others who have requested to be put on the mailing list.

These bulletin clarify areas that have caused problems either to the taxpayer or the branch as well as selling forth current changes made to the Act. Mr. Fraser closed his remarks with an invitation to anyone with a problem related to retail sales tax to contact his office.

Councillors Take Tour Of County

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County councillors "hit the roads" at a new speed last Friday at the suggestion of county warden Gordon Lloyd, Road inspection, formerly representing an all day travel program, this year included detours to points of interest such as the Phillips memorial plaque. Councillors enjoyed a guided tour of the county countryside by air explanation of its operations following an inspection visit to the county warehouse. A side trip to Wellington a-was permitted councillors to observe a new compressor in operation.

A visit to the Prince Edward County Home familiarized several members of council with the facilities for the aged available there. Warden Lloyd remarked that this year "a first opportunity" for some members of council to tour the home for senior citizens. A tour of county roads filled the afternoon rounding out what Mr. Lloyd termed "a very good trip."

Horse Spectacle Box Office Open

The box office is open at the Kingston Memorial Centre for seats to the Royal Lipizzan Stallion Show featuring "The Wonderful World of Horses" which begins a two-day engagement in Kingston on Friday, November 20 with a matinee performance at 2.00 p.m. Saturday, November 21 and evening shows at 8.30 p.m., Friday and Saturday.

Produced by Gary and Philip Lashinsky and Don Woods, the show is the first major spectacle of horses and riders since the record-breaking tour of Vienna's famous White Stallions in 1964. It presents such internationally acclaimed riders as the Smaha Family, Friedel Panter, Albert Ostermaier Charles Stelzer, Col. Trevor Bale, the Anderson, Anna Williams and many more.

Fifty horses will be shown, including such fine dressage breeds as the Andalusian, Americas Albico, Morgan, Arabian, Appaloosa, Saddlebred, Palomino and Quarterhorse. More than twenty Lipizzaners from five of the breed's six Gloodlines will perform a full, authentic program of their famous balance movements and great leaps known as the "airs above the ground".

Called the ballet dancers among horses, Lipizzaners are of Spanish and Arabian stock, have been bred and trained for 400 years by Vienna's Spanish Riding School. Once the sole property of the Hapsburg Monarchy, they were first used in battle.

Kingston Memorial Centre manager Jim McCormick reveals that an exceptionally high mail order sale has already been accepted. The show recently completed a presentation at Madison Square Gardens where the critic in the New York Times hailed it as "one of the most enchanting performers you'll ever see anywhere, put on a beautiful display of skill and taste" — referring to the beautiful steeds in the show.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 447,000 shares, compared with 499,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Chamber to Launch Drive for Members

An "aggressive membership campaign" is to be launched by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce with the groundwork being laid at the directors meeting tomorrow at 7.30 p.m. in the Victoria and Grey Trust board room.

Chamber president Frank C. Murray outlined plans for the campaign.

"We will be contacting prospective members with a view to disclosure outlining the activities of the chamber. Following this we will send letters, followed by cards and personal telephone contact as well as an ad campaign in the newspaper and on the radio," he said.

Throughout the past year, the chamber has increased duties and services to the community. This increase and the need for community involvement prompted Mr. Murray to stress the need for increased membership.

This subject has been a sore point with C of C executive members for some time now.

Unfortunately (the C of C) has not received the support that we feel it should receive." was a statement made by Mr. Murray at the fall dinner meeting held Oct. 1.

A special membership committee, comprised of individuals in specific categories of the business and professional field will meet and discuss membership with their respective potential members.

The goal for this campaign is a membership of 350. The C of C at present has 229 company or individual members.

Mr. Murray also announced that it is their intention to approach Mayor J. Russell Scott and city council to ask that the week of Nov. 22, campaign week, be officially declared Chamber of Commerce Membership Week.

Loyalist Offers Decorating Course

A different kind of housing problem is up for solution at Loyalist College.

Proud home owners, baffled by the challenges of effective interior decor, can now turn to a special extension course being offered at the college.

The course will include these study areas: mechanics of new home planning, color coordination, furniture styles, (including antiques), upholstery fabrics, floor coverings and accessories.

PM Blames Rumors On Press

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau accused the press Tuesday of "spreading some mere rumors" about the Quebec situation.

He was replying in the Commons to T. C. Douglas, the New Democrat leader, who quoted reporters as saying Monday that rumors about possible establishment of a provisional government in Quebec had come from "persons highly placed in the government."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Like children, we puff up in pride when complimented on overcoming some obstacle which requires forbearance or courage. Ego-massage is an essential for healthy adults, too.

But we set up a protective defense against our failures. We call it rationalization. We make excuses to ourselves and to others. To be more specific, I reprint the following letter, which illustrates one facet of the problem:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: In a Problem Deserves Medical Care, you reprinted a letter from one youngster. In part: "I have completely abolished chocolate, peanut butter, nuts, fried foods and greasy things from my diet. I get plenty of sleep. As for exercise and fresh air, I walk home from school every day. I drink water and try not to let my nerves get the best of me." From observation and experience with young people who suffer from acne, migraine headaches, allergies, general nervousness, etc., I have noticed that many young people are always ready to say they have excluded certain foods from their diets — as directed by the doctor.

But, from observation and experience these same young people will be near eating, in large quantities, potato chips, pizzas, hero sandwiches, spaghetti, mustard, catsup, mayonnaise, plenty of soft drinks and all sorts of spicy foods. When they are questioned, their answer is: "I only eat them once in a while." And so it is with foods they "completely excluded" from their diets.

I admit, often their parents don't help. They are constantly serving foods in their homes with no regard to the temptations dangled in front of their teenagers. But let's not just put the blame on the kids. The same situation exists when adults bemoan the fact that they are overweight and "can't lose weight." They also claim they have eliminated fattening foods from their diets." — Mrs. J.

COMMENT: I'm glad you took the "best" off the kids, Mrs. J. In my experience, I have found that many adult dieters are just as immature as their youngsters.

* * *

For Mrs. K.: Should a cat be in the house with a person allergic with asthma? I won't agree that an old, beloved pet should be turned out into the street unless your doctor has found that the patient is definitely allergic to cat dander. Even so, finding another home is more humane than shutting the door on the family cat.

* * *

For Mr. H.: No, I do not believe in biweekly high colonics for everyone — or anyone (unless prescribed by your doctor). In my opinion they are as ancient and as ineffective as biweekly blood-letting which was once thought to be a cure-all for practically every ailment that beset mankind.

* * *

For Mrs. J.: Rather than keep half-filled cans of sauerkraut, etc., in the refrigerator, I suggest that you transfer the food to dishes covered with wax paper. You will be less likely to keep it's on around longer than you should.

We Rationalize Our Shortcomings

Britain Reforms Housing Subsidies

LONDON (Reuter) — The British government announced Tuesday another big shakeup of the welfare state system with drastic reforms of housing subsidies now costing the nation about $536 million a year.

Many of Britain's 5.5 million families now living at below-economic rents in municipally-owned houses and apartments will have to pay more under proposals put forward by Environment Minister Henry Brooke.

But he promised help by way of rent rebates for poorer families and said the fair-rents principle would be extended to the 2.5 million tenants in privately-owned accommodation not now covered by any subsidy system.

The minister also announced government aid to cities such as London, Liverpool and Manchester for slum-clearance programs.

The proposals follow last week's statement by the chancellor of the exchequer, Anthony Barber, on cuts in government spending on meals for school children, health charges and other welfare state provisions.

The Labor opposition plans to move a censure motion against the government policy.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 5

Your birthday today: A long steady pull begins in which you must study and adjust, improve your skills. March of this year a goal of stable prosperity is within reach this year, with further progress indicated in the next year. Your personality becomes important to your advancement now with your technical competence. Today's natives are usually independent, self-reliant, able to balance political forces.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You get along rather well today, provided you let well enough alone. Your friends have more energy than you do; go along with them for the fun of it.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your imagination offers much that can actually become part of your working life. Many suggestions are floating around which are sound and ready for use.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Some of your lively ideas can be coaxed into accomplished fact. Compare notes, and perhaps make a cautious bargain on a precisely defined project.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Strive now merely to hold and improve what you have. Work on your home and its arrange ments comes out well. People, in general, co-operate.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Be on the alert for changes, developments in your work. Concentrate on current projects; check facts. Partnership, marital matters require close attention.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Make a list of what is to be done then put to a full day of constant co-operative effort. Where overtime pays well, be willing to do it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You must put physical vigor into your plans. Any sentimental ventures are to be handled gently — you may be taking too much for granted, or be somewhat premature.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Repair, replacement are slogans for today. Get rid of equipment that can't be repaired effectively. Family and friends are aware and will help.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your energy now is more manual than usual, and your friends are ready to go Attend to correspondence or neglected distant contacts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): There is much work to do today, so get your best organizing mood going. Your own efforts are more productive than help from others or any windfall.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your drive is stronger, but it channeled along the lines you followed yesterday. Purely personal projects thrive better than career efforts.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your friends can be helpful, but don't pledge to keep secrets — you can't hide for long what happens today. Work on projects you complete within the day.

SPACE FICTION IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

MAROONED IN ORBIT by Arthur W. Orme

Set entirely in the interior of a space craft, this gripping story relates the rescue of a two-man team, as they return from lunar exploration. Older children will enjoy this story that could easily happen within the next few years.

THE LOTUS CAVES by John Christopher

Mr. Christopher gives us an adventure story of two boys living on the moon. While exploring, Marty and Steve tumble into a cave in which lives The Plant, a super-intelligent being wielding a tremendous influence on one's mind.

RETURN FROM LUNA by D. S. Halacy

Set in the not too distant future, when man is living for the first time on the moon, this is the story of Rob Stevens, young assistant on a research project. Solid, with well developed characters it gives a realistic picture of what could happen.

THE SPACE OLYMPICS by A. M. Lightner

Young Tyres Vann competes in the intergalactic Olympics as a discus thrower. The games take place on Ar-ath, a planet which proves hazardous for visiting athletes.

SUPER NOVA AND THE ROGUE SATELLITE by Angus MacVicar

A rather terrifying story taking place during the 21st Century. A satellite moving through space suddenly refuses to obey instructions, putting many lives in danger.

LORD OF THE STARS by Jean and Jeff Sutton

A very strange fantasy type of space fiction. Young Danny finds himself marooned on the planet of Wendi, which revolves around an emerald sun. His only friend is Zandro, invisible to Danny but in contact with his mind.

SPACESHIP TO SATURN by Hugh Walters

Four young astronauts are sent to Saturn while in a state of "deep freeze" through the process of hypothermia. Thus the journey of nine months seems only a brief time. We meet the four young men again in Nearly Neptune. Both are exciting space adventures for young people.

JOURNEY TO UNTOR by Leonard Wibberly

This well - known author gives us space fantasy for slightly younger children. There is an Alice-in-Wonderland quality to the story of Uncle Bill and his nieces and nephews and their adventures on the planet of Untor.

Turner Will Lead Off Debate On Measure to Deal with FLQ

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister John Turner is expected to lead off debate in the Commons today on a government bill to replace War Measures Act regulations with powers limited to dealing with the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

The bill, entitled the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970, received first reading in the House Monday. Once approved by the Commons the bill would be in force until April 30, 1971, unless revoked earlier by government proclamation or continued by Parliament.

The Commons Tuesday gave second reading to a bill providing for establishment of national farm marketing agencies and a national farm products marketing council. The bill was referred to the Commons agriculture committee for further study.

Second reading also was given legislation to replace the Canada Grain Act of 1930 and provide for a protein grading system for grains.

Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford opened second-reading debate on a labelling and packaging bill.

BILL AN 'IMPROVEMENT'

When the public order bill is enacted the regulations under the War Measures Act will be revoked, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has called the legislation a "very substantial improvement" over the WMA regulations.

The bill continues outlawing of the FLQ and maximum jail terms of five years for persons convicted of FLQ membership.

Persons could be arrested without warrant or bail and detained without charge under the new legislation. But the bill reduces to a maximum of seven days the time a suspect can be held without charge. The maximum now is 21 days.

Lawyers could be obtained immediately by persons arrested under the legislation.

During debate on the farm marketing bill, Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson said the government could not allow marketing agencies to impose tariffs on imported foods because international tariff agreements had to be observed.

But the government could probably get the same regulations for imported goods as for domestic products.

Conservative farm critic Harold Danforth (PC—Kent-Essex) had said Monday one of the major weaknesses of the bill is that it does not give marketing agencies or the agriculture minister powers to control food imports.

The grains bill which ran into strong Conservative opposition in the last session whipped through second reading after Mr. Olson called on MPs to pass the measure as a "great service to Canadian farmers."

Stanley Korchinski (PC—Mackenzie) said Manpower Minister Otto Lang also responsible for the Canadian wheat board, is gaining power at the expense of Mr. Olson by doing what the prime minister told him to do.

Len Benjamin (NDP—Regina-Lake Centre) dared the government to implement provisions that would permit it to order the railways to send boxcars to elevators of the farmers' choice.

It would put the elevator companies out of business. "They and these Tories are going to lose their agri-business friends."

Conservative House Leader Gerald W. Baldwin said his party would have been glad to support a bill to establish a protein grading system.

But the government had insisted on including other things in the bundle, one of which would give it increased power over grain movements.

War Measures Act

Some of 81 Still in Custody Will Face Criminal Charges

QUEBEC (CP)—Some of the 81 persons still in custody under the War Measures Act will face criminal charges, possibly including treason and sedition, by the end of the week, Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said Tuesday.

Mr. Choquette told a news conference lawyers for the justice department are still examining the files of those detained and preparing charges to be brought against some of them.

Asked whether charges of treason or sedition would be laid, Mr. Choquette said:

"At this time, I am not excluding any kind of charge."

The justice minister also said:

—He would have resigned if the government had rejected his position that terrorist demands in two kidnappings be refused; but the position was accepted unanimously after discussion.

—Police have "precise, useful information" on "certain persons" that will help their investigation of the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec which has claimed responsibility for the kidnappings.

—He has no recent information about the fate of James Cross, British trade commissioner kidnapped Oct. 5 and last heard from in a letter in his own handwriting Oct. 18. He would not say whether authorities have been told either that Mr. Cross is alive or that he is dead.

—The Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act introduced in the Commons Monday is "an improvement" over the War Measures Act but the Quebec government would like to see a permanent law rather than temporary measures.

Mr. Choquette would not say whether police believe persons now being held under the War Measures Act are the actual leaders of the FLQ, but said:

"I am satisfied that among the persons we have detained are persons who bear a very considerable responsibility for the disorders we have known in the province of Quebec."

However, rewards of up to $150,000 offered by the federal and provincial governments for information leading to the arrest of the kidnappers "proves to a certain extent the lack of success of the police work," Mr. Choquette said.

Pierre Laporte, late Quebec labor minister, was kidnapped Oct. 10, five days after Mr. Cross and minutes after demands of the Cross kidnappers were rejected by the government. He was found strangled to death Oct. 18.

Mr. Choquette said he believes separate FLQ cells carried out the two kidnappings, as notes from the kidnappers indicated.

An offer of safe passage to Cuba for the Cross kidnappers still stood if they returned the diplomat alive and well, but the Laporte abductors would be granted no such concessions, apparently even if they joined the Cross kidnappers and demanded to leave the country with them.

The justice minister would not say police had lost all traces of Paul Rose and Marc Carbonneau, the first two kidnap suspects named, because he did not want to hamper police work.

He said in autopsy report on Mr. Laporte, released Oct. 21, was incomplete because some tests and examinations had not been completed. A "more complete" report would be released "at the proper time," but it would "not contradict the report that has already been made."

Mr. Choquette was firmly convinced proclamation of the War Measures Act Oct. 16 was necessary because FLQ sympathizers would have engaged in "uncontrollable demonstrations" and "revolutionary action" if the government had not acted.

The government had acted on facts supporting its belief that Quebec was in a state of "apprehended insurrection" and that open violence and disorders could be expected.

The Liberal cabinet of Premier Robert Bourassa was unanimous on each government action from refusing to meet the terrorist demands to calling in the army and asking Ottawa for proclamation of the War Measures Act, Mr. Choquette said.

But the unanimity was sometimes achieved following discussion and explanation," and not all cabinet members were "at the same point" at the beginning of the crisis.

Police Expect Violence To Be Resumed by FLQ

OTTAWA (CP) — Experienced police say the current terrorist lull in Montreal is simply a tactic. The Front de Liberation du Quebec will be back, with another bombing, another kidnapping, perhaps an assassination.

"Once the guards are with drawn and the city relaxes, they'll spring another surprise," predicts one agent grimly. "It wouldn't make sense for them to take the risk now."

The FLQ has developed since 1963, when it made a modest debut by throwing molotov cocktails at three Montreal armories, into a disciplined terrorist group of unknown dimensions.

The passport for entry into a cell is commission of a serious crime. Police say this has forced them to back off from infiltration attempts in a number of cases.

The cell system itself limits the impact of infiltration. Pierre-Paul Geoffroy, serving a life sentence for 31 bombings in 1969, indicated that the handful of members in each cell know one another by first name only.

Police say that only one member of each cell has contact with an "upper-level cell. One published report, based on a "confidential RCMP report" but unconfirmed by police, says there are 22 armed cells with 130 members.

If one cell is infiltrated, there is practically no contact with the others. And the cell may not be activated for some time.

Sabotage Victim's Widow To Receive $150 Monthly

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Law Enforcement Compensation Board announced Tuesday it will give $150 a month for life to a Sarnia woman whose husband died in a train derailment caused by sabotage.

The recipient is Ila May Baker, 43, mother of three. Her husband, Charles, 44, a Canadian National Railways fireman, was killed in April, 1960.

Experts from the Centre of Forensic Science told the board the derailment was caused by a broken switch which had been cut with a hacksaw by unknown persons.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Climate Controls Success

We went up to close the summer house a few weeks ago, and the weather was so lovely that my older boy and I played tennis for several hours, to the shocking neglect of our closing-up chores.

When we walked off the court, he remarked on the difference between playing in summer and in fall. "We played twice as hard and didn't get half as tired," he observed, with amazing wisdom, "and once climate makes in your energy."

When we consider the great energetic achievements of mankind, we too rarely take the factor of climate into consideration, and we tend to become smug in knowledge that the northerly nations have contributed the most to modern technology and what we loosely call "progress".

Man operates at his optimum within an extremely narrow temperature range, both internally and externally. A rise or drop of merely six degrees of internal temperature renders us incapable of action or decision; and extreme cold or heat externally keep any culture stuck in its status quo, content just to cope with its environment.

It is in the great temperate band of the globe that people have always exhibited the most vitality; and it is characteristic of our vanity that we credit our virtues, rather than our birth, for this advance into "civilization".

One set of tingles exhausted us in mid-August; four-and-a-scarcely tired us in mid-October. Nor is it merely the physical side that operates better in cold than in warmth—recent experiments at Emory University have shown that "the brain is hyper-sensitive to temperature and that physicians will find himself taking a long siesta in the afternoon, which is the sensible way to behave there. "Lassitude" is less an attribute of a people than a learned response to an environment.

The human species reacts more than it acts; and one of the fundamental things to which we react is our climate; after a week in southern Mexico, the most go-getting Northern American will find himself taking a long siesta in the afternoon, which is the sensible way to behave there. "Lassitude" is less an attribute of a people than a learned response to an environment.

productive machinery of the human organism. Only in the moderate zone do we find cyclical changes of temperature, which act to revitalize people. A "one-season" area may be more comfortable but this very comfort inhibits new efforts and responses.

It is part of our cultural chauvinism to blame semi-tropical or tropical peoples for being "lazy" and taking no heed for the future; but such climate induces torpor, especially when you know that tomorrow will be pretty much like today and yesterday.

Mideast Truce Will Continue

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Extension of the Middle East ceasefire that was to have officially ended at 5 p.m. EST today has been assured but the prospects for peace talks has become more uncertain than ever.

Assurance of the extension was given here by Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad after a resolution was passed in the General Assembly calling for three additional months' resumption of talks under Gunnar Jarring, UN Middle East peace negotiator.

Riad also said that Egypt will enter into talks with Jarring. These talks have been stalled since August by an Israeli boycott over charges that Egypt violated the ceasefire by moving Soviet-made missiles into the Suez standstill zone.

Israel has already given assurances of an indefinite extension of the ceasefire.

The 21-country Afro-Asian resolution was passed in the assembly by votes of 57 for, 16 against and 39 abstentions. Seven Arab countries refused to vote and other countries stayed away.

Canada and Britain abstained, France and the Soviet bloc and most of the non-aligned supported it and the United States and most Western countries opposed it.

Western countries, with the exception of France, felt that the wording of the resolution was biased in favor of the Arabs and that it would hurt Security Council Resolution 242 of November, 1967, which is the basis for all Middle East negotiations.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban rejected it and warned that its passage will delay even longer the resumption of the Jarring talks.

He warned also that Israel will take a new look at 242—which it has supported along with Egypt and Jordan—in the light of the passage of the resolution.

He said the "new material" in the Afro-Asian resolution and its lack of balance puts the standing of 242 into question.

He said that less than half the 127-member assembly supported the resolution.

The resolution calls for Israeli withdrawal from captured Arab lands without using the 242 language of saying that such a withdrawal is to be to secure and recognized boundaries. And where 242 calls for a just solution of the Palestine Arab refugee problem the new resolution calls for the recognition of the "rights" of the Palestinians.

London Is Facing New Blitz By Garbage and Guy Fawkes

LONDON (AP) — London's fire brigade mobilized today for its toughest assignment since the blitz of the Second World War.

Practically every youngster in the country will be celebrating Guy Fawkes night, anniversary of the abortive 1604 plot to blow up Parliament.

Bonfires and firecrackers are the means of celebration, and this year the youngsters have combustible material on hand as never before. A three-week strike by garbagemen has left streets piled high with rubbish.

Every Guy Fawkes night produces its crop of uncontrollable fires and blindings and maimings from premature firecracker explosions.

Special patrols will be mounted by police in London's West End entertainment district, where anarchists and the outlawed Irish Republican Army are thought likely to start trouble.

Half Home's Roster Perish

MONTREAL (CP) — Seventeen of 34 residents of a home for the aged died of smoke asphyxiation early today when fire broke out in the basement of the suburban Pointe aux Trembles home.

Firemen said the blaze followed a furnace explosion about 4 a.m. in the basement of the Foyer St. Bernadette, two adjoining three-storey duplexes made of brick and stone.

Fourteen of the victims were found still in their beds. One was in a wheelchair and two persons died later in hospital.

Lucien Paradis, 63, owner of Foyer Ste. Bernadette who lives in a nearby house, went to the scene when the alarm first sounded.

He struggled inside through heavy clouds of smoke and succeeded in carrying four residents to safety.

"I could do nothing more," he said later, his hands, face and hair singed and burned.

He tried to operate a fire extinguisher, but dropped it when the nozzle was too hot to handle.

There was one nurse on duty at the time, and Mr. Paradis said it was normal practice to have only one working between midnight and 8 a.m.

A fire department official said the blaze apparently resulted from an overspill of oil around the furnace.

"The fire never reached the top floor," he said. But heavy

Hydro Plans Two Port Hope Stations

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Hydro plans two generating stations, possibly both nuclear, on land west of Port Hope in Hope Township on Lake Ontario, a meeting heard here Wednesday night.

The meeting was told that Hydro has now purchased or optioned 1,800 acres along the lake to accommodate two nuclear fuel generating stations or one nuclear and one oil-fired station.

The special meeting of hydro engineers and the township planning board was called to find out what access routes for power lines from the plants would be available.

Hydro officials stressed that no decision has yet been made on what types of plants would be built.

T. B. Reynolds, Hydro plant development engineer noted that Hydro is already building a 2,000-megawatt unit at Bath, 25 miles west of Kingston on Lake Ontario. He said the Bath site was also large enough to build a duplicate plant on the same site.

He said: "We have not made a firm commitment on Wesleyville yet and the decision on the second plant will not be made for at least two years."

Rough Road Lies Ahead for Nixon

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon now faces the urgent task of putting into shape a political strategy to carry him into the 1972 presidential election campaign following the inconclusive results of Tuesday's mid-term election.

Both the Democrats and Republicans claimed victory, but there is little doubt that Nixon faces a rough road ahead for the next two years.

President Nixon said his hand has been "enormously strengthened" on defence and foreign policy by changes in the Senate.

The Democrats said they were happy with the election results, in which they defeated 13 Republican governors while losing only two statehouses, won half a dozen state legislatures, increased their lead in the house and, most importantly, retained their lead in the Senate, albeit with a reduced majority.

This, Democratic National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien said, was a clear-cut victory in the face of Nixon's unprecedented campaigning for so-called law and order candidates.

O'Brien claimed the effort by Nixon and Vice-President Spiro Agnew to try to link the Democrats with violence and dissent had failed miserably, and he said Nixon had suffered a resounding defeat and would suffer another one in 1972.

Although the Republicans failed to gain seven seats to win control of the Senate, Nixon did pick up two seats in the upper house. He claimed that the defeat of several of his liberal senatorial critics by conservative candidates has given the Republicans a working majority on key foreign policy and defence issues.

With Democrats and Republicans each likely to have the support of one third-party or independent election victory, the Senate lineup stood at 54 Democrats, 43 Republicans.

The result of the race in Indiana between incumbent Democrat Vance Hartke and Republican challenger Richard Roudebush is still undecided.

Democrats posted an eight-seat net gain in the House of Representatives—smaller than history's pattern—with one race still in doubt. The lineup there: 254 Democrats, 180 Republicans.

Agnew's Political Fate in Doubt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The political future of Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew remains a question mark following President Nixon's claim, of Republican victory in Tuesday's Congressional elections.

Some members of Nixon's inner circle remain divided as to whether Agnew should be nominated for second place on the ticket in an expected Nixon bid for re - election in 1972.

Some of Agnew's critics within the administration say they will be watching how the vice-president conducts himself in the months immediately ahead.

Group Sees Population As Greatest Threat

Belleville's newest organization surfaced last week at a city council session — and met with scant sympathy from Mayor J. Russell Scott.

Corbing population growth in Canada "had to be a joke" the mayor said in response to a letter from Zero Population Growth calling for a family planning clinic in Belleville.

But local members of the organization are deadly serious about the environmental crisis facing not just Canada, but the entire world.

Their concern concentrated a few months ago in the Belleville branch of the international organization, headed by Dr. R. E. Bellamy of the Canada department of agriculture's Research Institute here.

Basically, Zero Population Growth is an organization dedicated to stopping pollution. But its members have bypassed action on what they consider to be symptoms of the disorder — air and water pollution, noise, overcrowding, slums, ghettos, shortages of hospitals, schools and public services, increasing tax burdens, social tension and violence.

ZPG considers people to be the prime contaminating factor in environmental pollution. And it proposes to do something about it by lobbying for a halt to the population explosion — including a capital to limit their families to two children at the most.

At this rate of reproduction, the birth and death rates would become equal and Canada's population in stable within about 75 years at 33 million people.

Motivating the international organization is the conclusion of many scientists that the human race is doomed, and the deadline given by UN president U Thant for man's survival is 10 or 15 years.

"All efforts to overcome the ecological crisis (pollution) will eventually be erased by population growth," says the brief presented to city council by Dr. Bellamy, Dr. Peter Harris and L. F. Reid.

"The provinces, federal government, and municipalities seem sadly blind to the relationship between overcrowding and pollution."

"Clearly, the ecological crisis (the disharmony in the relationship between man and his environment) is not phosphates, DDT, mercury, and the rest, as our leaders at all levels of government pretend it is," say ZPG supporters.

"These are but manifestations of the underlying problem. Although meaningful pollution laws are urgently needed, these efforts will be quickly erased if our leaders continue to ignore the roots of the problem."

Ski Club Forming

PICTON (Staff) — Skiing enthusiasts will meet at Bennett Hall next week (Nov. 9) to form a provisional executive for a ski club with runs located at McCauley Mountain owned by the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority.

A steering committee met last week with representatives of the conservation authority and received permission to cut ski trails on the 125-acre land parcel south of Picton. The authority has agreed to lease the property to the proposed club for an undetermined annual sum.

Volunteers worked yesterday on the steep slope blazing their first trail. The ski club can be formed only if sufficient enthusiasm is shown by those interested. Students at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute have displayed interest in the project and have been asked to volunteer their time in assisting with clearance of the trails.

A survey taken locally several weeks ago reported 700 persons eager to tackle the slopes. One promoter of the suggested ski club emphasized that it would be a county project welcoming enthusiasts from throughout Prince Edward.

The local group has adopted the objectives of the international organization and is now educating its own members and the public at large on the crisis.

Lists of books on the subject are available, and ZPG has asked the public library and local bookstores to stock recommended literature.

Its brief to city council fulfilled another objective — to encourage politicians, administrators and leaders of opinion to take a stand on the need for population stability.

Encouragement of contraceptive techniques, including making birth control advice available to all through public clinics is another major objective of ZPG. Its appeal for a local health unit-sponsored family planning clinic here was ZPG's first public move in Belleville.

As well as urging limitation of families to two children, ZPG encourages adoption for couples desiring large families.

And the group supports repeal of laws restricting voluntary abortion and sterilization.

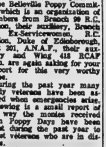
Canadian branches of ZPG take a dim view of limiting the size of this country's major cities and developing the uninhabited north as a solution to over - crowding and pollution.

They blast the "northern myth" with proof that the totalitarian state of Russia has been unable to control the growth of its cities despite stringent regulations.

And attempts to populate the mid - Canada development corridor have met with success. Industries such as Falconbridge and Inco have difficulty getting blue collar workers to stay even a few months, despite high incentive bonuses.

The northern environment is "fragile" scientists say, due among other factors to the short growing season. A northern lake, for example, could withstand only a small increment of the pollutants that go daily into Lakes Ontario and Erie.

A city of 100,000 people in the north is equivalent in terms of its relationship to the surrounding environment to a city of several million in the south.



"I am pessimistic about the situation," admits Dr. Bellamy, "But as long as there is life, we have to try to preserve it, and I intend to go down fighting for a place on this planet for the three or four generations that come after me."

Membership in the organization is open to all interested citizens and further information can be obtained from Dr. Bellamy or Dr. Harris at the Research Institute.

Bob Cobbledick and Dwarf

Dwarf Apple Varieties Could Help Cut Costs

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Robert Cobbledick, fruit and vegetable specialist for the Ontario Department of Agriculture in Picton has suggested that Prince Edward County apple growers can "dwarf" their composition to reducing production costs.

His observation follows a study of dwarf apple trees growing in approximately 20 county orchards. These miniatrees originated 70 years ago with the British Research Station of East Malling. Small trees were bred and the first dwarfs released in the early 1920s. The trees seemed plagued by root aphids and a new scores of root stalk resistant to this insect was developed by the Morton Malling Research Station and released approximately 20 years ago.

Canadian agriculturists displayed interest in these experiments and a similar series of root stalks was developed in Ottawa. Both series resemble the Malling. The first called the Ottawa hybrid and the second the Ottawa. Both are in experimental stages

In Prince Edward County records show that apple growers Allan Weese, RR 1, Carrying Place was among the first county growers to experiment with dwarf trees locally. He has several dwarf trees now 18 years old. The dwarf trees seen in county orchards exhibit three size degrees including, semi-standards, semi-dwarf and dwarf.

The standard apple tree grows approximately 25 feet in height while a semi-dwarf ideally stands 16 feet high or less. Dwarf trees grow less than ten feet tall.

The apple varieties found most commonly on these root stalks are McIntosh, Delicious and Northern Spy.

The advantages of these "short cuts" in apple production include faster harvesting, earlier pruning, impressive yields and earliness in bearing. Because the tallest of the dwarf trees is usually 14 feet high, ladders are not needed as often in picking the fruit.

Statistics show that a dwarf series called Malling 9 can be harvested at the rate of 14 crates an hour since ladders are not used. The average standard apple tree allows pickers to harvest at a speed up to six crates an hour.

The dwarf tree can be pruned readily since it has been trained in a central leader with branches shooting from it in clean - cut bevel. Ladders usually are unnecessary for pruning these trees.

Standard trees show a greater growth tendency and overbranching demands careful pruning from a ladder. The more complicated branch growth of the standard tree makes pruning a time-consuming chore.

Mr. Cobbledick commented that statistics compiled in other parts of North America show that the average dwarf tree orchard yields more than 1,000 bushels to the acre. In contrast the average well - cared - for standard tree yields 600 bushels to the acre. The fruit and vegetable specialist's personal experience in Ontario, however, has shown the dwarf tree does not outproduce the standard to a marked degree, but does equal it.

Dwarf trees are early bearers and will produce their first fruit, in some series, in the fourth year. At 12 to 15 years of age the dwarf tree produces at its full potential.

Standard trees bear their first fruit in their sixth year and reach their maximum rate of production between their 30th and 25th years of growth.

The fruit harvested from dwarf trees can usually be graded as 90 per cent fancy and while the yield of the standard tree produces approximately 75 per cent fancy grade.

Because of their structure dwarf trees can offer apple growers definite advantages there are terms in the apple." Approximately 454 Malling 9 dwarf trees are required to plant one acre, spacing the trees 8 ft. by 12 ft. In comparison, only 45 to 50 standard trees are needed to plant one acre.

The dwarf tree cannot produce the root system of a larger tree and therefore certain series must often be wired or staked. Standard trees are hardier than dwarf varieties but no substantial loss of these dwarfs has been recorded in Prince Edward. Mr. Cobbledick remarked that the dwarf tree is more sensitive than the standard tree but if managed properly will thrive.

In Hastings County, three of its eight apple growers have dwarf trees in their orchards. The concept of the dwarf tree has been greeted with some hesitation in Prince Edward because growers recall a killing frost in 1932. Mr. Cobbledick suggested that county growers are skeptical of the dwarf tree's hardiness in the event of a similar frost in future.

He feels, however, that the dwarf tree can assist growers to cut cutting production costs. The cost of apple production has become increasingly competitive with the continuing loss of export markets, especially Britain through its application to the commons market.

Mr. Cobbledick observed that county growers will eventually have to compete with the United States in cost parbushel and quality. The cost per acre can be reduced if picking and pruning times can be cut and apple quality upgraded. Since the dwarf tree provides these advantages, mini - fruit trees seem a logical method of efficiently "shrinking" the competition.

Historical Group Meeting Nov. 6

The Quinte Historical Sites and Parkways Association will hold its annual meeting at Royal Military College, Kingston, Nov. 6 at 8:15 p.m.

The Association, instrumental in persuading the provincial government to save the Fairfield houses on the Bath Road, has as its objective the preservation of historic sites, buildings, public amenities, and the natural beauty and recreational facilities in the Quinte area.

Chairman during its 13-year history have been Professor A. E. M. Lower of Queen's University and Judge G. F. Chance of Napanee.

It is now urging the government to consider Highway 33 as a parkway, stretching from Kingston to Picton, but also including the Carrying Place section of Highway 33.

At the annual meeting David Adlers, museums manager of the Cataraqui Conservation Authority, will speak on pollution and the role of the conservation authority.

Interested persons in Hastings county may contact Donald E. Boyce at 968-3623 for transportation.

Half of Inmates in Home for Aged Die in Fire

clouds of smoke filled the building. Most of the victims' bodies were found on the top floor.

Norman Paradis, 24-year-old son of the owner, said firemen were very fast in answering the alarm

"But the patients had to be carried out one by one. Many, out of shock, just could not walk."

"I don't understand why so many died," the elder Paradis said.

"We had yearly fire inspections and government inspectors visited the home two weeks ago and were satisfied with the safety measures."

Mr Paradis said he was awakened by his barking German shepherd dog.

"My wife was already up and running into the kitchen to see what was happening."

He said his wife was awakened by an alarm operated from the nursing station in Ste. Bernadette to his own house, about 20 yards behind the home for the aged.

He rushed upstairs, coughing in the billowing smoke. He said he heard screaming and moaning.

Some residents managed to grab some clothing and make their way out into chilly 40-degree overnight temperatures.

"I carried one man out, then a woman, then another woman and another man," said Mr. Paradis

"But some were so heavy I couldn't move anymore. I was so exhausted."

He said that by this time some neighbors in the residential area, north of the CNR railway tracks, arrived on the scene but they could do little. The smoke was too blinding.

Six of the 17 survivors were taken to hospital, where they received emergency oxygen treatment. The others, including the nurse, Helene Provencher, were taken to another hospital.

At the second hospital, in nearby Repentigny, there were tears and tension as efforts were made to set up a makeshift emergency ward. None of nine survivors taken there were seriously injured, but some were in shock.

When Mr. Paradis, the home's owner, arrived for treatment, some of the survivors hugged and kissed him.

"Thank you, thank you for saving us," one old lady wept.

Exalphat Gascon, 94, said he awakens about 4:15 a.m. every day to wash and dress. This morning as he went to the bathroom he smelled smoke.

"I didn't like it," he said, "so I went back to my room and got under covers."

That's where he was found when rescue came.

Belleville Shopper Sets New Record

A Belleville housewife today may have proved herself one of Canada's fastest shoppers.

Mrs. Ada Bush, 19 Willow Drive, was one of two women who won a three-minute food store shopping spree in a contest sponsored by the Belleville Plaza Merchants' Association.

In a three-minute sprint along the aisles of the eastend plaza's A and P store, Mrs. Bush harvested groceries worth $174.99.

Average value of groceries collected in such contests is $90, said Joseph Schmitz, sales promotion and advertising consultant who supervised the event.

Companion contest winner, Anne Marie Deryaw, 273 Ann Street, was closer to the average during her lightning tour of the nearby Dominion store.

Miss Deryaw, a 21-year-old Unemployment Insurance Commission typist who wore running shoes for the event, gathered groceries valued at $83.82.

The contest was part of the plaza's eighth-birthday promotion program staged in October.

Shades of 1605

In the War Measures Act, or the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act which the Government is seeking to have passed in its place, really such a terrible thing? The "bleeding-hearts" who are concerned with the wellbeing of FLQ and separatist sympathizers, rather than with the subversive threat to the nation or with the fate of the late Pierre Laporte and the still missing James Cross may think it is.

Perhaps these people should cast their minds back more than three centuries to the Britain of that day and the Gunpowder Plot. Consider what happened to dissenters then, and particularly to one Guy Fawkes. A member of a prominent Yorkshire family, Fawkes' early religious training was as an Anglican, but after his father's death in 1579 and his mother's subsequent marriage to a Roman Catholic he was converted to Roman Catholicism. His religious zeal, as well as his adventuresome spirit, led him to leave England in 1593, at the age of 23, and enlist in the Spanish army in The Netherlands. Fawkes served until 1604, earning a reputation for courage and determination.

Meanwhile in England, a small group of disgruntled Catholics led by Robert Catesby was planning to blow up the parliament building while the king (James I) and his ministers were present. Since the plotters were well known they needed someone of military experience who had been away from England for some time. They decided upon Fawkes and in 1604 he was summoned from The Netherlands.

Fawkes joined the conspirators and assuming the name John Johnson he posed as a servant in a house they rented abutting upon the parliament building. Abandoning an attempt to dig a tunnel to a point directly under the chamber of the House of Lords, the plotters rented an adjoining cellar and Fawkes was given the task of laying the explosives. He brought in at least 20 barrels of gunpowder, placing several iron bars over them to increase their destructiveness and concealing the lot with a covering of faggots and coals.

That was as far as it went. The government learned of the plot and Fawkes was arrested on the evening of November 4, 1605. At first he refused to name his fellow conspirators, but after being tortured on the rack, he revealed all. Tried before a special commission in January 1606, Fawkes was found guilty and executed four days later.

Today, November 5, is the anniversary of the Gunpowder Plot, or Guy Fawkes Day as it is known. In England it is celebrated with fireworks and the burning of "guys."

Pantsuits 'In'

Following the trend in Los Angeles and Montreal, nurses at Toronto's Wellesley Hospital now can wear pansuit uniforms if they wish. About 20 nurses made the switch initially and doctitors more have followed suit (if readers will pardon the pun) since.

Meanwhile, Toronto's city hall guides have a problem. They do not like the new pantsuit uniform designed for them by Property Commissioner Harry Rogers of all people (what does a property commissioner know about women's clothes?).

Now Mr. Rogers has been ordered by the executive committee to design a new uniform and, so the report goes, to consult the girls this time. The old uniform incidentally makes the girls look like movie ushers and we should think for this reason alone a change is desirable. For that matter, maybe the movie ushers would like something different too. Got to keep up with the times you know!

Meanwhile, we wonder are the chic young women guides at the Toronto-Dominion Centre in Toronto contemplating any change of uniform. Hitherto they have worn miniskirts and jackets. Midis seem to be out, so maybe it will be pantsuits for them this winter too.

Certainly, there has been no substantial swing to the much-heralded longer hemline. Even in Britain where it all began with Mary Quant and where the new styles reportedly have been taking hold, the miniskirt is alive and well. We pictured wearing one a motley group of young people cleaning up the sidewalk outside No. 10 Downing Street (affected like the rest of London by the strike of municipal workers) is Lady Caroline St. John Ffrench Blake, daughter of the Duke of Albans.

Britain still swings then, and a member of the aristocracy is a part of it, while also showing that a little street sweeping is not beneath her dignity.

Ran Counter to FLQ's Anarchist Philosophies

Laporte Told Quebecers the Truth About Themselves

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It has been three weeks since the terrorists of the FLQ murdered Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, and almost nothing has been said that it was his courage which cost him his life.

It was not any new - found courage, summoned up from the depths of his soul in the desperation of that last terrible week of his life.

It was the kind of courage he had from the very start of his working life, first as a student, then a journalist, and finally a political leader.

It was the courage to tell people the unpopular truth.

It came shining through in his early days when he was one of the few reporters in Quebec to dare to write that Premier Maurice Duplessis was a tyrant.

And it perhaps shone its brightest in his time as Minister of Labor in a province with a frighteningly high rate of unemployment and depressingly low level of poverty.

He was one of the few, the very, very few political leaders in his province, over far too many years, to have had simple basic guts to tell the people of Quebec that their economic future depended on their willingness to work hard and efficiently.

It is altogether reasonable to suggest, even, if you think about it for a moment, to know the truth of it . . . that this, essentially, was why the FLQ "executed" him.

To the FLQ, this doctrine of Pierre Laporte was not only treason. It was dangerous, undermining the foundation upon which they were basing and building their reign of revolutionary terror.

For the truth Pierre Laporte was telling could have been fatally damaging to the FLQ.

He could have taken the supposedly popular stance, the approved way — among moderate separatists and the extremist FLQ alike — of winning votes, by blaming all of Quebec's troubles on the federal Government, on English-speaking Canada, as the United States, on the huge majority non-French community of all of North America.

There is unemployment, on the average worse than anywhere else in Canada? Blame it on Ottawa.

There is poverty, in few places as shocking as in the slums of Montreal? The hated Anglos" are responsible for all the misery.

Had Pierre Laporte taken such a political position — and anything even remotely approaching it — he could have been a hero among those people (and Quebec has no monopoly on the breed) who find their greatest satisfaction and reward in escaping from work, refusing responsibility and blaming it on anyone except their own failings.

That was the basic creed of the FLQ, and their revolutionary conviction went to the extreme of not just talking and threatening, but actually trying by bombs, guns, kidnapping and murder, to tear apart the kind of world they hated.

The FLQ is the hysterical anarchy of classic.

Lower the key of dissent a score or still - disturbing octaves.

Lower it all the way down the scales of violence to the point where perhaps it bottoms out . . . in the youngster who can not be bothered with school, not trying, and who thinks, by listening on street corners and watching the hippies, that there is some strange sort of status in being a dropout.

And then, late, discouragingly, even impossibly late for trying to catch up, finds to his dismay — smoldering into flaming resentment — that there are no high-paying or pleasantly interesting, stimulating nor rewarding jobs for the utterly unskilled and illiterate.

Such unhappy and frustrated people are the makings of the mob.

Carefully cultivated by the demagogues from radical Right to Left, peaking with the extremist of the FLQ terrorist, they can be persuaded that the system" is to blame for their self-imposed misery and the easy success that comes to others — and that the bomb, the gun, and ultimately murder is the great and only equalizer.

Pierre Laporte as a political leader was simply too truthful for his own good. He told it like it was to Quebec, Ottawa, economic future of the province and the well - being of all who live in it rather than the willingness to get on with the never - ending job of making it."

For a politician it is tough to tell the hard truth.

It is so much easier to pass the buck of blame — just listen to the House of Commons sometime — Quebec blames Ottawa, the West blames the East, the East blames the Americans, Ottawa blames the provinces, the cities blame the provinces, and Ottawa, too. Ottawa blames the world economy. Nobody says, okay, maybe it is I. And some days I do. Pierre Laporte dies, martyr to truth.

"That's all I need — I've already aged 10 years worrying about pollution!"

What Pollution Has Done on the Mazinaw

Gone Is the Wildlife, the White Pine and Clear Waters

The following statement on pollution on the Mazinaw has been issued by the Mazinaw Property Owners' Association through the chairman of its pollution committee, David L. Harcourt of Belleville. Copies have been sent to Prime Minister Trudeau, Premier Roberts of Ontario, Ontario Water Resources Commission chairman D. J. Collins, area conservation authorities and other interested parties.

In an introduction to the statement, Mr. Harcourt notes: "We believe that by co-operative efforts of government agencies and ourselves we can successfully meet the challenge of living with our wildness without destroying it."

We believe that we are in a unique position, being at the headwaters of a considerable length of watercourse. We, in our heavy-handed way have polluted the very headwaters of the Mississippi which empties into the Ottawa River at Arnprior. We are, therefore, in a position to clean up our own pollution — namely the exclusion of man-made or passed minerals, nutrients and pathogenic organisms into the watercourse.

Now then, Government (s) this is where we need your aid. We are seeking your assistance in removing the pollution which plagues our area.

Specifically, we need your technological aid at, for example, OWRC, Health, Municipal, and Lands and Forests levels, to mention just a few.

The reason most of us own property in the area is perhaps, because of the abundance of rock — precambrian — and the overburden of pine, poplar, birch, elm, basswood as we well know, the absorption rate of granite related to septic tank seepage tiles is somewhat limited. Therefore, to exclude the direct influx of sewage into the watercourse, it is understood that a good number of our members have septic tanks, holding tanks, with pump-out facilities.

We need disposal areas, properly-designed, for disposal of septic tank wastes with our acquiescence of site location(s).

We recommend that private companies be asked to tender for this pump-out business, to dispose of these collected wastes at provided sites, which are sanctioned by the Ontario Department of Health and OWRC

Sell the processed nutrients back to us for our own use at cottage or home. The sites for disposal that are in mind are on crown land. We own crown land? We, as taxpayers, do. Let us now come together, Government agencies. Tell us our causes of pollution through your technological facilities — those that are harmful to our ecological balance. Then we shall have to isolate these causes and concentrate our waste disposals at approp riate sites(s), preferably Government-sponsored.

In some 60 years in the area, we have witnessed the disappearance of the duck hawks (peregrine falcons), the osprey, the bald eagle, the absolute end of the Black Redstone — white pine — the towering, the magnificent pine, a stature the like of which will not be seen again in our lifetime; the complete decimation of our deer herd; the complete depletion of our duck population; in our area the complete failure of the whitefish to run in the fall; presently the spring run of pickerel is infinitesimal — whereas both, the whitefish and pickerel used to run in the thousands; the absence of the cisco in the lake; where we caught trout, now only chub; where we once enjoyed watching raccoons cleaning clams in the moonlight — there are now fresh water clams or racoons; where we used to swim as children on fresh, clean and sandom bottoms are now weeds; where we caught big pike and pickerel, now only panfish and rock bass; the only big game now seems to be bears, at the local garbage dumps.

Obviously, we have disrupted the fine structure, that the old lady, Mother Nature, has spent eons in developing.

Now then, gentlemen, when, do we stop violating Mother Nature and where, and how, do we start to clean up this extensive destruction of our watercourse and environment?

Gentlemen of government, may we state that we are firmly resolved to join up the headwaters of Ontario's Mississippi; we need your assistance. With the help of Government(s) we can ensure that the water that passes over the dam at the bottom end of Mazinaw Lake is fit to drink.

We need the support of those who live and play below the dam on the Mazinaw, on the Mississippi watershed. We know that the Ontario Government has created the Mississippi Valley Conservation Authority. Gentlemen of this Authority, we, as interested taxpayers and as students of survival and as representatives of a good number of taxpayers ask for your assistance before the upper waters of the Mississippi become a cesspool.

We have outlined our position, Government(s). We ask that you move: move to help us, before we are all overcome by hydrogen sulphide bubbles emanating from what once were clean, pure headwaters.

We do not have a central office; we do not have secretarial and public relations staffs: our executive members are spread over Ontario. Thus, in order to reach all interested parties, we are approaching the news media to make our plight known.

People of the Government, please give this your immediate attention, so that we may leave a legacy of clean water to those who follow us.

Course Proposed For Firefighters

Loyalist College and the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Fire Aid Association may co-operate on a scheme of instruction and training for volunteer firemen in methods of firefighting.

Last night, at the association's regular monthly meeting, H. J. Butterill, director of extension programs at Loyalist College, was present to outline some of the background of the college and to explain how the organization of firefighting courses might operate.

Mr. Butterill told the association — comprised of fire departments from Belleville, Trenton, Wellington, Deseronto and other Hastings and Prince Edward municipalities — that the extension division co-operates with outside organizations.

"What can I do with mutual aid," he asked? "I'm enthusiastic, the organization is an important one."

Mr. Butterill said that he had talked with several fire officials to learn about the feasibility of such an educational program. He said that there had been some confusion with the project.

"The college is prepared to put on courses for volunteers. There are competent instructors in this area."

Mr. Butterill told the association that they could form an education committee to act with him on the project and to see what the association wanted for courses.

In a question and answer period, Mr. Butterill explained that there would be no educational restrictions in such a program. He added that it did not have to be at Loyalist but could be located under the auspices of the school in other areas in the two counties.

"Loyalist is not going to put on any Mickey Mouse operation," he said.

Men taking the course would be paid and their fees charged for the course could possibly be refunded if they passed. Course subjects were not discussed.

Robert Emerson, deputy chief of the Belleville Fire Department, was selected to head a committee of four as yet unselected praxes to be an education committee. The names, it was decided, of those on the committee will be entered at the December meeting of the mutual aid association.

Speedy Teacher

A Trenton High School teacher is winning distinction in national racing circles. Jerry Daca is shown above in racing togs with his slick new entry for the 1971 stock car season. The car will be featured at top circuits throughout North America in the coming year.

Trenton Teacher-Racer Readies for Next Year

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

Through the years, Jerry Daca teaches law, accounting and data processing at Trenton High School but on weekends he manoeuvres his car through the national stock car championships.

Jerry grew up with little interest in automobiles, not owning one until he came to Trenton five years ago but involvement with racing has developed fast for the native Hamiltonian.

Recently, he bought the Stock A Camaro of Stephanie Ruys de Perez, a circuit competitor herself and star of many recent gasoline commercials.

The Daca purchase now sits in a McGill Street garage waiting for a spring entry in top Canadian and American races. The purple GM product is already distinguished — it finished 11th in the Trans Am at Watkins Glen, N.Y. this year (North American championship for Class A sedans).

Although the Trenton teacher has been a member of the Quinte Auto Sport Club for three years, he did not begin his racing sideline until August 1969 after attending a track drivers' school at Harewood Acres near Hamilton.

Starting as a novice, Jerry has graduated to the big leagues. He received his national racing licence from the Canadian Auto Sports Clubs Association late last year.

In this season's competition he qualified for a licence that will admit him to international racing circles when he finished second in the Ontario Championship based on a ten-race schedule.

The first big event for Jerry this year was the Great Lakes Trophy Race at Harewood in April. He placed second in an unmodified Camaro.

In August, the Trentonian took fourth spot in the Toronto Grand Prix at Mosport against a pack of 33 starters.

Bad luck struck during the Canadian Championship at Mosport on the Thanksgiving weekend when the Daca Camaro's engine died from a broken water jacket.

Maurice Carter of Hamilton, a prime competitor on international circuits bought the cars this fall, a Chaparral from American racing ace Jim Hall and the unmodified Daca Camaro.

Jerry Daca explained yesterday that although stock car racing officials forbid "souped - up" entries, many modifications must be made to produce models in the name of safety.

When Jerry hits the circuit in the spring with his usual pit crew of students from Trenton High School, his new Peres Camaro will be modified.

The suspension system will be stiffened and the engine will be perfected in Toronto by a polishing and porting process in which all parts will be removed, x-rayed and reviewed of excess metal. These refinements alone will cost more than $2,000 but the result will be an engine that is made up properly — "the way it should have been done at the factory" Jerry says.

Racing stock cars in high competition is expensive. Maintenance costs alone on the Daca Camaro for the 1970 racing season were nearly $2,000. But the Trenton teacher contends that it is worth it.

There is an extreme exhilaration in racing both against others and yourself" Daca contends.

What does the 1971 season hold for the teacher and his student crew?

Jerry says he would like to race at Daytona in the spring but would not be able to break away from his teaching duties that include driver safety instruction.

However, the Trenton educator - racer says he will hit the track as much as possible in a superior car, the Peres Camaro.

Two Trans - Am (North American championship) meets are definitely on the agenda, one at Watkins Glen, the other at Mont Tremblant.

ART AND NATURE

VENICE (AP) — Argentine water-painter Nicola Garcia Urburu, armed with an authorization from anti-pollution authorities, dumped color into the Grand Canal and turned it bright green briefly. He said he has painted bodies of water in other cities and after trying it in Buenos Aires will "write a book on my unique experience."

Town Band Disbanding

CAMPBELLFORD (Special) — Campbellford Citizens' Band, which a few years ago placed second in its class in CNE competition, has decided to throw in the towel.

Town council at its last meeting received a letter from the band treasurer, Glen Vandewater, announcing the dissolution.

Among the reasons given for the dissolution were lack of interest and the fact that two executive members had moved away.

The band has a small cash balance. Uniforms and most of the instruments and music are stored at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall.

But council members would like to have further reasons for the dissolution and representatives of the band have been asked to attend the next meeting.

Fire Posters To Get Awards

Members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Fire Aid Association last night voted at their regular monthly meeting to purchase two plaques to be presented to the best grade five boy and girl in competition with fire prevention posters.

Belleville Fire Chief Leo Culhane made the suggestion to the association in an effort to introduce more competition into the annual fire prevention poster contest.

The posters have to be entered by February and will then be judged. Grade five students in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties are eligible.

North Trenton Plaza Requires Area Rezoning

TRENTON (Staff) — The planning board here is considering the application of a Toronto firm for the rezoning of a north-end residential area.

Sidney Homes Corp. proposes to build a 18-store shopping centre on Sidney Street between Barbara and Austin Streets but the property must first be zoned commercial.

The plan calls for a neighborhood plaza to serve the needs of new subdivisions in the vicinity. Developers contend that it will serve 3,200 people living in Tall Oaks, Brett Park, the Ontario Housing project and the other new adjacent subdivisions.

Representatives of Sidney Homes say they have polled residents of the area and that only minor objections were registered. About 90 per cent of residents, they say, favor the projected shopping centre.

First stage in the construction of the neighborhood shopping complex would be the building of a barber shop, beauty salon, butcher shop, bakery, bank, fabric shop and paint store.

A grocery store and hardware store would be added to the plaza at a later date.

The plaza, as planned, would be two - storeys high. The upper floor would contain apartment units.

A parking lot for residents would be located to the rear of the shopping centre and 75 spaces would be provided in front of the building for customer parking.

Trudeau Asked for Help

Sale of Ryerson Press Stirs Pot of Foreign Takeover

TORONTO (CP) — Protests against the sale of Ryerson Press to a United States subsidiary and a suggestion that efforts may be made to prevent such foreign takeover in future have been heard here Wednesday.

Stanley Randall, Ontario minister of trade and development, suggested in the legislature the province might get into the publishing business to help publishers who are facing foreign takeovers.

The Rabbi, Liberal education critic, called a news conference to announce that he is seeking Prime Minister Trudeau's help in the Ryerson affair and in future situations of a similar nature.

And outside the downtown office of the 140 - year - old Ryerson Press Ltd., 25 representatives of the New Democratic Party's nationalistic Waffle Group marched in a peaceful protest.

Cause of the activity is the announced sale of Ryerson by its owner, the United Church of Canada, to McGraw - Hill of Canada Ltd., a subsidiary of a United States publishing firm, for a reported $2 million.

Mr. Randall said that "one of these days" the government might be able to help floundering firms financially by buying into them.

He agreed to table correspondence between his department and Ryerson concerning the sale but declined to provide information on a reported offer by MacLean - Hunter Ltd., of Toronto, to buy the publishing firm.

In other business:

—Opposition Leader Robert Nixon said Transport Minister Irwin Haskett should intervene with Penn Central Railroad so that Ontario residents can use its passenger trains that run through southern Ontario from Buffalo to Detroit. He was commenting outside the house after hearing Mr. Haskett say the situation is involved.

—Darcy McKeough, minister of municipal affairs, said there was nothing to prevent a municipality from holding a plebiscite anytime. His comment came after Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) asked about the legality of a planned Hamilton plebiscite that will ask all citizens over 21 about building a civic stadium.

—George Kerr, energy and resources minister, said he couldn't intercede to assure that Ontario Hydro rates remain competitive over the next five years with other sources of energy. He had been asked on behalf of those who switched their heating systems to electricity and now faced new increases in hydro rates.

—Labor Minister Dalton Bales said a labor dispute between Franklin Manufacturing Co (Canada) Ltd. of Oak and the International Association of Machinists is "a very difficult strike situation." He did not reply directly when asked by Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party leader, if the American-owned subsidiary would be gradually eliminate by its Cleveland-based headquarters.

—The provincial government moved to make Metropolitan Toronto fully responsible for building and maintaining overnight lockups for people awaiting court appearances. Corrections Minister Allan Grossman said that an amendment to the Toronto Act, introduced in the legislature Tuesday is designed to end a dispute between Metro and the province over which is responsible for the lockups.

Province To Assist Immigrants

TORONTO (CP) — R. M. Warren, deputy provincial secretary, said Wednesday Ontario is going to spend $3,562,000 to help immigrants settle in the province.

Mr. Warren said in an interview the money is being distributed to various agencies through the community development branch of the provincial secretary's office.

He said the money will be used to establish programs to assist immigrants on their arrival in Ontario and during the months in which they become settled.

Special services for Indians are included in the over-all program, he said.

Mr. Warren said the department hopes to have reception centres set up by April for immigrants arriving at Toronto International Airport, Dorval Airport in Montreal, and train and bus terminals in major centres.

"Let's take a drive. I'd like to see some REAL living color."

Violence Said Tolerated

SARNIA (CP) — Mark Kellow, president of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce, Wednesday condemned all breaches of law and order in Canada — even fighting at sports events.

"For too many years we have been too tolerant . . . of violence as it has been used on the picket line during labor disputes . . . as it has been perpetrated in our stadiums and on our playing fields in the name of sport . . . and of the violence which has occasionally emerged during political meetings in our country . . . at so-called 'peace meetings and meetings of dissident groups," he told the Sarnia Chamber of Commerce.

Leprosy Cases Still Appear

OTTAWA (CP) — About 15 cases of leprosy have appeared in Ontario in the last two or three years, Senator J. A. Sullivan (PC—Ontario) told the upper chamber Wednesday.

Senator Sullivan, a Toronto surgeon, was speaking in debate on second reading of a bill to repeal the Leprosy Act of 1926, giving responsibility for the control of leprosy to provincial health departments, which handle other communicable diseases.

In an interview later, Senator Sullivan said the leprosy cases he was referring to mainly involve people coming into Canada from other countries.

He cautioned that since leprosy conceiving in children may not be noticed for some time, it is possible in these days of easy mobility for a child carrying the disease to enter Canada undetected.

Supermarkets In Price War

TORONTO (CP) — A price war erupted in Ontario supermarkets Wednesday as competitors followed Dominion Stores Ltd., of Toronto, Canada's largest supermarket chain, and started slashing prices.

Dominion closed its 240 stores in the province Monday in cut prices on 7,000 items, then listed hundreds of items in newspaper advertisements Tuesday.

Company spokesmen said sales were up in some stores 30 to 80 per cent over the previous week.

Dominion closed its 240 stores in the province Monday in cut prices on 7,000 items, then listed hundreds of items in newspaper advertisements Tuesday.

Company spokesmen said sales were up in some stores 30 to 80 per cent over the previous week.

Managers of Dominion stores Wednesday, listing prices lower than Dominion prices, Dominion reacted quickly. Store managers were instructed in the early afternoon to meet competitory prices.

A Dominion spokesman said prices were changing hourly as the various chains scrambled for business.

Dominion, specifically a retailer, has more than half its stores located in Ontario and is fighting to hold its share of the Ontario market.

Great A and P Co. Ltd., of Toronto, has about 198 stores in Ontario but can rely for support on its parent company, Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. Inc. of New York, with more than 4,000 stores in the United States.

Loblaw Groceterias Co. Ltd. of Toronto, and its subsidiaries —Key-B, Power and Super City stores—have interests in manufacturing and real estate that could contribute to resources. The group encompasses about 130 stores in Ontario.

Steinberg's Ltd. of Montreal, has 45 Miracle Food Mart which have been making gains recently as food discounters. The company has savings from outside the province plus manufacturing and real estate interests.

Ontario Wholesale Ltd. has about 46 Food City discount stores and supplies numerous Independent Grocers Alliance (IGA) stores. Its wholesale operations would help offset retail losses.

The Art of Makeup

In a most professional-like manner Mrs. Joseph Burke applies makeup to Mrs. Charles Lear at the Sons of Jacob Ladies' Auxiliary tea and bazaar held at the Synagogue, Wednesday. Auxiliary president Mrs. Saul Fainbloom adjusts mirror, while Mrs. T. Schwab, overall co-convener with Mrs. Burke, looks on. The vanity booth was an added attraction at this year's event.

Japanese Decorations Highlight CWL Tea

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

The auditorium of St. Joseph's School had a distinctively Japanese atmosphere on Wednesday afternoon when the tea and bazaar sponsored by the CWL of St. Joseph's parish was in full swing. Large, brightly colored paper flowers with scalloped edges and fluted petals resembling Japanese parasols decorated the walls and contrasted with the cans of cherry blossoms in delicate sprays which were placed against a backdrop of red curtains on the stage.

Several of the booths were decorated with paper flowers and dividing the "bazaar" section of the auditorium from the tea room was a railing strung with colorful Japanese lanterns. The entrance to the tea room was a "doorway" made up of two screens covered with garlands of pink paper flowers, providing another little Japanese touch as rooms in many traditional Japanese homes are divided by screens rather than by doors.

One wall of the tea room was adorned by a huge painting resembling a mural, done by school children, depicting a Japanese scene. On the mural table, two candelabras with red and white candles, flanked a miniature rock garden, complete with rocks, cacti and shrubs and a little Japanese doll in the midst of it. Some of the smaller tables were decorated with tiny lanterns while others had small Japanese dolls bracing against mini flower arrangements as centre pieces. Even the serviettes were folded to resemble Japanse fans.

The convener of the tea and bazaar was Mrs. H. Carr-Brient and the co-convener was Mrs. D. Kruger. The conveners of the various booths were Mrs. D. Burtch (home bake table), Mrs. A. Eves (sewing), Mrs. W. Buckley (knitting), Mrs. G. Van-de-Water (teen boutique), Mrs. R. Scully (Christmas booth), Mrs. L. Townes (apron), Mrs. J. Quinn (paper back (books), Mrs. J. Fleming (religious booth). In charge of tickets was Mrs. J. Deely.

Pouring tea were Mrs. J. Whalen, Mrs. J. Jordan, Mrs. D. McLaren, Mrs. D. Donohoe and Mrs. J. Ireland and Mrs. M. Whalen. The hospitality convener was Mrs. E. Barrett.

Winners of prizes were Mrs. J. Enright (quilt and wall clock), Mrs. M. Noel D'Tilly (aprons). Mrs. O. Kruger (cake), Mrs. H. Carr-Brient (sweater set), Mrs. C. McKooey ($49.50) and Mrs. Zabeck (leather vest).

Deck the Halls!

Sons of Jacob Ladies' Auxiliary Holds Tea, Bazaar at Synagogue

By ALLISON STICKLE
Women's Editor

Burgundy, gold and shocking pink were keynote colors when the Sons of Jacob Ladies Auxiliary held its annual fall tea and bazaar on Wednesday afternoon with an auction sale in the evening.

Mrs. Ted Schwab and Mrs. Joseph Burke conveners of the event along with Auxiliary president Mrs. Saul Fainbloom warmly greeted the large number of guests at the entrance to the hall. Here the decor was especially eye - catching with huge golden urns containing large sprays of pampas grass and colorful autumn blooms, highlighted with an original sculptor sprayed in gold, all depicting the autumn theme.

An innovation this year was the vanity booth in shocking pink decor arranged by the conveners. Large crowds gathered throughout the afternoon as Mrs. Burke applied personalized professional makeup to various patrons. Beside this was an attractive boutique table with a fine array of costume jewelry, as well as purse and scarf accessories.

The entrance to the tea room was sentineled with two stately white fern stands where convener Mrs. Max Tuchmayer assisted by Mrs. Sydney Rose, Mrs. Harry Schwartz, Mrs. Rene Robertson and Mrs. Jerry Goldberg of Trenton invited the guests for a cup of tea. Across the full width of the platform was the attractive tea table with blue embroidered linen cloth, centred with colorful arrangement of gold and bronze mums in silver bowl enhanced with sparkling drop crystals. This was flanked with solitaire silver holders with white tapers, and silver tea services. The quartet guest tables were covered with burgundy cloths and centred with novel golden sprayed centrepieces on golden doilies.

Tea was poured by Mrs. Jack Goldberg of Trenton and Mrs. Gertrude Landenberg, and other members of the group assisted in serving.

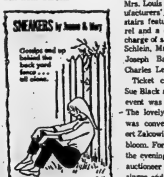
The various sales tables were decorated also in keeping with the color scheme and a bountiful bake table was convened by Mrs. Irvin Shulman assisted by Mrs. Jacob Albert and Mrs. Ben Katzman. The white elephant table had a grand array of miscellaneous items with the one end laden with an assortment of children's toys. Conveners here were Mrs. Michael Levine, Mrs. Jack Wanover, Mrs. Bruce Karten of Trenton assisted by Mrs. Stan Fisher. The plant booth in realistic garden effect complete with white picket fence was convened by Mrs. Louis Yanover. The manufacturers' booth located downstairs featured wearing apparel and a number of toys. In charge of sales were Mrs. Norschlein, Mrs. Sue Black, Mrs. Joseph Baum and Mrs. Charles Lear.

Ticket convener was Mrs. Sue Black and treasurer for the event was Mrs. Tillie Mazer. The lovely decor of the hall was convened by Mrs. Robert Zalowitz and Mrs. S. Fainbloom. For the auctiale in the evening Steve Barnie was auctioneer while Mrs. R. Weisinger and Anne Katzman assisted.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Carman Mark Golden Anniversary

Well over 100 guests gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carman, Belleville recently to honor them on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary.

Their home was attractively decorated for the occasion with many floral arrangements, gifts of relatives and friends and the tea table with white linen cut-work cloth, was centred with a beautiful three-tier anniversary cake flanked with candelabra holding six golden candles.



The couple received many congratulatory messages including those from Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, Premier John Robarts, leader of the opposition Robert Stanfield, John Diefenbaker, Gov.-General R. Michener, Lou Grills MP, R. T. Potter, MPP, Clarke Rollins MPP and Mayor J. R. Scott. They were also the recipients of a plaque from the Ontario governors.

During the celebration, the couple's two daughters Mrs. Eugene Kelly and Mrs. Elgin Moynes and daughters-in-law Mrs. Lavergne Carman and Mrs. Elwood Carman; also nieces Carol McCann and Joyce McCary. Grandchildren Laurie Moynes and Miss Cathy Carman greeted the guests at the door and Miss Ann Carman was in charge of the guest book.

Mr. and Mrs. Carman were married on Oct. 6, 1920 by the late Rev. G. Olford and attendants at that time were Bert McCann, brother of the bride and Miss Annie Carman who are now deceased. Mr. Carman served overseas in both World Wars. The couple farmed for a number of years on the old Carman homestead three miles west of Eldorado and after leaving the farm, Mr. Carman was employed by the Ontario Hydro and they moved to Belleville where they have since resided. He retired in 1960. Mr. Carman enjoys hunting, fishing and working in his garden when health permits. Mrs. Carman is active in lodge and church work and also enjoys working in their flower garden.

Along with four children the couple also have nine grandchildren.

The couple were also entertained at a family dinner at Sun Luck Garden.

School Discontinues Sex Education Program

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a teen-ager who lives in California. I am just sick about what has happened to the sex education program out here. A bunch of people got together and decided sex education was a Communist plot and they threw the whole program out of the public school system.

The idea that children should learn the facts of life from their parents is beautiful. It is also impossible in most families. For example, my mother is a lovely lady but she is the last person in the world I'd talk to about sex. When I asked her some questions two years ago (I was 12 then) she blushed and got flustered. Finally, she offered to make an appointment with our family doctor because "he could explain things better." I told her not to bother. He is older than my grandfather and has a very stiff personality.

Not one of my girl friends has been taught about sex by her parents. Either the parents are too embarrassed or they goof it up by trying to scare the kids to death. I asked a teacher in school (she is against sex education) if she really believed it was a Communist plot. She said, "No. The real reason is that adults are afraid if they talk about sex in school the kids will get aroused and go out and experiment!" What do you think about this? — IGNORANT IN ORANGE COUNTY.

DEAR I.I.O.C.: While I do not endorse all the material which has been prepared for use in public schools, most of it is excellent. I'd hate to see the entire program scrapped because of some tasteless cartoons of chickens and dogs copulating and a mamma doll and a papa doll in bed.

The ideal place for children to learn about sex is at home. But for the reasons you stated, very few children do learn at home. The information they pick up on the street is often incomplete or incorrect and it makes kids think sex is dirty. The notion that sex, if discussed in school, will arouse kids and encourage experimentation is a joke. Kids are experimenting, they have always experimented and they will continue to experiment. Sex drives are inborn. Pretending they do not exist will not cause them to disappear. Kids need to accept their sexuality as part of a well integrated personality. Moreover, they must be taught to handle their sexual impulses in a socially acceptable manner.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope "Mount Everest" (the guy who is 6' 5" and feels like King Kong) takes your advice and stands tall. My 15-year-old kid sister is 6' 1" and still growing. At age 12 she was the tallest person in the school. The poor girl was so miserable she was turning into a recluse. Last year a teacher talked some sense into her and now she's happy as a clam, looking forward to a career as a model. Nothing has changed but her attitude. — GLAD FOR HER.

DEAR GLAD: And then I wrote — "It's not what happens to you but how you take it that counts." Thanks for giving me an opportunity to say it again.

Mary Gives Recipe for White Christmas Cake

By MARY MOORE

As you read this, God willing, it will be early November, 1970. As I write this it is December 18, 1969.

My concoction of Christmas cooking, baking and entertaining reached such a pace I could not put on the brakes so for good measure I made our 1970 White Fruit Cake and served it as dessert with fruits and Irish coffee for a pre-Christmas party in 1969. It is a rare beauty and I hope our Christmas cake collectors cut this column now for filing for posterity.

1970 WHITE CHRISTMAS CAKE (Use 10" tube pan)

NOTE: There is no baking powder in this cake.

2 cups blanched almonds, chopped if desired
1 cup pale Sultana raisins
8 oz. (cup packed) mixed candied pineapple
8 oz. (1 cup) red glace cherries halved
4 oz. (½ cup) green glace cherries halved
4 oz. (¾ cup packed) mixed candied peel
¼ cup unsifted all-purpose flour (first amount)

Cream butter (no substitute) with 2 cups granulated sugar
6 eggs — yolks and whites separated
1 tsp. cream of tartar
3½ cups sifted all-purpose flour (second amount)
½ tsp. salt
½ cup milk
½ cup sherry, brandy or fine wine
1 tsp. vanilla
1 tsp. almond extract.

In bowl combine fruits and nuts and dredge them with the one-half cup flour.

In large bowl beat butter and sugar together until very light then beat in egg yolks well. Combine milk, sherry or brandy, vanilla, and almond extracts and add, alternately with flour sifted with salt, to butter mixture. Add floured fruits and nuts and mix thoroughly. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff and fold into batter. Line tube pan with buttered brown paper being sure, if pan has removable tube, to cover bottom crack to prevent batter seeping through. Press batter in pan firmly and bake at 275 deg. Fahr. at centre of oven for 3½ hrs. with waterpan below throughout entire baking period. Wrap in triple plastic bags and store at least a month before using. To vest decide it with a little sherry or brandy to mellow it.

At Christmas time I repeat with milk icing: Into a saucepan measure 1 tsp. butter, 1½ cups granulated sugar and ½ cup milk. Mix well then stir pot from sides to remove sugar granules. Boil to 224 deg. Fahr. — soft ball — and remove at once and let cool to 125 deg. Fahr. Beat until opaque. At once carefully pour over top of cake, letting a little flow down sides in rivulets. Decorate edge with 36 or 24 whole drained maraschino cherries. When serving slice thinly.

A rare item for fruit cake recipe collectors.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I told you to come straight home from the school party. You know I worry if you're late. You are grounded for the rest of the week."

Daughter: "I tried to . . . "

Mother: "Don't argue. You know the rules."

Daughter: "Jane's father was going to pick us up, but he had a flat tire and was late. Then he took Sue and Nancy home first."

Mother: "I was worried — but I can see it wasn't your fault."

Listen to your teen-ager's explanation and consider the circumstances before you penalize her for infractions of any rules. Sometimes it may not be the youngster's fault.

Sexual Equality

TORONTO (CP) — Most single girls once feared the social stigma of pregnancy and felt guilty if they lost their virginity, but today "a lot of them are not sure it's worth saving," a Toronto doctor told the annual meeting of the Ontario College of Family Physicians. Dr. Ted Cress, who teaches a course in sex education to nurses, said the birth control pill has acted like "high-octane fuel to the women's protest movement," spurring them to high gear because it permitted them sexual equality.

Greek Orthodox Women Hold Tea

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

A bazaar and tea with a Greek theme held by the Greek Orthodox Women's Auxiliary on Wednesday afternoon at St. Thomas' Parish Hall testified to the fact that Belleville is becoming increasingly cosmopolitan.

Christmas in Greece was the theme of the event. Posters on the walls depicted the bright skies and blue waters of Greece as well as some monuments of historical interest which have thousands of tourists to Greece every year. Of particular interest was the display of Greek artifacts which was almost like a ministatry museum. Among the exhibits were handwoven and embroidered fabrics, a number of dolls dressed in costumes of various parts of Greece and some shoulder bags embroidered in colorful designs used by Greek shepherds. Elaborate tapestries and a basket brass candle snuffer used in the Greek Orthodox Church also caught the eye.

Some of the women and also five year - old Gina Giourkas were dressed in Greek national costumes. The women's outfits consisted of long, full, gathered skirts with long-sleeved lace blouses topped by tight-fitting jackets with shorter sleeves. Each one had a cap with a long braided cord ending in tassels.

One of the booths called "Santa's Bake Shoppe" featured a large variety of Greek pastries and breads including honey dipped doughnuts and round loaves of sesame seed bread. The bake shop was conversed by Mrs. G. Zegouzas, Mrs. G. Tsialamonias and Miss Yola Diamandides. Among the Christmas gifts for sale was a display of stuffed animals and dolls' clothes conversed by Judy Maniates and Flora Koutsoubis.

The general convener of the bazaar and tea was Miss Georgia Maniates. The other conveners were Mrs. F. Karis (kitchen korner), Mrs. C. Giourgas (both boutique) and Mrs. H. Thouvelis (gift shop). Mr. M. Maniates was in charge of the draw. The draw for a doll dressed in Greek national costume and $25 for which tickets were sold will be conducted in December.

The centrepiece at the main tea table was composed of poinsettia, reindeer and candles. Pouring tea were Mrs. J. Vasil and Mrs. M. Koutsoubis. Mrs. F. Karis greeted guests at the door. A Christmas cake was won by Mrs. W. Black.

Catches Thief

NORWICH, England (AP) — Store detective Pauline Collette came up with a suspected shoplifter's "third arm" as evidence in magistrates court against Lionel Downing, 47, accused of stealing meat, whisky and mashed potatoes worth $4.90. The extra arm was a rubber and wire contraption that filled a topcoat sleeve while a concealed arm dealt with goods Downing's wife slipped him, he conceded. Sentence was deferred pending medical and probation reports.

Little Pitchers Should be Given Suitable Explanations

By DORIS CLARK

A discussion in a Parents' Without Partners meeting centred on answering the question raised by youngsters when a gentleman friend visits mother.

The answer to the question, "Mommy, who is that man?", depends a good deal on the lines of communication open between parent and child. Some children are bound to accept unusual situations there will be resentment and jealousy.

Mother can point out that just as the children have their friends, Mommy needs friends too. And if the situation is leading up to a new marriage, little ones need help in getting accustomed to that special friend who will become their father.

Members wondered whether such a person should ever discipline the children; whether the situation would change after marriage. They agreed that the boys and girls should learn to respect "that man"; and that where there is love and confidence, and honesty, there is a good chance for the new friend to begin soon to belong in the family circle in a very real way.

Dear Doris: I am a housewife 43 years old and I have become very frigid toward my husband. We have had a wonderful married life but gradually I have become cooler and now it is affecting our marriage.

I have talked to our family doctor, but received no help. — Icicle.

Dear Icicle: Trouble is, as annoyed husband might think you don't love him any more. And you are helpless to protest.

But there are several possibilities: (1) Your physical health. Glandular changes in early 40's may be affecting your emotion or sensitivities. (2) The ardent love-making of youth, may give place to something a little less devastating — and perhaps a little less frequent?

(3) Emotions have a way of relating themselves to mental conditioning. How long since you two last threw out to love a holiday together? With companionable activity one comes a new regard for each other; a regard which can find expression in renewed sex interest.

You have many happy years ahead of you. A better understanding of this physical expression can be like an adult education course in sex — as long as you both take it.

I have two booklets that can help: (1) Facing Forty, and (2) book list on Sex and Marriage. Each 25 cents. When writing in for them, enclose also a large six-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Doris: Our daughter is engaged to be married. We have not met our future son - in - law's parents.

I am wondering who is to invite whom first, to get acquainted before the wedding, the bride's parents or the bridegroom's parents? — Wondering.

Dear Wondering: The man proposes to the girl; is invited by her into his family. So his parents take the initiative.

The bridegroom's mother may call up the bride's mother, or write her a note, and arrange to pay a visit to her or invite her and her husband to visit at the bridegroom's home.

(Do you wonder why the people you care about act as they do? Let Doris' shed light on problem. And remember that "They have really up-to-date shoes."

Meagher, Hall Lead Saints to 36-13 Win Over Oshawa Central

Charge of the Light-and-Heavy Brigade

Lightweight pivot Rick Meagher and bruising fullback Paul Hall both showed that they could take the heavy going in yesterday's COSSA semi-final senior football game. Meagher passed for two touchdowns and ran for another, while Hall counted a pair of majors as the Saints won a 36-13 decision from Oshawa Central. The win puts Quinte into the COSSA finals next Wednesday against the winner of the Pickering - Sir Thomas A. Stewart playoff.

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Led by a "big animal" and a "little bird" with some help from their "Grey Gang" friends, the Quinte Saints won a 36-13 decision from Oshawa Central in their COSSA semi-final senior football game Wednesday.

Members of the losing Oshawa Central team handed out what was undoubtedly the highest praise of the afternoon to Paul Hall and Rick Meagher as they implored their defensive unit to "stop that big animal" and "stop that little bird".

What Oshawa lacked in eloquence, they made up for in accuracy, as Hall blasted the Central defence for key yardage on the ground, while Meagher directed a varied Saint attack to perfection.

Quinte's "Grey Gang" defence came up with their usual superior performance, particularly the line and middle linebackers, as they virtually shut off the Oshawa ground game, while giving up only one touchdown.

Quinte dominated the opening minutes of the game as the Saints appeared to be able to move the ball almost at will against the Central 6-3 defence.

Hall picked up most of the key yardage in the opening drive following the blocking of Rick Paul McQuaid, and Stan Brooks, tackle Bill Skinner and guard Greg White on the left and Rick Graham picked up most of their rushing yardage through that side.

Ralph Lepore capped the drive by powering over from two yards out on a wingback counter. Rick Meagher's attempted pass for a two-point convert was incomplete.

After a fumble by Paul McQuaid on the 11-yard line had stalled another Saint drive, Meagher hit end Stan Brooks with a 70-yard scoring strike. His pass to brother Terry Meagher on the conversion attempt made it 14-0.

Oshawa, which up until now had been unable to move the ball found a soft spot in the Saint defence as quarterback Ted Reznikoff passed for 40-yards to flanker John Romoal. Safety Terry Meagher made the saving tackle on his own 10-yard line.

The Saint defence got them out of trouble momentarily, when tackle Fred Whalen and linebacker Ken Vos piled up on a third-down Oshawa gamble on the one-yard line.

After the Quinte offence was unable to move the ball, linebacker Dan Lorenz broke through to block a Paul Hall punt and recovered for a touchdown that brought the score to 14-0. John Kaplan kicked the convert.

Oshawa came up with some fine defensive play in the second quarter stopping Rick Meagher on their own one-yard line to prevent another Quinte score.

The Saints suffered a major blow moments later. Terry Meagher returned a punt 40-yard line, only to pile into his own blockers. The standout defensive back was taken to the hospital with what was later diagnosed as a badly sprained ankle.

Hall plunged over left tackle for his second touchdown of the game and Meagher fired a two-point pass to Ralph Lepore.

Interceptions by Quinte's Ron Ragsdale and Georgs Grabowski of Central prevented any further scoring and gave the Saints a 22-7 lead at half-time.

Rick Graham tallied in the third quarter for Quinte on a 27-yard screen pass, while an interception by Rick McDonald of Oshawa set up a scoring pass from Reznikoff to Nick Sirkis.

A 25-yard pass to Stan Brooks and a 19-yard run by Paul Hall put Quinte in good scoring position again, but a Hall fumble on the one-yard line killed the drive.

Rick Meagher accounted for the final score of the game, scampering 27 - yards in the final quarter and then heaving a two-point pass to Brooks.

Strategy played a key role in the game as offensive coach Jack Sisson, using a "monsoon-gee system" of shuttling his ends, presented a varied offensive picture that was executed smoothly by Rick Meagher.

Conversely, Ted Reznikoff, calling his own shots, persisted in sticking mainly to inoffective sweeps and line plunges despite his success when he went to the air.

The centre of the Quinte line consisting of tackles Mike and Fred Whalen, along with middle guard Rodney Hinse was practically invincible behind the run. Other standouts, defensively, were end Randy Van Norman and inside linebacker Wayne Harrison.

For the losers, stocky middle linebacker Dan Lorenz and end George Bryant both played strong games.

Brian Hennessey was undoubtedly the busiest man on either team seeing action at centre/guard, defensive end corner linebacker, inside linebacker, punt returner and kick or for the winners.

Other standouts on offence were end Stan Brooks and fullback Rick Graham. Quinte now advances to the COSSA finals to be played next Wednesday against either Pickering or Sir Thomas A. Stewart of Peterborough.

Moira Juniors Win Wild 14-0 Game

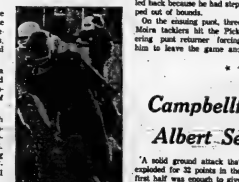
PICKERING (Special) — Moira Juniors had to warm up four times in order to cool off Pickering winning a wild 14-0 COSSA semi-final football game.

PETER STAILKOVICH
"Mr. Inside"

The delays were caused by changing groups of officials as no less than three different sets of referees were required.

Those supposed to officiate the game failed to show up, causing an hour and ten minute delay before another group were pressed into service. These were replaced by still another set in the second quarter, before the original referees finally made a second-half appearance.

The delay also forced the teams to play 12-minute quarters, rather than the regulation 15-minute intervals, with absolutely no stopped time.



The irregularities hit a peak at the end of the third quarter when Pickering conceded the game because of injuries to key personnel.

Trojan coach Gord Smith praised the work of his defensive unit, noting, "our defence played extremely well. They kept us in there during the first half, when our offence couldn't move the ball at all."

The score at half-time was 0-0 as the two defensive squads dominated the game. "They were a good, hard-hitting team, particularly their defence," acknowledged Smith of the Pickering opposition.

Key fumble recoveries by Larry Carr and Bob Lorimer were mainly responsible for keeping Pickering off the scoreboard in the first half.

In the third quarter "Mr. Inside," Peter Stailkovich and "Mr. Outside" Dave Rutherford began applying their specialties to move the Trojan ground attack.

DAVE RUTHERFORD
"Mr. Outside"

Rutherford set up the first touchdown with a 50-yard end sweep and then came back to score the major on a 15 yard dash around end. The speedy Moira back then passed to end John Loder for the two-point conversion.

Cornerback linebacker Peter Stephenson counted a major for the Trojan defence when he bolted 55-yards with an intercepted pass for the winners' final touchdown.

Rutherford appeared to have another touchdown when he bolted 50-yards for a major score, only to have it called back because he had stepped out of bounds.

On the ensuing punt, three Moira tacklers hit the Pickering punt returner forcing him to leave the game and causing the Pickering coach to forfeit the remainder of the contest.

Moira now go on to meet Adam Scott in a re-match of last season's COSSA junior final. The game will be played in Belleville next Wednesday at 1.30 p.m. The location of the game will depend on the condition of the local gridirons.

Campbellford Blanks Albert Seniors 41-0

A solid ground attack that exploded for 32 points in the first half was enough to give Campbellford a 41-0 win over Albert College in the COSSA "A" senior football championship.

Albert was severely hampered by the loss of six key starting players due to injuries.

Fullback Murray Cuzen was the most effective player for the Belleville team.

Imperial Midgets Win

The Blake Kerr Imperial midgets got their regular season started on the right foot this week by winning a 6-3 decision over Kingston.

Rob Foster paced the winners with a pair of goals, with the others going to John Masterson, Mark Cozzie, Brian Cousins and Peter Smirke.

Tourney Format For Allan Cup

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — A Western senior hockey tournament to determine one of the finalists for the Allan Cup probably would be acceptable to the Western International Hockey League, WIHL president Cal Hockley said Wednesday. He said he personally felt East and West tournaments "would be a good idea and I support it and feel the WIHL would," Hockley said that when he first heard about the tournament plans. Paul Bonak of Saskatoon, president of the Western Hockey Association, had been quoted as saying the WIHL was part of the Western Hockey Association, which it is not. "We don't want the WHA to tell us how to determine a winner," Hockley said. "The CAHA (Canadian Amateur Hockey Association) is not doing its job if it consulted the WHA and not us about the tournament." Plans call for tournaments to be played in the East and West with the respective winners to meet in a national final.

Brotherly Love Not in Evidence In Montreal, Los Angeles Lineups

By IAN MacLAREN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Maurice Richard Lalin, Ont., and hockey rumble in the same breath and nine times out of 18 the name Plager comes to mind.

The battling Plagers—Barclay, Bob and Bill—are St. Louis team-mates now but their frequent skirmishes before being united with the National Hockey League Blues made colorful copy.

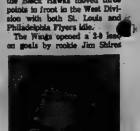
Now the Redmond brothers, Mickey and Dick, who come from the same Northern Ontario mining centre, have had their initial major league clash and the younger Dick came out with egg on his face.

Mickey manhandled Dick in the exchanges and stormed from the penalty box to score the winner as Montreal Canadiens nipped Minnesota North Stars 4-3 Wednesday night.

Mickey also helped set up two earlier Montreal goals before mixing with his brother after the two crashed into the boards early in the third period of their game at Bloomington, Minn.

And there was no brotherly love lost in Los Angeles where Bob Pulford turned on his former team-mates with two goals as the Kings edged Toronto Maple Leafs 2-1.

In other NHL games, California Golden Seals stopped New York 3-1 and prevented the Rangers from moving into first place in the East Division, Chicago Black Hawks scored a come-from-behind 4-3 win over Detroit Red Wings and Pittsburgh Penguins crushed Vancouver Canucks 8-3.



Pulford, a Leaf for 14 years until being traded to Los Angeles last summer, scored the first two Los Angeles goals with the winner going to Doug Robinson late in the game.

There was some hesitation on Pulford's part in reporting to Los Angeles after hearing of the trade. Since he came to terms with the Kings in mid-September, however, he has been named team captain and is manager-coach Larry Regan's inspirational leader both on and off the ice.

California opened a 3-0 lead in their surprise win over the Rangers before Rangers Jack Egers ruined goalie Gary Smith's bid for a shutout. The loss kept New York in a three-way tie for first with Montreal and Boston Bruins, idle Wednesday night.

Third-period goals by Bryan Campbell, his second of the game, and Gerry Pinder snapped a 2-2 tie at Chicago as the Black Hawks moved three points in front in the West Division with both St. Louis and Philadelphia Flyers idle.

The Wings opened a 2-0 lead on goals by rookie Jim Shires and Gordie Howe but Campbell's first of the night at 7:40 of the second period started the Chicago comeback.

Pittsburgh scored four times in the third period to send the Canucks to defeat. Vancouver's precarious hold on fourth place in the East held, however, as both Detroit and Toronto lost.

Ken Schinkel and Glen Sather each scored twice for the Penguins in a game that was marred by two separate fights in the closing minutes.

Tonight, St. Louis is at Boston, Philadelphia at Detroit and Vancouver is in Buffalo against the Sabres.

Things Haven't Changed For Redmond Brothers

MINNEAPOLIS (A P) — When Mickey and Dick Redmond grew up in Ontario, they used to play road hockey with brooms.

And sometimes, there would be a disagreement and a few scuffles.

Things haven't changed much now that they're in the National Hockey League, and Mickey showed Wednesday night there can be advantages to being the older brother.

Mickey, a defenceman, scored the winning goal as Montreal Canadiens staved off a frantic rally by Minnesota North Stars 4-3. He slapped in a shot from near the blue line, shortly after leaving the penalty box for mixing it up with Dick in the third period.

Dick, however, never came back on to the ice after he took a 10-minute misconduct penalty for slamming his stick down after Bill Friday sent the Redmonds to the box.

"We just mixed it up a little," said Mickey. "I gave him a shot along the boards. He gave me a two-hander. It's the first time we've had contact. I never had the opportunity to run into him before."

"I have a job to do," said Mickey. "I guess it does make it interesting. I don't think I would have ever dropped my gloves."

Dick, in the quiet North Stars dressing room later, said: "Well, I was ready to drop mine. He hit me and I hit back."

The two brothers recalled their last big fight. "We were about 14 and 12," said Mickey, "and he took a broom to me when we were playing road hockey."

Dick, at 21 a year younger, said Mickey "kicked the daylights out of me. He used to tell me to wait till I got bigger. Well I'm bigger now."

By this time Dick was smiling, but the disappointment from the loss still showed.

The Canadiens opened up a 3-0 lead after two periods. Mickey Redmond assisting on two of the goals.

Icing the Puck His Own Way

Vancouver Canucks' goalie George Gardner (1) falls on puck during sticky situation in first period action Wednesday night. Paduano, Chuvalo Headline Card

MONTREAL (CP)—Undefeated Donato Paduano, who considers a clash tonight with quick punching and reflexes, is expected to face some tough ring dogging tonight when he meets veteran Don Ross of Toronto in a 10-round non-title bout.

Both fighters feel the match, part of a five-bout program at the 18,000-seat Forum that will also feature Canadian heavyweight champ George Chuvalo, will develop a contest between speed and a hard punch.

The 21-year-old Canadian welterweight champion said Wednesday he is counting on his usual approach of careful boxing and effective counter-punching to land him his 22nd victory as a professional.

Ross, meanwhile, says he'll maintain his normal dogged style and show the Italian-Canadian some rough action in close.

"He likes to move in. That's fine," the 33-year-old veteran of 15 years in the ring said in an interview.

"I want him to come to me. When we're close, then I'll go to work."

Toronto's George Chuvalo, making one of many comeback attempts after a technical knockout at the hands of high-ranked George Foreman last summer, will take on Tony Ventura, a journeyman heavyweight from Buffalo in another 10-round event on the card.

In other bouts, also 10-rounders, Charlie Chase of Montreal meets James Murray of Newark, N.J. in the second heavyweight match and Bob Dower of Montreal tangles with Jean-Claude Roy of Montmagny, Que.

Welterweights Gerald Ratte and Raynald Cantin, both of Montreal, round out the program.

Chuvalo, with 65 wins, 12 loses and two draws in his long career, is counting on the fight to bring him back to contention for the world title.

He said a win will probably guarantee him of a January bout with a top-ranked United States heavyweight.

Chuvalo sparred here Wednesday with an old opponent, Bob Cleroux, who before his retirement won two of three decisions in Canadian title matches with the current champion, went two rounds with Chuvalo.

The Montrealer, 12 pounds over his old fighting weight, said afterward that Chuvalo's hitting has become harder and more controlled in the years since they last fought.

Paduano's showing against Ross could affect the young champion's tentative plans to move up to middleweight competition.

Currently rated third by Ring magazine and fifth by the World Boxing Association in the world welter ranks, he has constant pound limit.

However, manager Roger Larivee thinks the harder hitting in the heavier division would lessen the fighter's chance at a world title.

How he fares against Ross' left-fighting could affect the final decision.

Larivee said in a recent interview no defeat decision will be made until after a non-title match in New York City's Madison Square Garden Dec. 7 against world lightweight champion Ken Buchanan of Edinburgh, Scotland.

Paduano just fight at welter weight in his last match and it was learned Wednesday, will probably be part of a card headed by Muhammed Ali and Oscar Bonavena.

Hawley Style Fitted To Thoroughbred 'Shoe'

By BRUCE WALKER

When a young rider starts winning races with regularity comparisons with thoroughbred racing's greats follow.

Sandy Hawley, who has style that is distinctly his own, hasn't been spared the ritual. Hawley, who will easily win Canada's leading rider title for the second successive season this year, has been compared with Ron Turcotte, a perennial leading money - maker riding in North America: Avelino Gomez, one of the all - time greats and with racing's super - rider, Willie Shoemaker.

The Shoemaker comparison comes most often. And, not without reason. Hawley's style is to sit "shilly" on his mount, communicating with him through his hands. Sandy isn't known for excessive use of the whip; nor is the great Shoemaker.

Shoemaker, who began his career in 1949, was a riding sensation from the start. He won 219 races in his apprentice year and was the top tyro in North America.

In 1956 Shoemaker continued to be the hottest thing on horseback since Paul Revere. He posted 388 victories and tied slashin' Joe Culmone for the North American rider championship.

Since 1949 Shoemaker has won 10 national riding Championships, and is closing in on John Longden's record of 6,032 winners on September 7, 1970, at a California race track.

Hawley fits a horse as well as the Shoe. He was North America's leading apprentice rider in 1969, his first full season in the saddle. He rode 238 winners.

This season Hawley is odds-on to be the North American saddle star. At his present pace Hawley should ride more than 400 winners.

Shoemakers' 485 victories during the 1953 season is a record that isn't beyond Hawley's reach.

Sandy plans on riding out the Greenwood meeting, where he is out again setting a torrid pace, then he'll head south to Florida to finish out the year.

Hawley shouldn't have any trouble picking up winning mounts in the sunny south. The 21-year-old from Oshawa made a lasting impression on horsemen in Florida last winter.

Riding against the best in racing at Hialeah, Sandy finished the meeting with more victories than his illustrious rivals such as Braulio Baeza, Jorge Velasquez, Angel Cordero, etc.

Switching to Gulfstream didn't cool Hawley off, but he lost the leading rider title there when he elected to return to Canada for the start of the Ontario Racing season.

Sandy's been sensational in Canada. He's threatening Avelino Gomez's record of 364 victories in Canada in a single season. He has 275 victories as of Tuesday, November 3.

Centre Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens picked up two assists Wednesday night as his team edged Minnesota North Stars 4-3 and moved into third spot in National Hockey League scoring.

Beliveau's 12 assists and three goals give him 15 points, one less than Johnny McKenzie and four fewer than Phil Esposito, both with Boston Bruins, who were idle Wednesday.

Bobby Hull also gained two assists as Chicago Black Hawks came from behind to defeat Detroit, Red Wings 4-2. Hull's four goals and 10 assists give him 14 points, tying him with Ken Hodge of the Bruins.

Flood Contract Still Requires Approval of Lawyers

NEW YORK (AP) — Outfielder Curt Flood's contract with Washington Senators is a conditional pact that still requires the approval of lawyers involved in his suit against baseball, The Associated Press learned Wednesday.

At the same time, it also was learned that the contract calls for a salary of $110,000 for the 1971 season—$30,000 more than Flood was paid in 1969 during his last active season with St. Louis Cardinals.

In announcing Flood's signing, the Senators implied that all outstanding issues had been resolved. But a source close to the controversial outfielder, who is seeking a $4.1 million anti-trust suit pending against baseball, disputed that.

According to the source: "The contract is conditional because of a special covenant which says attorneys on both sides must agree on the wording of a stipulation that the signing is without prejudice to the lawsuit."

The Senators said Flood, 32, has signed the standard player's contract containing the reserve clause that binds a player to the club which signs him until he is either traded, sold or released, and that commissioner Bowie Kuhn had approved.

The wording of the contract is considered extremely important because Flood has signed a contract that contains the same reserve clause that he is challenging in court. He sat out the 1970 season while his case was heard in federal court in New York.

The federal court ruled against Flood in the first phase of the case and an appeal now is pending. It is expected that there will be no final determination until the issue is set before the United States Supreme Court.

The $110,000 contract would make Flood the third member of the Senators to be paid in excess of $100,000 a year. The others are slugger Frank Howard and controversial pitcher Denny McLain, another recent addition from Detroit Tigers.

The Senators say Flood signed the contract in New York Tuesday night after Kuhn cleared the way by approving a trade with Philadelphia Phillies that sent utility outfielder Grey Cochrane, catcher Gene Martin and Jeff Terpko to Philadelphia.

The Phillies, who originally acquired Flood from St. Louis in the Richie Allen trade, had given the Senators permission to negotiate with Flood with the proviso a trade would be concluded in compensation if Washington could get him to sign.

Flood, in Copenhagen, Denmark, where he has personal business, was to report to the Senators' team in the Florida Winter Instructional League at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Etcheverry Admits 'Elbow Bending' Cause of Alouette Suspensions

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal coach Sam Etcheverry admitted Wednesday night his two suspended Alouettes had been drinking in public the night before last Sunday's 18-18 tie with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

But the absence of running back Dennis Duncan and wide receiver Bob McCarthy from the Als' lineup hasn't disrupted Toronto Argonauts' game plans as they prepare to meet the Montrealers Saturday in the sudden-death Eastern Football Conference semi-final.

Etcheverry, in announcing the suspensions Tuesday, said only that the two players had breached the club's curfew rules Saturday night. Wednesday however, he said the two frequently broke a rule forbidding players to go out drinking on the eve of a game.

The tie cost Montreal first place in the final EFC standings and their third-place finish gave second-place Toronto home field in the sudden-death semi-final.

Winner of Saturday's game meets Hamilton in a two-game, total point final with the winner meeting the Western Conference champion in the Grey Cup at Toronto Nov. 26.

Etcheverry had more bad news for Alouettes' followers Wednesday. Defensive half Richie Davis, expected to play an offensive role against Toronto, has been declared medically unfit for the game.

Davis was admitted to hospital following the Hamilton game with a broken jaw.

"We expected Davis to be out of hospital today," said Etcheverry. "But the doctor took another look at him this morning and the word is he won't be released until the latter part of the week."

The Als got some relief with the return of Lewis Cook Tuesday from the injury reserve list. He's expected to take Davis's defensive spot.

The situation in Montreal added fuel to rumors that Duncan, third leading rusher in the EFC this year behind Toronto's Hal Symons and Dave Ramsey, and McCarthy were bound for Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the WFC in exchange for fullback Bob Bouchard.

SAM ETCHEVERRY

Neither club would confirm the trade talks officially, but Montreal's general-manager, Red O'Quinn, agreed "you're on the right track" after being told that his Winnipeg counterpart, Earl Lunsford, had said the Bombers had talked to Montreal.

Montreal's personnel problems have done little to lull Argos into a complacent attitude.

Defensive halfback Jim Tinsley said at an Argo fan club meeting Wednesday the loss of Duncan will hurt the Alouettes' running game, but he feels Moses Denson will be absorbing much of the running game.

"That Denson really hits," said Tomlin. "He's big and fast and strong." Although used sparingly in the Als' first four games of the season, Denson finished strongly and was just three yards behind Duncan in the final rushing statistics.

"Then there's Sonny Wade," added Tomlin, noting that the Montreal quarterback has always played well against Toronto.

Saturday's game also marks the return to full-time duty of Argo flanker Bobby Taylor. Taylor played briefly in last Saturday's 19-17 win over Ottawa Rough Riders under treacherous conditions at CNE Stadium.

The ground crew has readded a large section of the stadium field after huge divots were gouged up during the Toronto-Ottawa tilt.

Stage Set for Ali Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — There's big doings in boxing today.

Madison Square Garden is host to a press conference, with all the flairings, at which formal announcement is expected to be made that Muhammad Ali and Oscar Bonavena will meet in a 15-round heavyweight bout at the Gardens on Monday night, Dec. 7.

Harry Markson, director of boxing at the Garden, did not specify the principals or the date in announcing the press conference.

The Associated Press learned that the occasion was to be the setting for the formal signing for the fight by Ali also known as Cassius Clay, and by the South American socker from Buenos Aires.

Bonavena was scheduled to leave Buenos Aires Wednesday, but his departure was delayed until today because his mother-in-law underwent an operation.

Thus Bonavena is not expected to be at the press conference which Markson said would go on as scheduled.

"Ali will be there and Bonavena's manager," Markson said. Under New York rules a manager can sign a contract for his fighter.

Markson said he expected to "straighten out a few details" with Jose Montano, Bonavena's manager, before the press conference.

Markson, a veteran in the sport, said "I never said the fight would be on Dec. 7." He added: "I have learned not to announce anything until the contracts are signed."

"I'm going to beat Clay," Bonavena said in Buenos Aires Wednesday night. "I'm not going to repeat Quarry's mistakes. I intend is attack and hit hard. Clay had better take care to avoid my punches if he doesn't want to be beaten by knockout."

He referred to Clay's three-round TKO over Jerry Quarry in Atlanta on Oct. 26 in the first bout for the former heavy champion in 3½ years.

The Bonavena fight would be Ali's second on the road he hopes will lead to a title bout with Joe Frazier, the current heavy king of the world.

Sports On All Fronts

BOSTON (CP) — It was a confirmation of old news, but Bobby Orr's lawyer said Wednesday that Boston Bruins' super-defenceman will sign a five-year, million-dollar contract within a few weeks. The contract has been in the works about six months ago, said Toronto lawyer Al Eagleson. "They wanted to get him under a long-term contract and we're perfectly willing to go along with that," Eagleson said. Orr now is in the third year of a three-year contract. One reason Eagleson sought the long-term contract is to invest Orr's money in a number of enterprises. He is considered hot endorsement property in Canada, lending his name to the advertising of General Motors of Canada, Bic Pens, CCM skates and a chain of Bobby Orr pizza shops.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Don Kellett, former general manager of Baltimore Colts, died in hospital here Tuesday night following a heart attack. Kellett, 56, who retired from his position with the club in 1966, had been in good health and attended the Colts' game with Miami Dolphins in Baltimore last Sunday. He was taken to hospital Tuesday.

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders announced Wednesday that Marshall Shirk has won the Bill Smyth trophy for best lineman of the year with the football club. Shirk was selected by fellow players.

Frazier Respecting Foster

DETROIT (AP) — In the Joe Frazier-George Foster heavyweight title fight in Detroit Nov. 16 just something to kill time before a Frazier-Cassius Clay clash?

Such would seem the case the way champion Frazier was pummelled a 1 Wednesday's news conference with questions about Clay, or as he prefers to be called, Mohammad Ali.

"I ain't fightin' that guy. I'm fightin' Bob," Frazier said politely. "That's the guy I have to worry about."

The news conference marked the opening of Frazier's final phase of training for the championship bout. The champ had been training for the past six weeks at a camp in the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania.

Frazier began his Detroit training with 5 a.m. roadwork at Belle Isle park and also worked out at a gym. Foster, who is light-heavyweight champion, is scheduled to arrive in Detroit Friday to begin his prettitle bout preparations.

Frazer refused to get into a discussion of whether or not Clay's title should have been stripped away 43-months ago by the World Boxing Association because of his refusal to be drafted into the Armed Forces.

"Yes, I consider myself the champ," Frazier responded to a blunt question of whether he deserved the title in view of the way Ali lost it.

"He had to fight hard to get to the top and now he's going to fight hard to stay there," defended (Yank) Durham, Frazier's manager.

Twenty Seven of 65 Detainees to Face Court Charges Today

MONTREAL (CP) — Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said early today with government lawyers to make final decisions on charges to be brought against 27 of 65 persons detained under the War Measures Act.

The arraignments of the 27 begin at 2:30 p.m. today.

Mr. Choquette would not comment on the charges, nor the future of the other 38 persons held in police cells.

Meanwhile, police efforts to track down the kidnapping of British diplomat James Cross and slain Labor Minister Pierre Laporte continued without apparent progress.

In Quebec City, a justice department source said Wednesday normal court procedures may be amended to expedite the cases involving persons detained under the War Measures Act invoked Oct. 16 by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Persons detained under the emergency act cannot be charged within 21 days or released.

Mr. Choquette has indicated there is a possibility some of the charges laid may include sedition and treason.

Jury trial is mandatory on treason charges, which carry possible death sentences. Sedition carries a maximum 14-year prison term.

Late Wednesday, a total of 439 persons had been picked up under the War Measures Act — proclaimed to stamp out the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec which has claimed responsibility for the kidnappings and slayings.

Police have released 364 of those held, leaving 46 in jail in Montreal, seven in Quebec City, seven in Rimouski, four in Sherbrooke and one in St. Jerome.

Despite the arrest of five persons between 1 p.m. Tuesday and 1 p.m. Wednesday, police appeared to have no new leads in their hunt for the kidnappers and Mr. Cross.

The British trade commissioner was last heard from Oct. 10, 13 days after he was abducted, in a letter received several hours after the body of Mr. Laporte—kidnapped Oct. 10—was found in a car trunk.

Authorities have refused to reveal the contents of the only FLQ communique received since Mr. Cross's note.

The Quebec justice department source said Mr. Choquette could speed up cases resulting from the War Measures Act by using his powers as stipendiary-general to bring "preferred indictments" against accused persons, sending them directly to trial from arraignment without a preliminary hearing.

Persons appearing for arraignment in the special court in provincial police headquarters here may be represented by counsel if they wish.

Unless ordinary cases where bail is set by a judge after representations from the prosecutor and the defence counsel, the War Measures Act provides for bail to be set at the discretion of the attorney-general.

The justice department source said if the power to bring preferred indictments is not exercised, the presiding judge will name the date of the accused and, if it is not guilty, will "probably" schedule preliminary hearing.

Persons detained under the War Measures Act must be brought to trial within 90 days of arrest or the attorney-general must justify in court the further detention.

Charges being considered by justice department lawyers vary from obstructing police to sedition and treason. The justice department source said the charges will depend on the "elements of proof available."

He said the Crown will not lay charges unless it is reasonably confident of obtaining conviction.

Despite the massive roundup of suspected FLQ sympathizers since the proclamation of the federal act, the five key suspects in the kidnappings and the slayings are still at large. The five are Paul Rose, his brother Jacques, Mme Carbonneau, Francois Simard and Bernard Lortie.

Federal Justice Minister John Turner said in Ottawa Wednesday 43 persons are being sought in connection with FLQ activities but a provincial police spokesman said their intelligence branch had reduced this list to 25.

In Quebec City, the caucus of the opposition Union Nationale party asked Premier Robert Bourassa to "reveal clearly" all the circumstances which led to proclamation of the War Measures Act.

Also, Quebec ombudsman Louis Marceau said about 99 of those arrested under the act have submitted grievances to his office.

He said Wednesday a report will be made public following the trials of those charged under the emergency powers but the names of those who submitted complaints will not be made public.

No One Will Be Hanged for FLQ Activities

OTTAWA (CP) — Treason and other high treason penalty—death—for any charge which may be placed today against those jailed Oct. 16 under the War Measures Act.

But one thing is almost certain: No one will be hanged as a result of activities of the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec if found guilty of treason.

"One of the difficulties of treason at present is that you are all tied up in a political context," says a skilled lawyer. "Historically, the experience has been that you create a folk hero.

"This is the dilemma governments face."

Louis Riel, hanged for treason in Canada's most celebrated case, is approaching folk-hero dimensions. His 1885 execution in Regina has been an albatross about the Canadian neck, best solved by making him an eagle.

Aside from a handful of uninteresting cases during the First World War, treason charges have been rare in Canada since Confederation.

Charges of sedition, which carries a 14-year maximum penalty, have been more frequent. In fact, Pierre Vallieres, 32, jailed Oct. 16 under the War Measures Act, was already facing total for sedition because of passages in his book Negres Blancs d'Amerique.

The folk - hero myth holds true for sedition. The Winnipeg general strike of 1919, a bloody battle for collective bargaining, produced some of the most interesting sedition cases.

Among those acquitted of the charge was J. S. Woodsworth, founder of the CCF, now the New Democratic Party, and father of Grace Macinnes, NDP member for Vancouver Kingsway and Canada's only woman MP.

Treason and sedition go hand in hand with politics rather than crime. For this reason courts are wary and evidence tends to be slight.

Many protective features are built into the law to prevent governments from using it to check their more biting critics.

It has been easy since 1963 to prosecute verse upon verse of FLQ terrorists for crimes such as bombing, possession of dynamite, armed robbery, and murder.

But although the FLQ has constantly talked about violent overthrow of the government, urging Quebecers to take up arms and fight in the streets, government has been loathe to use treason or sedition charges.

Meanwhile, what about the kidnappers and killers of Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte, and the kidnappers of British trade commissioner James Cross?

When caught, they probably will be charged with kidnapping or murder, both of which carry life sentences and both of which are easier to prove than treason.

"Thank heavens, you're back!...I've been trying to nag myself all week but I just can't seem to get the hang of it."

Farmers Advised To Withhold Tax

TORONTO (CP) — The vice-president of the National Farmers' Union said Wednesday the organization will recommend that Ontario farmers continue to withhold the education portion of their taxes until the provincial government commits itself to a system of tax reform.

Walter Miller of Tara, Ont., said such reform should include the "land gravetax" exclusive property from assessment for education.

"We can't accept the 25-per-cent payback as a permanent solution," Mr. Miller told a news conference after a delegation met Darcy McKeough, municipal affairs minister.

They invited him to speak at an NFU regional meeting in Toronto next week to give such a tax reform commitment.

Mr. Miller said the delegation was told direct payments to farmers totalling 25 per cent of their 1970 property tax—announced last month—will not be a one-year deal only.

Mr. Miller said farmers are not quarreling with the cost or quality of education but with the way money for it is collected.

Mr. Miller said he did not say how many members his organization has in Ontario—"that's classified information"—but how many farmers have been withholding part of their taxes although he said it was "widespread."

Locals in Essex and Kent counties have been withholding taxes since the fall of 1969 and no legal action has been started against them, he said.

Mr. Miller said farmers are not anxious to bankrupt municipalities nor to "move to civil disobedience to get something done."

Decision Reserved On Human Rights

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada reserved decision Wednesday on an appeal arising from Ontario's Human Rights Code.

At issue is whether a board of inquiry convened under the code has the jurisdiction to continue to look into a complaint by Carl McKay, a Jamaican now living in Toronto.

Mr. McKay complained to the Human Rights Commission in December, 1968, that Kenneth Bell had refused to hire him several floors of the Bell home on grounds of racial discrimination.

Mr. Bell has denied that he discriminated against Mr. McKay. But he did say he told Mr. McKay the floors were rented when in fact they were not.

Toronto lawyer R. N. Starr, appearing for Mr. Bell, argued that the space offered for rent by Mr. Bell is not covered by the Human Rights Code.

The code says a landlord cannot "deny to any person or class of persons occupancy of any commercial unit or any self-contained dwelling unit."

The floors offered for rent share a common entrance in the Bell home and therefore are not self-contained, Mr. Bell said.

He also argued that the powers given to the provincial labor minister in carrying out recommendations of boards of inquiry have no limits. He asked the high court to confine the recommendations to police court actions.

Turner Declares Legislation Banning FLQ Essential to Protect Right to Life Itself

OTTAWA (CP) — With an attack on New Democrats, Justice Minister John Turner opened debate Wednesday on the government's bill to replace regulations under the War Measures Act, calling it essential to protect "the most fundamental right of all . . . the right to life itself."

Mr. Turner told the Commons the government had the support of the Canadian public in its proclamation Oct. 16 of the act to combat the terrorists of the Front de Libération du Québec. The only dissent in the Commons had come from the "hysterical voices, shrieking voices" of most of the members of the NDP.

The new bill is similar to the regulations introduced with the act Oct. 18. But it reduces the period a person may be held in jail without charge to seven days from 21, and guarantees access to legal counsel.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield called the bill a "vast improvement" over the regulations. But he said his Conservative party would offer amendments to the legislation.

He lauded the bill for narrowing the definition of illegal association — with the FLQ, the shorter period of detention, and the right to counsel.

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas maintained his stand that the War Measures Act, which would continue in force with the new bill, had not been justified by the government.

There had not been "one shred of evidence produced, either publicly or privately" to substantiate the government's claim that an apprehended insurrection in Quebec had necessitated the measure.

The regulations under the act had "deprived Canadians of some of the most cherished and basic human rights," Mr. Douglas said.

Mr. Douglas and 15 other members of the NDP were the sole opposition to Commons approval of the government's action in a vote Oct. 19. Four New Democrats supported the government in the 190 to 16 vote. Three other party members were not present for the vote.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette reaffirmed his party's support of the government's policy and of the new bill.

But he said the real requirement was social legislation to remove poverty and unemployment from Quebec.

Mr. Turner reiterated in the Commons the government's reasons for implementing the War Measures Act and the need for the new bill.

The government had received requests from the governments of Quebec and Montreal describing "what they called apprehended insurrection."

This was added to the kidnappings of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte and diplomat James Cross, thefts of large amounts of dynamite and weapons, "against a background of an erosion of public will and confidence in the ability of the institutions of government and law enforcement agencies in Quebec to respond to this crisis."

"To have refused the request from the government of Quebec, in the terms in which it was made and under the circumstances in which it was made would have been gross irresponsibility."

"For a government to refrain from taking the required action to deal with an organization like the FLQ would be the height of irresponsibility and folly. Indeed it would be the very negation of the concept of civil liberties as we have come to understand that concept. There are no civil liberties where there is no democratic government to secure them."

The bill, and the War Measures Act, was essential, said Mr. Turner, because the Criminal Code deals only with individual acts, not those of groups.

People could therefore support the FLQ—which has carried out terrorism—policing to the legitimate grievances of the organization, such as the irradication of the social injustices.

Unless, therefore, it can be shown beyond reasonable doubt that this supporter has himself committed a crime he is beyond the reach of the Criminal Code.

That is why the organization itself is being made unlawful."

Mr. Stanfield drew a distinction between the alleged apprehension of an insurrection and the need to destroy the FLQ.

"It is important to bear in mind that this bill is not based on any assumption of apprehended insurrection," he said.

Rather it was designed to provide the powers necessary to fight terrorists."

The government had left no doubt that any apprehended insurrection existed, the opposition leader said.

"I am still prepared to accept on trust that the government found an apprehended insurrection. However, like the people of this country, I am still waiting to get the facts."

But on questioning from Mr. Trudeau, Mr. Stanfield agreed that information already available to him justified the government bill.

Mr. Douglas said that even after more than 400 arrests in Quebec the government had not turned up evidence of the work of revolutionaries.

Only 65 of those arrested were still detained, and "if those can start a revolution they must be supermen," Mr. Douglas said.

Turner to Seek Order For Trial of Smythe

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister John Turner told the Commons Wednesday his department will ask the Ontario Supreme Court in order a county court to hold a trial on charges of tax evasion against Stafford Smythe, Maple Leaf Gardens director.

Judge Joseph Kelly of county court in Toronto dismissed the government's charges Monday on the basis that the relevant sections of the Income Tax Act contravened the 1960 Bill of Rights.

If the government's request to the Supreme Court is successful, Judge Kelly will have to hear the case.

Beautiful Cities Possible - - Hellyer

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Technology can control the problems of growing urbanization just as it can control atomic power for peaceful use rather than destruction, liberal MP Paul Hellyer said Wednesday.

"The technique available to us is adequate to create genuinely delightful cities," the MP for Toronto Trinity said in a lecture at Queen's University.

"It isn't technique which limits us, it is ourselves. More precisely, it is our political and financial structure which is but of time with contemporary needs."

Mr. Hellyer, former minister in charge of housing who resigned from the Trudeau cabinet because he felt the government was not moving quickly enough to meet housing problems, said it is up to man to decide whether his future cities will be "heaven or hell."

Man has the technical knowledge to stop the water, air and soil pollution now being allowed to climb to intolerable levels, he said.

Arms Owned By Collector

ST. GERMAIN DE KAMOURASKA, Que. (CP) — A large cache of weapons found Tuesday in a mineral water plant belongs to collector Charles Belanger, provincial police said Wednesday.

Mr. Belanger, 35, a resident of Lorettieville, a suburb of Quebec City, is a collector of arms of all kinds and it was the second time his collection had been seized by police.

A QPP spokesman said they had seized Mr. Belanger's collection in 1964 but it had been returned to him after an inquiry had been made.

Mr. Belanger, a former member of the armed forces, said he had bought the weapons and some came from war surpluses. He can make and repair them himself and plans to open a store in Quebec City.

Police and soldiers found the cache after an anonymous tip. The arms were stored in an abandoned mineral water plant on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River.

Police said the arsenal included about 20 revolvers, 20 rifles and shotguns, three machine-guns and a bazooka as well as munitions of all kinds.

In addition to modern weapons, it contained helmets and swords of the period of the American revolution.

Police said there was no relation between the arms found in the plant and the terrorist Front de Libération du Québec, responsible for kidnappings and slaying.

But when they arrived on the scene demolition experts blew up the dynamite and detonators found there, as a safety measure.

The plant was barricaded but the police were able to enter and found that the weapons were well hidden.

Mr. Belanger said the reason for that was so they would not be seen by anyone looking in. He said he had had arms stolen and had taken this precaution as a result.

Ontario Labor Supports Bill

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Ontario's largest trade unionist group ended a three-day convention Wednesday with an expression of support for the federal government's methods of battling terrorists.

Following a stormy one-hour debate delegates to the annual convention of the 500-member Ontario Federation of Labor voted 3 to 1 in favor of Prime Minister Trudeau's proposed Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970.

Introduction of the new legislation, now before parliament, prevented what might have been an even stormier debate here on the War Measures Act.

A watered-down resolution on the latter had been expected to meet stiff opposition from New Democratic Party representatives to the convention.

Wednesday's resolution said: "The more specific legislation contemplated under the... new act, while still arbitrary, is confined to dealing with the destructive and terrorist activities of the Front de Libération du Québec."

It said the federation "supports the intent of the specific legislation . . . to frustrate the terroristic methods used by the FLQ."

The resolution was opposed by the militant Reform Caucus within the federation whose spokesman, Chris Trower of the United Steelworkers of America, said:

"The labor movement must oppose any kind of legislation that abrogates civil liberties."

Another opponent of federation policies was Gerry Gallagher of Toronto, president of the 5,000-member Toronto laborer's union.

Mr. Gallagher charged that the federation buried his resolution calling for government investigation of racketeering in the construction industry.

Hugh Buchanan, chairman of the resolutions committee, dismissed Mr. Gallagher's claim as "utter nonsense." He said the resolution reached him late and was badly worded.

Mr. Gallagher said in an interview after failing to get his resolution to the floor: "I'm damned angry about it. Maybe there's some unions that don't want to be investigated, for whatever reason I don't know."

At the end of the convention, United Steelworkers of America director called a news conference to demand government seizure of four strikebound mines.

Larry Sefton, director of District 6, which covers all of Canada west of the Ontario-Quebec border, said provincial governments should provide medical and hospital coverage for strikers. If the provincial medical plans were not to be universal.

In recent major strikes the union has paid medical and hospital premiums for workers, he said.

Mr. Sefton also called on naional labor bodies to continue pushing the federal government to extend unemployment insurance benefits to strikers.

Mr. Sefton's comments came on the eve of a regional conference of his union district which represents 80,000 workers in Ontario and 120,000 in Canada.

Delegates to the federation convention were also told, just before it ended, that the 100,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada soon will affiliate with provincial labor organizations across the country.

The white-collar workers move will bring 50,000 new members into the Ontario federation.

Convention delegates waded through almost 100 resolutions during the week's meeting, including a labor statement of principles and position papers dealing with pollution and public broadcasting.

Priority Is Questioned

Canada at Direct Odds with U.S. Over Use of Diabetic Pill

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada intends to stand pat for now in the medical controversy over tolbutamide, a pill used for nearly 13 years by some diabetics.

This decision today by the federal food and drug directorate clashed head-on with the action of the United States food and drug administration.

Last week the U.S. agency advised doctors tolbutamide should be used only if diet or a combination of diet and insulin injections failed to control diabetes that starts in adult years.

Dr. Jeffrey Bishop, director of the Canadian food and drug directorate drug advisory bureau, said today that pending further assessment of evidence Canada will make no change.

Manufacturers in this country are permitted to claim in their advertising to doctors that the drug is for use in adult-onset diabetes which cannot be controlled by diet alone.

Standard medical texts hold out tolbutamide as the next choice where diet alone fails, in effect making insulin injections a third choice.

An unknown number of Canada's estimated 150,000 diabetics take one of the 25 tolbutamide brands on sale here or one or two other chemically-related drugs.

U.S. government action against tolbutamide was taken with advance knowledge of an analysis published Monday by the council on drugs of the American Medical Association.

The council concluded that doctors should make every effort to control adult-onset diabetes with diet alone but, if that fails, to turn to insulin first.

It says treatment with tolbutamide should rank behind insulin.

These conclusions arose from analysis of a study launched in 1961 by 12 American universities and reported in June. It was the first systematic, long-term examination of the value of tolbutamide in managing adult-onset diabetes.

The universities found no evidence that, in adult-onset diabetes, diet and tolbutamide were more effective than diet alone.

In fact, the universities concluded tolbutamide and diet may be less effective than diet alone in prolonging life or preventing cardiovascular complications such as blood clots.

Dr. Bishop said Dr. John Moorhouse, Winnipeg endocrinologist who heads the Canadian Diabetic Association's medical committee, disagreed with the study following his analysis of the universities' study.

Dr. Bishop said British health authorities also have reservations about the U.S. evidence, which the British Diabetes Association challenged earlier this year.

The U.S. study conflicts in important aspects with British and Swedish studies covering a shorterperiod of time.

Indians Want Share Of North

EDMONTON (CP) — John Tetlichi, a northern Indian leader, asked the oil industry Wednesday night to allow natives what he called their rightful place in development of the Arctic.

Chief Tetlichi, the 53-year-old leader of the Loucheux Indian band at Fort McPherson, N.W.T., was addressing delegates to the fifth national northern development conference.

"Development of the North . . . will be an empty thing if the Indians, the Eskimos and the Metis who live in that land are not given a chance to share in the fruit of this development.

"Our old ways of life are in danger because the game and wild resources of the North are limited and our population grows. How soon will the strain on the resources mean the disappearance of the so-called romance of the hunters and the trappers?"

The chief, an active trapper and hunter who returned to that way of life after serving for three years as an appointed member of the Northwest Territories council, said:

"Perhaps we have only one path to follow: that of ensuring with your help and the help of government that our children came into the 20th century, or at the latest, the 21st, prepared to take their place as a distinct part of the people of Canada."

He said many northerners have learning that cannot be found in books and said this must be augmented by the white man's knowledge if natives are to take their rightful place.

"Our people should be able to move anywhere in Canada. A welder trained in a vocational school at Inuvik should be able to take his place in Toronto, Winnipeg or Edmonton alongside the welder trained in a provincial school.

"Perhaps this is a tall order but it is an order which will have to be filled if our people are to stand at your side in northern development.

"In justice, we should stand at your side."

The hunt for oil and natural gas in the Canadian North seems to be bypassing the natives, he said, adding that it is not too late to amend treaties so Indians and Eskimos can share in the wealth buried underground.

"Do we continue the way of life on which our people have survived for centuries or do we take up the new way the strange white man has brought to us?

"If we continue in the old way, will our children feel that we have failed them or if we do take up the new way, will we have failed them and ourselves?"

Chief Tetlichi said the natives of Northern Canada need to be educated but at the same time, southerners require an education in human relationships.

"You must also learn that the Indian, the Eskimo and the Metis is a man just like you and that he deserves the same breaks as you would give your own brother and the same tolerance you would show for any other persons."

Food Store Managers Say Discounts Old Hat

Supermarket managers here deny that a price war is raging for the Belleville consumers' grocery dollars.

"We're ahead of them (metropolitan centres); it happened here long ago," says one manager.

"Belleville shoppers have been getting their food cheaper for over a year," says another.

None will admit that they slashed prices on any items yesterday after Dominion Stores Ltd. announced its "deep discount" policy.

"We're competitive, come and compare," was as far as most managers would go in commenting on the price slashing. They referred queries to the Toronto head offices of their chains.

But one A and P manager said Belleville's two stores in the chain have been discounting for 1½ years — two of five A and P outlets in the province to do so.

"Everybody has come down to match us," he asserted.

The same man commented that there is very little profit on the $5 to $6 million a food chain takes in every week in Ontario.

The shareholders are going to demand dividends and the prices of food will skyrocket two years from now," he said.

Local store managers have no authority to discount prices in their competition, they said. Decision or other supermarkets.

"Sure I can do it — after a phone call," said one manager.

But head offices are firmly in control of discounting on all items.

"I can't decide that I want to take a 1 per cent profit on an item in my store instead of 20 per cent without checking with head office," admitted a manager. "After all, it's their money I'm playing with."

Officially at least, rival supermarket managers don't seem to be worried about Dominion's deep discount practices.

"My sales are up over last week," said the manager of one of Dominion's downtown competitors.

Support, No Money For Youth Centre

Any move on the part of local authorities toward setting up a community operated youth centre in Belleville would have the moral support of provincial social and family services department, but little or no financial assistance could be expected.

This was indicated yesterday at an exploratory meeting of local community service group heads and attended by Edward Magder, director of branch of the provincial social and family services.

Yesterday's meeting was held at the home of Quinte riding member Dr. R. T. Potter, who, at the suggestion of city Ald. Donald Soutter, arranged to have Mr. Magder come to Belleville.

Others attending the two hour talk session included Ald. Robin Jeffrey, Bruce Kerr, director of the Hastings family and children's services; Inspector Cooverman, executive director of the Belleville and District Community Services, Police Chief Douglas T. Crabbe, "Dit" Diamentides, YMCA secretary, and Lorne Williams of recreation director.

Mr. Magder was non-committal on a suggestion that his department consider a possible "pilot" youth drop-in centre for Belleville.

He made it clear that his department had no funds available for the setting up and operation of youth drop-in centres as such.

Motivation and financing for such centres would have to come from within the community itself, he said.

At the same time however his department would be prepared to give any organizational assistance possible.

Mr. Magder said he would provide a written comment of his observations of yesterday's meeting and make suggestions as to what he felt was needed in Belleville. Also, he said he would provide a list of the Ontario municipalities where successful community-operated youth centres were being run.

R. Nixon To Address Convention

Robert Nixon, leader of the Ontario Liberal Party and leader of the official opposition in the Ontario Legislature, will be the keynote speaker at the Hastings Liberal Association nomination convention at Tweed on November 28.

The convention, to be held in the Memorial Hall, Tweed - Hungerford Senior School (formerly the Tweed-Hungerford District High School), has been called to select a candidate to contest the riding in the next provincial election.

In addition to Mr. Nixon, the nomination meeting will be attended by other Liberal members in the Legislature.

Town Takeover Is Recommended

TRENTON (Staff) — A report tabled in council Monday night recommends that the town take over operation of the sanitary landfill on the south side of Bay Street.

The waste dump service is run by a private firm through an agreement with the Town of Trenton.

Mayor Duncan McDonald and Councillor Robert Pallick conducted the study report on the situation that the present agreement should be terminated "due to the unfavorable conditions that exist on the property".

The two-man delegation also recommends that the town "should purchase a Michigan loader" to be used at the Bay Street landfill and that material for covering the waste should be excavated and stored on the site.

Because of the vulnerability of the town operating the sanitary landfill in times of a labor dispute, the report advocates a special agreement with the Canadian Union of Public Employees local representing the public works department to "exempt this project from any interruption by work cessation".

The delegates also suggest that the town seek legal advice about overtime paid to the present contractor. They say "the amount of money paid . . . for overtime appears to have been for work that was covered in his agreement.

Indexes Down

All indexes on the Toronto and the Montreal Exchanges, with the exception of golds, showed decreases in the month of October. In Toronto, industrials went from 165.87 on Sept. 30 to 162.14 on October 30, while in Montreal, industrials dropped from 168.38 to 165.07. Golds showed the only increase, rising to 178.29 from 157.57.

The committee headquarters will be the auditorium of the Legion Hall. Plenty of volunteers are needed and all who can do so will be very welcome.

On Friday the poppy sales will start at 9 a.m. and on Saturday the sales will be on from 8 a.m. until noon. On Friday evening, especially, veteran volunteers will be needed to canvas the clubs etc. that the naval, army and air cadets may not enter because of their age. Hot coffee and sandwiches will be available for all canvassers at the Legion.

Several members headed by President Dick Burns attended a Provincial Command meeting at Lakeview over the weekend and Dominion President Jack Lindsay also attended. Several questions left over for the Dominion Executive to consider from the Dominion Convention had answers which were discussed and these important results will be placed on the agenda for the next general meeting on Nov. 12th by the President.

Despite the rather dreary weather a good crowd attended both the Saturday afternoon dart doubles and the Mr. and Mrs. In the evening, Doubles 1st match: winners, George Christopher and Chuck Lloyd, runners up: Colin Burbeck and Bob Green. 2nd match, winners, Garry Genereaux and Milt Pukamchuk, runners up: Greg Achterman and Norm Gallegher. 3rd match: winners, Tom Nicholson and George Christopher, runners up: Colin Burbeck and Don Watts. Mr. and Mrs. winners: Dave and Ann Feeney, runners up: Mary Northey and Ron Culloden. Ladies High Darts: Mary Northey, 100. Men's High Darts: Ron Culloden 121.

The sports chairman is organizing a Mr. and Mrs. shuffleboard tournament for the Saturday evenings when there is no mixed darts and, as in the case of Mr. and Mrs. darts there will be prizes and refreshments. If enough couples are on hand he might start first match next Saturday evening with registration at 8 p.m. and starting at 8.30. Members and guests welcome to join in the fun and enjoyment of both darts and shuffleboard.

On the sick list at present is Bishop J. J. Creegan, resting at home: Cdes. R. Feather, 713; D. Locke, 825; H. Setiger at home, W. Turner, 512 and H. Northey at home.

A nice crowd attended the Friday evening social in the Tartan Lounge and entertainment chairman Jack Fitzgerald, dressed up as a slightly inebriated old lady put on one of his very humorous acts that had the folks rocking with merriment and received a well deserved round of applause. Come join in the fun as one never knows just what Jack will think up next, so drop in and relax and enjoy a carefree evening.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

FRASER & O'NEILL LIMITED REALTOR

CHAMPAGNE AND CAVIAR ARE GREAT !

So you are a young couple and you would like to get started on building your own REAL Estate, Great! Congratulations! Smart Thinking!

You eat out on a weekend and drop in to the Surveys where Realtors offer the latest in modern homes. Find your low down when you hear the prices and the interest rates and you go home all broken up about the fact that you will never afford one of them.

Hold on! - don't call your politician and don't write a letter to the editor about the tragic housing crisis. Not yet! Think for a moment.

Did your parents step from the altar into a brand new home? Not likely. Do you know of any young couples who could attend even an offer home without saving for it for many years? Of course not! You can likely afford a small home of your own with a low down payment, low monthly payments and low taxes. And you get to have REAL pleasure seeing your small investment grow and grow about moving up to a large home later when you have children and really need it.

You are lucky. You can start building a REAL Estate. See Fraser & O'Neill today.

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed — MR. TWEEDY — by Ned Riddle

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Getting All Facts Key to Diagnosis

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've often wondered how a doctor goes about finding the reason for pain in the stomach. So many things might be the cause. To me it seems like unraveling a puzzle. — Mrs. B.

COMMENT: As our professor of medicine used to say, "Taking a good history is the most important part of making a correct diagnosis." Of course, experience is important. So is keen observation of the patient. And so is actual examination — including laboratory tests.

For example, suppose you are a young married woman with sudden colicky pain in the abdomen. If that is all the doctor knew about you he'd have a difficult time making the right diagnosis.

He'd begin asking you and the family questions. Did you ever have it before? When? How often? What seemed to bring it on? How long did attacks last?

One by one he would ask questions that related to various organs that might be causing the trouble: liver, gall bladder, pancreas, hiatal hernia, ovaries, bowels (small and large intestines), bladder, kidneys, ureters. How about organs outside the stomach: trouble in the heart, lungs, diaphragm?

First he has to think of these possibilities; then cast them aside one by one. For example, if everything seems to be negative, laboratory tests may indicate that the trouble is in the pancreas; or X-rays may show that hiatal hernia is the cause; or serial electrocardiograms — taken over a period of several days) may indicate that the abdominal pain — "indigestion" — is really due to a coronary attack.

It's often easy to diagnose acute appendicitis by a poke of the finger in a sensitive spot or dig under the ribs to find the discomfort due to a gall bladder colic; or prove on a flask to make the doctor suspicious of kidney involvement. Sometimes the history will point the accusing finger at eating greasen apples, or something equally indigestible.

As you see, Mrs. B., differential diagnosis is like solving the puzzle you mentioned. But no matter how many times he solves similar puzzles the doctor must frequently become unsure of himself. Even medical experts occasionally fail. And they do so more often when they think that pain in the stomach is no longer a challenge.

This underlines a moral: If anyone in your family gets a "stomach ache" that lasts longer than an hour or two, do not try to diagnose or treat it yourself. What's difficult for the doctor is surely out of your reach — no matter how smart you are in other areas. A brilliant lawyer becomes a dumb doctor; just as a brilliant doctor becomes a dumb lawyer.

For Mrs. U.: Babies suck their thumbs because it is a basic instinct: like sucking on the bottle or mother's nipple. I wouldn't worry about it as your daughter is only a year old. Some children continue to do so until they are older. Most stop at two.

When a child much older continues the habit, I suggest consultation with the family dentist or an orthodontist, to ensure against abnormal pressures on the bony structures around the mouth.

Kerr Won't Intercede

TORONTO (CP) — George Kerr, energy and resources minister, said Wednesday he couldn't intercede to ensure that Ontario Hydro rates will remain competitive over the next five years with other sources of energy.

Mr. Kerr, replying in the Ontario legislature to Harold MacKenzie (L—Ottawa Centre), said "for the most part" hydro rates are competitive for domestic heating, and he couldn't "very well intercede itself as competitive rates are concerned."

Mr. MacKenzie said the government should intercede on behalf of those who switched their heating systems to electricity, lured by Hydro promotional advertisements.

He expressed fears that new increases in hydro rates, announced earlier this week, will adversely affect these users.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 6

Your birthday today: Your year depends on your ability to overcome limitations, cope with changes and surprises. Much of what you must do now has never been done before or not under quite the same conditions. You must, in general, do it all yourself. Today's natives almost invariably possess great personal magnetism, frequently have an extensive private life that is seldom brought to public notice.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Sudden turns of circumstance upset your schedule. Don't react to exciting news rashly. There is more to the story, perhaps another side altogether.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Contrary opinions are frequent at the moment. Care and accuracy in travel are important. Your patience saves the day. You'll have a better turn later.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Avoid physical stress; refuse to join the excitement. Order people tend to be quite sensitive, so watch where you set your own insistence with your remarks.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Special transactions come to your attention amid unexpected changes. Take the simplest, most conservative approach and accept interruption of work as normal.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You have to decide quickly which of several projects is worthwhile. Changes seem unavoidable. Action taken impulsively, without consultation, might be regretted.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Tact and real emotional acceptance makes all the difference in your activities now. Financial experiments, sizable purchases, hasty moves are not favored.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Today there is opposition to any sort of activity, according to the nature of the project and how it has been guided. Courtesy can help avert strife.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Tension rises, within and without. Keep your plans simple, be prepared for changes. Avoid needless comments or competitive attitudes; there should be room for all.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Friends and competitors are active today, affecting your plans. Side-step any secret deals. Postpone being in a group until you can do so without reservations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your affairs include unplanned conditions; be ready to change arrangements, delay routines. You can't really win an argument today — save your energy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Discretion is the better part of valor today, as even the simplest of routine becomes a matter for discord. Your self-control now is important.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Money and other material considerations are distorted somewhat by circumstances. Strangers and relatives have more problems than you usually encounter.

90-day Truce Extension Will Be Last Says Egypt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Uneasy calm prevailed along the Suez canal today as Egypt, Israel and Jordan extended their 90-day ceasefire. But Cairo said it will not agree to another extension "under any circumstances."

The semi-official newspaper Al Ahram said Egypt had accepted a 90-day extension of the truce "at the wish of the international community" but that any further extension would "serve Israel's goal in turning it into a permanent ceasefire."

Israeli Premier Golda Meir told a British television interviewer: "I do hope that the longer the ceasefire lasts, the more difficult it will become for the Egyptians to begin shooting again."

"As far as Israel is concerned," said Deputy Premier Yigal Allon, "the ceasefire will continue as long as Egypt avoids taking military steps against us."

Jordan had announced earlier that it would continue to observe a ceasefire as long as its forces were not attacked.

Egyptian and Israeli forces along the Suez canal were on the alert, but their guns remained quiet.

The situation was also calm along the River Jordan separating Israel and Jordanian forces.

Third Rochester Synagogue Bombed

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A dynamite explosion early today blew two holes in the rear of Temple Beth Am in this suburb of Rochester. No injuries were reported.

It was the third synagogue bombing in the area within 10 days. Two were damaged in Rochester Oct. 27 in explosions. Six other buildings in the city were bombed Oct. 12.

"Considerably more than two sticks of dynamite were used here," Sheriff's Detective Donald Wall said of Temple Beth Am.

Police said devices they described as "tube bombs" had been placed in the corner of a one-storey cinder-block structure forming the rear of the synagogue and housing offices and a kitchen.

Police said two holes, one measuring about three by four feet, the other two by three, were blown in the back wall of the structure. All windows of the building were shattered.

Windows were broken in nearby homes.

Ryan Says Bourassa Will Lose Popularity

HULL, Que. (CP) — Claude Ryan, publisher of Montreal Le Devoir, says the Liberal government of Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa will have difficulty recovering from the current terrorism-kidnapping crisis and may be forced to resign before the end of its term in 1974.

Mr. Ryan, whose name has figured prominently in discussions concerning some aspects of the handling of the crisis, made the statement in reply to a question while participating in a panel discussion at a meeting, sponsored by Operation Democratie.

The organization was formed in Ottawa area people who wished to help those arrested under the War Measures Act and who, in the words of the founders, wished to show that the silent majority does not unanimously support the government's actions.

Other members of the panel were Guy Joron, Parti Quebecois member of the Quebec national assembly for Montreal Gouin, and Claude Parise, a member of Operation-Democratie.

37 Persons Arraigned Ten Face Charges Of Seditious Plot

Judge Is Cool, Accused Hot

MONTREAL (CP) — Mr. Justice Ignace-J. Deslauriers kept his cool Thursday amid wild outbursts of slogan-shouting and profanity from the five persons he sent to trial on charges involving the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Mr. Justice Deslauriers calmly listened as Pierre Valleres, Charles Gagnon, Robert Lemieux, Jacques Larue-Langlois and Mich Chartrand spoke in Court of Queen's Bench.

None entered pleas.

Haggard looking after 21 days of incarceration in police cells, all five requested motions to quash charges and motions for details, but they were denied as invalid.

Lemieux, a lawyer who acted as negotiator for the FLQ in futile three-day talks for the possible release of two kidnapped hostages, said:

"I want to know of what act, of what omission I am accused.

"If you reject the motion, you should be ashamed of yourself."

He said it was wrong to try the five in the courtroom in headquarters of Quebec Provincial Police instead of Sessions Court.

"You're not the judge who sits this week," Lemieux said. It was "an exceptional court."

"It's such a stupid charge, so badly-founded," said Gagnon, screaming at times, and describing Premier Robert Bourassa and Prime Minister Trudeau as "our gods of unemployment, our gods of colonialism."

"The only goal of these charges is to keep guys in jail . . . the guys who now make up the opposition in Quebec."

Charged with making seditious statements Oct. 15 when he allegedly said the use of dynamite and arms were the only way to fight the government, Valleres said:

"I won't plead to farces like that."

In his years of fighting "to change the system," Chartrand said, "I said less than Diefenbaker said, than Duplessis said."

He was referring to John Diefenbaker, former Canadian prime minister, and the late Quebec premier Maurice Duplessis.

"I always took democratic means."

Larue-Langlois said:

"When did we commit this act of sedition? You judges are behaving like imbeciles."

Hard Negotiations Begun in GM Strike

DETROIT (AP) — Indications that hard and fast negotiations may have begun between General Motors and the striking United Auto Workers union came from the bargaining table Thursday.

The strike, called to support the UAW's new contract demands, now is in its 33rd day and has made idle some 400,000 at GM plants in Canada and the United States, plus thousands more in auto-related industries.

Thursday's negotiating session, which ran beyond 7 p.m., was the longest since a special top-level, six-member subcommittee was formed a week ago to "undertake intensive probing" of "the major national issues that now separate the parties."

The two sides agreed to meet again at 9:30 a.m. today.

High negotiations, often running into marathon distances, usually are a sign of progress and there was heavy traffic Thursday between the bargaining room and GM executive offices several floors above. The latter usually is also a sign of seriousness.

Union Bans Smiles

LONDON (Reuter) — Passengers travelling on Air India flights to London have been warned to expect service from scruffy, unshaven, grim-faced stewards.

Because of a salary dispute, Air India stewardesses also have been ordered by their union not to smile or comb their hair, and stewards to leave their shirttails flapping outside their pants.

Staff at Heathrow Airport were warning passengers about the sour faces and the wage claim, which has caused cancellation of some flights.

Photo of Cross Said Received

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says police have received, within the last 48 hours, a photograph of James Jasper Cross in which the kidnaped British envoy "looks well and alert."

Quoting reliable sources, the newspaper says the photo bears the writing "J. Cross" on the back but it is not known if it is in Mr. Cross' handwriting.

Police would not confirm the existence of the photograph Thursday night, nor would they comment on the Gazette report which says a note from the Front de Liberation du Quebec accompanied the picture.

The 48-year-old trade commissioner, kidnaped Oct. 5, is shown sitting alone on a box apparently containing explosives and playing cards.

He is described as wearing a dark, V-neck sweater, a white shirt open at the neck and dark pants. He is clean-shaven and neatly groomed.

The Gazette says "authorities believe the picture, which is of good quality, was taken recently."

Court Denies Bail

MONTREAL (CP) — Charges of seditious conspiracy and membership in the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec were among the counts read as the tumultuous arraignment Thursday of 24 persons detained under the War Measures Act.

All 24 were charged with having been, or having professed to be, members of the now-illegal terrorist organization which was outlawed after claiming credit for the kidnapping of a British diplomat and the kidnap-killing of a Quebec cabinet minister.

Eleven other charges ranged down to conspiracy and illegal possession of weapons.

Ten men were charged with seditious conspiracy to overthrow the government of Canada and Quebec by force, which carries a maximum 14-year prison term.

All were remanded to Jan. 7 while others appearing in Montreal were remanded on various dates the same month.

The arraignments of the 21 men and three women were held under strict security in the new east-end headquarters of provincial police. About 80 reporters were admitted after their credentials were scrutinized twice and they were personally searched. The public was excluded.

In other parts of the province, 13 other persons detained under the War Measures Act also were arraigned Thursday.

Police say 39 of the more than 400 persons detained under the War Measures Act was produced in court. It was not said. It is not known when the rest will be arraigned.

Police would not confirm the newspaper report.

Five of those charged with sedition conspiracy raised a ruckus in the courtroom, howling abuse at Mr. Justice Ignace-J. Deslauriers and at the judicial system in general.

They were labor leader Michel Chartrand, lawyer Robert Lemieux, author Pierre Valleres, Charles Gagnon, former university lecturer in sociology and Jacques Larue-Langlois, former labor organizer with the CBC French-language network.

Also charged with sedition conspiracy were Jean Boisjoly, Gilles Cormier, Raymond Cormier, Robert Langevin and Cross Lorance, all in their late teens or early 20s.

Valleres left the court with his right fist upraised, shouting:

"Long live the FLQ. We will

Recounts Possible in Five Major Races in U.S. Elections

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the counting is finished it's almost certain to show more Americans voted Tuesday than in any mid-term election, but — as usual — not anywhere near that of a presidential year.

With scattered voting districts yet to be counted and thousands of absentee ballots to be tabulated, an Associated Press survey shows an unofficial total of 56,168,618 tallied so far.

That's near the final 58,827,994 total of 1966 and well over the 52,510,425 in 1962. The 1960 presidential vote was 68,833,341 and the 1958 total was 73,350,808.

A recount of ballots may be required to determine winners of major races in five states.

At stake—with Democrats leading in all five—are governorships in Oklahoma, Rhode Island and Maine, a Senate seat in Indiana and a House of Representatives seat in Kentucky.

A sixth race was settled Thursday when Democrat Sander Levins conceded defeat to Republican Gov. William Milliken in Michigan.

In Indiana, Democratic Senator Vance Hartke, a liberal and a key target of the Nixon administration, claimed victory over Republican Representative Richard L. Roudebush.

With all 4,440 Indiana districts reported and all absentee ballots counted, Hartke had a 4,346-vote lead over Roudebush.

Under orders of Gov. Edgar D. Whitcomb, state police sealed every voting machine and ballot box in Indiana in case a recount is demanded.

State troopers also are guarding ballot boxes in Maine where Democratic Gov. Kenneth M. Curtis is clinging to a 688-vote lead over Attorney-General James S. Erwin, a Republican.

A recount of the 325,000 votes cast in Maine's 662 districts will begin Nov. 23.

Rhode Island Gov. Frank Licht, a Democrat, holds a 2,716-vote margin over Republican Herbert F. DeSimone with some of the 7,500 absentee ballots uncounted.

But there, too, a recount has been scheduled.

In Oklahoma, National Guard troops are guarding ballot boxes until Republican Gov. Dewey Bartlett decides whether to ask for the first statewide recount in the state's history. Democrat David Hall holds a 2,564-vote margin over Bartlett.

The last of the 435 House races to be decided is in Kentucky's 3rd District. Republican Representative William O. Cowger, a former Louisville mayor, is depending on absentee votes to hold his House seat.

Late Thursday night, Cowger trailed Democrat Romano Mazzoli by 227 votes. There were about 175 more ballots left unchecked and it appeared Mazzoli defeated Cowger. However a recount was expected.

A Cowger loss would give Democrats 255 seats—a gain of nine—for the new Congress. Should Hartke retain his lead, the new Senate would be made up of 54 Democrats, 44 Republicans, one independent and one Conservative—a two-seat gain for the Republicans.

Democratic victories in Oklahoma, Rhode Island and Maine would give Democrats control of 29 state houses to 21 for the Republicans.

Blueberries New Pack

BLOOMFIELD (Sself) — Workers at the Baxter Canning Co. Ltd., Bloomfield are packing blueberries this year for the first time. The plant, owned by Donald Baxter as "a new product for us", the blueberries are being imported from Prince Edward County from Oxford, Nova Scotia.

A substantial pack will be stored for General Mills Cereals, Canada for packaging in boxes of blueberry muffin mix.

Mr. Baxter explained that the fruit is canned in hot water in 20½ inch tins and is a special vacuum pack containing no sugar. General Mills Cereals approached the Baxter factory this year hoping to obtain their blueberries from a Canadian source.

In past years blueberries packaged in the muffin mixes were purchased in the United States. Factory workers will finish the new pack this month.

Bazaar Financial Success For Senior Citizens' Work

Belleville's senior citizens went vigorously to work yesterday — and earned a tidy contribution toward their own undertakings.

More than 350 people crowded into the Senior Citizens' drop-in centre at the city's recreation building, as the club marked the start of its 18th year with a tea and bazaar.

On sale was a multitude of items from baked goods, to aprons, fruit, candy and cosmetics.

Result of the salesmanship by club members: An estimated $600 for the Senior Citizens' treasury.

The return will help fund the club's participation in community projects. Among recent projects have been support of work for retarded children and the city's Santa Claus parade.

CJBQ to Be Heard Over Wider Area

Radio station CJBQ "the Voice of the Bay of Quinte" will be heard in the extreme north end of Hastings County sometime next summer when the station goes on increased power granted by the Canadian Radio and Television Commission.

The commission yesterday announced approval of the Quinte Broadcasting application for an increase in power from the present 1,000 to 10,000 watts.

Station manager Frank C. Murvey said the increased power would give a clear signal throughout all of Hastings and Prince Edward, west to beyond Colborne and east almost to Kingston.

He said night-time reception would be greatly improved throughout the signal area with the present annoying interference eliminated.

The broadcasting company has acquired a new transmitter site in Hillier township just south of Niles Corners and here six new towers more than 300 feet high will be erected.

"We will start construction in the spring and hope to be on the air with the increased power by mid-summer," said Mr. Murvey.

Apples Lack Color

The complete absence of frost so far this season and more cloudy skies than usual has resulted in a lower percentage of colored apples this fall.

Normally orchardists like to wait for light frost to help color late apples before picking, but this year the harvest has been completed before the mercury dropped below freezing.

One Prince Edward county orchardist regularly attending Belleville market said many farmers would have liked to wait for some frost but with the lateness of the season it was too risky.

"A heavy wind storm or a harder than expected frost could have meant loss of the crop" he said.

The result was a considerably lower percentage of well colored fruit — and with today's emphasis on color, more profit for the canning factories and juice plants.

Contractor Selected For Deseronto Job

DESERONTO (Staff)—Keystone Contractors Ltd. of Windsor, were low bidders for the construction of sanitary sewers in two miles of sanitary sewer to be built in this town, Ontario Water Resources Commission.

The Windsor firm was one of six submitting tenders for the sewer project. Their bid was $527,767.80, or approximately 18 per cent higher than the $368 estimate for the work.

The highest bid for the job was $1,234,984.80.

The sewer construction is phase one of an over-all project which will also see a sewage treatment plant built.

The OWRC has also called tenders for the sewage plant construction with tenders to close Nov. 24. Tenders for the sewer construction, opened yesterday in Toronto, will be reviewed by the OWRC with contracts for both the sewer and plant to be awarded at the same time.

Deseronto Reeve George Lyons told The Intelligencer this morning that OWRC officials were impressed with the amount of the low bid for sewer construction.

They felt that the 18 per cent increase over the 1968 estimated cost was quite in line.

Adding to the cost of the Deseronto sewer project is the fact that approximately one half of the excavation will be in rock, and also the fact that

Cost of the sewage treatment plant and the transitional plant will be spread over 40 years with the OWRC recovering the cost through a user charge on water rates or with a sewer charge added to water bills.

None of the costs will be a direct charge on the property, Reeve Lyons said.

The sewer construction project and new treatment plant are not expected to be completed until some time in 1972.

conspire in spite of the SOBs."

Most of the other accused were quiet during these outbursts.

Seditious conspiracy is defined in the Criminal Code as "an agreement between two or more persons to carry out a seditious intention."

A person having seditious intention under the Criminal Code is one who "teaches or advocates" or "publishes or circulates any writing that advocates the use, without authority of law, of force as a means of accomplishing a governmental change within Canada."

January trial dates were set in all cases and bail was denied.

The charges at arraignment Thursday were read in French except in the case of Englishspeaking Frederick Vickerson, charged only with membership in an unlawful association.

Similar charges were read to the three women—Lise Balcer, Lise Rose and Andree Ferretti, to FLQ membership.

Boisjoly and Leblanc faced charges of possession of weapons. They said the two similars were also charged with communicating statements on behalf of the FLQ. This, like the membership charge, carries a five-year maximum penalty.

Vallieres and Larue-Langlois were charged with common assault on Jos. Golden, a Reuter news agency corresponded beaten by onlookers Oct. 14 while attending a Lemieux news conference. The charge is punishable by up to two years' imprisonment.

Prosecutors had a list of 27 names of persons scheduled for arraignment Thursday but only the 24 appeared. The names of the other three were not mentioned in court.

The other 13 arraignments this week included four in Montreal, four in Sherbrooke, two in Quebec, two in Montreal and one in Granby.

At the Cowansville arraignment, Francois Mercier, a 27-year-old Montreal bank teller, admitted being a member of the outlawed FLQ and was remanded in jail for sentence.

In Montreal, Jean-Guy Lebrun and Victor Daudelin were charged with conspiracy to make machine-guns, and military uniforms.

In Sherbrooke, Real Jodoin and his wife Jeannine and Jacques Gauthier and his wife Jacinthe were charged with distributing pamphlets which advocated and predicted illicit acts of the FLQ.

In Quebec City, Richard Lemay and Roland Pelletier were charged with advocating FLQ principles. These cases were remanded to Nov. 13.

In Rimouski, Claude Caron, 20, was charged with making annoyonous telephone calls in alarm one or more persons. Roger Belanger was charged with possession of sawed-off shotgun

C of C Annual Meeting Postponed to February

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce will probably have its annual meeting next year in the newly-opened Four Seasons and the chamber is still attempting to secure the presence of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau as guest speaker.

However, there might be a change in tradition as a result of holding the meeting at Belleville's newest hotel complex.

During a director's meeting of the Chamber last night, J. C. Houston, manager of the organization, reported that the Four Seasons could not accommodate such an event in January when the annual chamber meeting is usually held.

The hotel is not expected to open until the middle of February and the difficulty of handling such an event as the chamber's annual meeting before that date would be impossible.

A motion to work out the date with the Four Seasons was carried.

Chamber president, Frank Murray, reported that he had received no acknowledgment from letters to the prime minister and to Liberal Party officials in the Belleville area concerning an invitation for Mr. Trudeau to speak at the annual meeting.

Mr. Murray said he would continue to work on the project and that the chamber's executive committee had an alternative list of speakers, should plans for Mr. Trudeau break down.

During the meeting the board, led by Mr. Murray, laid the groundwork for a concentrated membership drive, outlining the steps to be taken in the campaign prior to and during which is hoped to be Chamber of Commerce Membership Week.

Mr. Murray outlined the methods and plans of the campaign, explaining that prospective members would be contacted through a brochure, outlining the activities of the Chamber.

The brochures will be followed by letters and then cardscards and personal telephone contact. In addition, there will be an ad campaign on radio and in the newspaper.

The chamber will also seek a proclamation from the city to make the week of Nov. 23 Chamber of Commerce Membership Week.

A delegation from the chamber board of directors will visit the meeting of Belleville City Council Monday to seek the city's support of the membership drive.

The directors last night carried a motion to meet the costs of advertising, hoping that donations from members might help to foot the bill.

The goal for new members in the campaign has been set at 150. At present the chamber has 229 company or individual members.

The chamber board that night also announced that it was completing its proposal for a Convention Bureau in the city. The board has a committee for getting the bureau moving.

The bureau would be designed to compile a list of organizations and associations in Ontario and elsewhere and then solicit their interest in Belleville as a convention site.

The philosophy of the bureau would be one of selling the municipality and its facilities, a practice that would include the use of brochures showing the attractions of Belleville

A meeting next week will serve to continue work in this respect, completing the preparation of such a bureau.

The board authorized chamber manager, J. C. Houston, to inform the Quinte Construction Association of increases in fees for services over the next two - year period.

The raise in fees would eventually see the construction association paying 100 per cent of its share of operating costs of the chamber's work on behalf of the association.

At present the QCA pays approximately 40 per cent of its own costs of service.

The chamber board will recommend that in 1977, the association pay 80 per cent of its costs and in 1972 100 per cent.

The directors last night decided to launch a search on behalf of Ontario Place for motion picture films depicting events and traditions in area.

The films will be sent to officials of Ontario Place who are compiling film material about Ontario towns and cities and municipalities showing their progress since the beginning of this century.

Alateen's Aim Is to Teach Teens to Live with Alcoholic

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The most unobtrusive youth group in Belleville meets regularly once a week.

That's the only formal certainty about the function.

It has no organization to speak of; no one knows the true total membership of fellow members. In fact, full names are neither mentioned or recorded.

The motive is not secrecy so much as anonymity.

Without that guarantee, Alateen might have difficulty attaining its objectives. And even then, it's never certain if it does score its goals.

Its group achievements also are matters of personal perceptive.

Alateen is a group of young people with one crucial problem in common. Alcoholism in their homes.

They meet solely — and hopefully — to discover means and attitudes for coping with the individual situation imposed upon them by a parent or other family member who drinks compulsively.

Like its adult progenitors — Alcoholics Anonymous and Al-Anon, the organization of families and friends of alcoholics — is an international movement.

As in other centres, alcoholism is more prevalent in Belleville than is apparent.

It is common, says one of the two anonymous women who launched Alateen here, to which most people won't confess.

Therefore, she says, "there's a lot more alcoholism in Belleville than people will admit."

The frustration and confusion caused by alcoholism within the family can have devastating influences on a teenager still maturing to the adult.

Immediately, it can cause young people to leave home prematurely — or seek escapes of their own.

In the long haul, she says, alcoholism can be evaded in the teen years, to reappear later in adult life.

Alateen provides the therapy of airing common problems in a mutual environment, while holding out the likelihood of finding personal solutions by group discussion.

Alateen's aim is "more or less learning how to accept this problem in the home and finding the best way of leading a more serene life," says the adult counsellor.

Started last March, the group now is into another season with attendances that range from seven to 13 teenagers at the Wednesday night meetings in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church hall.

Anonymity removes many effective discussion, hence better results.

Members know each other only by first names. Any full-or acquaintance is a matter of coincidence. Not even the two adults involved may know the teenagers.

Retaining the confidential environment means that the group does not broadcast its presence in the community.

Its existence is made known on a personal basis. Clergymen, social agencies, police, guidance teachers know its service is available for suggestion when their duties bring them in contact with persistent situations.

For the teenager, alcoholism may be particularly difficult to comprehend, says the Alateen contact.

"They don't realize that persons who have become alcoholic can't help it," she says.

The general domestic situation can affect the teenagers, adolescent's its emotional may downgrade their social life.

Not all outsiders can comprehend the emotional problems which arise — and this is where Alateen comes in.

"Just being able to talk it over with someone who understands — who has been through this — helps with the problem," says the Alateen organizer.

Discussing their troubles in a sympathetic environment gives them courage and helps them to face up to things."

The benefits?

In some cases, it "may stop teenagers from leaving home before they finish school."

Sometimes it's a good overt more serious consequences.

For instance: "A young person may be started drugs because of the drinking problem in the home."

Any resentments of earlier days directed at parents — sometimes causing them to drink even more.

"The main thing," says the group organizer, "is to change yourself. You can't change everybody else."

By being resentful, even bitter, "all you're doing is feeding yourself in the long run. You're not helping your parent. The main thing is to help yourself so you can accept this problem in the home."

It's a difficult to gauge the success of the Alateen attitude, the contact admits.

She has noted only a definite change in attitudes among several young people since they began attending the weekly meetings — and this is the only indication possible that the program is being helpful.

"Who doesn't like to feel that the time you're spending is worthwhile?" she says. "However, it's one of those things where you never know."

"If they're coming (to Alateen) they must feel they need something — and we're hoping they find it. Mind you, some it may never help at all. But we feel it helps even one or two, it's worth it."

Belleville Flag Flies Abroad

The following article appeared in a recent edition of the County Express of Wimslow and Alderley, England.

"The 8th. Wilmslow Guides made history on Sunday when they dedicated their new colors . . . a Union Flag which belonged to a scout troop in Canada.

It was a proud moment for the 30 members of the company as they saw their new colors flown for the first time at St. Bartholomew's Church, Wilmslow, but probably the proudest person to witness the dedication was the guide leader, Mrs. Karen Fort, a Canadian who started the company last year."

This Union Jack was the one used for many years by the 1st Belleville Scout Troop and retired when replaced by the new Canadian Flag. When the need of the newly formed British Guide Company was known, it was decided that this old and famous scouting color could serve once more in our sister movement, the Girl Guides.

Karen is the wife of David Fort who became a Queen's Scout and was a former leader of the 1st Belleville Troop.

Mr. and Mrs. Fort will return to Canada next year when David completes his studies for his doctorate.

What A Difference

Remembrance Day is approaching and while we honor the memory of those who died, it is an irony of history to contemplate the generation gap between the men who died in say 1945 and some of the stranger manifestations of the 25-year-olds of society today.

It is the same homo sapiens that we see today but in different guise. We see a decline in the physical image of men and women, a lessened degree of manliness and femininity respectively and a blurring of the sexes so that sometimes one is indistinguishable from the other. The grey matter is the same today as ever — but how different the uses to which it is put.

In politics today's 25-year-old is more aware than those who went before, but he is also more devious. The practice of subversion under a multiplicity of heads, under a plethora of front organizations, but all with roots in Moscow or Peking, or both, has reached such proportions that any rules of the game that might have existed in politics in the past (like honor and decency and, reasonableness) long since have flown. In politics, today more than ever, black may be white or vice versa according to whichever way you want to manipulate things.

The extreme facets of both right wing and left-wing politics are just that — extreme, and are lacking in credibility as a result. Somewhere in between people remain who are more concerned about people as people whatever their politics, who seek not to manipulate their fellow men but rather promote their wellbeing.

We wonder today for example about a man called James Cross who was spirited away from his home some weeks ago by members of the FLQ, and about his family and that of the late Pierre Laporte. The public and political furore in the wake of the kidnappings has now reached just about saturation point. It was the same with Hearst, and we wonder what new issue will titillate the bandwagon propensities of the Canadian public. Meanwhile, we are left still wondering about man's inhumanity to man.

Law and Order

The United States election, very briefly, has indicated that Americans are more concerned with economics than with the problems of law and order. To that extent the Nixon-Agnew republican campaign cannot be said to have furthered the republican cause a great deal.

Mr. Nixon has been talking about law and order ever since his own campaign for the presidency. Yet it still eludes American society. He told a student audience recently that it was time to "draw the line" on violence — but he did not say where or how.

As the perennial Governor George Wallace of Alabama said, it is now time to "do" something about it. Whatever the election result, this indeed is one area in which the United States must act.

A King Is Dead

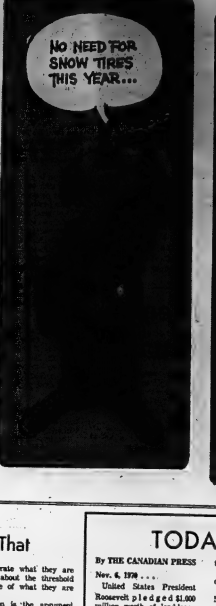
It seems only yesterday that the lean, aesthetic features of King Peter II of Yugoslavia were familiar to newspaper readers. In fact the young king, only 18 when he fled to London in 1941 in the wake of the German invasion of his country, reigned only briefly. Now the former monarch is dead, at the age of 47. He had made his home in the United States and his death occurred in a Los Angeles hospital.

Sad can be the fate of the European monarch. Long exiled from his homeland where the aging socialist, Marshal Tito, still holds sway, Peter went the way of King Michael of Romania, also a U.S. resident, and King Constantine of Greece, who is 30 and in exile with his wife, the former Princess Ann-Marie of Denmark.

Dog Show

Belleville and District Kennel Club's big weekend blast was a marvellous introduction to international canine exhibition for Belleville. We hope that next year the club will have the larger exhibition space it needs (you know what the psychologists say about overcrowding; in short it is bad from a number of standpoints, for dogs as for people). Perhaps the problem could be solved by using more than one building. We hope also that this focusing of attention on the aristocrats of the canine world will rub off a bit on the owners of dogs at large. Dogs need exercise, grooming, care and attention. Too many do not get it.

More on Kraft Mill Issue



Industry or Tourism—Choice Before County

The following is a copy of a letter to Brad Roger Gosse from M. G. Johnson, assistant professor, Department of Zoology, University of Guelph, to Ray Stevens of RR4 Picton.

As you know, I worked for about three years on water quality in the Bay of Quinte and adjacent lake. With this background, I am particularly disappointed that certain groups in Prince Edward County are in favor of the establishment of a kraft pulp mill near Hoyck's Point. I will give you my reasons.

So far, the County has been free of any concentration of heavy industry, the exception being on Picton Bay, notably the cement plant there. Nevertheless, water quality is poor in the Bay of Quinte and this is affected the tourist trade and will continue to affect the potential for new tourist dollars in the county. This deterioration in water quality is mainly due to municipal and industrial inputs in Hastings and Lennox and Addington counties. Something can and should be done about this — nutrient removal is the primary requirement, and I feel Prince Edward County is in a position to demand it of the north-shore municipalities. However, if Prince Edward County accepts the pulp mill, it can hardly convince these municipalities and the government that it wishes to develop and remain dependent on tourism. I am implying that the decision on the kraft mill is a broader decision on the whole future of the County. Keep in mind that about 1 million visitors spent close to $10-million each year in the Quinte Tourist Region. With industrialization, this will drop.

Futher to my argument, I have not seen a kraft mill in Ontario which has not created problems. These include air contamination, unpleasant odors in both air and water, tainting of fish over considerable distances, and in the corrected pulp mills, problems of removal of oxygen from receiving waters and sediments.

Pollution of solids over river and lake bottoms. It should be very much the concern of sport fishermen that experts can guarantee that tastes and odors of water and fish will be negligible from a kraft mill at Hoyck's Point. Possibly they have been preoccupied with the conventional parameters of water quality. (Biochemical Oxygen Demand, solids).

I am amazed in fact that a mill would be put in tourist and apartment of Canadaska and Ontario Provincial Parks and, in time a source for a regional water supply. Perhaps, I should not be so appalled because I have seen a sewage-treatment plant and industries placed upstream from a water-supply plant at Elliot Lake, apparently in a town of the most modern planning and design.

If provincial authorities appear to be in agreement with this location, it is probably because they are relieved to have had the pressure taken off the Muskoka-Parry Sound area interested to develop the north differently. I am curious why the company's board of directors chose the Picton site instead of Havelsberg. Perhaps you should inquire about this company's record of water pollution control on the Ottawa River. Furthermore, you should ask questions of residents of both of these areas and others in western and north Ontario, as to the problems they have had with the mill. Also, a problem area which has been investigated by the Biology Branch of the OWRC and on which several reports are available.

People in Prince Edward County may take for granted the quality of life which they now enjoy. I admired it when I first visited and often wondered how long it would be before the pressures of today's urban-industrial society, I think you are at the crossroad. You must join in with this fight and perhaps each make a few more dollars, or else you will elect to serve this society as a recreational area, from which service monies is to be made also. But I do not think that you can do both. The county is not that large. If you look ahead, you will be able to produce jobs in industry or in the tourist trade. Which avenue is most compatible with the way in which you like to live? In the long run, what is best for the county? Prince Edward County people should be given ground to allow them to make this decision, but please do not let people tell you that you can be both. At this point in time you are in a good position to demand the best of water quality and corrective action by those who have depreciated water quality in the bay and lake. If you join the "industrial society" you may have lost that chance forever.

Dissent And All That

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Let me mention first of all that I do not know Mr. Johnston and his What Do You Think programs. I am a new Canadian who knows a police state because he lived with one and understands it. I do not think that it is Mr. Johnston who needs to be enlightened, it is Mr. Hockley.

Since Mr. Hockley contradicts himself even he, it seems, agrees with this conclusion. He says in his attack on Mr. Johnston as a person, Mr. Johnston is condemned thoroughly and without hesitation. Mr. Johnston is a communist, fascist, nazi, fanatic, fanatics and "ums and ers" which is about par for any programs . . . so what's new? Mr. Hockley contradicts himself when he is "with the Government" as part of my duty and 99 per cent and "against the Government" when he sounds exactly like an FLQ member and he mentions "the poor and underprivileged" as those for whose equities condoned as seeds of revolution. He points at the present government as those who "filled the soil upon which insurrection germinates".

I (and I think Mr. Johnston) agree with him wholeheartedly on this. So what is the argument about? Not quite clear to me. You see, Mr. Hockley states that 99 per cent fully supported the government (second column). In the third column I read that Canadians are unlikely to tolerate it very long. Now, if they cannot tolerate what they are "for", how about the high degree of tolerance of what they are against?

What then is the argument all about? Whether we live(d) temporarily in a police state or maybe? Couldn't we all read the papers and listen to political broadcasts? Are we going to be arrested without questions asked for showing symptoms of dissent and propagating insurrection (seeded by the government, according to W.C.H.).

When we look at the closely we can come to only one conclusion: by golly yes, it's a police state! Not even The House would be given information or reasons. This is "rightist" in my opinion. Does Mr. Hockley call it "leftist" . . . maybe?

So when I entered a store on the first day of the police state I shouted: "Heil Trudeau", "Vive el Bourassa", "Viva Depeau". Somebody walked up to me and said: "Whatta matter wit you crazy or somethin?" I answered: "Twenty-nine years ago I dissented and spent time in jails and concentration camps. I'm not taking chances again. You'd better listen to me. I'm a New Canadian, I know what I'm talking about. Then I slapped abruptly, hoping that I'm not sold too much already . . . wondering . . . about the time that I came to Canada . . . looking for freedom . . . and where I shall look for it now.

If you shed tears, Mr. Johnston, for those who'd lost their civil liberty, you did it for all of us. In other words you were the 1 per cent of the 1 per cent that did not fully support the government "and spoke out". For this you have my respect and I am grateful. If 99 per cent are not grateful, even resent this (like Mr. Hockley) you can borrow my books on concentration camp behavior and I'll give you free advice on how to stay alive in them if you promise not to tell anybody my name.

Courtroom Leniency

Ottawa Journal

Judge L. A. Sherwood has described a five - year jail sentence he imposed for armed robbery as the "only way" to discourage Ottawa's increasing number of hold-ups. That attitude will hardly those who think that armed robbers should be treated as sick members of society, sent away for a short period of rehabilitation, but not, on, never, punished for their deeds.

But Judge Sherwood is entirely right. It is a sign of the general over-leniency of the courts when a judge now considers a five - year sentence for armed robbery (of which perhaps one-half will be served) worthy of special comment. Stiff sentences do have a deterrent value. They also encourage police who often complain that their hard work of detection and enforcement goes down the drain with a token sentence.

Discipline and the Strap

Hamilton Spectator

We have no inclination to shed bitter tears of pity for the 780 students in Toronto schools who are reported to have received the strap in the year 1969-70.

They were whacked on the hands by principals in the presence of witnesses, and apparently most of them preferred this solution to having their parents visit the schools.

Some older readers of this will recall — with wry humor, no doubt — that either at home or in school they were whacked sometimes also . . . and plenty. Surely they will admit that they bear no scars, bodily or psychological.

Discipline has become a nasty word, synonymous with tyranny or subservience. But it is the indispensable ingredient of civilized living. Without it there is only chaos and anarchy. Either we impose discipline on ourselves voluntarily, or it will ultimately be imposed by someone else.

Our forebears knew that if they wanted to remain free, and wanted their children to be the same, discipline must be inculcated young. Those children need only firm and gentle guidance. They would be like that if Spockism and Deweyism had never been thought of. Others, who grew an inch, broke not only a yard but a mile. When teachers are limited to saying nothing else "Naughty, naughty" or its equivalent, or handing out brief admonitions that bring protests from fond parents, it is small wonder that so many classrooms are bedlam.

Discipline, not harsh or brutal, is an essential. Anyone doubting this should look all around himself, preferably at the social landscape and observe what the lack of it leads to.

Government Is Equal To Challenge

Peterborough Examiner

James (Jasper) Cross, the British trade commissioner who was kidnapped on the Front de Libération du Québec list, has not yet been found. Pierre Laporte, minister of labor and immigration of Quebec, has been already found dead. The possibilities of dynamite and arms are still in the hands of the FLQ terrorists. The danger to Quebec and to Canada is not yet over. But, fortunately, the opposition in Ottawa believes as if all this has been in the past, as if everything was over, and as if we have all recovered from what seemed like a bad dream.

No responsible government could ignore the challenge of the Front de Libération du Québec. . . and claim to be a leader of this country.

Not doing anything, or not enough to prevent another kidnap, would have been a much more serious mistake — if invoking the War Measures Act can be considered a mistake.

The important thing is that what could have happened did not happen, and that it will not happen in the future, either. The opposition therefore should concentrate its efforts on helping the government in this national emergency to devise ways and means to prevent the recurrence of the sad events of these past days instead of justifying its hysterics by blaming the government for creating the social climate in which what happened was the opposition wouldn't want to happen either.

Mr. Ryan's Role

Ottawa Journal

A prominent figure in the discussion of whether a "plot" existed to take over the Government of Quebec has been Claude Ryan, editor of the Montreal La Devoir. . . We believe he was earlier mistaken to associate with those Lévesque and Laberge leaders in signing a public appeal that the FLQ prisoners be released. He believes he has exaggerated in saying he thinks the federal and Montreal governments are trying to "des-

Nixon Says Liquor Act Changes Further Confuse Archaic Laws

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's "archaic laws are being further confused," in the words of Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, by proposed changes in the Liquor Act.

The amendments "increase the power of the Liquor Act to abuse the liquor laws of Ontario without a vote of the people," Mr. Nixon said Thursday.

He said the Opposition intends to bring forth an amendment to proposed changes.

His comments came as the legislature debated amendments which passed second reading Thursday.

They are aimed at deregrading drought beer parlors and granting liquor licences to resort establishments during their periods of operation in otherwise dry areas.

There "is every reason to encourage the tourist business by easing the rules in resort areas," said Provincial Secretary Robert Welch.

He was answering charges that the government is attempting to place people in categories by the proposed amendments.

A cry of "must they all carry alien certificates in order to get a drink" came from an opposition member.

In an interview earlier in the week, Mr. Welch said the amendments probably will not apply to such establishments as golf and country clubs in these areas.

Pat Lefor (NDP—Lakeshore) said: "Now we're adding resort permits to those verbal permits which dictate we can have a beer without a sandwich here and a drink of liquor with a sandwich somewhere else."

Another new law, the proposed Insurance Amendment Act, was described by Bert Lawrence, financial and commercial affairs minister, as the first of its kind in Canada.

It would stop misleading advertising, offers of gifts to lure customers and false claims about rival companies.

Mr. Lawrence said the act would permit his department's superintendent of insurance, on suspicion of unfair practices, to issue a permanent order after a hearing or a 15-day temporary order if "in the opinion of the superintendent, the length of time required for a hearing could be prejudicial to the public interest.

The proposed law describes unfair practices, including premier discrimination between individuals of the same class and life expectancy and unreasonable delay in claim-settling.

Chretien Says Indians Now Know of Plans

EDMONTON (CP) — Indian people now know what the Indian affairs department is doing, planning and proposing in contrast with past years when its operations were cloaked in secrecy, Jean Chretien, minister of Indian affairs and northern development, said Thursday.

Speaking at a conference sponsored by the Alberta Indian Association to focus on the economic, social and cultural developmental problems of Indians, Mr. Chretien told 200 delegates:

"You know what is being done, planned and proposed and you have a part to play in proposing, planning and doing."

"With the new atmosphere you will be able to play that part with confidence that there are no secrets, no masked intentions, there are only problems which together we can solve and separately we cannot."

But even with the changes away from the paternalistic attitude of the department in the past, there still are difficulties with some field staff who, after years of service, find it difficult to adjust to the new pattern, he said.

"These people cannot be blamed entirely" because they have worked in a system that evolved into a paternalistic approach to Indians.

Mr. Chretien made the comments after some delegates were critical of the department's staff in their areas.

He said the department is trying to develop more local government at the band level and "in that way give responsibility to the local Indian people to make decisions."

Mr. Chretien suggested that a committee be set up, to decide the jurisdiction of some Indian problems, with federal, provincial and Indian association representatives.

This, he said, would go a long way to resolve the Indians' complaints that there was too much "back-passing" between governments.

Harold Cardinal, Indian Association president said the need for such a committee was immediate but warned Indians they must not stop at just creating a committee.

"As long as we keep our eyes to the future I think our partnership will work but if all we think about are our problems then we are going to have problems."

—Premier Harry Strom of Alberta said Indians want to take advantage of some of the benefits offered by society but at the same time decline to adopt the value system that goes with it.

"It is far from clear what kind of a mix between these two sets of values the Indian people want."

PM Critical of CLC Head

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was pressured by opposition MPs in the Commons Thursday to say what it plans in the face of predicted high unemployment this winter.

Prime Minister Trudeau said only that any plans will be announced in due course. At the same time, he was critical of Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, for his unemployment predictions.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North), one of several MPs asking about government plans, quoted Mr. MacDonald as predicting unemployment could reach 11 per cent of the labor force this winter.

The prime minister said the statement by Mr. MacDonald was "no reassurance of veracity." He said the CLC president appeared to be confusing actual unemployment figures with those seasonally adjusted. No responsible source "and this doesn't include Mr. MacDonald" — had said the unemployment rate would go up to nine per cent.

Jilted Girl Jailed for Manslaughter

TORONTO (CP) — Ruby Jean Babb came to Canada from Barbados last April and subscribed to the Heartline Confidential dating service.

She met Robert LeBlanc, a 33-year-old musical instrument salesman. They were engaged by July 11 and were to be married July 25.

Thursday, Miss Babb, 30, was sentenced to 15 months in reformatory on a charge of manslaughter in his death.

The court was told LeBlanc didn't show up at the city hall to buy the marriage licence. He first told Miss Babb his brother had discouraged him from an interracial marriage, then that he was a flirt and had jilted another girl before.

Miss Babb said she was humiliated when her sisters asked her why there had been no wedding. She arranged to meet LeBlanc at his apartment July 27 and he told her he wasn't ready for marriage.

"When I asked him why he did this to me, he answered that he just felt like doing it, and I just listened to the one around. This statement shocked me.

She said LeBlanc slapped her face and hit her with a shoe. She bit him with a clock and new him take a knife out of a kitchen cupboard. She grabbed the knife.

"At the bedroom door I swirled around, and he was almost on top of me. I think it was either he running into the knife or my stabbing him. . . . I did not intend to kill Mr. LeBlanc."

Seventies Critical for North Development Conference Told

EDMONTON (CP) — Orderly development of Canada's northlands depends primarily on the co-operation of government with industry, and residents of the North, Jean Chretien, minister of Indian affairs and northern development, said Thursday night.

"The 70s will be a critical period for northern Canada," Mr. Chretien told delegates at the National Northern Development Conference which ends today.

"What we do during this decade will determine what kind of place the North will be for many years to come.

"Whether we are able to bring about orderly development will largely depend upon the northern objectives we set for ourselves in the 70s, upon the mechanisms we establish and upon our determination as Canadians to achieve these objectives."

The discovery of oil is having great effects on northerners, he said.

"The past decade has seen a remarkable change in the attitude of the petroleum industry, of governments and of Canadians generally. . . .

"There is no longer any doubt that oil and gas will be found in large quantities in the Canadian Arctic; that it will be brought to southern markets; and that in one way or another, it will greatly affect the lives of northern residents."

"The last decade was a period of concentration on the tremendous resource potential, particularly in oil and gas and mining and the methods whereby northern resources could be brought to market at competitive prices.

". . . If we fail to ensure orderly and balanced development we shall be perpetuating the errors and mistakes, primarily political which have become such a burden in other parts of the country and we shall face heavy costs, both social and economic.

"To avoid these, we must have clearly-defined and widely-accepted objectives for northern development. These objectives must be broadly-based and must ensure the co-ordination of all agencies of government for common goals.

"The stakes are high. They are nothing less than the future well-being of Canada's land mass, the future of those who are committed to the North and, to a large extent, the future of Canada itself."

Hees Challenges PM To Ski Race Anywhere

THUNDER BAY (CP) — George Hees, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Prince Edward—Hastings, has publicly challenged Prime Minister Trudeau to a ski race.

Mr. Hees, attending a Conservative annual meeting here, said he would meet the prime minister anywhere, anytime. But he said it would have to be a short race because "after all neither of us is on the Olympic team."

He made the challenge while speaking of the good skiing conditions and facilities around Thunder Bay. Such a race possibly would make people more aware of the area's facilities.

MONTREAL (CP) — Tony Shorgun, director of a camp for mentally and physically handicapped children, says parents should be kept as far away from the city as possible. European Husband Has Close Family Ties

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I don't know whether to move to a town a 100 miles from here or to stay here. My husband's relatives live there and I know he would be happier, I also know he could get a job.

But my family is here. My husband has a misunderstanding with them and doesn't wish to see them any more.

When he married me I gave up all his European friends and their way of life. That other town is the start of a hick town. No decent movie theatres, no live theatre. But then he would have his family and would be a little happier.

On the other hand, they don't speak English so I would have to learn their language. We visited them this summer and he seemed much happier than I have ever seen him. — Undecided.

Dear Undecided: The written issues seem to point to a move. It won't hurt you to learn another language and to project yourself into your husband's kind of life a little. Persons in big cities are still moving to small towns to raise their families, simply because of the unhealthiness, the "hick-ishness" if you like.

Time changes things. If you get him into a community where he is not feeling strange, he may gradually relax and begin to be forgiving about your family. Neither of you should be cut off from those long - standing family relationships.

Dear Doris: When I was in United Church Sunday School, there was a poem (on the back of one of our books) called "The Tree Best of Whatever You Are". One line was: "If you can't be a tree on the top of the hill, Be a bush in the valley below".

I would appreciate a copy if anyone comes across it. I don't think people should object to your poem and prose-finding sessions. After all, part of your duty is to help people, and if it makes people happy to relive childhood memories, or to read inspirational pieces, what harm done? Enough misery in the world as is!

Most be a very interesting profession — thought I might try it at one time, but love stirred first — Degree M.H.S.

Dear M.H.S.: Finally, found it. I have a special poem-tracking - down service in the person of a helpful, reader. Special angel I call her; nothing stumps her. Your copy is on its way. Anybody else want it?

Do you suppose the folk who object to our poem-hunting are trying to avoid admitting that they don't understand poetry?

Ann Landers' Child's Actions Alarms Family Friend

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is it normal for a seven-year-old girl to get sexually aggressive with a 25-or-30-year-old man? I didn't believe it until this little flirt crawled on my lap, began pushing herself against me, stroking my hair and patting my face. That kid is more experienced at seven than I was at 21.

The child's mother and dad were in the room when she behaved this way and they didn't say one word to her. If they think it's cute they need to have their heads examined. I was tempted to say something to them, but I decided to mind my own business.

ANN LANDERS

Now I'm not sure I did the right thing. Should I have said something? I've seen the child behave this way with other men and they were just as bewildered as I. Please advise me. — GRAND FORKS, N.D.

* * *

DEAR GRAND: Kids are turned on awfully young these days — thanks (or should I say no thanks to TV, radio, movies, advertising and just observing couples in public parks, on the street corners, everywhere boy meets girl. In my opinion you should have commented to the parents on the child's aggressive behavior and suggested that they discuss it with a specialist.

If the youngster crawls on your lap again, let her know such behavior is unbecoming. Stand up, walk with her to another room and change the subject. Remain friendly and pleasant, so she won't feel rejected. Chances are that her own father has not given her adequate attention and she is hungry for male affection.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few weeks ago, Mark, the man I was about to marry, suffered a heart attack and dropped dead on the street. The only thing the person listed on his wallet identification card as "next of kin." It turned out to be a bar pickup who said, "I hardly knew the guy." She did, however, lead them to Mark's sister, who called me. Together we went to his apartment to gather his belongings for disposition.

I was crushed and heartsick when we discovered letters and pictures from at least a dozen girls half his age. There were several notes from married women, as well as makeup, underclothes, half-clothes and other personal items apparently left behind. Mark's sister felt so ashamed she was unable to utter a word.

At the wake I was consumed by feelings of anger and betrayal. I felt no grief, only bitterness. The tears I shed were for myself, not for him.

My clergyman's counsel and kindness saved me from total collapse. He suggested that I write to Ann Landers in the hope that you would print my letter as a warning to other foolish men who seem to be playing the same kind of a game. None of us knows when death will strike us down. The wise person is prepared for it. People who lead secret lives should consider those who have been and leave no evidence behind. If my letter helps spare just one woman the agony I have suffered, it was worth the pain it took to write it. Thank you, Ann. — ASHES IN KENTUCKY

* * *

DEAR ASHES: Here's your letter — and reading it could be the most important thing some of my readers did today. Thank your clergyman for suggesting that you write to me. It was an excellent idea.

Vegetables Can Be Used in Many Ways

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I'm in a rut. Could you give us vegetable ideas? My family are good vegetable eaters and I want to keep them that way. Love your column. — Etta.

ANSWER: Love your letter.

MASHED BUTTERNUT SQUASH

Wash a butternut squash and bake it at 350 deg. Fahr. about 1¼ hrs. or until it is very soft. Remove from oven and cut in, board cut in half lengthwise. Scoop out seed portion and discard it. Scoop all of the squash away from the skin into a pot. Discard skin. To pulp add milk — for an average-sized butternut squash you can add about 2-3 c u p milk. Also add 2 or 3 tbsps. butter, ½ tsp. nutmeg and about ½ tsp. salt. Mash over low heat until mixture is perfectly smooth and hot.

BAKED TOMATO HALVES

Wash 6 red or green tomatoes and cut in halves crosswise and place on rack on broiler pan. Carefully sprinkle each half with ½ tsp. sugar. Dot each with ½ tsp. butter; pinkish all with salt. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. until tender—they require about 15 min. Do not overlook the sugar—it is the secret of the success of this way of cooking tomatoes.

BRAISED CELERY

NOTE: This is given because large heads of celery and bundles of outer celery stalks are quite an economical buy this month.

Wash and slice celery thinly — less than ¼". Measure 4 cups. In med. fry pan gently melt 2½ tbsps. butter with 1 chicken bouillon cube, (The bouillon cube will not melt at once but it will later.) Add celery and stir to mix. Turn reduce heat to simmer, cover tightly, and cook very slowly for about 10-11 min. — long enough to cook the celery but short enough to retain a little of its crispness. It should be stirred once or twice during this slow cooking time, but lid should be clapped on again quickly.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I always dress Dorothy and Diane exactly alike. It's such fun for them being identical twins. They love to do things together and really don't seem to need other friends."

Mother: "The girls look alike, but each has different talents and interests. We try to encourage them to think of themselves as individuals, not as a unit. They need to be independent of each other."

Similar names and identical garb may make tiny tots enchanting, but twins should not grow up thinking they are a self-sufficient unit. Start early to help them realize they are completely different persons.

House Approves Public Order Bill in Principle

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons prepared to wrangle over amendments to the government's Public Order Temporary Measures Act, 1970 today after approving it in principle 152-to-1 Thursday night.

Only David MacDonald (PC —Egmont) voted against giving second reading to the bill, designed to enable the government to continue its initiative against the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec under less sweeping powers than those allowed by its current regulations under the War Measures Act.

In a short, dramatic speech moments before the vote, the United Church minister from Prince Edward Island—who had hesitantly voted in favor of the government's proclamation of the War Measures Act two weeks ago—said he had lost faith in the government's claim that it needed emergency measures to deal with the FLQ.

The 16 New Democratic Party members who opposed the government's Oct. 16 motion seeking House approval of its proclamation of the War Measures Act gave second reading approval to the public order bill Thursday.

Both the NDP and the Conservatives outlined in news releases the amendments they planned to introduce today.

Included in a prospectus of seven NDP amendments is one which would require that evidence of membership in the outlawed FLQ, which carries a maximum five-year jail term upon conviction, be based on a person's activities after Oct. 16. When the organization was made illegal.

Another would shorten to 30 from 90 days the time a person could be held without a trial date being set.

In addition a three-man independent commission would be set up under the legislation with authority to halt persons detained and make sure their rights were being satisfied.

The Conservatives would establish an administrator under the act who would report to Parliament on the administration of the act and have power in particular cases to revoke the powers the act gives provincial attorneys-general.

Mr. Turner and opposition party spokesmen indicated outside the House Thursday night they would be willing to negotiate and perhaps compromise over the proposed amendments.

Britain's Farm Aims Alarm

LONDON (CP) — Canadian authorities are reported to be increasingly concerned over the Conservative government's decision to reshape import policies so that the cost of supporting British farmers falls more on importers and consumers than on the British treasury.

The United States and Australia already have expressed their anxiety in strong terms, and informants said it is likely the Canadian government will add its voice to the chorus expressing concern that the policy switch could injure Canadian trade in Britain, especially in wheat and other grain.

All three grain exporters—Canada, the U.S. and Australia—have agreements with Britain which guarantee terms of access to the British market. This agreement expires next June. If in the meantime the Heath administration takes action which increases the price of imports and thereby discourages British consumers to buy from abroad, supplying countries have the right to take counter-measures which can hurt British exports.

In separate discussions which Britain is undertaking with each of the contracting countries, the Heath government will emphasize that it wants the changes to take place as quickly as possible. This has led the New Statesman—the Labor-supporting weekly—to suggest that Heath already has committed himself secretly to get into the European Common Market and to accept the best terms obtainable.

The switch in British import policy would gradually bring it into line with the Common Market, which protects its farmers by high import levies.

"The writing is on the wall," one Canadian official in London commented after the British administration announced Oct. 27 that it has decided to change its system of farm price supports. The switch to import levies, installing higher levies on grain and new duties on beef, mutton and lamb and certain dairy products such as powdered milk, is to become effective at "an early date."

Is PM Treating Claude Ryan Fairly?

OTTAWA (CP) — A prime minister has greater and quicker access to publicity than any other Canadian.

Practically everything he says and does is reported and broadcast nationally immediately.

It follows that anybody who takes on a prime minister in an argument can pretty well count on getting the worst of it.

Claude Ryan, publisher and editor of the Montreal daily Le Devoir, has been finding this out lately. His supporters say he is entitled to cry "foul" at the treatment he's getting from Prime Minister Trudeau. Mr. Ryan and Mr. Trudeau met in the late 1940s and, says Mr. Ryan struck up a friendship.

But since Mr. Trudeau became justice minister in 1967, Mr. Ryan began to criticize publicly the future prime minister's concept of federalism: no special status for any province.

During the anti-terrorist campaign in Quebec, Mr. Ryan urged negotiations with Front de Liberation du Quebec terrorists on their demand for release of 23 prisoners and he is known to have had support within the Quebec cabinet for such negotiations although how much isn't clear.

Friday Mr. Trudeau, without naming Mr. Ryan, told reporters: "Lack of power corrupts; absolute lack of power corrupts absolutely."

That has been taken to be a Trudeau jab at Mr. Ryan for seeking to use his weight to influence events, but without success. Monday, Mr. Trudeau went farther in the Commons.

He was asked by T. C. Douglas, NDP leader, whether there were any indications that discussions concerning a possible provisional government to Quebec contemplated any illegal actions.

Mr. Trudeau replied:

"None that I know of, but they were obviously predicated on the fact that a government that had been elected six months before with an overwhelming majority of seats was now, in the mind of this person, so unstable and unlikely to last that he was contemplating measures to replace it."

Again, Mr. Trudeau did not name "this person" but it was clear he was referring to Mr. Ryan.

Teachers Scarce

OTTAWA (CP) — Expanded teacher-training facilities are needed to cope with a serious teacher shortage, the Ontario Association of Education Officials said Thursday.

G. L. Roberts, education director of the Ontario County board, said at the association's annual conference that 1,300 unqualified teachers are working with provisional letters of permission in provincial high schools this year.

"Tear them out! The program starts now!"

It was a daring gamble taken many years ago. The order was to destroy 450 acres of standard grape vines in the very prime of life with an annual income yield of about $70,000 and a capital value of $250,000.

These 450 acres were cleared to make way for varieties of vines new to the Niagara peninsula. Among them were 25 French hybrids.

In those first three vital years the shape of the future of Canadian wines was radically altered never to be the same. Today some of the finest wine grapes in the world flourish in the Niagara soil and under the Niagara sun producing wines that are as good as or better than the great majority of wines produced anywhere in the world.

What could be a more welcome gift than a cellar of these outstanding Canadian wines:

President Champagne — Canada's prize Champagne.
President Burgundy — A great dry red table wine.
President Sauterne — A delicate light white wine. Ideal before lunch or dinner.
President Sherry — A dry, white wine of quality.
President Extra Dry — A distinguished dessert wine.

Ballet's Belleville Visit Is Sponsored by Local Industry

It's Symbolic Exercise at Allied Chemical for Lisa Kraszewski, Kaarina Jokinen, Donna Halpin. Industry's Support Brings Les Grand Ballets to City

The glittering world of ballet and the bustling environment of industrial production are not so far out of context.

At least, when it comes to a Belleville industry — and the ballet is coming to Belleville.

The ballet company is Montreal's Les Grand Ballets Canadiens.

The business company is Allied Chemical.

As sponsor for the Nov. 11 appearance of the ballet in Belleville, Allied is supporting what likely is the most spectacular cultural event of the Quinte year.

It's a role in which Allied's Belleville manager Robert Aikins sees nothing startling.

"A company," he says, "should be a good corporate citizen," participating where possible in the events of its community.

Next week's production here is being presented by the city's branch of the National Ballet Guild — and spectacularly replaces the National Ballet, which this year will not visit Belleville.

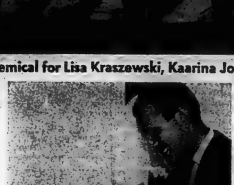
Touring out of Montreal, Les Grand Ballets Canadiens is presenting four short ballets during its Belleville visit — a program designed to attractively satisfy a wide range of tastes.

The program to be presented by the renowned dance group will be:

Hip and Straight — a short work contrasting classical and modern dance forms.

Symphony of Psalms — With music based by Stravinsky on psalms, this is described as a "liturgical" ballet.

Variations for Four — A ballet exercise in the classical tradition.



Graduation Ball — The fulfilled masterpiece, set to music of Johann Strauss.

This is the first Quinte visit of Les Grand Ballets — a group which has won wide acclaim in Canada, the United States, and Europe.

In Canada, the company has toured coast to coast, concentrating in the east and the province of Quebec, where it has taken positive steps to develop the dance.

Its Belleville visit will be staged at Centennial Secondary School auditorium with curtain time at 8.30 p.m.

Tickets are now on sale at Thomas' and McKnight's variety stores in Belleville and Tripp's in Trenton.

Mayor's Choice

Wolf Cub Andy Cooke launched CFB Trenton's Boy Scout Apple Day recently by presenting the first shiny apple from his prize-winning basket to Captain J. R. Bertrand, the incoming Mayor of Middleton Park. Donations received during the Boy Scout Apple Day are used to support many Scouting activities throughout the year.

Farmers Warned Again

Despite earlier warnings for leading claims by companies providing farm record and income tax filing services, the Stirling agricultural office continues to receive complaints.

Earlier this year the Stirling office prepared a leaflet cautioning farmers to make certain of the services to be received before signing any agreement. Copies of the leaflet are still available.

Agricultural officials warn farmers to make certain exactly what they are paying for when they sign up for farm record service and income tax filing.

"Do not be pressured into signing if you wish to think it over or talk to someone else about the services being offered," an agricultural office release re-emphasizes. "Farm records are essential and every farm should be filing an income tax return. However, when you are paying someone to assist you i ods this you should be receiving the best service available."

OBC Hosts For Group

Last weekend the Ontario Business College played host to a group of private business college members of the Association of Canadian Commercial Colleges from cities and towns such as Belleville, Ottawa, Weston, Toronto, Thunder Bay, Oshawa, Hamilton, Goderich, Kitchener and Brantford.

Mrs. G. A. Brown, principal of OBC is president of the association.

The purpose of the meeting was to exchange ideas to assist private colleges in smaller centres to offer training equal to larger cities.

The next meeting of the ACCC will be held in January at Toronto.

October Warmest Month on Record

Everyone knew it all along but now it has been confirmed.

The month of October was one of the warmest on record!

The climatological station operated by the Tweed lands and forests office reports the mean temperature for the month was a balmy 59.4 degrees as compared to the normal 48.13 degrees over the past 20 years.

High temperature for October was 76 degrees as compared with an all-time record of 80 degrees back in 1951. The lowest temperature recorded for the month was 34 degrees.

Precipitation for the month was 2.81 inches or slightly more than the normal rainfall of 2.12 inches. Back in 1947 October there was 4.28 inches of rain.

To the end of October the accumulated precipitation for the year totalled 36.66 inches as compared to a normal 27.26 inches. The normal annual precipitation at Tweed is 33.21 inches.

The station reported a total of 116 fires during the season with 1,087.5 acres being burned over.

This is a big increase over last year's 81 fires and only 167.5 acres, but less than 1968 when there were 160 fires, and 1,213 acres burned.

Biggest Fall Fair of Them All Opens in Toronto Next Week

The biggest fall fair of them all will open in Toronto Nov. 13.

The window on rural life, the Royal Winter Fair, is the biggest country fair in the world.

Held in the Coliseum at Exhibition Park, it brings together farmers, breeders, equestrian sportsmen and people from across Canada and throughout the world.

The Royal serves a dual function now — it is still an agricultural exhibition, but it also gives city dwellers a chance to rediscover all the sights, scents and sounds of country life.

This year 17,000 individual exhibits will move into the Coliseum for the nine days of the fair — the best in horses, swine, cattle, sheep and poultry, grains and dairy products, fruits and vegetables. The annual exhibition has become so large that results are now processed by computer.

The theme this year is "a walk in the country" and the famous flower show will take the form of a transplanted country garden with meandering paths through the four seasons.

Horses are one of the Royal's big attractions.

This year, West Germany returns to Canadian competition after an absence of seven years, posing a formidable threat to Canada's supremacy in the international jumping competition at the Royal Horse Show. Canada will be vying for the team championship for the second year in a row. The competition will be a five-country match, with United States, Mexico, Ireland joining Canada and West Germany.

The carousel of foods has gone international too. Canadian products will be the ingredients for a variety of German, Italian and Oriental dishes demonstrated five times a day by teams of home economists.

The carousel of food theatre in the West Mezzanine will be staffed by personnel from the Ontario Food Council and Ontario Hydro as well as home economists from 14 producers' organizations.

Adjoining the carousel is the fruit and vegetable growers' display, set up like a stroll through a market garden.

Horses, swine, cattle, sheep and goats are still the backbone of the Royal.

But unlike the early days of the fair, when livestock was judged on appearance alone, modern competition demands that animals have performance records and they are rated on utility as well as appearance.

To junior farmers across Canada, the Queen's Guineas competition is the most important event at the Royal.

The prized guineas are the pot of gold that goes each year to the young 4-H Club member who exhibits the grand champion beef steer.

To be eligible for competition, contestants must be 14 years old, 4-H Club members during the current year, and prize winners at one local achievement day show. Their steers must weigh a minimum of 725 pounds at the October weigh-in and have gained 2.1 pounds a day between May 15 and October 15.

This year judging takes place Nov. 20. Judging is in four classes — Aberdeen Angus, Hereford, Shorthorn and crossbreds or other breeds.

The Royal will be opened this year by Quebec's Premier Robert Bourassa, riding in a vintage Rolls Royce four - door sports convertible from the personal collection of John A. McDougald, a past president of the fair.

In addition, Governor General Roland Michener will be a guest Nov. 17 and Lieutenant Governor W. Ross Macdonald of Ontario will visit Nov. 13.

Canadian Poet Purdy Defies U.S. Publisher

Al Purdy, one of Canada's few full - time poets, said this morning he will risk a lawsuit rather than have his new anthology of poems published by Ryerson Press.

"I'll throw the book away before I'll let an American firm publish it," he said, speaking from his Robin Lake cottage in Ameliasburg.

Ryerson Press is being sold to McGraw-Hill Co. of Canada Ltd., a wholly - owned subsidiary of the U.S. firm.

The book, titled Storm Warning, is an anthology of poems by 20 young Canadians, most of whom have not previously had their work published.

"We have a particular environment in Canada," said the poet, long a crusader for preservation of a national identity.

"Previously, books published in Canada by U.S. publishers will bring in American writers — it's just a matter of time until McGraw-Hill begins mass producing American textbooks for Canadian schools."

The textbook situation is bad enough, but even worse is the future of creative writing, Purdy indicated.

"Creative writing shouldn't be brought in from the United States," he said.

McClelland and Stewart, Ltd. of Toronto is willing to publish the book if Purdy can get out of his Ryerson contract, the poet told The Intelligencer.

Purdy has added his voice to those commenting on the current social scene in Canada.

The FLQ situation and invoking of the War Measures Act has inspired his latest poem, The Peaceable Kingdom.

It will be broadcast tomorrow night, Nov. 7, on the CBC's Anthology program beginning at 10:32 p.m.

Trenton poet, printer and artist, Kerrigan Abney, has produced the poem in a limited edition broadside form, signed by the author. Only 80 copies were published, of which 25 remain for sale.

"It's about the change that has come over Canada in recent weeks," said the poet.

"We've been complacent in the past about the possibility of violence in our midst."

Mr. Purdy went to Ottawa the day after the War Measures Act was proclaimed because I thought I should be in the centre of it if any action occurred".

"Something about the atmosphere on Parliament Hill resulted in Mr. Purdy's writing the poem on his return to Robin Lake.

Loyalists students will hear the poet Nov. 16 when he gives a reading of his works at the college.

County ARDA counsellor Clayton Hall at Stirling notes that the demand for skilled farm workers far exceeds the supply.

The 18-week course at Kemptville commences Jan. 11 next year's is aimed at making applicants better equipped for full-time employment on large farm operations in Ontario.

Students approved by ARDA and Canada Manpower will receive the normal adult retraining allowances while on course.

Paduano Wins Split Decision While Chuvalo Gains TKO

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian welterweight champion Donato Paduano, pressed constantly by the in-close slugging of veteran Don Ross, gave a demonstration of lightning fists and counter-punching Tuesday night to win a 10-round split decision.

Blood still flowing from a cut over his left eye, Ross, a 33-year-old journeyman boxer from Toronto, said in his dressing room after the fight that the Montrealer was "the sharpest boy I've fought."

Following the action-packed match that kept 8,320 Forum fans roaring through every round, the 21-year-old Paduano said his 22nd straight victory as a pro had come against a man "who just has too much heart."

"He just kept on coming," he said. "He's strong and hit me some really hard shots."

In the semi-final on the five-fight card, Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo had considerably less trouble getting a win as he stalled Tony Ventura of Buffalo, N.Y., for three rounds before the fight was stopped at 1:15 of the fourth.

The plodding Toronto fighter sent Ventura down for eight-counts twice in the round before the referee stopped in. At the time, Chuvalo was hammering the defenseless American boxer on the ropes.

Immediately after the fight, it was announced that the Canadian title-holder had been offered a chance to take on Jimmy Ellis, world heavyweight champion Sonny Liston here in February.

Paduano weighed 132 pounds for Thursday night's bout but will have to trim down to the 147-pound welterweight limit by Dec. 7 when he meets world lightweight champion Ken Buchanan of Edinburgh in a non-title fight at Madison Square Garden.

Ross was 154½ for the fight. He announced later that he too would try to meet the welter limit for another crack at Paduano's Canadian title some time in the future.

Paduano's win was due in part to a quick start in the first two rounds and a dozen flurries in the ninth and 10th that cototed for some close-match points.

The judges split the decision with two giving the Montrealer the edge at 48-46 and 48-43 and the third calling it at 47-47 draw.

Paduano and Ross each received $3,000 or 17½ per cent of the gate, while Chuvalo was paid a flat $5,000 for his appearance.

The win was the 60th in the heavyweight champion's 14-year professional career. He has 58 knockouts, 11 decisions, 12 losses and two draws.

In the other bouts Thursday, Bill Dower, formerly of Wabush, Nfld., and now fighting out of Montreal, scored an unanimous decision over Jean-Claude Roy of Montmagny, Que., in a 10-round heavyweight match.

Drower, who weighed in at 225 pounds, had difficulty solving the southpaw style of his 191-pound opponent for the first two rounds but went on to connect repeatedly with stiff rights.

Reynald Catin, a 19-year-old welterweight from Quebec City, upset Gerald Ratte of Montreal in another 10-round split decision.

The winner had been promised a crack at Toronto's Colin Fraser, former Canadian junior welterweight title-holder.

In the opening match, Charlie Chase of Montreal outclassed James Murray of Newark, N.J., for four rounds before the fight was stopped.

Old League Holds Edge

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League heads into the second half of its season this weekend with National Conference teams having established a clear superiority over American Conference clubs in their first 17 meetings.

The score is NFC 14, AFC 3. In addition, the three teams from the old NFL who moved over to join the 10 American Football League teams in the AFC—Baltimore, Cleveland and Pittsburgh—have built a 13-3 record against former AFL opponents.

The leaders in building the NFC's 14-3 record have been Los Angeles, Detroit, San Francisco and the New York Giants, all 2-0 against AFC opposition. Washington is 2-1 and Minnesota, Green Bay, Dallas and St. Louis 0-1.

Only two teams are on the short side of the ledger against AFC foes—Atlanta and Chicago, both 0-1.

The three AFC teams who have beaten NFC rivals are Oakland, which is 1-0 vs. NFC opposition: San Diego, which is 1-1, and Denver, which is 1-2.

Of the three former NFL teams now in the AFC, the Colts have the best record. Their 6-1 mark has been compiled solely against AFC competition. Cleveland is 3-1 against AFC rivals and Pittsburgh 3-3.

The only thing that beat Glenn Hall Thursday night was the heat at Boston Garden.

The veteran St. Louis Blues goaltender turned back 25 shots before retiring after the second period from heat exhaustion as the Blues tripped Boston Bruins 2-0 in National Hockey League action.

In other games Thursday, Detroit Red Wings clipped Philadelphia Flyers 3-1 and Vancouver Canucks dumped Buffalo Sabres 4-1.

Ernie Wakely replaced Hall in the Blues net for the final 20 minutes and continued to baffle the Bruins, stopping 13 drives.

Frank St. Marseille's first goal of the season at 16:57 of the second period was all the Blues needed to hand the Bruins their second loss in 10 games this season.

Jim Roberts scored his third of the season with 37 seconds left in the game when the Bruins pulled goalie Eddie Johnston in favor of a sixth attacker.

St. Marseille's goal ended Boston's 163-minute, 53-second shutout string. It was the first home ice defeat in 29 games for the Bruins, since Jan. 17, when Chicago Black Hawks stopped them 1-0.

The victory by the Blues, the first by a West Division team against the Bruins at Boston since Oakland dumped them 3-1 Dec. 25, 1968, gave St. Louis 15 points, one less than Chicago, the West Division leaders.

Boston remained tied in first place of the East Division with Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers, all with 15 points.

At Buffalo, the Canucks beat the Sabres for the second time in two weeks. In the first meeting of the league's newest expansion members, Vancouver clobbered Buffalo 7-2.

GLENN HALL

Buffalo took a 1-0 first-period lead but Vancouver stormed back with two second-period goals by Paul Popiel, his second and third of the season. Third-period goals 68 seconds apart by Orland Kurtenbach and Wayne Maki slammed the door on Buffalo, who have lost their last five games.

The Canadian Football League can't be accused of over-commercialism when it comes in rewarding its outstanding performers.

One might even get the notion the CFL is downright cheap.

For example, Hamilton's Tommy Joe Coffey won't receive anything more official than Jake Gaudaur's congratulations for topping the century-scoring race for the second straight year.

T. J. accounted for 40 per cent of the Ticats' scoreboard output this fall with his 113 points, but not only is there no league money available for the feat, there isn't even a trophy up for grabs.

Saskatchewan place-kicker Jack Abendschan will get the Dave Dryburgh Trophy for leading western conference scorers with 116 points, but there's no league kitty to compensate his offensive contribution to the Big Green Machine.

Contrast this sorry state of pecuniary affairs in hockey. The National Hockey League's leading point-getter could walk off with as much as $2,000 for heading the scoring parade the entire season, as well as get his name engraved on the handsome Art Ross bowl.

In most sports, a lot of emphasis — both by fans and peers — is placed on a player's point production. Any schoolboy could tell you Bobby Hull's 52 goals in the 1962-63 NHL season're in a league record, or that Phil Esposito's 126 points in the same season set an all-time standard.

How many knew that Coffey's 141 points in the 1969 campaign established a CFL record?

Mrs. Coffey probably still thinks Tommy Joe blew the prize money buying rounds for the boys on the way home.

Oh sure, team owners come across with cash cheques for individual accomplishments. Ottawa defensive back Dave Dryer, Tricolour head manager present for $100 a touchdown over the 14-game schedule. (He didn't collect).

Coffey and Abendschan no doubt prospered by virtue of their lucrative berths with their respective employers in Steel City and Wheatville.

But there should still be league recognition of not only scoring achievements, but leading ground-gainers, pass receivers, and quarterbacks

As it stands, the three major awards in CFL play-ers — one for outstanding player, one to top Canadian performer, the other to best lineman — are donated by a whisky manufacturer.

Ticat Coffey will probably win one of these. but if not, he won't have as much as the price of a hangover to show for his 113 points.

The sticky-fingered red, who finished the 1970 schedule only six yards behind Hal Patterson's record reception total, is one of the main cogs in Joe Restic's wheel trying to rail the Ticats back into the CFL limelight.

Counted out by a mob of second-guessers who were piling onto the pre-season Argonaut bandwagon, the Tabbies eased into first place and garnered a badly-needed two-week respite before meeting the sudden-death survivor of Saturday's Toronto-Montreal scrie

Between now and Nov. 15 when they open their two-game total-point eastern finals, the Ticats have a chance to rest big guns Garney Henley and John Barrow, both racked up in the 15-18 tic with Montreal that gave Hamilton first place.

Equally important, hard-nocked quarterback Joe Zagar also has the medical go-ahead for the fateful 15th.

History, if not the oddsmakers, favors Hamilton to win the east. The 1950 Argos have been the only first-place finishers in 14 years not to advance to the Grey Cup.

A sleeper play to Ottawa's Bobby Simpson burst that Argo bubble. But the Scullers pulled a semi-sleeper of their own last weekend to secure second place when bench-warming flanker Jim Henderson relayed Tom Wilkinson's wide lateral pass downfield to Bill Symons for a 67-yard gain that set up the game-winning field goal against those same Rough Riders.

Henderson's feet, which made him the only Argo beaver not intercepted all year, gave Parson's backfield for tomorrow's sudden-death duel with the Als.

They may not want it

Canadian National Exhibition crowds make the Argo groundskeeper's job well nigh impossible at the best of times. At the worst of times, like last Saturday after two days of rain, the CNE turf looks like a parting lot for restless elephants.

It's a shame to decide something so important under conditions like these," says Alouette guide Sam Etcheverry.

It's going to be a bigger shame when Saskatchewan gets their meaty maulers on the eastern reps on the same field Nov. 22.

ODD ENDS — Argos serve six-point favorites for Saturday's sudden-death clash over the Als, who only managed a tie in their locked last six outings. Bet cornerback Rickie Davis' broken jaw and Moses Denson's broken nose — both suffered in last Sunday's 18-18 deadlock with Hamilton — and Etcheverry suspensions to wide receiver Bob McCarthy and garbageeating fullback Dennis Duncan for offensive backfield bewilding will put the Argo odds . . . FIGURE SKATING will be spotlighted in Peterborough in January when the North American championships will be staged in the attractive Memorial Centre. Meanwhile, the Canadian Figure Skating Competitors Barney Pond-Raising Committee has joined forces with the March of Dimes in a November key chain campaign. Funds raised from sale of the $2 gemstone key chains will help promote talented Canadian skaters plus assist in the training and employment of many handicapped and disabled Canadians. The committee points out that, since Barbara Ann Scott's "breakthrough", Canadian skaters have won 12 world championships and two Olympic gold medals.

Saints Win COSSA

A chilly November afternoon wasn't enough to cool off the red-hot Saint Peters Saints as they swept to a 30-7 win over Nicholson yesterday, in the Junior COSSA "A" final game.

Speedy halfback Fred Garvey was the big gun in the St. Peters arsenal, rounding three touchdowns and providing key yardage with his end runs.

Nicholson's only score came in the first quarter when John Sloan capped a 60-yard march by scoring on a 25-yard run off-tackle.

Garvey counted twice in the first half with Paul Desouza adding the other score, as the Saints led 19-7 at half time.

Steve McGillis spoiled any hopes of a Nicholson comeback when he speared a 40-yard-touchdown pass in the third quarter.

Nolan was the outstanding offensive player for the Belleville team, while Tim Mavis and Paul McIsaac played well on defence.

Stopping St. Peters

John Gavin and Paul McIsaac of Nicholson combine to make the tackle on a St. Peters backfielder. The Peterborough team used a strong outside running game to stop Nicholson 39-7 in a junior COSSA "A" match played at Albert College yesterday.

Minor Baseball Suffers Lack Of Parent Support

To the Parents
Re: Minor Baseball

Oct. 23 last year executive of Minor Baseball held its annual meeting, and attempted to obtain a slate of officers for the coming season.

The attendance at this meeting was surprising, but disgraceful. A count of heads showed 12 people had put forth a little special effort to attend this very important meeting. These in attendance consisted of five of the present executive, where it understood do not wish to serve another term, and they have, in my estimation, already done more than their share. Present was the Recreation Director, the president and the treasurer of minor sports, and our umpire in chief, which totals ten and leaves two persons at this meeting who were able to, or willing to lend a hand to offer.

One of these two accepted the position of equipment manager.

This still leaves four or possibly five positions yet to fill.

One does not have to be a genius to realize an organization such as minor baseball, with an anticipated registration of 300-325 can not function without a full slate of officers. Minor sport in any form is an organization designed to help your children to learn the sport of their choice, as well as we hope, to become good citizens.

This is only the beginning. Baked with your co-operation. With this in mind your executive has called another meeting in an attempt to elect a full slate of officers to handle your needs and guide your children through another successful year (1971).

Please note:
Meeting time 8.00 p.m.!
Place: Rec. Director's office!
Date: date Monday, November 9.

Van Ness Plays Key Role

By IAN MacLAREN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Being called on in a key situation is nothing new for Bruce Van Ness, a Saginaw man in the recent turmoil in Montreal that resulted in suspensions to running back Dennis Duncan and wide receiver Bob McCarthy.

The two Alouettes were discharged Tuesday after it was brought to head coach Sam Etcheverry's attention that they had been drinking downtown Saturday night, the eve of their crucial Eastern Football Conference game with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The final scheduled game for both clubs ended in an 18-18 tie and not only cost the Als a first-place finish, but they wound up third and lost home-field advantage for the EFC's sudden-death semifinal in Toronto Saturday against the Argonauts.

Van Ness, who will replace Duncan, the conference's third —leading rusher in the Als starting backfield for Saturday's game, recalled Thursday he was in a somewhat similar situation last year at the North-South game in the Orange Bowl.

"Terry Bradshaw was there as a quarterback as was Mike Phipps from Purdue. Lots of guys with big reputations. I was just another, somebody from Rutgers."

Van Ness was voted the outstanding lineman at that game but admits nobody is expecting much from him in the Argo game.

"I look on it as a situation where I have everything to gain and nothing to lose."

Toronto's CNE Stadium, site of the semi-final clash to be carried on the CBC's national television network starting at 2 p.m. EST, is another question mark.

Work crews earlier in the week stripped turf from a boggy section of the stadium that proved treacherous in last Saturday's Toronto-Ottawa game, and reseeded the area for the second time this year.

Stadium officials are hopeful the repair job will stand up for Saturday's game otherwise they'll face an enormous task putting it in shape for one, and possibly two, more games this season.

If the Argos get by Montreal, one of their final games with Hamilton will be at home and this year's Grey Cup final is slated for the Toronto field Nov. 29.

One Argo hoping for a solid field is halfback Dave Rakney, who finished second in the EFC rushing behind Hamilton's Bill Symons.

Rakney was slowed by a knee injury earlier in the season and said Thursday: "For the first time all year I'm feeling all right. And now the field comes up like this."

He said the soggy underfooting would be more of a problem for him since he's somewhat lighter (190 pounds) than most running backs in the league and his style of running "depends on making a cut."

"But when you try to cut on this field the end gives way."

Meanwhile, Etcheverry had his quarterback, Sonny Wade, working on newcomer Bobby Lee Thompson in the Als defensive setup.

Wade admitted after the workout he didn't have too much luck penetrating Thompson's corner spot.

Garrett Great Again

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Peterborough Petes goalie John Garrett held London Knights to one goal Thursday for a 4-1 victory in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A play.

London outshot Peterborough 40-21. Despite their lead in the league, the Petes have outshot their opposition in only three games this season.

Petes captain Craig Ramsay scored three of his team's goals and Jim Mahon put in the other three.

Reg Thomas, drafted by Kitchener Rangers but released to London earlier this season, scored the Knights' only goal.

Referee Bob Eckart called only nine minor penalties in the first two periods but handed out 28 in the last, including six majors.

Sports On All Fronts

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota North Stars announced Thursday that defenceman Dick Redmond will be sent to Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League today. Wren Blair, general manager of the National Hockey League team, said Cleveland ranks have been thinned by five injuries. Redmond also needs more ice time, Blair said.

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Davis A. Robertson Sr., an early-era major league baseball player and one time World Series record holder, died at his home here Thursday. Robertson, 70, had been in poor health for some time. He was the first player to hit safely in each of six World Series games and held the World Series batting average record of .500 from 1917 until 1923.

HOLLISTER, Calif. (AP) — Charlie Root, the former Chicago Cubs' pitcher who gave up Babe Ruth's legendary "called shot" home run in the 1932 World Series, died Thursday. He was 71. Root, a native of Middletown, Ohio, pitched 16 seasons with the Cubs, from 1926 through 1941.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A rookie place kicker on Buffalo Bills taxi squad was arrested at his home Thursday on narcotics charges. Police charged Stefan Schroder, 26, of suburban Amherst, with possession of a dangerous drug. Officers said they seized quantities of marijuana and hashish at Schroder's apartment.

NEW YORK (CP-AP) — Dr. Phil Edwards of Montreal, who as a half-mile runner brought track-and-field prominence to New York University for the first time, was inducted Thursday night as the first members of the university's Sports Hall of Fame. NYU football star Ken Strong and basketball standouts Dolph Schayes and Howard Cann were also honored.

Stamps, Edmonton Square Off

EDMONTON (CP) — A lot of questions will be answered when Calgary Stampeders and Edmonton Eskimos square off here Sunday in their Western Football Conference sudden-death semi-final.

Not the least of these will be answered during the pre-game ceremonies when Calgary coach Jim Duncan names his starting quarterback for the game to be carried on CTV's national network starting at 3 p.m. MST.

Duncan said Thursday that "just before game time" he'll decide whether to start veteran Jerry Keeling, who has been sidelined since early October with a cracked rib and bruised kidney, or start rookie Larry Lawrence, his signal caller the last four games.

Edmonton's head coach, Ray Jauch, feels either one can handle the job adequately: Keeling because of his vast experience and Lawrence "who has got valuable experience and confidence after winning his last two games."

Both coaches expressed respect for the opposition's defences they'll face at Clarke Stadium.

The Eskimos defeated Calgary 16-13 with Lawrence quarterbacking and the rookie says Edmonton "has a tremendous defensive squad" led by players such as John LaGrone, Greg Pipes and Jerry Griffin.

Jauch said the Eskimos were attempting to come up with plays to spring on the Stampeder defence but "it's tough . . . their defence reads everything so well."

Field conditions may have a bearing on the outcome of the first WFC playoff game in Edmonton since 1961. A heavy October snow was scraped and brushed off, but the process left muddy spots that became frozen.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

One Amphetamine OK If Prescribed

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Taking one Dexamine spansule a day stands between me and committing suicide. When I'm dressed enough to face older doing away with myself this medicine gives me the energy I lack, and allows me to cope with life and its problems.

I have had numerous medical tests. There's nothing wrong with me physically. I simply don't have enough energy to meet the normal requirements of living. Without it I revert to my former torpid, lifeless, depressed state of existence. In fact, writing this letter would have seemed an impossible task.

Everything I've ever read about amphetamines stresses horror stories about abuse rather than usefulness. Nobody seems to want to talk about them. My understanding is that amphetamines are not physically addictive; only psychologically addictive. If I stop taking the medicine I don't suffer any physical symptoms. But I suppose I'm psychologically addicted because, without it, I feel lifeless.

My understanding of amphetamines is as follows: Amphetamines are a class of stimulants which includes Dexedrine, Benzedrine and Methedrine. "Speed" is Methedrine. It is supposed to be more potent, less predictable and has more serious side effects than the others.

The amphetamines are quite useful in the treatment of hyperkinetic children and mild depression. Their only purpose is not to keep truck drivers awake, or prod students to stay up preparing for their school examinations.

I suppose I could sum up my attitude at present this way: "Okay. So I'm hooked on One Dexamyl a day. Why can't I keep taking it for the rest of my life?" — Mr. S., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Why not! — If your doctor says it's okay. If he has prescribed it, he probably will argue that one amphetamine a day is an unfair choice when weighed against the potential danger of suicide.

But there are pros and cons when any drug is considered. Aspirin is a universal benefactor. (Aspirin may be dangerous.) Penicillin deserves the name "wonder drug." (It may be dangerous.) Alcohol is often a helpful drink. (It can be dangerous.)

And so with the amphetamines you mention. Of course they may be extremely helpful when prescribed by a physician and taken under his supervision. (But, like any other drug, they, too, may be dangerous.)

I am glad you have brought up the pros about amphetamines, Mr. S. However, don't let us forget the cons. Overuse transforms the most friendly drug into a dangerous enemy.

For Mrs. L.: Using a nasal spray decongestant every night may be the reason for your continued difficulty in getting air through your nose. Frequent use of such sprays may cause what we call a "rebound reaction": increased swelling of the mucous membranes of the nose. Don't use it more often than your doctor has suggested.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've just read your column about the 15 - year - old boy who is only 5 feet 2. My son's problem is just the opposite. He is 14 years old and is 6 feet. He is becoming very self - conscious about it. Is there any medicine that will stop him from growing? — Mrs. G.

Comment: I know of no treatment that will prevent growth. Often nature takes care of it. Your own son may begin to grow at a rapid pace and become a tall youngster by the time he is 21. Only time can answer.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Name-lending Is A Fraud

I wish no ill toward Jon Nesmith, but it pleased me when he turned back his reported $45,000 stake in "Broadway Joe" the restaurant franchise organized in his name two years ago.

Nesmith also resigned as "board chairman" of the company, which has been running at a deficit, with its stock selling at a small fraction of its $10 offering price.

Celebrities who try to cash in on their fame by lending their names to enterprises in which they have no particular competence (and often no personal interest, beyond financial return) are perpetrating a moral fraud upon the public.

One hopes that the Nesmith misadventure indicates that the modern public has become too sophisticated to lap identical to be taken in by such gerrant exploitation of a "big name".

This publicity Shenanigans are too reminiscent of the bad old days when, for instance, opera singers used to endorse cigarette brands. One of the most famous tenors of the Met appeared in a full-page ad declaring that "Droppleheimer never make my throat sore."

When questioned about this in a radio interview shortly afterwards, he laughed cynically: "Of course, they never make my throat sore—I never smoke them, or any other cigarette, either."

In the same way, a swinger like Nemath would not be caught dead eating in a "Broadway Joe" franchise restaurant, except for blatant publicity purposes. Anyone naive enough to believe his world belongs to what Roger Price calls, "The Great Rock Revolution," in his recent amusing book on the Plastic Rocks and their various subspecies.

And even smarter people are taken in by such transparent devices. A knowledgeable friend of mine this summer met Joe Namath in Week-End tennis camp "run" in the name of one of the most famous hockey endorse for hundreds of thousands of dollars, but I suppose millions still do, but it is distressing to find that many others refuse to accept the fiction of a quarterback as "board chairman".

Draught Limit Raised For Vessels in Seaway

OTTAWA (CP) — The draught limit for ships using the St. Lawrence seaway has been increased, effective immediately, to 26 feet from the previous limit of 25 feet, nine inches.

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority announced Thursday the new maximum draught limit will apply for an indeterminied trial period.

The three - inch increase should allow larger vessels to carry an additional 300 tons of cargo on each trip, the authority said in its announcement.

The decision to increase maximum draught was made "primarily as a result of hydraulic studies and experience," an authority spokesman said.

Fire at Montreal Purely Accidental

MONTREAL (CP) — A tragic pre-dawn fire that killed 17 of 34 patients at an old folks' home early Thursday in suburban Pointe aux Trembles was the second major fire to hit the area in 13 years.

In April, 1957, a year before Foyer Ste. Bernadette was opened, a fire killed 15 people in a local nursing home.

In Quebec City, Premier Robert Bourassa told reporters the fire Thursday appeared "purely accidental."

Mr. Bourassa said a "preliminary report" on the blaze also showed there were three persons in many housed in the home. However, the building, two adjoining three-storey duplexes, was in "class A" shape.

Firemen said the blaze followed a furnace explosion in the basement of the home. Dense smoke rapidly filled the building, hampering rescue work and asphyxiating six women and 11 men.

Fourteen of the victims were found still in their beds. One was in a wheelchair and two others died later in hospital.

"They didn't have a chance," Pierre Gariepy, local fire and police director, said in an interview.

"Most of the poor souls died in their beds or on the floor as they tried to crawl to safety."

Foyer Ste. Bernadette has been operating since 1958 in the suburb on the eastern end of Montreal island. Mr. Paradis operates two other hospitals in the area and employs 65 "trained persons" to care for 82 patients.

Health Minister Claude Castonguay said in a statement Thursday that all available information showed the building "adequately met the safety regulations of the department of labor."

It was checked by safety inspectors Aug. 25, Mr. Castonguay said. It also was inspected two weeks ago by municipal fire officials and "all the regulations had been met."

The 17 survivors were in satisfactory condition following their escape, though most suffered shock.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Don't expect final answers. Whatever issues exist will come to the surface in the morning in subtle forms. Wait until you have digested the revelations before reacting.

Choquette Says Photo Received

MONTREAL (CP) — Justice Minister Jerome Choquette raised new hope Friday that James Jasper Cross is still alive, confirming that police have a recent terrorist photo of the British trade commissioner kidnapped five weeks ago.

It was the first word on the fate of the British envoy since a letter from him was found in an east-end church Oct. 18.

That was only hours after the discovery of the body of Pierre Laporte, ex-Quebec's labor minister kidnapped Oct. 10 by the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

An inquest into Mr. Laporte's death was scheduled for today.

Mr. Choquette told a hastily-called news conference in Quebec City the photo and an FLQ note were received by envelope Wednesday in the editorial rooms of the Montreal weekly tabloid Quebec-Presse.

They were turned over to police Wednesday by Jacques Elliott, managing editor of the weekly who was taken into custody Friday afternoon for questioning.

The photo showed Mr. Cross, 49, sitting on a box and playing cards—the box containing dynamite according to writing on the back of the picture.

The photo also had on the back the written words: Cross, which Mr. Choquette said seems authentic.

The picture was in the hands of Montreal police and was not shown to reporters.

But Mr. Choquette showed reporters a photo copy of the FLQ note, which said:

"Please do all possible to have this photo published. We shall overcome. The Front de Liberation du Quebec."

No decision has been taken on whether the Cross photo will be published.

The photo was amazingly similar in content to one released in late October by Uruguayan kidnappers of Claude L. Fly, a U.S. agronomist.

Mr. Fly, abducted Oct. 7 and still missing, is shown sitting and playing cards in the earlier photo.

Mr. Choquette said a safe-conduct offer by the government to the Cross kidnappers still stands as does an offer to recommend the parole of five convicted terrorists if Mr. Cross is released safely.

Under the offer, the kidnappers would be flown to Cuba. But Quebec has turned down a demand for freeing of 23 prisoners convicted of previous terrorist action.

In other developments, Mr. Choquette said he was surprised by a statement made in Ottawa by RCMP Commissioner W. L. Higgitt.

It is false to say FLQ leaders have been rounded up by police, Mr. Choquette said, referring to the first of two statements from Mr. Higgitt. He did not comment on the second.

Mr. Higgitt said in an interview most of the FLQ leadership had been put out of circulation, but said in his second interview some FLQ leaders presumably are among those picked up under the War Measures Act, invoked Oct. 16.

Solicitor-General George McIlraith later told a news conference he agreed with Mr. Higgitt's statement that some FLQ leaders have been picked up.

Police "obviously" had created havoc in the FLQ.

"I think you'll notice how quiet it has been," Mr. McIlraith said.

Meanwhile, provincial police reported 24 arrests overnight Friday, bringing to 433 the number of persons picked up since Oct. 16.

A total of 373 have been released.

A QPP spokesman said 26 persons will be charged early next week under the War Measures Act, but declined to give any details on Friday's arrests.

Wanted Man May Be Held

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says Montreal police today arrested a man tentatively identified as Bernard Lortie and a girl thought to be a friend of Paul Rose.

Lortie and Rose have been sought in connection with the kidnapping last month of British diplomat James (Jasper) Cross and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

The Star says the arrests were made during an early-morning raid on a west-end Montreal apartment. The paper says that as a result of the arrests, a series of other raids was held throughout the city during the pre-dawn hours.

The paper attributes the report to an unnamed informant within the Montreal police department.

In Montreal, police declined comment on the report.

Moshe Dayan Says Israel No Longer Bound by Truce

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Defence Minister Moshe Dayan says Israel no longer is committed to terms of a United States-sponsored ceasefire and military standstill near the Suez canal and that if Egyptian troops cross the canal "they will have to meet Israel's iron fist."

The ceasefire expired at midnight Thursday night, but a resolution passed in the UN Wednesday urged that it be extended, and the guns remained silent today.

Dayan told a group of engineers in Tel Aviv Friday the extension was prompted by the UN resolution and contained no commitment to the United States, implying that Washington had tied Israel's hands with the original three-month stand-still.

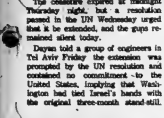
The resolution also recommended that Israel, Egypt and Jordan return to indirect peace negotiations at the UN, which Israel has refused to do until Egypt pulls back missiles allegedly moved closer to the canal in violation of the original ceasefire agreement. Egypt responded that the missiles were in the standstill zone before the agreement and refused to pull them back.

Egypt said the current extension is the last under any circumstances, and Premier Wasfi Tell of Jordan was reported to have told a Beirut magazine he believes another Arab-Israeli war is inevitable.

In Amman, a guerrilla spokesman reported that the last regular Arab Palestinian commando forces had left the Jordanian capital in accordance with an agreement that ended the 11-day civil war in September.

Crowds in Cairo screamed and wept at ceremonies marking the end of 49 days of mourning for the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser. Gen. Mahmoud Fawzi, the Egyptian army chief, and other senior officers placed wreaths on Nasser's tomb beside a suburban mosque named for him.

In Tel Aviv, police reported they have questioned some 1,000 Arabs about two dynamite explosions Friday in Tel Aviv's central bus station which killed one Israeli and wounded 34, five seriously.



A Palestinian guerrilla broadcast from Baghdad, Iraq, claimed that Arab commandos set off the blasts "as part of a guerrilla drive to sabotage the newly-extended ceasefire."

Motorcyclist Is Hanged

MONTREAL (CP) — A 24-year-old member of a motorcycle gang was found dead in a nearby Riviere-des-Prairies cemetery Friday, hanging from a tree with a dog's leash around his neck.

The victim, whose identity is being withheld by police, was found hanging with his hands tied behind his back.

Police found numerous motorcycle tracks near the tree from which the victim was suspended.

Soviet Snubbed On Anniversary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Protesting Russian detention of two United States generals in Soviet Armenia, Washington officials are boycotting this year's Soviet national anniversary celebrations, and the order is reported to have come from President Nixon.

The diplomatic snub means American ambassadors are staying away from the caviar-and-vodka parties given by the Soviets in many capitals to mark the 53rd anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, though they may send lower-ranking U.S. diplomats if they choose.

Coupled with U.S. tit-for-tat expulsion of a Soviet news correspondent Friday, the snub marks a further deterioration of relations between the two powers.

In Washington, the highest U.S. representative allowed to attend the annual Soviet embassy gala Friday night was Adolph Dubs, state department Soviet affairs officer.

But the official boycott didn't hinder three former U.S. ambassadors to Moscow.

Among 800 guests at a reception given here by Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin were W. Averell Harriman, former top U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks, and Soviet experts Foy Kohler and Llewellyn Thompson. The three formerly represented the United States in Moscow.

Last year the Nixon administration was represented at the celebration by two cabinet members—Transportation Secretary John Volpe and Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel.

Dubs was said to be under instructions to make plain to Dobrynin mounting U.S. displeasure over continued Soviet detention of the two U.S. Army generals and a major who landed in Soviet Armenia Oct. 21.

The U.S. says the light plane strayed across the Turkish border inadvertently and should be released promptly. The Soviets have protested the intrusion into their air space and say they are holding the men pending an investigation.

Moscow has turned down a request that U.S. diplomats be allowed to visit the American officers Monday. On previous visits, the men have been found in good health under house arrest in a comfortable villa.

U.S. Policy Assailed

MOSCOW (Reuter) Defence Minister Andrei Grechko attacked American policy in the Middle East and Southeast Asia today as the Soviet Union celebrated the 53rd anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Grechko, in what was termed an order of the day, charged U.S. imperialists with aggravating situations in various parts of the world and with delaying a political settlement in the Middle East and Southeast Asia.

As the time for the annual anniversary parade drew near, the area swarmed with police, far more than usual.

"We are taking and the German police are taking extra precautions," a British source said.

West Berlin Mayor Klaus Schuetz said it was too early to say who was responsible. "But I must decisively condemn this occurrence," he said in a radio interview.

Russian Sentry Is Wounded at War Memorial in West Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — A Russian guarding a Soviet monument in West Berlin was wounded early today by shots fired at him and a comrade, a British spokesman said.

The spokesman said two or three shots were fired about 1:15 a.m.

The soldier, wounded in the arm and left side, was taken by a British military ambulance to East Berlin, the spokesman said.

The incident occurred a few hours before Red Army units were to parade before the memorial in honor of the 53rd anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

The official East German news agency, in a brief dispatch that called the incident "an ill-heard-of provocation," said officials did not know who fired the shots.

Officials in the Soviet embassy in East Berlin lodged a "decisive protest with the British military administration in West Berlin and demanded the necessary measures for the immediate discovery and serious punishment of the criminals," the agency said.

The memorial to Russian soldiers in the Second World War is in the British sector just inside West Berlin, near the Brandenburg gate.

Its guard contingent is 18 men who have a barrack just behind the monument. Two soldiers stand guard 24 hours a day.

"Pretzel-eyed Bolshevism" and "Destroy the Red conception" were smeared in red and white paint in a park rest area several hundred yards from the monument. A painted arrow pointed in the direction of the memorial through the park woods. The paint appeared to be fresh.

Police said leaflets found in the park called for "resistance against selling out Germany." The leaflets were signed by the "European Liberation Front," police said.

A British spokesman said:

"I can confirm that approximately at 1:10 a.m. on 7 November, shots were fired in the vicinity of the Soviet war memorial. As a result of these, one Soviet sentry was wounded and taken to a hospital in East Berlin by an ambulance from the British military hospital in West Berlin. The incident is being investigated."

British soldiers at the scene said the soldier had a stomach wound, which probably was not mortal. "It is a pretty far shot from across the way to the memorial," one said. "The tanks there are lighted at night, but there are no lights on the front itself. The two Russians on guard do not stand at attention as in be daytime but walk around to keep warm."

Garden Expert To Visit City

A. R. Buckley, senior horticulturist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, will give an illustrated address entitled: England Revisited next Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Tabernacle United Church auditorium.

He will present a program of colored slides that will include many famous gardens of England, such as Kew Gardens, Hidcote, Killerton Hatfield House, the famous roof garden at Derry and Tome, and the unforgettable Chelsea Show all taken last May.

Mr. Buckley writes the weekly column Garden Notes that is used by over two hundred weekly and daily newspapers across Canada, as well as many magazines abroad in Canada and the United States, scientific papers, and has written books on trees, shrubs and perennials.

He is well qualified to speak on English gardens as his own training in gardening was mostly obtained in that country. He was a student at the Royal Botanic Gardens Kew, John Innes Horticultural Institute, East Anglia University, and a Apprentice gardener at Hatfield House Gardens, Dartington Hall and many others. He also studied at the Ontario Agricultural College as an exchange graduate student.

Mr. Buckley is a member of the Ontario Institute of Agrologists, Horticultural Institute of Canada, the International Shade Tree Conference, the Rose Society and many other organizations with similar disciplines.

His talk will be a resume of a trip taken to England last May — after 39 years in Canada. Many of the slides shown will be of the famous gardens where he spent his apprenticeship and training.

Mayor Seeks Re-election

TRENTON (Staff) — The nomination meeting for the municipal election here will be held on November 16 in the provincial courtroom above the police station.

Nominations for town council candidates will be taken between 8 and 9 p.m. Those for mayor between 7 and 8 p.m.

Those nominated will have until 9 p.m. the following day to decide whether they will let their names stand.

Mayor Duncan McDonald told The Intelligencer that he would stand for re-election in the December 7 contest.

The mayor will stand on the record of his administration. "We have done everything we said we would, except the Front Street sewer," he said, explaining that the one uncompleted project had been held up by senior governments and not at the municipal level.

No platform, however, has been released by the local council, although the McDonald platform may be unveiled within the next week, he said.

From council ranks, both councillors George Greer and Ted Parker have indicated that they will allow their names to stand for re-election. Neil Robertson, however, says that he will not be running this year.

Air Transport Command Ready When Quebec Crisis Erupted

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

All Canadians were aware of a sudden military buildup in Montreal during the recent crisis there. Photos of armed soldiers on Dorchester St. and in the cobblestoned alleys of the old town appeared in every journal and film clips of troop movements highlighted television news broadcasts from coast to coast.

Overnight an army had been moved into the metropolis with dispatch and high secrecy. When the War Measures Act was declared by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau at 4 a.m. October 16, Air Transport Command Headquarters at Trenton was already engaged in fulfilling a mammoth commitment.

The Command had airlifted troops before in special exercises — once, an entire brigade from Victoria, BC. to northern Norway — but the Quebec situation was imged with greater urgency.

From Oct. 15 to Oct. 20, ATC aircraft flew into CFB St. Hubert, on Montreal's southern fringe, like clockwork. More than 50 flights were needed to do the job, already billed as the largest trooplift in Canadian peacetime defence history.

The majority of flights took place on Oct. 15 and there was no time for specific elaborate preparation, although the command does have master plans for such situations — plans adaptable to many eventualities.

Taking part in the gargantuan operation were both Hercules and Yukon transport planes. The Hercs were brought into action from 435 Squadron in Edmonton and 426 Squadron in Ottawa.

Yukons requisitioned for the job were drawn from the seven still hiding lines with 437 squadron at Trenton. These are expected to be withdrawn from service in April, 1971. However, their retirement, after 18 years of service has been delayed by a stop-gap measure while two CC-137 (Boeing 707) transports are fitted out with refueling apparatus.

All flights in the recent airlift terminated at St. Hubert — each making quick turnabouts and heading back to such points as Edmonton, Quebec, Fredericton, Rivers and Portage La Prairie.

Before heading back to the west for further loads of troops and cargo, aircraft stopped in at CFB Trenton for routine servicing and maintenance checks.

Activity on the first day of the airlift was remarkable. About 1,000 paratroops, members of the three-year-old Canadian Airborne Regiment were flown through the morning hours from CFB Edmonton into St. Hubert field.

And as the 2nd and 3rd battalions of the Royal 22nd Regiment were moved into the nation's largest city, members of the Royal Canadian Regiment based at Gagetown N.B. were being shuttled into CFB St. Hubert by air from Fredericton airport.

Additional flights brought troops and equipment from forces bases at Rivers and Portage La Prairie, Man. Subsequent intense airlift activity followed on Oct. 18 and Oct. 20. In the end, more than 7,000 troops had been moved into the city.

A large factor in the smoothness of the operation, according to defence department spokesman was the involvement of mobile air movement teams from Trenton, Ottawa and Edmonton.

These 16-man MAMT teams were deployed at pick-up points and at St. Hubert to attack potential bottlenecks in the loading and unloading of jeeps, trucks and innumerable equipment pallets.

Canadian Forces Headquarters regards the airlift as a remarkable feat. "It confirms the reliance of'ere or Air Transport Command" one armed forces spokesman said.

An emergency situation like this, perhaps, illustrates better than anything else why we have military air transports. Civilian aircraft could not reach fast enough, yet military air transport met the crisis without even disturbing its scheduled flights, he said.

Minister of Defence Donald MacDonald told The Intelligencer yesterday that "the whole peacetime Air Transport Command program is geared to be ready for just the type of operation they have conducted during the past three weeks with commendable professional skill."

Another aspect of the Air Transport Command role in the Quebec crisis was stressed this week by Brig.-Gen. Louis Bourgeois, head of information services, Canadian Forces Headquarters.

The info services chief, in weighing the expense of the airlift, told The Intelligencer that "relatively speaking, it is not going to cost the taxpayer that much".

On the assumption that they could handle the job, he contended that an Air Canada bill for doing the same work would have been measurably higher.

Although there has been some relaxation of the Canadian Forces stance in Montreal, the army is there and still has to be supported by Air Transport Command.

The heavy Hercules and Yukon aircraft have been replaced in this job by lighter military transports.

Caribous and Buffalos from Trenton's 424 Squadron are now engaged in resupply operations for the Mobile Command Force still in Montreal. This is being done particularly through regular scheduled flights into St. Hubert from Fredericton.

It is not quite accurate to say that no regular ATC flights were disrupted when the command found it necessary to provide the more than 39 needed in the "October Days".

However, alterations in regular flight service were minimal. Only two Hercules cargo flights out of CFB Trenton for Lake, West Germany were affected.

The defence minister sums up his reaction to the airlift by saying that, throughout the operation, he had been "impressed by the flexibility and over-all capability of our relatively small Air Transport Command".

"No matter what the task, or time of day, it (their commitment) was met as requested, where required and on time" he concluded.

Community Determines School Facility Use

Community use of schools has gone beyond just the use of the school and has become community involvement, well-being, health, education and recreation employes learned yesterday.

David Smith, co-ordinator of the Community School Programs of Hastings County Board of Education spoke to the employees yesterday noon at a brief luncheon meeting.

Mr. Smith outlined the hopes, programs and the flexibility of community school programs and their success in the past two months.

"There's no laid-down concept, no true direction," he said explaining the flexibility of community school programs. "The way we are going is different in different areas."

Mr. Smith said there were 53 different communities in the county and that could possibly mean 53 different ways of operating community school programs.

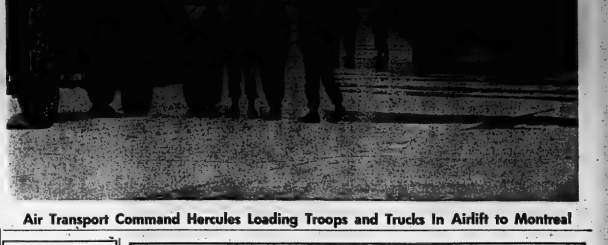
"Basically we work with a community to help them do their thing."

He used a project in Deseronto as an example, explaining that a community school meant community involvement. He said that after an initial meeting the town section of individuals involved went out to find with what the community was concerned.

They tried to find what the community was interested in doing and what resources were available.

"There was face-to-face contact with people in the community," Mr. Smith said.

In Stirling, a community school program started with a recreation committee and a survey was done there. Five of the most popular program picked in the survey were selected.



"It's starting to get U community involved."

Mr. Smith outlined the ir terest shown by the provincial government in the experimental community schools pro gram here and in three other Ontario areas.

Asked if there were any specific projects in Belleville, the employees were informed of the programs going on at Queen Victoria School.

Almost every night of the week various forms of recreation for various age groups are happening at the school, from cards and conversation to sports and arts and crafts.

The responsibility of running such programs is shifting from school officials to community people, Mr. Smith said.

Population Control

Dr. P. S. Corbet, director of the Canada Department of Agriculture Research Institute here, has advanced one of the most cogent arguments on the need for population control that we have heard so far.

In easy-to-understand layman's language, Dr. Corbet told a Belleville audience how man's latter-day domination of his environment, coupled with proliferation of his species, is changing existing resources. And this, more swiftly than might be supposed, many lands, he said, had little effect on his environment; it replaced his activities, rather than the reverse.

How we have excess population, increasing pollution and strain on such non-renewable resources as coal, natural gas and crude oil (fossil fuels as Dr. Corbet calls them). He envisages these as being exhausted within 30 to 100 years.

Dr Corbet seems to contradict himself, however, when on the one hand he suggests that without a change in social and economic attitudes (he did not elaborate on the nature of such change), initiated by Government, the consequences in about three generations would be chaos; and on the other, says a catastrophe is not inevitable when an overpopulated earth ceases to yield enough food. How, in this context we reconcile an anticipated population of seven billion by about the year 2006 and the estimate of scientists that without utilization of fossil fuels, the earth can support only about one million in a relatively stable relationship with their environment?

Be that as it may, Dr. Corbet bases his premise (that an earth producing insufficient food would not be catastrophic) on a "forced decline" of population which may even now be under way. He sees this in stark terms — for example, disease like the Black Death in Europe in the 14th and 17th centuries; and in the interaction of people in big cities particularly — in the callous attitude displayed toward auto accidents and violence in the streets.

Dr. Corbet's address leaves one with a better understanding of the problem. Left unsaid though is the need of world governments to press on with voluntary family planning programs, particularly in the underdeveloped countries where poverty and lack of education are root causes.

At the same time, it is surely possible to increase the world production of food to a greater degree, while at the same time encouraging dispersal of population. There are still vast empty regions in Canada, United States and Australia for example; and literally thousands of small communities which could support more people and industry.

Changing Times

We have heard of judges who order speeders and other traffic violators to spend a day in the emergency ward of busy hospitals. There they discover at first-hand some of the reasons why they should stop driving like maniacs and learn the principles of defensive handling of their cars.

Ever heard of the same principle being extended to marriage? Well, it was tried out at an Ontario Supreme Court session in Kingston recently.

Sixty-three divorce cases were listed on the docket and present were 35 area high school students and their teachers. Judge William Henderson told them: "You will learn today why I believe that marriage counselling should be part of your curriculum."

Judge Henderson had some other sound advice for the young people. He spoke of the inevitable problems of marriage, of the value of counselling — preferably before entering marriage — of the responsibility of fathers toward children and so on.

From the subject of divorce it is only a quick step to that of modern permissiveness and Elizabeth Bolton, at 26 the youngest-ever Dean of Women at Toronto's Victoria College, has some interesting views in this regard. She says that counsellors today must be able to discuss today's problems with students and not be scandalized by such things "as someone wanting an abortion."

Ah yes, indeed, the times have changed. Can anyone imagine a statement such as that, or the following being made say five years ago: "We recognize (said Miss Bindon) that premarital sex can be fun, but you have got to be mature enough to handle more than sex. If a girl of 21 thinks it is bad about to lose her virginity, I think that sort of attitude is highly immoral and very demeaning toward human relations."

Maybe the fact there were no fewer than 63 divorce cases at the Ontario supreme court session in Kingston is because of the increasing faithfulness that prevails today, and which is typified by the above statement. It is in fact that society today accepts no hard and fast definition of immorality: rather there are various shades of it and the final arbiter is the individual himself.

Trudeau Read the Signs of Coming Trouble"

Former NATO Troops Were Available When Needed

OTTAWA — Ever think of it this way ?...

On that traumatic morning of October 16 when Prime Minister Trudeau invoked the War Measures Act to what was — still is and perhaps long will continue to be — the FLQ reign of terror, he did it for two reasons.

1. To break the mounting violence and the then very real momentum of the crisis created by the FLQ blackmail and trade the freedom of 23 jailed terrorists for the lives of James Cross and Pierre Laporte, a surrender for the purchase of only temporary peace at any price.

2. To give the Government time — at least six years too late — to prepare new legislation and laws to cope with the urban guerilla and the terrorist revolutionary, for can you imagine this or any Parliament passing, even reasonably quickly, such enactments, which of necessity will have to be tough?

The question of why the War Measures Act, and what made the Prime Minister wait through two de — little years before declaring what amounted to war against the FLQ and its planned demolition ? by — terror of the country?

All ideas — for and against, and the uncertain and undecided in the middle ground—concede the crisis, under the emergency, the Prime Minister had no other weapon than the War Measures Act, massive and even repressive as it might have been of civil liberties.

As justification for its use, consider the evidence of one who could be fairly judged as the most hostile witness in parliament against the Prime Minister: Deputy NDP Leader David Lewis.

He was against the War Measures Act before it was proclaimed, voted against its approval by Parliament, and after its passage fiercely attacked it.

Hear him as he has publicly admitted that "confidential information" reaching him from Quebec had indicated some of the mass concerns of the civil servants had been that all but a very few in French School Bourassa's Cabinet had been "anxious to deal with the FLQ terrorists, at almost any price which would assure the release by the kidnappers of Pierre Laporte."

The only exception, believed Mr. Lewis, had been Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette and — just possibly — Premier Bourassa himself.

"It may well have been there was a critical situation" —(Mr. Lewis' definition of threatened government surrender to political terror and blackmail) — "inside the Bourassa Cabinet," he went on.

There could have been little doubt that the federal Government would have found it embarrassing — another Lewis definition for Ottawa's fear that appeasement of terror could lead only to more and even worse horror — that the majority of the Quebec Cabinet favored negotiating with the terrorists, explains Mr. Lewis.

"One naturally wonders," goes on Mr. Lewis, "whom [as the prime Minister] was protecting (in imposition of the War Measures Act). It may have been his own Cabinet. It may have been Bourassa. It may have been Montreal Mayor Drapeau. It may have been a combination of things."

Such things as law and order, the preservation of elected governments, the power of the people to resist the demands of terror, the protection of the whole concept of free democratic society based on acceptance that the will of perhaps the will of the majority must not be broken by force of terror? Maybe all that and a lot more had the Prime Minister not used the only weapon then at hand.

On the morning of October 16, FLQ agitators continued surrounding students and sympathizers into the streets of Montreal urging them to violence.

What might have happened in the confrontation already mounting between the embattled police and the mob? Police and student deaths? Chaos, and in the name of order, the surrender of the Government to the terrorists?

Was it a time to debate civil liberties against national liberties, weigh the rights of the violent minority of, at most, a few hundred against the will of the non-violent majority of more than 21 million?

Now as to Question No. Two ... was and it perilously late for the Prime Minister, after seven years of FLQ bombs and rising terror, seven dynamited deaths and hundreds of terrorist plots and two years himself doing little about it, finally to make his dramatic move?

No question. It was. Had he had not been entirely indifferent and idle. He had faced the Montreal crisis at the violent St. Jean Baptiste Day parade and faced them down. He had warned of rising violence. He had scorned "the low guys," as he called them, who want to change things by tearing bombs." And he had been trying to help Quebec economically, removing some of the root causes of social unrest — often in the face of English-Canadian opposition — for the benefit of French Canada."

And perhaps most important of all, he had recalled some troops from abroad — again over a great outcry, largely from English Canada, of protest — and the men were here at home when needed.

Needed, as the Prime Minister months ago explained, for home defence, to help the police to peace, order and good government and the potential of peril from abroad.

Winnipeg Incident

How Terrorism Is Spawned

Winnipeg Free Press

It is likely that the public has had enough of the political manipulation of the young and will from now on back those who have on their shoulders the burden of maintaining school systems and other institutions.

The case of the suspended school student president is an excellent illustration of the sort of folly that can no longer be tolerated. The NDP students who presented themselves before the school board to demand his reinstatement at the school from which he has been removed are among those younger and older, who are being used to keep our institutions in stress and what is meant to be the appearance of turmoil.

It is true that the two young men who were in the editor's office with the suspended school president were playing with a gun that only looked real. It is no! only the gun that is at issue but the mind that thought of this ploy, as a means of intimidating a student editor into doing something he didn't believe in. Illegal. It was the posturing thuggery of the attempt that is at issue. It is incipient terrorism, for terrorism is the attempt to make people do by fear of injury what they will not do willingly.

That is what this matter is about. It is time to put an end even to playing at social and political bullying. The young radicals who spread themselves and their hatchet-job before the school board are not the highjackers of their cause nor of their techniques of debate or publicity. They are trainees at a political game that in the end leads to the Weathermen, the FLQ and bloodred anarchy.

The Other Montreal

Prime Minister Trudeau says that an end to the present emergency in Quebec may be near. But in Montreal, business life is slack and there are fewer people in the downtown area. Usually the Place Ville Marie is crowded on a Saturday, but staff reporter Ian Robertson had plenty of elbow room when he took this picture. The cheerful demeanor of the trio belies the general atmosphere of tension that grips the city in these difficult days.

Car Seats for Babies

Two Types Favored by OSL

Letter to The Globe and Mail

In the Oct. 16 issue was published a letter from Mrs. Elspeth Christie on children's car seats, and I wondered why she only covered the hook-over type and made no mention of the type which is inserted into the seat of the car.

The hook-on type, one is told, under impact will break loose and the baby and seat will be buried around the car interior. However, if no crash occurs the baby is secure, and under normal driving it appears to be ideal.

When I was shopping for a car-chair for my baby I was apprehensive about the hook-over type as it seems to take much imagination to visualize what happens on impact. So for this reason I bought the type on a frame which inserts into the car's seat.

This presented a whole different set of hazards. The seat is secured only at the front and the baby is sitting about a foot higher than this. When empty the chair sits parallel and snug against the car seat. When the baby is put in it swings forward at the top about six inches from the seat back while being firmly held at its base.

Any acceleration or braking causes the chair to swing forward and back. The force with which it does this depends on the amount of change in the car's momentum. The baby is secured to the seat with about car straps, so that the neck and head are thrown back and forth in the familiar whip-lash action.

At first I thought I had a defective chair and contacted the manufacturer, who sent a representative to see what the trouble was. To my amazement he claimed this action of the chair is unavoidable and is SAFE!

The only time I had to brake fast the baby's head was thrown back and forth with such force from the movement of the chair that she screamed hysterically. To this, the representative claimed all car seats of this type act in this manner. I could not accept that this was the case and so started my long search around the baby-goods stores for a frame-type chair which would remain secure under normal driving conditions. My search was futile.

On contacting the Safety Research Branch of the Ontario Department of Transport, I was informed that "child car seats are not sold as safety devices".

The Ontario Safety League do recommend two car seats, one by Ford and one by General Motors. However, you cannot buy these in the department stores and mail-order houses of Canada from the League and order it direct from the manufacturer. "But," adds the OSL, "you will have a heck of a time trying to get one. You will really need to keep after them."

At the moment the League in trying to persuade a leading chain store to stock the two that they recommend, but with little success.

So a mother is left with a choice. First, buy a hook-over type and hope and pray not to be involved in an accident until the baby is old enough to fit a harness. Two, buy the type which inserts into the car's seat and have the baby's neck whiplashed if you have to make an emergency stop. This situation is criminal.

(Mrs.) Winifred Bachmann
Toronto.

I too am aware of the dangers of our cars as they are presently designed. I suggest that Mr. Jean Gritzenko (Safety Seals, — Oct. 17) thoroughly investigate a new safety seat approved to British standard. This seat, a saucer-shaped foam-padded frame combined with a safety harness, is bolted directly to the frame of the car.

It is manufactured by Britax Ltd., Proctor Works, Chertsey Road, Byfleet (Weybridge), Surrey, England. An indication of their concern for the safety of their child is the accident inquiry form which they include with their mounting instructions. They ask the purchaser to complete the form in the event of an accident as "to date no you will have the finest research into road safety".

After buying a Canadian - made device which was most disappointing, we were glad to find this Britax model in England and arranged to have it brought out to Canada. Why could we not manufacture such a safety device here in Canada?

1968—De Gaulle promised Algerian rebels a share in planning their country's future.

1941—The United States Senate voted to allow arming of merchant ships.

1934—United States congressional elections showed Roosevelt dominated 22 states.

1915—306 were killed when the Italian ship Antona was torpedoed in the Mediterranean.

1905—Canada's first movie theatre opened in Toronto.

The Bible on War And Capital Punishment

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

"Thou shalt not kill" is still being quoted as an argument against war and capital punishment; yet Exodus 20, where this commandment is found lists a number of offences for which the death penalty is mandatory. It is therefore clear that the prohibited killing is of an unlawful kind eg., murder.

As to war, the Bible nowhere prohibits it. In the old Testament, God is seen as Commander - in - Chief of Israel's fighting forces, and a happy warrior is found praising God for having "taught his hands to war and his fingers to fight".

In the New Testament soldiers asking about their occupation are not advised to quit the army but to act as they should in it. Further, moral and spiritual truth are illustrated by reference to military rules and regulations.

This does not mean that the death penalty and war are right in this 20th century, but points to inexcusable ignorance of what the Bible says concerning these practices.

Hindu and Moslem Leaders Are Fighting Religious Hatred

BOMBAY (CP) — Prominent Hindu and Moslem leaders in India, have come together to found an organization to fight religious hatred.

Jawaid Biradari, Human Brotherhood, is regarded by observers as the first major attempt since the partition of the Indian subcontinent into two nations 23 years ago to bring peace between Hindus and Moslems.

Its president is Jayaprakash Narayan, one of the most respected figures in Indian politics. A close follower of Mohandas K. Gandhi, the father of Indian nationalism, Narayan has been working for religious unity for many years.

A Hindu, he has a wide following among Indian Moslems — a distinction shared by few of his co-religionists.

Similarly, Human Brotherhood's secretary-general, Shah Nawaz Khan, is a Moslem politician greatly respected by Hindus.

Though not on the same scale as before the creation of India and Pakistan, Hindu-Moslem riots have been breaking out regularly. Only this summer three towns in western India witnessed religious violence for several days. More than 100 people died in the riots.

Among the top leaders who have joined the new organization is Shaik Abdullah, a prominent Kashmiri politician. He has said that amity between Hindus and Moslems is the most important challenge facing India.

Both Narayan and the chiefs are hoping that it will be possible to extend Human Brotherhood's work to Moslem Pakistan. Like the Moslems of India, Pakistan's Hindus have also been having a difficult time. Alleging persecution, hundreds of Pakistani Hindus have been crossing into the Indian province of West Bengal.

Human Brotherhood has been hailed by Indian government leaders, including Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, as a timely attempt to ease religious tension across the country.

It will have a volunteer army to be known as Khadai Khidmatgars, Servants of God. The volunteers will tour potential trouble spots and try to bring the two communities together. They will also seek to localize religious violence wherever it occurs.

Hindu-Moslem peace committees are to be formed in all urban and rural areas with a mixed population.

Hindu and Moslem right-wing groups have already made it clear that they will not co-operate with the leaders of Human Brotherhood. But Narayan is confident that the majority of the people in India will respond to the appeal for religious peace in a positive way.

St. Columba Presbyterians Have Chosen New Minister

A new minister has assumed his duties at St. Columba Presbyterian Church.

He is the Rev. David Murphy, just returned from a two - year term in Trinidad where he served as Director of Stewardship under the newly formed Assembly of Reformed Churches in the Caribbean.

While on this assignment, he directed stewardship development in the church of Trinidad and Tobago and in Grenada and Guyana.

Previous to his stewardship appointment, Mr. Murphy spent six years in Guyana, first as pastor of Burns Memorial Church, Georgetown, a congregation of approximately 300 members and then as Director of Christian Stewardship in the newly independent nation.

A native of Belfast, Northern Ireland, he came to Canada to study at the University of Toronto, graduating with his BA and at Knox College from which he graduated in 1956.

Ordained that same year, he was minister of the extension charge of Knox and Erskine churches, Victoria, B.C. until 1959.

Appointed to overseas service in 1960, he studied linguistics and overseas orientation in the United States. His first posting was to what was then British Guiana.

He received the degree of Master of Theology at the Theological Seminary, Princeton, New Jersey, following a study furlough in 1963-1964.

Married, his wife Jean is a registered nurse, also from Northern Ireland. They have four children.

Firemen Seeking Toys for Needy

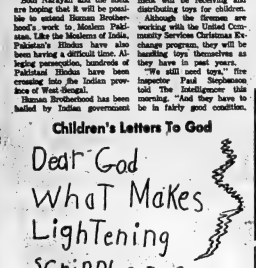
Belleville firemen will be doing their best once again.

In preparation for this year's Christmas, to make the Yuletide season a happy one for children who might not necessarily find it so.

As in past years, members of the Belleville Fire Department will be receiving and distributing toys for children.

Although the firemen are working with the United Community Services Christmas Exchange program, they will be handling toys themselves as they have in past years.

"We still need toys," fire inspector Paul Stephenson told The Intelligencer this morning. "And they have to be in fairly good condition.



We have no facilities to fix badly broken toys."

Firemen will be collecting toys from now until just before Christmas and the police department has volunteered to store them in the police gymnasium where they will be packaged for delivery a few days before Christmas Day by firefighters.

And any type of toy or game will do as long as it's unsafe. Broken toys — usually made of plastics — are sometimes impossible to repair. Minor repairs will be made however.

Toys can be received at any time at either fire hall.

Sheep's Horns One Time Used as Wind Instrument

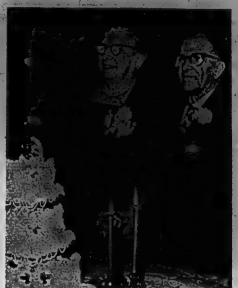
The origin of the word horn predates the English language and was in use in its present form before the year 1000. Horn is a specialized form of epidermis consisting mainly of keratin. Many of the varieties of keratic resemble plastics. It can be molded under heat, pressure and moisture and it can be easily worked and cut.

Horn comes from a variety of animals. Walrus ivory, elephant ivory, narwhal tusks, tortoiseshell, and rhinoceros horns are all different types of horn.

Sheep's horns, especially ram's horns were used as a wind instrument in Biblical times to the extent that the word horn developed a separate meaning as a musical instrument. Animal horns are still used for this purpose to a certain extent although in Canada mainly as a wild animal call.

Ram's horns form part of the ceremonial of many highland regiments, the horn is usually mounted in silver and is used as a snuff mull to be passed at mess dinners. Silver mounted ram's horns are rare and valuable. Value is determined by silversmith, age of the hallmarks, and the association of the regiment with the great and near great.

Horns were used in the day of the flintlock rifle to store gunpowder and may still be found. Those fitted with brass dispensers sell for $15 or more. Buffalo horn and cow horn powder flasks bring less and those with wood plugs fetch about $5.



Fine quality horns of walrus ivory or whale bone decorated with incised decoration called scrimshaw sell for higher prices in Canada than the United States. They are mainly collected now as examples of Eskimo carving although it is likely that most were made by New Englanders in the 19th century.

Horn was widely used for combs, buttons, walking sticks and umbrella handles, knives, drinking cups, spoons, snuff boxes, and as "lantern windows. Hornbooks, a sort of paddle with a transparent sheet of horn under which a school-child's lesson could be placed and traced, formed the earliest type of school work book, predating the slate.

Most old horn, other than ivory or tortoiseshell has little monetary value. In the day it was thought that horn cups would purify wines and prevent poisoning. Unicorn horn, a mythological substance, was particularly prized. Unicorn horn cups invariably turned out to be buffalo, cow or narwhal tusk or plain cow horn.

Horn spoon were a staple in pioneer days and could be manufactured from the horns of the family cow. They are collector's items, but have no real monetary value, and may usually be bought for a nominal sum.

Tortoiseshell if well colored and worked, is still valuable. It was used in much the same way as veneer and was often mounted with mother - of - pearl and other inlays. The ornamental pieces are small boxes and combs. Both command premium prices.

COFFEE AND CAKE

"Life within doors has few pleasanter prospects than a . . . breakfast table." — Nathaniel Hawthorne.

* * *

We are seated at the breakfast table, as week-end guests of hosts, dear family friends. Rain beats the window, the table is invitingly gay with pretty china and silver. The whole scene delightful, especially as our hostess brings in a fragrant coffee-cake, straight from the oven.

"Just though I'd make it, in your honor," she is saying, "for it is one of my favorite recipes of grandmother's. Thanks to a wise and far-sighted mother I baked my first cake when I was seven years old. Of course, I should add, perhaps, due to some confusion over the abbreviations, I mistook tea-spoon and put in a table-spoon of salt. This meant I had plenty of refreshment for some weeks ahead, for my doll's tea-parties. However, after early childhood, whipping up a cake has always been fun and no trouble.

"But, baking is fraught with hazard. A friend of mine the other day accidently tipped her cake - pan filled with cake batter as she went to put it in the oven. She said she felt as if she stood shoulder - deep in the stuff. It flew all over the walls, the cup-boards — just an awful mess to clean up."

As the coffee-cake vanished from our plates and cups of coffee were being refilled, our hostess continued:

"Next to coffee-cake, we sometimes like Danish pastries. But k kind of amuses me, there's a shop in our home town, with slogans about, buy - in - Canada goods, yet its counters are filled with home - made Danish pastries, Swiss rolls, Russian slices, Viennese tortes . . . .

"But whenever we go back to our home town, I always drop in at Mrs. Sawbridge's. It holds memories: how my brother used to tease the clerk and ask, 'How much are your five - cent cupcakes, please?' or answer, 'I want your cheaper one,' when asked if he preferred Madeira cake.

"We recently flew to England to visit relatives. One great-aunt always served Madeira cake for tea. 'Why called Madeira?' I asked her. She said for two valid reasons: The cake originally was eaten with a glass of Madeira wine in the morning. Then again, sometimes the ingredients included Madeira wine.

"This same great - aunt spoke of a London - born young man who desired Harrods of London to bake a cake for his wedding in the United States, where he lived. Safe delivery, however, not guaranteed by the exclusive shop, induced him and his sister to fly to London. They brought back a three - tiered cake, each tier carefully packed in a separate package. The cake weighed 51 pounds and cost nearly a hundred dollars, all possible: the bridegroom - to - be was an Airway executive . . . ."

Our hosts' daughter back from a trip to Hawaii adds her bit thereby closes our coffee and cake conversation, saying:

"It was in the papers there, about a young girl who on her first day on the job, in a fashionable cake shop in Honolulu, didn't know what to do when a hold-up man came to. She told him to wait a minute while she asked some one more experienced.

"The other clerk who had worked there for three months told her: 'Well . . . give him the money.'"

Ann Landers

Teen-age Marriage Which Didn't Work

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If you want to say "I told you so, go ahead — because you did. I wrote to you a year ago to tell you how wrong you were about teen-age marriages. Bruce and I were proving it could work. We had been married all of three months.

Six weeks after I wrote to you Bruce stayed out all night. We got into a row over that. From then on things turned really nasty. We fought about money, his drinking, my sleeping late in the morning, his mother, my mother, the meals I fried, the dirt everything imaginable. Even the sex we thought was so great got boring.

I quit high school to get married and Bruce gave up a chance to go to college. When our marriage began to go sour we blamed each other. I suggested counseling but Bruce said it would be a waste of time because he was sick of me and my childish ways. I was sick of him, too, so I filed for divorce two weeks ago. . . .

I'm back in school now and feeling plenty out of place. A divorce isn't about to be chosen for cheerleader or homecoming queen.

I just wanted to let you know I'm sorry I said all those nasty things in my letter last year. Please accept my apologies and print this one. — MISS KNEW IT ALL.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR MISS: No apologies needed. You've done me a favor. Your letter is my reply to the girl who wrote the following letter:

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 17 and would have been a senior if I had gone back to school, but I didn't. I got engaged instead. Lennie and I have been going steady for two years. He gave me a ring for my birthday in August. We plan to get married around Christmas.

As the time gets closer I become more and more unsure. Every night for weeks I've been waking up in a cold sweat. I've been having terrible nightmares that I am drowning, or trapped in a fire, or lost in a forest. It must mean something but I don't know what.

All my life I've wanted to travel to exciting and far-away countries. I'm good at Spanish and could have a ball in Mexico or Venezuela or Spain or Puerto Rico. If I get married I may never see all these great places. Is this selfish? Is it childish to want to have some adventure and see the world? Am I a dreamer? What if I break the engagement and Lennie marries someone else?

Please help me sort out my thoughts. My mother died three years ago and you have been like a second mother to me. Thanks Ann. — S.O.S. IN FORT LAUDERDALE.

* * *

DEAR S.O.S.: I read you loud and clear. My response is: over and out. Do you read me? If not, re-read the first letter in this column. Your answer is there.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Everyone I know is getting preferred mare and cures by junk mail. Somebody must have sent my name as an insurance prospect because a few months ago I received seven different mailings within two weeks. Here is how I answered the questionnaires. It put an end to my problem.

Name: My own. Address: My own. Date of birth: 13-13-1885. Weight: 228 lbs. Height: 5' 4". Sex: Not sure. Occupation: Any worker. Are you free of mental and physical illness?: No. I am severely neurotic, maladjusted and should be confined in consum at insurance questionnaires. So please take my name off your list.

I haven't had an insurance questionnaire since. — PGH FAN.

DEAR FAN: Thanks for the solution. Nothing succeeds like failure.

Successful Living

On Understanding Others' Problems

By DORIS CLARK

Has it occurred to you that in every family, each member has some responsibility for the others? This means Father notices when Mother is getting dragged out and should get extra beds in the kitchen.

It means Mother is alerted when Father gets grumpy and sees that he gets more rest.

A daughter may need a decision laid down which limits her freedom, without thinking of possible reasons which could not be explained. She pouts — pooks the idea that. "It's because they love you," when she should be believing it.

Sometimes parents are horrified in what they can do for fun, because of their young people's needs. And they do these things willingly.

Take a look around at the people you live with. Use imagination to project yourself into what they are thinking and doing; and what they are worrying and struggling about. Your understanding might be just what Junior or Pop needs, to help him over a tough spot.

* * *

Dear Doris: My husband's sister does nothing but criticize me. She has a daughter who is the same age as my daughter and all during her growing up years my daughter has had to listen to how smart the other girl is.

They both had boy friends, but no one knew that the sister's daughter got into trouble with her boy. The sister kept phoning me and making remarks about my girl. She made my life unbearable until I refused to answer the phone.

My daughter did not do as well at school as she did but at least she got through and she knows how to handle herself with the boy friends. Now she is going to get married and they are criticizing her fiance because he only has a construction laborer's job. . . .

I've had all I can take. My mother says I should still remain friends, but how? — Disgusted.

Dear Disgusted: No child should ever be compared with another. Every single personality is distinctly different and comparisons are odious.

I wouldn't want to be in that other girl's position. She has been taught to brag, to put on a good show. She has been taught not to like her cousin — which is saddest of all.

* * *

Can't you see that your sister - in - law simply has to find things to pull apart? Don't let resentment embitter you but turn your attention o encouraging and loving your girl. Keep friends if you possibly can, and turn a deaf ear to her scathing remarks.

* * *

Dear Doris: Thanks for be new names. We'll soon have them playing postal chess.

All we are interested in is providing a clearing house where us sodbuster types, can play chess with our ilk. You do have to be a little more peculiar than most to play a game that may take several years to finish. I know of one fellow who, after retiring from duty as a customs officer on what some say is the loniest customs office in Canada, went overseas as a missionary, for his church. He went to England.

Some real characters are met in international play. In 1967 a Yank that I was playing with was in charge of a National Guard unit which was called in to quell a riot. He said they didn't have much trouble and thought maybe it was because he had painted "Seat Brother". on his tanks. Another Yank entered into a chess match at a university in which a computer had been programmed to play. Out of some three dozen players, he was the only one who couldn't beat the computer — they drew. — Don.

Dear Don: Well! It takes all kinds. . . .

* * *

(Ask Doris about your difficulty. She will discuss it or send you to a source of help.)

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Caller: "Is your mother home?"

Boy: "Who is this?"

Caller: "It's Mrs. Jones. Do you know when she'll be home?"

Boy: "No."

Children often seem terse and rude on the telephone. Some definite instructions — perhaps even the exact wording of what they are to say — may make it easier for youngsters to communicate with a caller.

Mother: "If someone calls and asks for me say 'My mother is out for a few hours. May I have her call you when she returns?' Be sure to write down any messages or numbers I am to call."

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Make Your Own Chips

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: A while ago you published in your column a recipe for making your own potato chips. I clipped this out but I seem to have misplaced it. Could you send me this recipe please? — Gerald McV.

ANSWER: We seem to be receiving an increasing number of requests for our Potato Chips, Commercial Style, so I decided to repeat it.

POTATO CHIPS — HOMEMADE COMMERCIAL STYLE (reprinted from March 6, 1967)

3 large potatoes
2 tbsps. vinegar
2 cups oil
Salt

Wash and pare potatoes. Cut into paper-thin slices on Mouli-ser shredder (sometimes called "salad maker"). These slices must be paper-thin. I had 80 slices from one potato, and the total amounts measured 3 cups, well packed.

Put cold water into large mixing bowl to fill ¾ full. Add 1 tray of ice cubes and the vinegar and potatoes, mix around by hand and let soak 1 hr. Drain through colander and pick out ice cubes. Spread out in single layer on large linen tea towel to dry off.

Heat oil in pan 7" in diameter by 4" deep to 360 deg. Fahr. (bread cube will brown in 60 seconds). Pick up a big handful of sliced potatoes (about 1-6 of total batch — do not overcrowd) and carefully add to hot oil which will bubble furiously for a few moments so add them at warm's length. When they begin to tinge with gold, stir with slotted spoon and remove at once on slotted spoon. Do not let them brown at all — 2 min. in oil is about enough. Transfer to large plate lined with 4 thicknesses of paper towelling. Sprinkle sparingly with salt. Add next batch. Transfer the first batch to paper-towel-lined utility tray. Stay with your work all the time and watch for once the chips crispen they turn pale gold very quickly. After electric element was on "high" throughout. Repeat until all sliced potatoes are fried.

Women's Institutes

RIVER VALLEY WI

To mark the 60th anniversary of the River Valley WI 27 members enjoyed a dinner meeting on Monday evening at a restaurant in Belleville.

Mrs. Ed Kent proposed the toast to the WI which has served the community since 1910. Mrs. Roy Tucker, president replied. She paid a tribute to all the members who have contributed their talents throughout the years. She said that the aim of the WI is to serve both Home and County and that members try to keep in mind the Mary Stewart collect and the Institute ode.

Candles were lit on the individual birthday cakes.

The Tweedsmuir curator, Mrs. Roy Bush read a message about the 60—Years of achievement in the River Valley community. She said that the pioneers saw the need for women to have better laws, better homes and a good education and she hoped that those present at the dinner would keep these goals in mind.

Earlier, members signed their names in the friendship link book.

Shulman Names Four Men As Links With Bookmakers

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) Friday continued the attacks on organized crime he began a week ago in the Ontario legislature.

Dr. Shulman named four Ontario men as Ontario links to an international bookmaking syndicate controlled from Buffalo, N.Y.

He identified the men as Albert Iannarelli and his brother Louis, Ernest A. Rebabat, all of Niagara Falls, and Walter Chornki of Mississauga. Dr. Shulman said Mr. Chornski now uses the names Charles Watson.

Dr. Shulman read the names from affidavits he said he received from two FBI agents in Buffalo, N.Y., and from a veteran Niagara Falls, Ont., detective.

He identified the informants in his affidavits as James Moody, a detective with the special branch of the Niagara Falls, Ont., police department concerned with gambling and Raymond C. Kruger and Joseph E. Griffin, both described as special FBI agents in Buffalo.

At the conclusion of his speech Dr. Shulman urged stronger steps against organized crime.

He called for a permanent commission of inquiry, a shakeup in the departments of the attorney-general and the intelligence service of the provincial police and anti-racketeering and anti-loan-shark laws.

He said all three affidavits were made in November, 1968, and were available to the provincial attorney-general's department "but nothing was done."

Ontario, Dr. Shulman said, is also favored by criminals as a place to invest and "launder" money.

Laundering, he said, is using unaccountable cash to move criminal activities for a legitimate transaction after which the money becomes usable.

Also Friday:

—Con Hodgson (PC—Halburton), chairman of the standing committee on orders and proceedings, proposed to cut the number of committees in half.

—Dr. Shulman produced a number of affidavits in an attempt to prove that his claims

Women Will Get Equal Chances

Administered by the labor department's women's bureau, the act prohibits discrimination based on sex or marital status of criminal infiltration into the building trades of Toronto are not based on rumor.

—George Bukater (L—Niagara Falls) accused Dr. Shulman, who also alleges money from organized criminals is involved in a 56-acre real estate development in Chippewa County, of trampling on innocent persons. He said Dr. Shulman's statements have cast suspicion on every official of a Niagara municipality.

—Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said he has been too busy to grant an interview to John Mooney, president of The Jockey Club Ltd., who sought a meeting two months ago to discuss off-track betting.

—Eddie Sargent (L—Grey-Bruce) accused the Ontario government of "collaborating with the railways to put an end to passenger rail service in the province.

—Premier John Robarts said the province is prepared to adhere to a proposed six-month extension to the six-per-cent ceiling on wages and prices.

—Replying to a question by Dr. Shulman, Correctional Services Minister Allan Grossman said institutions are not being affected by some staff members who are fighting reforms.

—Lands and Forests Minister Rene Brunelle said federal and provincial governments will meet soon to consider changes in an agreement to provide financial assistance to commercial fishermen injured by mercury contamination of fish in some Ontario lakes.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

I have sympathy for the patient:

— who is kept in the doctor's waiting room hours after he has arrived for his appointment. I believe that time is the most precious of all gifts. When you steal a businessman's (or a housewife's) time. It is unforgivable — unless an unexpected emergency prevents the doctor from being on schedule.

— who is hesitant about telling his doctor "everything" on the first visit — when illness clues are so important in making the correct diagnosis. Many hesitate to open the door to expose a well-guarded family skeleton.

Yet, after one gets to know the doctor better, it is silly not to co-operate fully by telling everything that may bear on the problem. (For example, I recall one woman's recurring skin rash which was unresponsive until she finally "confessed that she was "allergic" to her husband. In her case, the cure was divorce — not, mind you, invariably a cure for stubborn dermatitis.)

— who is lacking in confidence about what her doctor is doing (or not doing) for her — yet afraid to ask for consultation. I'll go on the premise that the patient comes first. It is his health, his life at stake. He deserves to have whatever help he can muster.

Consultation should be made easy for the patient. All he needs to do is ask for it without having any qualms. Don't worry unnecessarily about hurting your doctor's pride. Any good, competent doctor welcomes the opinion of another physician — especially if it will bring comfort and peace of mind to his troubled patient.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Please help me. I know I should see a doctor but I am so embarrassed I just can't. About two months ago my husband and I were having a lot of marital difficulties. I decided on the spur of the moment to get even with him by having an affair. That's what I did, with someone I barely knew.

I have lived in hell since, terrified I might have gotten a disease. Will you please tell me what symptoms I should have by now if I have really caught something? How I should have a blood test, but please tell me about the symptoms. — Mrs. X.

COMMENT: If you really want my help, then believe me when I say that only a visit to a doctor will resolve your fears. You will need a blood test and other examinations. Only in this way can you be sure that gonorrhea or syphilis are not part of the problem.

You can't even hope to solve your difficulties by relying on the presence or absence of symptoms. Sometimes there are none that are evident. For your own sake, visit a physician. Otherwise you'll go about beating your emotions to death day to day, worrying — and worrying some more.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 62 and have severe pain daily due to stones in my gall bladder. I can't eat or sleep. My doctors think it is serious enough to operate. Otherwise I am in good health. Isn't it combatting suicide to agree to operate at 62? — Mrs. C.

COMMENT: Your physician will have to make the decision based on your physical condition — not on your calendar age. Some time ago I wrote about a patient of mine who had her gall bladder out in her late 80s and lived comfortably into her mid-90s. It's physical condition that matters — not how many calendar leaves that have been turned over during a lifetime.

Ontario Controls Textbooks

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has no regulations as to ownership of firms publishing public and high school textbooks but imposes strict controls on the books themselves, says an education department official.

"Regardless of who the owners are, the publishers have been extremely co-operative with the department," said F. J. McCallister, assistant superintendent of curriculum and the manager of the department's relations with textbook publishers.

Five years ago, who'd have thought there'd be a Volkswagen this different?

The Super Beetle.

Nobody did. Least of all us.

Because 5 years ago, we thought the Beetle was virtually perfect.

But, because we've never been able to leave well enough alone, over 1000 improvements have been made to it since.

Like a whole new front suspension system. A bigger, more powerful engine. A new heating system that now has two heaters and a total of 7 different outlets. And a new ventilation system.

There's now a rear window defogger. A trunk that carries twice as much as ever. A wider track for on even better ride. And bigger brakes for quicker stops.

The end product of all this nit-picking? The 1971 Super Beetle.

There's never been another car like it. And that includes Volkswagens.

Fresh from a layover in BGH, discipline was still on my mind this week. I was waiting up in cold weeks from sightseers at Nurse Depression shrilling: "Get back in bed or I'll confiscate your hemlock!"

But nobody outside of Ole Spiro himself ever struck a bolder blow for law and order than Sam Etcheverry unloosing on Canada's sporting public.

The man who wears the Alouette hospital-suspended fullback Dennis Duncan and tempestuous Winnipeg linebacker Bob McCarthy, ostensibly for the remainder of the season, for what Etcheverry at the time called "conduct detrimental to the football team." In layman's terms, this meant booting in public, we subsequently learned.

Considered with the earlier trade of Dick Smith to Winnipeg, also reportedly for disciplinary differences with Etcheverry, the suspensions certainly wipe out what hopes the Alouettes had of winning today's sudden-death eastern CFL semi-final against the Argos.

When he wasn't wrapping his mitts around a glass, Duncan was using them to lug football's 275 yards this season, third best in the East. The EFC's leading ground-gainer in 1969, Duncan also grabbed 26 passes for 330 Alouette yards this fall. His slight touchdown helped put the Als in the playoffs for the first time in four years.

McCarthy caught 12 passes for 193 yards; and Smith, who wound up with 638 yards on 54 receptions, was the eastern conference's leading catcher when Etcheverry drummed him out to the last-place Blue Bombers.

Notwithstanding the fact that Duncan and McCarthy may also be headed for Winnipeg deliverance, the trade would not be effective until 1971 and their absence at the CNE Stadium this afternoon makes Argo hearts beat louder.

The prominence of the delinquents makes Etcheverry's decision all the more severe and, we think, commendable.

"I'm sure I'm one of the easiest disciplinarians in the football coaching ranks, but I do have a few rules and I expect them to be followed," explained Sam. "If not, I take action."

That "action" may have cost the Als a crack at the Grey Cup. They were the pick of the eastern contenders, having beaten Argos in two of three season meetings, and with two wins and a tie to show for three confrontations with the Toros. Combined with injuries to cornerback Richie Davis (broken jaw) and speedy half Moses Denson (broken nose) suffered in the season's finale against Hamilton, the Etcheverry suspensions made the Als overwhelming underdogs.

The harsh measure was not hastily initiated. "Both players had been warned and then they went out and did it again," said Etcheverry. "That's nothing more than contempt for my rules."

Contempt, or indifference to coaching directives is sportsmen's sign of the era's civil disobedience syndrome.

It's no accident that the "tough guys" of pro sport — the Vince Lombardis, Lou Brocketers, and Gene Mauchs — inevitably succeed in getting the most out of their players while at the same time commanding their utmost respect.

There are extremes. Like Arizona State coach Frank Kush, who benches fist-strangers for fumbles, publicly slaps players across the face, and submits errant players to "hamburger drills" — practice sessions in which an individual is the object of gang-tackling by his teammates.

Not even the fact that Kush's Sun Devils enjoy one of the best records in college football can excuse his erratic outbursts.

Buffalo Sabre-sharpener George Imlach earned a "messiah" reputation while winning four Stanley Cups in 11 years behind the Toronto Maple Leafs' bench. But "French" drawn his disciplinary lines symbolically at the length of a hockey-player's hair, it might just as easily be the length of Gil Ferrazh's fingernails. Imlach often confides: "I ain't got nothin against long hair — as long as yer not playin hockey for me. But these rules help me establish that I'm the boss."

Below professional levels, coaching is becoming more of a thankless chore. You don't have to go say further than Market St., to discover that.

This city's junior B hockey entry, for example, is traditionally plagued by a schedule conflict with high school football. There are boys who say they're too exhausted to play football in the afternoon AND practice hockey the same evening. This poses a discipline dilemma when these players turn up and expect to be in the starting lineup for games.

Some boys manage to combine both sports. One junior player did so with a cast on his arm during the recent "B" training camp.

We suspect that boys are more attracted to high school football because it instils a sense of camaraderie and team spirit that they haven't digested from community recreation programs like minor hockey.

Minor hockey also often fails to endow its grads-stars with the proper attitude to accept coaching, a skill as vital as coaching itself.

This week's Etcheverry action — with a lot more at stake — was a perfect example of how to handle team delinquents at any level, no matter how talented they might be.

A stern coach's only consolation may lie in the self-knowledge that an unpopular disciplinary measure may be doing a boy — and his parents — a service.

Even if it means losing.

Mo-Hawks Convert Aces Mistakes In 6-2 Win

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

If the old saying that, "to err is human. To forgive, divine" holds true, then the Kingston Aces are in line for sainthood after Friday night's 6-2 loss to the Mo-Hawks.

A big reason for the four-goal difference was the fact that Belleville was able to cash in on Kingston's defensive lapses, while the Aces were failing to take advantage of the Mo-Hawk miscue in a scrambling, haphazard hockey game.

"We got the win, which is cushion, while waiting to cap Hailes on Kingston's mistakes.

Coach Dan McLeod's strategy of starting second-string goalie Dave Caval appeared to backfire when a soft shot by Doug Sears trickled through his pads after only three minutes of play.

Dave picked up Al Ferguson for the second marker, wheeling around the Kingston goal before coasting a pass that Ferguson batted into the open side.

Les Colligan also came up with some first - rate speedwork to line up Lou Kenwood for the third Mo-Hawk score. Kenwood made no mistakes drilling a hard blueline shot into the bottom corner.

McLeod re-instated Tom Mercer in goal for the start of the second period, and for a while that move appeared to pay off as the Kingston regular came up with some key saves to keep the pressing Mo-Hawks from padding their lead.

Ralph Place was responsible for the key goal of the game, deflecting two hopes of a Kingston comeback.

The fiery leftwinger slid in front of a blue line shot by Lee Paradise, deflecting the puck to Lou Colligni, who had just stepped on the ice after Lionel Boily's holding penalty had expired. Colligni neatly dished Mercer to make it 4-0.

A rejuvenated Lorne O'Donnell completed his second impressive performance in a row tallying Belleville's final two goals of the game.

Lee Paradise raised Steve Rezo's bid for a shutout tacking the puck under the Belleville goalie less than a minute to play in the second period.

Rezo was at his best-early in the third frame throwing a glove in front of a high drive by Rod Graham and then, seconds later, coming up with a brilliant skate save on Bob Rawson. Graham letter-worked some measure of revenge, beating Rezo for Kingston's second goal.

George Godson and Lorne O'Donnell came up with another strong skating performance for the winners and were probably the most effective forwards.

The Mo-Hawks now have a seven-day layoff before meeting Barrie next Friday in a 9 p.m. match at the Belleville arena.

Habs In Town Next Friday

Orr-Security a reminder opening behind the likes of Fleet Geogan, Floyd Crawford, Jean-Paul Lamoureaux and Lou Smrke would expect to feel pretty confident. Especially when the goalie, Gerry McNeil, was good enough to merit a spot on the NHL's second all-star team during the 1952-53 season.

A quick look at McNeil's opposition in next Friday's benefit hockey game would be excuse enough to forgive the former Montreal goalie if he opted for an easier job — like juggling live grenades.

McNeil will be between the pipes for the Firefighters when they take on the Montreal Canadien Old Timers in a 9 p.m. game at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

Represented in the old-timers line up will be two Hart trophies, five Art Ross scoring championships, seven Norris trophies, six Vezina awards for the top goalie and a Lady Byng thrown in for good measure — all collected at one time or another by members of the Montreal team.

In addition, members of the unit accounted for spots on 29 first all-star teams and 17 second-team positions.

Topping the list is starry right winger Maurice Richard, who was named to eight first teams and six alternate spots on the NHL dream teams. The Rocket also added a Hart Trophy as the Most Valuable player in the 1946-47 season.

Other faces that frequently popped up in the all-star selections were Doug Harvey (seven first all-star teams, seven Norris trophies) and Bill Durnan (six all-star teams, six Vezina trophies).

These stars plus the likes of Dickie Moore, Bernie Geoffrion, Butch Bouchard, Ken Reardon and a number of others will be on hand for next Friday's look, with the proceeds going to the crippled children's fund.

Advance tickets are on sale at Ed. Thomas Cigar Store, O'Neill's Barber Shop, McKnight Variety Store and both fire halls. The price is $4 per adult and $1 for children and there will be no reserved seats.

Als Face Hard CFL Facts of Life In Todays Semi-Final

TORONTO (CP) — The hard facts of life in the Canadian Football League will be revealed today for either Toronto Argonauts or Montreal Alouettes when they clash in the Eastern Conference semi-final, semi-final.

The Alouettes beat the Argos twice in three encounters during the regular season but the outcome of today's game is the one that counts because the winner advances to the eastern final against Hamilton Tiger-Cats and stands a chance to represent the East in the Grey Cup against the West.

The game will be seen on the CBC national television network beginning at 2 p.m. EST.

Despite the Als' favorable record against the Argos, the Toronto club has been made 7½-point favorite, possibly because of the home-field advantage and the recent shakeup in the Montreal club.

With the suspension of fullback Dennis Duncan and wide receiver Bob McCarthy for drinking before their last game, and the jaw injury to defensive back Richie Davis, the Als have been forced to change their lineup.

However, Montreal coach Sam Etcheverry doesn't seem to be worried. He still has quarterback Sonny Wade who, he said, seems to play his best games against the Argos.

Wade, hot and cold in most of his games during the regular schedule, has played three outstanding games against the Argos and has been adept at escaping the rush by the Toronto defence.

He led the Als to 34-27 and 34-17 victories over the Argos who won the third game 16-13.

"I can't tell about Sonny," Etcheverry said. "He's a hard guy to figure out but he always plays well against the Argos and I don't expect that to change."

The Argos play up quite a bit and you can count on them to blitz a lot," Etcheverry said. "This is the type of game that brings out the best in Sonny."

But despite the loss of Duncan and McCarthy, the Als also have split end Terry Evanshen, tight end Peter Dalla Riva and halfback Moses Denson.

Evanshen, one of the most elusive receivers in the CFL, is always a threat. He has caught eight passes for 143 yards and two touchdowns against the Argos. And Dalla Riva has caught nine passes for 128 yards.

Jim Roustrev, Argos defensive coach, says Dalla Riva is he man the Als are likely to go in a crucial play.

. . . As you study their game movies, you realize that the more desperately they need yardage, the likelier they are to go to Dalla Riva," Roustrev said.

"He's their really dependable guy."

With Duncan gone, Denson will be the key to the running game. He is also a good receiver. He carried the ball 21 times for 176 yards and caught six passes for 66 yards and one touchdown against the Argos.

Replacing Duncan will be Bruce Van Ness. A former college quarterback, he is sometimes used by the Als to throw a pass from a handoff or pitchout.

Defensive halfback Lewis Cook is expected to move to the Montreal offence as a wide receiver while Bobby Lee Thompson, formerly with the Als before playing out his option to play in National Football League, will replace the injured Davis at corner back.

ROME (AP) — Nino Benvenuti is shorn and ready to defend his middleweight boxing title against Argentina's Carlos Monzon tonight. After five strenuous weeks of training, the Italian champ added the final touch Friday by getting a haircut — a ritual he follows before every title fight. The champion, who has never lost in his native land, was a 5-1 favorite to retain the title against Monzon, who has 44 knockouts and 73 victories in 80 fights.

PINCKNEY, Mich. (AP) — After six years and 46 football games without a victory, Pinckney high school, playing its last game of another dismal season Friday, overcame what Coach Tom Wilson called "a massive psychological handicap" and crushed previously rated Dansville 66-8. That gave Pinckney a tie for last place in the local 2-A league. "We have fantastic fans," exclaimed Wilson. "When we lost a game by only 14-12 not long ago, you'd think we'd won a state championship."

Seals Make Bid to Abandon NHL Cellar

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ten days ago, California Golden Seals looked as if they were taking up permanent residence in the West Division cellar of the National Hockey League.

They were still there Friday night after crushing Toronto Maple Leafs 8-4 in the only scheduled game, but they gave the impression they have their eye on the division penthouse—or at least a walkup flat.

Then the Seals knocked off Buffalo Sabres, New York Rangers and now Toronto in their last three starts.

The latest win gave California eight points, one less than Pittsburgh Penguins, two back of Minnesota North Stars and four behind fourth-place Los Angeles Kings.

Toronto's loss leaves the team with six points in the East Division, one ahead of last-place Buffalo. The Leafs have three wins and eight defeats in 11 games.

As Oakland, both teams scored twice in the first period. Garry Monahan and Guy Trottier for the Leafs, Carol Vadnais and Billy Hicke for the Seals.

Seals soared to a 3-2 lead in the second period on goals by Gary Jarrett, Tony Featherstone and Dick Mattiussi.

Featherstone registered his second goal of the night early in the third period before Toronto attempted a rally on goals by Trottier, his second of the game, and Ron Ellis.

But Gerry Ehman and Gary Croteau each scored in the final three minutes of the game, extinguishing Toronto's fire.

In tonight's action, Toronto travels to Vancouver to meet the Canucks, Montreal Canadiens play host to the Sabres, New York is at Los Angeles, Boston Bruins visit Pittsburgh, Chicago Black Hawks are at Philadelphia against the Flyers and St. Louis Blues encounter the North Stars at Minnesota.

Montreal travels to Boston Sunday, Pittsburgh plays the Red Wings at Detroit, Philadelphia visits Buffalo and the North Stars play at Chicago.

Vikings Turn Corner

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota Vikings begin the second half of their schedule against Washington Redskins Sunday in one of the features of a 12-game National Football League program.

Quarterback Gary Cuozzo has led the Vikings to six victories, he has not challenged the passing leaders in the National Conference. He currently ranks 10th with a 52.7 completion percentage, 1,160 yards and just six touchdowns.

Joe Kapp, last year's hero, has had even less success with Boston Patriots. He ranks 15th in the American Conference with a 43.3 completion percentage, 357 yards and just one touchdown. Under his leadership the Patriots are 0-6 and John Mazur has replaced Clive Rush as coach.

The two quarterbacks will be focal points on the second program. Cuozzo as he leads the NFC Central leaders into Washington and Kapp, former British Columbia Lions quarterback, and the Patriots tangle with St. Louis Cardinals, tied with Dallas Cowboys for first place in NFC East.

Eight other games have a bearing on first place in the division races—Detroit at New Orleans, Colts at Chicago Bears, Atlanta Falcons at Los Angles Rams, Denver Broncos at San Diego Chargers, Houston Oilers at Kansas City Chiefs and New York Jets at Pittsburgh Steelers.

Also, Miami Dolphins are at Philadelphia Eagles and Cincinnati Bengals at Buffalo Bills.

Baltimore Colts and Green Bay Packers meet at Milwaukee Monday night.

The success of the Vikings and Cuozzo has at its base the defensive unit. No. 1 in the NFL in total yards allowed, yielding only 185.6 a game, and the slingiest—having allowed just 56 points. Washington, one game out of the Eastern lead, has not permitted a touchdown in the last nine quarters.

Esks On String

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos have never lost a Western Football Conference semi-final game at home and coach Ray Jauch says they can keep the string going Sunday by avoiding mistakes.

"It's who's going to make the mistakes and who will do the things that will hurt" that will decide the outcome of the sudden-death clash with Calgary Stampeders in Clarke Stadium.

Jauch says bad wind and weather conditions are his prime concern.

With temperatures expected to be in the 30s, the field would be frozen to some degree.

A strong wind would affect the ability of the Eskimos, a passing club, to move the ball in the air in either direction.

"The wind can hurt the game and the quality of the play."

The first WFC playoff game in Edmonton since 1961, the last time the Eskimos finished the regular season in second place, will start at 4 p.m. EST and will be televised on the CTV national network.

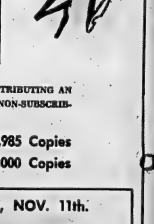
Quarterback Don Trull, Edmonton's master of the short pass, is bound to do better than he did in his last playoff game —for Houston Oilers of the American Football League in 1969.

The Oilers were clobbered by Oakland Raiders. Trull called one play in the game and lost his job.

"I think Wally Lemm (the coach) would have probably kept me, but what could he do when Adams (Houston owner Bud Adams) told him to get rid of all the quarterbacks."

Trull isn't worried about the cold Sunday.

"I don't really mind it. Twenty or 30 degrees up here doesn't seem as cold because it's drier. Cold doesn't seem to bother me at anything. It's a wet ball that isn't good."



The big thing against Calgary, he said, "is not so much how many points we can score but not to give any away."

The bookmakers have made Calgary three-point favorites to become the first third-place team to capture the WFC semi-final since 1963, when Saskatchewan Roughriders turned the trick. The playoff was a two-game, total-points affair then, but was switched to a sudden-death game in 1964.

In Brief Repose

Quinte Island Theatre players Jerry Vincent, Larry Tayler, Liz Hirst, Jack Evans and Ida Harris form the cast for the Nov. 12, 13 and 14 presentation of Barefoot in the Park, the first adult presentation by the QIT. In its three-year history, the players have specialized in children's plays.

Adults' Year For QIT

PICTON (Staff) — Theatre is ever-growing in popularity in the Quinte district and Picton's Quinte Island Theatre is one of the newest to emerge.

For the first time, the players will be presenting an adult play — Barefoot in the Park, Neil Simon's smash Broadway comedy and a hit movie in 1967.

The 3-year-old theatre group will present this truly funny comedy Nov. 12-14 inclusive, at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute in Picton.

This play, is the first in a series of adult plays to be presented by the QIT, the second being Cactus Flower, followed by a shakespearian comedy.

Theatre chairman Larry Taylor described the history of the players when he said

The River Valley WI senior-training class on desserts was held on two evenings in October at the home of Mrs. Norman Rondeau, who was assisted by Mrs. E. Carr. Twenty seven women were in attendance.

Nine members of the River Valley WI attended the Trent Valley area convention which was held in Belleville.

"although the QIT has made its local reputation through children's plays, we feel that we have to expand and diversify our organization to provide expression for our "over 21s" as well as our youth group."

Featured in the case of Barefoot are Elizabeth Hirst as Corie, the bride, Jerry Vincent as Paul, the young husband, Liz Harris as Corie's mother, Larry Taylor as Victor, the older, other man, Jack Evans as the telephone man and P. J. Robertson as the delivery man.

Curtain-time is 8.15 p.m. with adult admissions for $1, students for 75 cents.

Water Surcharge Concerns Council

CAMPBELLFORD (Special) — This town's new sewage treatment plant is scheduled to go into operation about the middle of December but the surcharge on water rates to recover the cost has still not been established.

The sewage plant is being constructed by the Ontario Water Resources Commission which will also set the rates to recover the cost.

The public utilities commission has informed council that billing equipment presently used will not handle the printing of the water bill surcharge. Council members will attend the next PUC meeting to discuss the billing problem.

There is a possibility that the town's billing equipment could be adapted to handle the water surcharge billing.

Queensboro

QUEENSBORO — The turkey supper sponsored by the congregation of the United Church was attended by a large number of people.

The Trent Valley area convention of Women's Institutes held recently in Belleville was attended by Miss Hazel Thompson, Mrs. H. Declair, Mrs. John Thompson, Mrs. Roy Collins, Mrs. C. A. McMurray, Mrs. Harold Tokley and Mrs. W. J. Lynn.

Arctic Development Problems Seem on Way to Being Solved

EDMONTON (CP) — The fifth in a series of national conferences aimed at ending the opposition of the arctic ended Friday with a general feeling that many problems were at least partly on the way to being solved.

More than 300 delegates from North America and Europe attended the conference, listed in a series that began in 1958 and which have been held every three years since. Its purpose was the role of petroleum in northern development.

The oil and gas industry was warned by Arthur J. R. Smith of Ottawa, chairman of the economic Council of Canada, that the industry would contribute little to arctic development if the people of the north are not allowed its participation.

John Tetlich, chief of the Loucheux Indian band at Fort McPherson, N.W.T., said: "Development of the north will be an empty thing if the Indians, the Eskimos and the Metis who live in that land are not given a chance to share in the fruit of this development."

His statement was echoed by Senator Mike Gravel of Alaska and Jean Chretien, minister of Indian affairs and northern development.

Ecology—described by many delegates as a "motherhood kind of thing"—also was featured prominently, particularly during discussion of transporting oil from the Arctic to southern markets.

Captain Thomas C. Pullen of Ottawa, Canada's representative on Humble Oil's experimental tanker Manhattan during its Northwest Passage voyage, said Canada may have favored the United States to consider pipelines instead of tankers as the prime transportation mode.

A western Canadian skipper, he said federal legislation providing for fines of $16,000 a day for persons guilty of polluting the Arctic are possibly responsible for the Americans' change of heart.

"I offer the opinion that Humble has, in fact, been backed off because of these escalating costs and the general air of uncertainty as to where it will all end."

This uncertainty about government's intentions was cause for complaint from others relying on foreign financial backing to pay the astronomical bill of finding and bringing oil out of the Arctic. One estimated as much as $6,000 million dollars would be needed for this over the next five to 10 years.

"A lot of money, a lot of guts and good technology and probably many years have to be poured in before we can hope to come up with the harvest," said Dave Furlong of Edmonton, managing director of the Canadian Petroleum Association.

Several speakers said Ottawa should be cautious about rapid legislation changes that would scare off potential investors.

Jerry McAfee of Toronto, president of Gulf Oil Canada Ltd., said there should be no barriers to foreign investment.

"Any unnecessary restrictions on investment, whether Canadian or foreign, would only serve to restrict the amount available and retard the development of the nation's resources."

Indians Are Doing Well In Struggle for Rights

EDMONTON (CP) — The fight by Indians to regain the right to self-determination and the basic decisions Indians themselves which affect their everyday life is already excellent progress, Harold Cardinal, president of the Indian Association of Alberta, said Friday.

Mr. Cardinal said a three-day, association-sponsored conference on the economic, social and human development of the Indian was an "ambitious undertaking and I think it came off extremely well."

The conference was attended by Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien and Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson in addition to Premier Harry Strom of Alberta and senior officials from both levels of government, business and industry leaders. There were representatives from almost all the 42 Alberta reserves among the 200 persons at the conference which ended Friday.

"The fact that we were able to bring them all together and get an expressed willingness from both sides of government that they would work together for us instead of hiding behind issues is in itself a big step forward," Mr. Cardinal said.

One of the major issues the Indians voiced was the case with which governments sidestepped issues by "passing the buck."

Mr. Christian suggested a committee be established made up of federal and Alberta government officials and Indians to the most effective jurisdiction. Municipal Affairs Minister Fred Colborne said the Alberta government would support such a committee.

"I think it's going to be a little more difficult for anyone to back-pass in front of us because we want, and are determined to move forward," Mr. Cardinal said.

One of the youngest Indian leaders in Canada, Mr. Cardinal, 25, said basically all levels of government share the Indian's determination.

"I think our presence will make it easier for them to work together."

He said the development seems a move to a co-ordinated effort by the Indians and governments, "and possibly co-ordinate" to lay out and solve the economic problems facing the native people.

Mr. Cardinal, in an interview, said there now is much more communication with Indian people and government.

"We are being listened to—the last 13 months of our struggle has finally paid off."

He said this will allow the native population, through the association, to move into a "new phase where we can develop into a meaningful dialogue with both levels of government.

"The consultation that is being discussed right now is on the Indians' terms and this is a great improvement."

The association plans to focus its activities in three areas, social problems, education and economic development.

"We believe the only way the social problems can be alleviated is by new directions in the education field and we have taken, and will continue to take, strong initiatives in this direction," he said.

"We feel that by combining an economic development approach and an education approach that we may be able to help the process of solving the social problems that face our people."

Bertrand Is Planning Resignation as Leader

QUEBEC (CP) — Jean-Jacques Bertrand, leader of the Union Nationale party, announced Friday he is stepping down and will ask the party's national council to set a date for a convention to choose a successor.

Indications are that the leadership convention will be held in late spring or early summer for the post Mr. Bertrand has held since the death of Premier Duplessis Johnson in 1959.

Looking healthy and out at all and, Mr. Bertrand, 64, told a news conference that his experience in politics has taught him that it's better "to plan your exits than let others plan them for you."

Mr. Bertrand said the party's ruling body, the national council with about 200 members, will meet Jan. 22 in Quebec City.

He said he will remain "perfectly neutral" in the race for the leadership.

He branded as "absolutely false" reports that several party members had asked for his resignation following his stunning upset in the election earlier this year that brought the Liberals to power. It was the 4th campaign for both Mr. Bertrand and Robert Bourassa, who succeeded him as premier as party leader.

Published reports said party organizers had asked him again to resign during a three-day party directorate meeting which wound up Friday in a private club owned by the Union Nationale.

However, Mr. Bertrand has not yet officially resigned. He said he will continue to lead the party until his successor is chosen in order to "supervise the transition."

Mr. Bertrand was first elected to the Quebec national assembly in 1946 in the Eastern Townships riding of Missisquoi. He has held that seat ever since.

Several prominent Union Nationale figures are already being regarded as undeclared leadership candidates.

Among them are Labrie Lozier, 36, former minister of tourism, fish and game; Marcel Masse, 36, former minister of intergovernmental affairs; and Clement Vincent, 36, former minister of agriculture.

Jean-Guy Cardinal, 45, onetime education minister who was Mr. Bertrand's sole opponent in the bitterly-fought 1959 leadership race, is not likely to seek the leadership this time, party sources say.

Police Seize 2,609 Sticks Of Dynamite

MONTREAL (CP — A total of 116 offensive weapons, 3,976 rounds of ammunition and 2,609 sticks of dynamite have been seized in anti-terrorist raids since mid-October, police said Friday.

Inspector J. L. Melanson of Quebec provincial police said most of the weapons, including revolvers, rifles, sawed-off shotguns, knives and bayonets, will be held in evidence against some of those arraigned Thursday in a sweep of parts of Quebec province.

Mr. Melanson said police have conducted 1,053 anti-terrorist raids under the War Measures Act and arrested 422 persons. Of these, he said, 373 have been released.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 8

Your birthday today: Your spiritual life promises to occupy more of your attention in the coming year. You have the chance of simplifying your affairs, too, by eliminating a host of useless possessions. Your emotional life tends toward severity and depth, rather than extrovert activity. Today's natives are not typically Scorpio in nature, showing more stable (or, if afflicted, carelessness). Many develop great interest in highly specialized subjects and work tirelessly for perfection.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Figure out where you are expected and mend your emotional ties. Creative pastimes turn out well. Don't hold the center of the stage — give others a chance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): This is a good day for ironing out misunderstanding out recent discurrances. Be willing to meet everybody halfway. Pay for self-assurance, wear your finest attire.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Answer your spirits. Catch up on the news among your friends, particularly those who share your career interests. Sketch out tentative plans before you retire.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You have had enough excitement for a while; enjoy this quiet day. Entertain several helpful neighbors. Share entertainment with your loved ones this evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 21): Put your best diplomatic skills to work bright and early. Enjoy yourself while rebuilding your social world. Entertaining is favored this evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your things look optimistic. You can make things right with people you misunderstood a long time ago. A new contact brings potential benefits into your life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 23): Your life is still eventful, but these incidents are more likely to be fortunate, enjoyable, constructive. Discover contact with people of importance who has drifted away.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Devise a whole new program of what's nice to do, as if nothing had happened. Say Smooth out any remaining differences. Romantic interest rises.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Things take a turn for the better. Your friends develop contacts who can help you find a more creative expression. Romantic attraction now would be quite serious.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 20): You have a lot to do. Travels, visits with near relatives are favored. Social activity increases in importance, perhaps starting a new romantic relationship.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Take this Sunday as a recouping opportunity. By the end of the day, you will have seen or heard of everybody of importance to you, while having fun.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Let your spirits rise with the sun. Make a full social day of it. Visit, make friends, bring some news with you for an informal gathering.

For November 9

Your birthday today: Your year ahead promises a new lease on life or a fresh goal to pursue. The earlier months are the most difficult as you have some rearranging to do. Your work will come to the attention of people who can do much to improve your situation. Think and plan big. You will be ready for a emotional experience promises many ups and downs. Today's natives are ambitious and energetic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your self-confidence is enough to put you on your toes. Stay ahead of the day's rush. You should be in a position certain to bring you a lucky break.

Commons Delays Vote on Public Order Bill

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"The team in red just made a touchdown. Am I supposed to cheer?"...

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons has held off until next week the final vote on the government's bill to regulate regulations under the War Measures Act, with promises from New Democrat and Conservative MPs to propose changes designed to protect civil liberties.

In debate Friday, members of all opposition parties took issue with specific clauses in the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970, which was approved at second reading 153 to 1 the day before.

Earlier in the Commons, Prime Minister Trudeau told the government was doing "a great deal of things" to fight unemployment and would do more "if they are needed and if we have the money."

In reply to Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, Mr. Trudeau cited past policies against unemployment, including funds for housing, payments to provinces and expansion of the money supply.

The Commons was also told the government has started approving perpetual leases in national parks "as an interim measures."

Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien, in reply to Pat Mahoney (L—Calgary South), said the government has not decided what to do with about 250 perpetual leases not renewed under the new policy.

It has been parks policy since 1958 to convert perpetual leases to 42-year agreements. But the Supreme Court of Canada ruled recently that the government must honor the original perpetual leases.

Most of Friday was used for debate on the public order bill, now in committee stage, which provides third and final reading.

Ar drew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) and Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) said the bill required safeguards against abuse of civil liberties by police and prosecutors.

But Gilbert Rondeau (Creditiste—Shefford) said beefing up the penalties under the legislation, calling the government "too soft, too complacent" in its treatment of Quebec terrorists.

Those convicted of using or promoting force or crime to pursue the aims of the Front de Liberation du Quebec should receive life in prison, rather than the maximum ruffve years provided in the bill, Mr. Rondeau said.

The bill would continue but limit the government's powers it assumed in the regulations under the War Measures Act proclaimed Oct. 16 to combat the FLQ.

Under the bill, charges would have to be placed with in seven days rather than the 21 permitted under the regulations.

The explicit right to legal counsel and a stricter definition of membership or support of the FLQ would be other innovations.

Mr. Woolliams said the bill contained a retroactive clause that was "contrary to any kind of jurisprudence."

A person would be vulnerable to imprisonment for acts committed before the bill becomes law, he said.

Section eight of the bill says that evidence that a person who, "before or after the coming into force of this act," attended a number of meetings of the FLQ, publicly spoke in support of the FLQ or communicated statements on its behalf "is, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, proof that he is a member of the unlawful association."

To prevent abuses of this and other clauses, Mr. Woolliams said the Conservatives would propose an amendment having the cabinet appoint an Administrator to oversee application of the law.

The administrator, who could be a judge of the Quebec Superior Court, would report to Parliament.

He would have the power to change or nullify orders—permitted under the bill—from the Quebec attorney-general keeping persons in jail until trial without bail, and to jail without charge up to seven days.

He would also have the authority to fix a trial date.

Mr. Brewin said his party would propose establishment of a threemember commission to interview detainees, and ensure their access to counsel and the family of their detainees.

He said the party would also propose an amendment requiring retroactive evidence from the bill.

The change would restrict the permission to evidence of acts committed after Oct. 16, when the War Measures Act was invoked and many alleged FLQ members were jailed.

Douglas Fisher (L—New Westminster) defended the evidence clause in the bill.

It did not create an offence antedating the bill itself, he said.

Rather, it permitted police to present previous behavior as circumstantial evidence that a person was actually—and was still—an FLQ supporter.

He also denied opposition charges that the bill would force a defendant to prove his innocence.

"The burden of proof remains upon the Crown," he said.

Ed Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) suggested that the government could achieve its goals be merely extending its powers of search.

"The first step should be to extend the search without warrant."

NDP support of the bill would "depend on the flexibility of the government" in accepting opposition suggestions, he said.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants) said the opposition was "trying to satisfy the feelings of Canadians" by proposing the changes.

On the government side of the House, Pierre De Bane (L—Matane) urged changes safeguarding goods seized in raids. And he said wives should not be punished for protecting their husbands.

Theogene Ricard (PC—St. Hyacinthe) said MPs had voted for the War Measures regulations on faith, and now the government should heed opposition amendments.

Four More Arrested

MONTREAL (CP) — Provincial police reported Friday that four more persons have been arrested under the War Measures Act, bringing to 432 the number detained since the Act was invoked Oct. 16.

Police Believe Cross In Midtown Montreal

ID Cards Urged

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette says his department is considering a bill which would require citizens of the province to carry identity cards.

Mr. Choquette told a meeting of provincial Crown prosecutors Saturday the current crisis in Quebec has made the issuing of identity cards seem a necessary step to help police maintain order and "assure the liberties and rights of citizens respecting the law."

"This doesn't mean a police state would be instituted," he said.

"The crisis we now are passing through has shown clearly that police are not sufficiently informed on the presence of certain individuals in various quarters, particularly in the cities."

The justice minister said such a card would carry the bearer's name and address and "possibly also his photograph and fingerprints."

The last five weeks in Quebec province have seen the kidnapping of James (Jasper) Cross, senior British trade commissioner in Montreal, and the kidnap-murder of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

Inquest Hears Youth Testify

MONTREAL (CP) — A sensational break in Montreal's terrorist kidnappings appears to have given police a new slant in the search for British Envoy James Jasper Cross, snatched from his home just five weeks ago today.

Bernard Lortie, 19-year-old student who was one of five sought in connection with the kidnappings, told a coroner's jury at length Saturday that he helped three other men kidnap Pierre Laporte Oct. 10 but was not present when the Quebec labor minister was strangled a week later.

Lortie's testimony at the inquest was regarded as surprisingly full and one report said he gave police additional information not disclosed at the public hearing regarding the activities of two cells of the Front de Libération du Quebec allegedly involved in the kidnapping.

Police indicated they believe Mr. Cross—new terrorist photos of the victim give added hope that he is alive and well—is still held somewhere within Montreal city limits.

One report said police were concentrating their hunt in the mid-city area bounded by the north-south streets University and Atwater and the east - west streets St. Antoine and Pine.

The area barely misses encloing Redpath Crescent, the affluent streets on the slope of Mount Royal where the British diplomat was taken at gunpoint from his home Oct. 5. Redpath Crescent runs northward from Pine.

The Saturday inquest heard evidence from one witness that three men with the Christian names Jacques, Pierre and Alain had been mentioned as the probable abductors of Mr. Cross.

Lortie's arrest came four days after government offered up to $150,000 in rewards for the information in the kidnappings of the two men, both 49 years of age.

Mr. Cross was kidnapped Oct. 5. The government has offered his abductors safe passage to Cuba in return for his release.

The Front de Libération du Quebec, outlawed under the War Measures Act proclaimed Oct. 16 has claimed it is responsible for both kidnappings.

The biggest break so far in the massive police search resulting from the kidnappings came about 7 p.m. Friday, when police surrounded an apartment building at 3720 Queen Mary Road and led Lortie out in handcuffs.

Also arrested were Richard Therrien, his sister Colette, and Francine Lacoste, all in their early 20s, who rented an apartment in the building in September.

Marcel Champagne, 52, janitor in the apartment building, said Miss Therrien had said she was a teacher. Therrien is a student, and Miss Delisle a nurse.

Michel Champagne, 22, son of the janitor, said a girl who lived near Apt. 12 told him she heard the following conversation as police removed Lortie.

"You're Lortie."

"No, I'm Bolduc."

"No, we know you're Lortie."

The younger Champagne said police handcuffed Lortie's hands behind him, then led him out with his back toward the janitor and his son.

"We had no idea that the guy who kidnapped Laporte was upstairs," said the janitor's son. "My wife has been sick and nervous ever since."

Police later showed the Champagnes about 30 photos, several of women, but "we didn't recognize any of them," said the son.

Every apartment in the building was searched and Apt. 12 was padlocked by police.

Warrants were issued Oct. 18, two days after the Laporte slaying, for Paul Rose, 27, and Marc Carbonneau, 27, wanted for kidnapping both Laporte and Cross.

More warrants went out Oct.

Canada's Despair Said Due Neglect

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's "present malais—even despair—is in large part due to our past neglect" of many of the nation's problems, Barnet Danson, newly-appointed parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau, said Sunday.

Urging citizens to assume a greater interest in local community matters, the 49-year-old Liberal member of Parliament from North York, Ont., said that "our better men and women must leave their cocoons of comfort and so-called security."

Mr. Danson, in a speech to the fifth annual convention of the Montreal B'nai B'rith, said that the cost of recent events in Canada "has been great and might have been avoided if we were sensitive to our neglect in the past."

"A month ago actions, which realistic people realize are distasteful necessities, would have brought scorn if they had taken place south of the border," he said.

"Now they are forcing us and, hopefully our children, to question our actions and their ultimate consequences."

Brandt's Allies Fare Well

BONN (AP) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt faced his conservative opposition with new confidence today after the junior partner in his coalition government made an unexpected show of strength in the Hesse state election.

The Free Democrats won 10.1 per cent of the vote Sunday, 3.4 per cent more than the party polled in the last federal election in September, 1969. Three Free Democrats in the lower house of the federal parliament defected to the opposition Christian Democrats last month, cutting Brandt's majority in the Bundestag to six members, a poor showing in Hesse might have touched off more defections, which could have brought down the government.

The Free Democrats won 11 seats in the 110-seat state legislature; the Social Democrats captured 53 seats and the Christian Democrats 46.

Egypt, Sudan and Libya Planning Federation for Arab Unity

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt is planning to federate with Sudan and Libya to form "a nucleus for the unity of the Arab world" in northeast Africa. It is Cairo's second such attempt to put together a greater Arab nation.

The late President Nasser failed in the first attempt, a federation with Syrian and Yemen that was formed in 1958. It existed mostly on paper, and was broken up by Syria in September, 1961. Egypt's official name remains the United Arab Republic, a remnant of that try at union.

Nasser's successor, Anwar Sadat, President Jaafar el Numairi of Sudan and Col. Moammar Kadafi, leader of Libya's military regime, announced plans for the new merger early today after a conference in Cairo. A communique said it "will be a nucleus for the unity of the Arab world, an affirmation of Arab destiny."

No target date was given for putting the federation into operation.

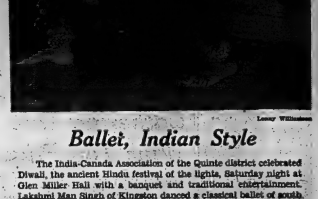
"The Arab world is facing internal as well as external attempts to liquidate the revolutionary tide," it said, adding that the confederation was necessitated also by the death of Nasser, "whose mere presence in the Arab struggle with Israel was a sufficient symbol of unity for the Arab peoples."

Under the plan, called the Tripoli Charter in honor of a conference Nasser, Kadafi and Numairi held there this year, a tripartite command will first consolidate the political systems in the countries and co-ordinate their policies, the communique said.

The command will set up three-sided boards to govern the confederation later, including a "supreme planning committee," a national security council for defence, and implementation committee to maintain national progress and subcommittees to handle political, economic, military and social questions.

Observers noted that the boards include representatives from all three nations and their decisions presumably will have to be unanimous. Thus there apparently was no loss of sovereignty envisioned by the drafters of the charter, but this also increases the possibility of the disagreements that always wreck attempts at Arab unity.

The death of Nasser also leaves the group without a dominant leader whose personality and prestige would have helped to resolve disagreements.



Libya has a population of only 1.8 million but with massive oil revenues, is by far the richest of the three. Sudan, with almost 15 million people, is relatively underdeveloped. Egypt, with developing industries helped along by substantial Soviet aid, has a population problem with 32 million people.

As El Numairi met in Cairo, his defence minister charged in Khartoum that Sudanese troops have found evidence of U.S. and Israeli intervention in the insurrection in Southern Sudan.

Maj.-Gen. Khaled Hassan Abbas said his forces occupied a rebel headquarters and airstrip and three other strongholds at Motar, in Equatoria province, and captured large quantities of anti-tank guns, heavy machine-guns, mines, bazookas and missile launchers.

The airstrip had advanced equipment made in the United States, he said. White mercenaries flown in by the United States and Israel had been training guerrillas there but fled to Uganda and were arrested there, he claimed.

He said his forces had "broken the back" of the rebel movement that has been at war since Sudan achieved independence in 1956. The basis of the fighting is resistance to Islamic Arab rule by Animist and Christian blacks in southern Sudan, but Abbas charged that the United States and Israel were taking a hand to force diversion of Sudanese military forces from the Arab war against Israel, a conflict in which Sudan so far has made no contribution.

UAW, GM Reported Closer to Agreement

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers and General Motors negotiators return to the bargaining table today amid reports from automotive sources that progress was made during the weekend toward ending the eight-week strike.

On Saturday and Sunday, the negotiators met for more than 10 hours. The sessions are being conducted under a news blackout.

Marathon, night-long sessions have been a certain tip-off of an imminent agreement in the past. But none has yet marked current GM-UAW negotiations, which began July 15.

The strike, called Sept. 15 to support the UAW's wage and fringe-benefit demands, has made idle 400,000 in GM plants in the United States and Canada and has resulted in thousands of layoffs in supplier plants and related industries.

Belleville's Birth Rate Is on the Increase

Following a low point reached three or four years ago when the number of live births registered in the city dropped to below the 1,000 mark, the stork is again shouting "work overtime!"

Live births registered in the city last year totalled 1,325 and if the present rate of births so far this year continues, the 1970 total will be close to last year's figure.

But compared to the "pre-pill" days when births numbered 1,668 to 1,705, the stork still has a bit of catching up to do.

Back in 1947 live births registered totalled 288; in 1948 the figure had jumped to 1,202 and last year was up to 1,325.

City clerk's office statistics show that back in 1903 and 1904 births numbered close to 1,350.

At the same time Belleville is becoming a bit more accurate with its arrows.

City hall records show that the marriage rate jumped from 282 back in 1966 to 371 last year — an increase of more than 30 per cent.

There were 332 weddings in the city in 1966 and records show that Cupid has been doing even better this year. To the end of September 225 marriages were registered in the city and with three months to go, the number this year is all probability will be over the 400 mark.

Other vital statistics at city hall also show that the number of deaths is also on the increase although, as in the case of weddings and births, this to some extent could be attributed to a greater population.

Last year 615 deaths were registered in the city — 124 of these being listed as out of town although deaths took place in the city.

In 1967 there were 586 deaths, including 108 out of town, while in 1968 the total was 599.

So far this year a total of 514 deaths was reported to the end of October.

Catherine Tait Wins Top Prizes

TRENTON (Staff) — "If you sacrifice freedom, you sacrifice happiness", valedictorian Catherine Tait told the commencement audience at Trenton High School Saturday.

However, she said that a "median way" has to be established because of the individual's relationship to society at large.

"We cannot opt out of society and still enjoy its benefits," she said. Opting out is difficult anyway, she added, because "we are constantly interacting with others".

"Do have a goal" and "decide how much freedom you are willing to sacrifice for it," Miss Tait urged.

"If goals require temporary curtailments of personal freedom, either accept them or try to remove them," she explained.

"Why do we often give up our freedom when we grow up There are establishment methods to change establishment laws," the valedictorian concluded.

During the convocation here Ontario Scholarships were received by nine Trenton grads: James Acheson, Beth Grace, Jacqueline Deleng, Janice Gordon, Elizabeth Rathbun, Lynn Smith, Catherine Tait, William Philip and Rudy Schmidt.

Thirty - seven scholarships, bursaries and prizes were also given out.

The $1,000 Andrew Malcolm Scholarship of Queen's University was presented to Catherine Tait, as well as the $100 Winnifred Hay Scholarship of the Belleville branch, Queen's Alumni Association.

A Morton Parker Scholarship of $250 went to Terry Brown and a Dominic Scholarship of $300 to Rudy Schmidt.

Three Lions Clubs bursaries at $500 were received by Steven Chen, Willemien Wyngaarden and Nico Wyngaarden.

Bursaries of $200 from the Rotary Club were awarded to Duncan Rogerson, Cathy Lamoureux and Donna Richardson.

The $100 Student Council Scholarship went to Maureen Simmons and the School Staff Scholarship of $100 to Doug Chapman. The $100 Imaginecor English prize was awarded to Catherine Tait.

Giant Registry Office Map Makes Land Location Simple

The complex problem of locating land has now been simplified at the Hastings county registry office — thanks to a "psychedelic monster" in the form of a giant map.

The map was prepared by deputy-registrar S. C. Geneja, in an effort to provide a location system "as simple to use as a telephone directory".

Hastings county's system may be adopted throughout Ontario as a result of its publication in many professional journals — those of the Ontario registrar's association and the certified survey technicians' association.

Hastings is one of Ontario's largest, and oldest counties. Plans and surveys have been imposed on its surface over the years, to the point where a given piece of land may be officially described on several plans — or not at all.

In preparing his master map, Mr. Geneja found a "lost" lot in Old Belleville, that has never appeared on any plan of subdivision since the original plan of 1816.

"One sometimes got the feeling that it would be easier to find the land by driving to it than by looking for it in the records," said Mr. Geneja.

The distinction makes no difference until land changes hands. Then it becomes imperative that an official description be available to lawyers drawing up the transfer documents.

In drawing up his master location plan, Mr. Geneja started with a map of Belleville 12 feet long and 10 feet high. Beginning with the original crown patents, he superimposed on the map each newly registered plan, using crayons to color code each plan.

By use of the colorcoded plan, abstract clerks can locate what book or books, they must refer to in order to enter a document or prepare a complete and accurate abstract of title.

Plans are now in existence for all other municipalities in the county.

"They are used in the same way a technician in a factory uses a schematic drawing," said Mr. Geneja, "they are a visual diagram of the land, clearly indicating the location in our various records of every square inch of land. The untrained man - off - the - street can find his lot on the map the way he can find it on a city street map. Once he locates it, the number indicates which of our hundreds of plans is involved."

To give an idea of the complexity of searching for records in the registry office, Mr. Geneja cites one Belleville street, roughly 20 city blocks in length. Information concerning deeds on that street is carried in eight different books.

The problem of land location has been recognized by the Ontario government and schemes have been discussed for a co-ordinated system of land definition.

But Mr. Geneja believes it will be 25 years before such a changeover takes place mainly because of the costs involved.

"Today's high price of land is going to speed up the interest of the average citizen," claims Mr. Geneja.

"With the cost of a serviced lot running at $5,000 to $6,000 it will not be long before the chronicling of land registration will be lifted from its present low spot on the list of priorities."

Ambulances Scramble After Hoaxer Calls

BRIGHTON (Staff)—A hoax call reporting a serious bus accident on this village's main street sent ambulances scrambling from Trenton and Belleville this morning.

Local police say it was the latest in a recent series of fake emergency calls and they will now consult with Bell Telephone officials on a solution. Up to now, the calls have been to the local fire department.

The latest hoax was phoned to Rushnell Ambulance Service at 8.25 a.m. by a man calling himself Mr. Cooper.

The caller reported a bus accident with 18 people injured.

Rushnell despatched three ambulances in response to the call and alerted LaSalle and City ambulance services in Belleville, who each rushed an ambulance to the scene.

The hoax was discovered within minutes when the Trenton ambulance radio despatcher checked with provincial police at Brighton for further accident details.

Minister to Pay Visit

TRENTON (Staff) — Defence Minister Donald Macdonald will visit the Canadian Forces Base here this month, defence department spokesmen said yesterday.

During the morning, the new defence chief will arrive by air from Ottawa to tour the military installation here and talk to both Air Transport Command and CFB Trenton officials.

The Trenton trip is part of a familiarization program, embarked on by Mr. MacDonald to give him first-hand acquaintance with various aspects on his portfolio.

Brig. Gen. Louis Bourgeois Director of Information Services, Canadian Forces Headquarters, said yesterday that he expects to accompany Mr. MacDonald to Trenton.

Officials at CFB Trenton are already detailing plans of the high-level visit that will be essentially private, although a press conference will be held during the afternoon.

Two Break-ins On Weekend

Belleville City Police are investigating a pair of weekend break-ins that resulted in the theft of two rifles and a quantity of tools.

Chief Douglas Cronkite said this morning that thieves entered Bob's Sport Shop, 46 Front Street, by breaking in the front door of the building.

Two rifles, a Winchester .30-.30 and a Remington .308 were taken from the store. They were valued at $325.

A second break-in saw a toolbox with tools and a circular saw taken from the residence of James Sopha at 15 Starling Street.

He's A Fireplace!

In a tense scene from the 1966 production of Separate Tables, Flo Yanover seeks an ashtray for her cigarette while Peter Kitchen attempts to follow her actions. The fireplace, in true theatre traditions of making do with what is available, is Lee Jourard, master of ceremonies at the Belleville Theatre Guilds' nostalgia night, Saturday.

Belleville Theatre Guild Has Night of Memories

Take an archives of memories and pictures; mix in a quarter scene of the best bloopers; add a dash of nostalgia; serve to an audience of guests and the result is laughter, singalong and thorough enjoyment.

From the personal collections of Belleville Theatre Guild members came a sampling of the past productions of the players, dating back to the guild's inception in 1951.

One of the founding members of the guild, Lee Jourard, acted as master of ceremonies at the Saturday night get - together.

With the aid of color slides, notes from old programs and re-enacted shorts from various plays, some of Belleville's theatre history was presented with nostalgic reminiscences.

And nostalgic is a true description of the thoughts which were voiced by past and present guild members.

From its small start in 1951 to its present position, with their own theatre and a third resident artistic director, the guild has risen from a community-involved theatre to one producing musicals and psychological dramas involving intense rehearsal and, in some cases, extensive and expensive sets, properties, and costumes.

Plays such as Love Rides the Rails or Will the Mail Train Run Tonight, The Chalk Garden, The Marriage Proposal, The Importance of Being Ernest, Charlie's Aunt, and Seven Year Itch, to mention a few, brought the history of the guild to more recent productions under directors Richard Howard, Roy Higgins and Larry Ewashen.

Productions such as Our Town, Diary of Anne Frank, On Monday Next, The Lark, Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf, and A Thousand Clowns.

Included in the evening of entertainment, were various "extras" from the world of the theatre.

Mr. Jourard's dramatic monologue from the Thurber Carnival of 1964, entitled Parable of the Last Flower, was accompanied by slide reproductions of James Thurber's cartoons. Following this was a collection of slides supplied by John Uite, Moira Conservation Authority accompanied by a recording of Leave Them a Flower, sung by Ed Ames.

Both poem and song told of man's inevitable destruction of himself, followed by a rebuilding of society beginning with the saving of a flower.

Foremost guild set designer and artist Tony Lessing produced an award-winning movie several years ago. Guild members mimed the story of the Emperor's New Clothes to a theme of justice, cleverly portraying the various members of the cast with paper and cardboard head masks. The film, which won an art award was a highlight of the evening.

Excerpts from one of the guild's centennial year radio play series was presented.

The 1969 production of Dark of the Moon, the first guild youth production, featured song and choreography. A folk club from Moira Secondary School supplied a musical selection from that play, "preacher" Alex Pearse leading the revival scene.

There were the bloopers, of course. Mistakes rubble accidently or on purpose, in most cases to the improvement of the plays.

Scenes from the past included the re-enactment of the cover up for an absent actor: what threw director Richard Howard during On Monday Next (Rene Roberson's exposed garment of four lilacs Jacks when the director actor threw her to the floor); the absence of ashtrays when an actress was supposed to dispose of a cigarette.

The solution to that problem? Simple, carry on as if nothing had happened, hand it to the other actor and let him solve the problem. How did he handle it?

Returned the lit cigarette when she called for another ... then smack up a flame with his lighter.

All this indicates the enjoyment scores of people have had with their association with the Belleville Theatre Guild and the hope of members that this rewarding participation and fun will remain for future productions and nostalgic evenings.

Trenton Swimmers In Third Place

TRENTON (Staff) — The Trenton Dolphins' Swim Club placed third in the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association's development meet held here Sunday.

The meet drew 125 young swimmers to the indoor pool at CFB Trenton for a full day of competitive events.

Participating were 11 and 12-year-olds from 10 Eastern Ontario clubs, including four from Ottawa, two from Kingston and one from Cornwall.

Development meets are a CASA innovation geared to give all swimmers in particular age groups a chance to see what their competition is like.

Yesterday's scores, however, were recorded by 25 CASA officials gathered at pools here and they will help qualify participants for next ec's Ontario championships.

Doug Lowry, 12, of the Trenton Dolphins captured three firsts in the 25-event meet, taking top honors in the 200 yard freestyle, the 50 yard fly and the 100 yard freestyle.

David Lowry, brother of Doug, won further points for the 42-member Dolphin Club, placing second in both the 100 and 200 yard freestyle.

Topping club scores for the day were the Bayshore Barracudas of Ottawa with the Cornwall Sea Lions placing second.

A teenager from Cloyne continues in serious condition today with stomach wounds suffered while deer-hunting in the northeast end of the Quinte district, Saturday.

Richard Rayzon, 15, is under intensive care at Belleville General Hospital.

The accident occurred in the Maxinew Lake where, police say, Rayzon was hunting with a companion, John Alcock, also of Cloyne.

Police said they have charged Alcock with careless hunting.

Trenton Council Idea Said A Success

By KENNETH SMITH

TRENTON — Since Jan. 1, the Town of Trenton has undergone a change in civic administration — an alteration in the mechanics of government.

Committees of public works, finance, recreation and community services have all been abolished. Council is now one committee.

Trenton accepted the recommendation of a consulting firm Eric Hardy Consulting Ltd., "that the system of standing committees be brought to an end; that the work be processed in committees of the whole followed by formal debate and decision by the council in regular session".

Mr. Hardy contended in a report to council last year that something must be done to end the "failure to maintain proper order and decorum at meetings of council".

Frequent question and answer periods took place in regular council sessions. Councillors wanted background material on issues brought before them by committees on which they were not serving.

Explanation of issues, briefings, now take place in committees of the whole rather than at regular council meetings.

Mayor Duncan McDonald stresses that the committee of the whole is exactly what its name implies — a single committee replacing a number of them.

"Nothing is dealt with in committee of the whole that is not dealt with later in council. Every matter at committee of the whole reappears at Monday's regular council session" he insists.

"Instead of having council meetings drag on, we now get business done more quickly. It has hurried up a lot of business" he claims.

Committee of the whole meets on alternate Mondays in council itself. Quorum for the committee is four of six councillors plus the town engineer, Arthur Campbell the clerk, O. W. Larry and treasurer Peter DeGroot — the same as for a council meeting.

Previously, the engineer, clerk and treasurer could not attend every standing committee meeting as a group. When inquiries arose and they were not present, delays resulted. The three administrative professionals are on hand for committee of the whole sittings.

In accordance with the Hardy report, the engineer, clerk and treasurer became an administrative board with the deputy clerk, Ash Hoyce, serving as the board's secretary.

Chaired by clerk O. W. Larry, the board meets frequently, investigating matters referred to it by council and the public at large. Additionally it looks into problems coming to its attention through the members' daily duties.

The board prepares reports on its own meetings, from which councillors are reminded, and has these ready for delivery to councillors on Friday's before the Monday committee of the whole gatherings.

Reports give information requested by council and details of public requests. Explanations may also be given to the councillors in committee by the three senior municipal employees.

Questions raised at Monday's committee sessions are answered in a report sent out to each councillor on the following Friday. When council meets formally each of its members knows the agenda items.

"Formally, everyone was working as a separate entity . . . now everyone is involved in decision-making right from the start" town treasurer, Peter DeGroot concluded.

Purdy, 51, has been the recipient of three Canada Council grants and the Governor General's medal for poetry. The latter was awarded for his poem, The Country North of Belleville.

The arts council this year issued grants totalling $250,-000 to organizations and individuals in drama, dance, film, literature, music and the visual arts.

Tradition Honored In Group's Name

Members of the new Mohawk-Loyalist branch of Bell Canada's pioneer council held their inaugural meeting recently at Club Canada with approximately 250 pioneers turning out for the occasion.

The new branch of telephone pioneers was formed last May when for geographical reasons, it was decided to divide the J. E MacPherson Council into two councils.

Included in the council are 600 telephone pioneers from Cardinal on the east to Brighton on the west, north to Bancroft and including Frunse and Tweed.

President of the new council is Leo Logue of the Belleville toll plant, Victor Allen, Northern Electric, vice president and Jean Scott of Northern as secretary treasurer.

Speakers for the inaugural meeting included Rube Guile, past president of the J. E. Macpherson council; Dryden Hawgrave, vice president Region 1, Canada, Telephone Pioneers of America and James Stockton, president of C. F Sise Chapter.

Guests of honor for the inaugural included Chief Earl Hill of the Mohawk Indian Reserve and his councillors.

Inspiration for the name of the Mohawk-Loyalist Council was found in the heritage of the Quinte area.

During the American revolution the Indians remained Loyal to the British Crown and when the Loyalist cause was lost, they moved north into Canada. The Mohawks chose the Bay of Quinte for their homes, landing May 13 in 1784.

Veterans' Pensions

Remembrance Day is just two days away and while we honor the memory of those who died this is an appropriate time to consider the practical needs of those who survived but are compelled to live on inadequate veterans' pensions.

This was the subject recently of a lengthy debate in the Commons when Jack Marshall (PC, Humber-St. George's-St. Barbe) submitted a motion urging "early payment of acquitta increases in the allowances under the War Veterans' Allowance Act 1952 as amended."

Mr. Marshall quoted Prime Minister Trudeau as saying a year ago: "We have to review all aspects of social legislation . . . we do not want to settle special cases. A special plea can be made not only for the veterans but for old people, for retired civil servants and for all sections of people in society." To which Mr. Marshall replied: "Well, bully I say to him, Mr. Speaker, but I also say that the increases for the poor, the aged, the blind and the retarded have not been coming along too rapidly."

The extent of the concern felt by members over this important issue may be best gauged by a sampling of the speeches made. For example: H. Russell MacIvor (Central Nova): "Other hon. members have spoken about the burnt-out pension under the War Veterans Allowance Act. I have many files in my office on this issue. It has already been pointed out that the present allowance is $1,260 for a single person and $2,100 for a married person, both figures being below what we have called the 1968 poverty line of $1,800 and $3,000 for a single and a married person respectively."

Hon. George Hees (Prince Edward-Hastings): "The government prohibits a single man from earning more than $40 a month, or $70 a month for a married man over and above the war veterans allowances which he receives." Mr. Hees went on to say that this "penny-pinching on the part of the government is in strange contrast with its actions when it comes to buying airplanes of which it has no need."

There were other speeches in the same vein when Veterans Affairs Minister Dube replied for the Government. In one revealing passage, he said: "Most of the members who spoke this afternoon stressed the urgency of passing legislation in this field and said we were not moving fast enough. I would agree with them. I would be the happiest man in this House if all my problems were solved in one day — but this is not how democracy works. It is the usual practice of people in the wheels of Parliament are even slower." The minister went on to give an assurance that "whatever is done will be an improvement on the present situation."

Let us hope such an improvement will not be delayed much further.

Crime Quebec Style

Toronto is a big city which nevertheless is one of the most law-abiding cities in the continent. That is not to say it is entirely crime-free, for it is also one of the fastest-growing cities in North America and the incidence of robbery and violence and other criminal acts is growing.

Bank robberies, Montreal-style, are now occuring with some frequency in Toronto, and the irony of it is that Quebec separatists are believed to be responsible. Two within a week or so of each other in Toronto recently were carried out in the swift, expert manner of Montreal hoodlums, according to police.

It is an unhappy thought that the money gained in these affairs is in part behind the rise of the PLQ in Quebec. Nor is it any consolation to know that stolen Canadian funds could now be put to the same use, and even less when the bandits are, as it were, mercenaries from Quebec.

The underworld cult in Montreal that is behind these affairs has been spawned by a number of interlocking circumstances. Unemployment and poverty are among them, but these have occur in other parts of Canada (like the Maritimes) and crime of this nature there is negligible. Rather, it stems also from the emergence of Quebec from the semi-feudal and church-dominated era of Duplessis into the rise of a new generation of youthful dropouts who reject both church and establishment, who are contemptuous of society and tempermentally oriented toward violence.

It is a volatile combination not found in Ontario and it should be the responsibility of police forces to ensure that it is not imported from outside. However, as we have noted, there is some evidence of it here and if and when the bandits are caught, and whether they are homegrown or from outside, they should be put away for a long time.

United States Election

Two-Party Moderates and Liberals May See Eye-to-Eye

By PETER RUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — Despite a perceptible shift to the right in the makeup of the new United States Senate after Tuesday's elections, President Nixon can expect to have much the same troubles with the Senate in 1971 and 1972 that he has had for the last two years.

The consensus among close observers of these 100 strongwilled, notoriously balky individuals who sit in the U.S. upper chamber is that a coalition of conservatives and liberals from both Democratic and Republican parties will be calling many of the shots—as they did before.

The president and his spokesmen build they see a new ideological "working majority" in Congress, ready to support the Nixon programs and approve the Nixon appointments, particularly in foreign policy and national defence.

But, as more than one commentator has pointed out, the president's programs in defence and foreign affairs have not really been scuttled by the Senate in the last two years. He has had some glaring failures and a heap of political embarrassment in these fields, but no real losses.

An influential group of senators who went to curb the Pentagon's influence and budget have had some success and substantial publicity.

But their major initiatives—such as attempts to cut off funds for American fighting in Cambodia and force early withdrawal from Vietnam—have been narrowly defeated, each time, despite a 57-to-43 Democratic majority in the current Senate.

The real difficulty for Nixon has been in the domestic field. He has seen two Supreme Court appointees rejected and numerous pieces of his legislation have been ignored or turned down while Congress has sent the president several bills he didn't want.

Nixon has vetoed five major domestic bills—and none in the foreign field.

The president's calculations of a new working majority come from a man-by-man assessment of the Senate's voting record. Although the Democrats have a 57-to-43 numerical edge in the new Senate, their ranks include a number of conservatives who can often be counted on to support the president.

The Nixon calculations are also based on Republican wins Tuesday in previously Democratic Senate seats in Maryland, Connecticut, Tennessee and Ohio; the replacement of liberal Republican Charles Goodell by Conservative James Buckley in New York, and the victory of conservative Democrat Lloyd Bentsen in Texas.

But the Nixon view tends to ignore Democratic gains in Florida, California and Illinois.

It also appears to overlook the possibility that the moderate and liberal forces in the Senate will be more wilful and bloodthirsty.

The liberal ranks of the Democrats have two rigorous new members in Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois and John Tunney of California. Senators Edmund Muskie of Maine and Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, re-elected by wide majorities, could increase their anti-administration pressure as the 1972 presidential race approaches.

And the replacement of Hugh McCulloch by the more Hubert Humphrey in Minnesota's Senate seat adds a tougher fighter to the liberal numbers.

The president's hopes, by many calculations, lie in a combination of his personal and working relationship with Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and in the type of legislation he asks Congress to approve.

Mansfield has already made unemployment and other economic issues the key to their recent election campaign. Nixon could expect some co-operation from the Democratic majority in Congress in attempts to smooth the current roughness in the American economic picture.

Whether he would have the same success with law-and-order bills, on which he founded his own campaign, is a different question now that the elections are past.

"You say my mother-in-law was among those detained without charges under the War Measures Act? Hmmm, wonder how her name got on the list?"

Religious Education Discussion

Scientists Endorse Christian View Of Civilization

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

On the What Do You Think program of CJBQ the Christian school recently was the subject of discussion. It was recommended by one caller that all complete school supporters should have equal rights for their taxation dollars. This is only fair and I am sure most of us would agree.

One main reason why the Christian school should have preference over the public school system was said to be the teaching of the theory of evolution in contradiction to the Bible story of creation. There are schools where students would be refused who admitted they did not believe in evolution. There are also schools where professors would not dare openly decry the hypothesis. Christians are often criticized by teachers or even ridiculed for their faith. They are told that their beliefs are old-fashioned and unscientific.

It might be interesting to see the other side of the coin and find out on what foundation the religion of the evolutionist is resting.

Arthur M. Fields, Australian geologist, in that it is "a belief based upon belief in fossils that cannot be produced, belief in embryological drawings that does not exist, belief in breeding experiments that refuse to come off." It is faith unjustified by works.

Prof. Ian D. Coste of University of California says: "The evidence of geology today is that species seem to have come into existence suddenly and in full perfection."

That "evolution" is an unproven theory and fails to explain in any way the origin of life or the origin of even one new species is the testimony of leading scientists.

President Hadley of Yale university said of evolution "It is not a universal science, because it is not a science at all."

Prof. William Bateson of England, head of the biology department of Cambridge University, and president of the British Association for the Advancement of science, says: "It is important for scientists any longer to agree with Darwin's Origin of the Species. . . If Darwin had known the truth revealed by the Mendel's law, he would never have written his books."

Science and technology have not solved man's basic problem. "Modern science has made wonderful changes," says Dr. J. H. Shaw, associate professor of biological chemistry at Harvard School of Medical Medicine.

"But no standard for morals, no universal concern for one's neighbor, no satisfaction for the yearning human heart can spring from an ever increasing mound body of knowledge. Science has no answer to man's dilemma." Dr. Shaw finds deep personal relationship with God freely given by Him in response to faith and devotion through the claims of Jesus Christ."

Such testimonies by outstanding scientists should strengthen Christians in their faith, and it should encourage them to give their children a Christian education.

Plans for Grain Industry

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

The net effect of the radical proposals for the Western grain industry as outlined by Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, appears to offer a guaranteed minimum income to grain growing farmers in the Prairie provinces.

The full detail of the proposals is not supplied, naturally, in the opening announcement. Mr. Lang has, furthermore, made it clear that it is not the last word; time is to be allowed for farm groups to make suggestions before the proposals are framed into legislation.

The latest, unmistakably is to level out the annual incomes of grain-growing farmers and guarantee them against ever falling to income from one year to the next. The philosophy outlined by Mr. Lang is that in the last years the incomes of the farmers, as a group, would be brought up to the average of the previous five years.

One key point in the Lang thinking is that the guaranteeing the 170,000 grain farmers as a whole. His proposal is not necessarily to guarantee each individual farmer as much income as the average of his previous five years. He hopes the scheme will work so that farmers who guess right about which crops to grow will be in a preferred position.

English Catholic High Schools and Integration Issue

Ottawa Journal

It should not be beyond the intelligence or the goodwill of all concerned to work out in 1976 a problem of financial support for English Catholic high schools in Ontario.

The alternatives surely are not either the establishment of a full - blown, duplicating and costly parallel system of public education or the disappearance of the Catholic high school from the face of the province. Yet the discussion is usually carried on in such absolutes, as if no middle way could be found.

When seven private French and Catholic high schools became part of the public high school system in Ottawa two years ago, an arrangement for them was made with remarkable ease and widespread community approval.

The French high schools did not lose their individual character by coming under the Board of Collegiate Board. The right of parents to choose religious instruction for their children was respected. Under the school law of this province, up to one hour's teaching in religion each week may be offered in the public school system.

The same arrangements could be the basis for the integration of the English Catholic high schools. There would be within a single public system a denominational option. Schools such as St. Joseph's, St. Patrick's and Immaculata could be taken over by the Ottawa Board of Education and designated as institutions with Roman Catholic teaching and tradition.

Many Catholics, though certainly not all, would prefer the extension of the Separate School system to the end of Grade 13. There is a certain logic for completing the system. The support of both the Ontario Liberals and NDP for that position has encouraged its advocates to settle for nothing less.

Many non-Catholics will feel that any such plan to accept a school based upon religious rather than educational or language criteria challenges the integrity of the public system. They are not convinced that religion should have a role in education outside the church. The Ontario government's reluctance to meet the full demands of the Catholic high schools shows well its awareness of the implications.

If the Catholic schools find it impossible to continue, as they say, because of financial reasons, their students would be at the doorstep of the public high schools and they have to be admitted. Their parents' taxes now support public high schools.

It would be much more costly to build new public schools to accommodate these students than to absorb the existing private schools into the public system. It also makes more sense to build comprehensive facilities than to duplicate them.

Compromises are possible in today's climate which would not have been even considered only a few years ago. It would be a tragedy to see more barriers between school systems go up at precisely the time when there is a good chance of moving toward a stronger, more diversified, single system for education.

Multitude of Witnesses

Hundreds of Jehovah's Witnesses crowded into the Centennial Secondary School auditorium Sunday afternoon to hear the concluding address by Arthur Powley, district superintendent of Jehovah's Witnesses in Southern Ontario. Almost 1,300 people were in attendance for the three-day assembly at the school.

Biochemists Discover Means To Repair Cancerous Cells

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Princeton University announced Saturday that biochemists have stopped cancerous behavior in cells taken from animals and returned these cells to normal.

The university said: "The chemical the scientists have found repairs the surface damage found on cancerous cells, thereby causing them to return to normal growth behavior."

The discovery was made in laboratory experiments using a giant protein called Con. A, a crystalized Concanavalin A. This protein revealed under laboratory conditions appears to have an effect on the runaway multiplication of cancerous cells.

"What is most interesting is that for the first time we have found that we can stop the wild multiplication of cells without completely killing them. And although we have not tested the process for an eternity we have found that a single dose of Con A prevents cancerous behavior for as long as the cell remains alive in vitro for six days," Dr. Max A. Burger, 37, an associate professor of biochemical sciences said, in an interview.

In vitro refers to experiments involving cells removed from organisms and kept alive in cultures under artificial laboratory conditions.

A team of biochemists has now begun experiments on living animals—mice.

Details of the affect of Con A on isolated cells were outlined in the Nov. 7 issue of Nature Magazine,a British scientific journal.

Abductor Talks

23 for Lortie, Jacques Rose, 23, and Francois Simard, 23, for conspiracy to kidnap Mr. Laporte.

Lortie and Mrs. Jean-Paul Rose, mother of Paul and Jacques, were the major witnesses as the inquest opened.

Mrs. Rose said she, her sons and Simard made a trip to Texas when they heard of the Cross kidnapping on L. She said the three men drove hard to get back to Montreal by Oct. 8 and mentioned on each that the Cross kidnapping was "probably the work of Jacques, Pierre and Alain"—observers unidentified in testimony.

The sobbing woman said her son Paul felt the Cross kidnapping was stupid because FLQ ransom demands wouldn't be met "for a man like that."

Lortie said he and the others belonged to the Chenier cell of the FLQ and had been planning for some time to kidnap someone.

He said he met Paul Rose last summer at a hippie hostel near the Gaspe resort town of Perce.

The four decided to set up home shortly before the kidnapping, were told Mr. Laporte had just stepped out, and drove to his home to find him running for a football across the street. He said Paul Rose shoved Mr. Laporte into the car at gunpoint.

At the St. Hubert bungalow, Mr. Laporte was chained to a bed at police made nearby raids.

"The police were in the area," said Lortie," and Laporte was pretty nervous. We were nervous too."

The kidnappers ran out of money and used 200 Mr. Laporte had to buy barbecued chicken. They took turns watching him round-the-clock.

Lortie said Mr. Laporte tried to crash through a window in the bungalow Oct. 16 and gashed himself on the chest and arms, bleeding heavily. The wounds were bound.

Then Lortie left the bungalow at midnight, travelling by bus and subway to Montreal to meet Paul Rose, who himself had left two days earlier because he was aware he was being followed.

Lortie said he told Rose what had happened at the bungalow and was given an address by Rose where he stayed 16 days. He didn't disclose the address.

He then moved to the Queen Mary Road apartment, sharing it with the Therriens and Miss Delisle.

He declined both legal counsel and the protection of the Canada Evidence Act, giving his testimony, as he put it, "freely and voluntarily."

When testimony is given under the evidence act, it may not be used against the witness later unless perjury is involved.

Photos of Mr. Laporte's body were displayed at the inquest. His contorted face was hardly recognizable, his wrists, shoulders and chest were gashed, and there was an ugly mark about his cigit, left by the religious medallion chain with which he was strangled.

Medical evidence ruled out torture. Doctors said the cuts were consistent with an attempt o dive out a window.

Lortie said the group bought automatic rifles at a pawnshop on Notre Dame Street in Montreal. He said they were armed during the kidnapping and Mr. Laporte offered no resistance.

The witness said the kidnappers wore disguises—Simard a false mustache, Jacques Rose a grey wig, Paul Rose a Beatle wig and Lortie a sort of mask.

FLQ notes in the last month have said three cells were involved in the affair—the Liberation cell in the Cross kidnapping, and the Dieppe cell in the killing.

Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said Friday a photo of Mr. Cross received from the FLQ appeared to be recent and indicated he is still alive. The Associated Press in New York Saturday released a similar photo, showing a man resembling Mr. Cross playing cards.

Two similar photos turned up in Montreal Saturday as a result of anonymous telephone tips. One showed a glum-looking man reading a newspaper, the other ian him sitting with hands folded, looking at the camera.

Barbara Cross, wife of the trade commissioner, is in Europe visiting friends.

Mrs. Rose, choking with sobs, testified under protection of the Canada Evidence Act.

She identified a dark sweater, worn by Mr. Laporte when his body was found in a car trunk near St. Hubert airport Oct. 18, as similar to one belonging to one of her sons.

Montessori Method of Teaching Outlined

The monthly meeting of the Belleville Women's Study Guild, held at the home of Mrs. J. Tickell, afforded its members a glimpse into the life of teacher Maria Montessori, and a further understanding of her methods of teaching.

Mrs. G. Wishart, vice-president presided at the meeting in the absence of the president, Mrs. Ross Bateman.

Mrs. Wishart also welcomed all the members of the Belleville Association's Christmas project might be brought to the next meeting.

The meditation, by Mrs. H. C. Wylie, centred on the theme of children and the accountability of adults in all their dealings with little ones.

Mrs. Catherine Reader introduced the program on Madame Montessori, who was born in Italy in 1870, the daughter of a typical military man of the old school, and a mother who stressed within the home the forms of service to the less fortunate, and the importance of a sense of personal dignity. This background was reflected in the teaching methods which, while more accepted today, were unorthodox in the days of their origination. It would seem that the foundation of today must have had a predecessor in this determined woman.

Originally adamant in her refusal to consider a teaching career, Maria studied engineering as an outgrowth of her interest in mathematics. This of course was then something unheard of as a career for women. She attended a technical school for boys, then developed an interest in biology, which led to a desire to study medicine — also then for a woman an unheard of undertaking.

Beset by the problems of a lone woman in a class of unsympathetic male students, she nevertheless achieved the degree of Doctor of Medicine in 1896. She was always encouraged by her mother, and acknowledged finally by her proud father, and congratulated by a host of the world's notables.

That same year she was chosen to represent the women of Italy at a feminist congress in Berlin, where she championed the cause of working women. Her later worked hard against the exploitation of child labor. Her conviction that handicapped children were entitled to the same benefits of education as normal ones led her to experiments in teaching these children, and the results astounded educators.

The Montessori trained people willing to accept the low pay, in her methods - the position of the caretaker of the apartment building where the children lived - became teachers, and later a seamstress. In this way she developed teachers who in previous bias in favor of more conventional methods, and so achieved a common group of 'understudies' of her methods.

Visitors to these classes found it hard to believe that they had been started as an economy measure to prevent wild, undisciplined children from wrecking their living quarters - for they were now happy, interested children who seemed to have found a new dignity and had achieved a true self - discipline.

The word "kindergarten", now so familiar is owed to another great educator - Dr. Frederick Froebel, who founded the first kindergarten - children's garden. His principles of love and respect for the child, and of educating by doing rather than by being told, his work of developing teachers and the Froebel Institute, parallel in many ways the work of Dr. Montessori. Dr. Froebel lived from 1783 - 1852, so that he had died before Madame Montessori was born. He stressed the personality and quality of the teacher. Montessori concentrated on the occupations and apparatus which she trained people to present to children. Both profoundly influenced early childhood education.

The second part of the evening's program developed by Mrs. Jean Wylie, dealt with the Montessori method as it is practised in schools today. Although there are such schools in Canada, the teachers are trained elsewhere, and so come from Holland, Ceylon, India, England, the United States. It is hoped to have a training institute for Montessori teachers in Canada by next fall. The Ottawa school has the director Mrs. Van Dijk, from Holland.

A book by Elizabeth Hainstock called "Teaching Montessori in the Home" was displayed. Its author, herself a Montessori teacher, believed that parents unable to send their children to Montessori schools could, with a little ingenuity, create the proper environment and achieve the desired result. See advise setting aside a special room or area for the purpose and the book includes instructions on how to make equipment from simple household articles. "Practical Life Exercises" geared to the sensitive periods help a child develop and progress toward his own intuitive aim — his self development. "He wants to do and see and learn for himself, through his own senses and not through the eyes of an adult. The child who accomplishes this moves into harmony with his world. He becomes a full person. He is educated."

A letter from the Canadian Mother of a former Montessori pupil gave members a first hand description of the effects of the system on one child and his family. Unfortunately all the Montessori schools in Canada to date are private schools, so that children who could derive the most benefit from them — the modern counterparts of the children of the San Lorenzo Quarter, are denied the experience because of the cost. In Britain Montessori or Froebel trained teachers are employed by the regular school systems — hence the basic ideologies are felt throughout the system. The thought was expressed that had this been so in Canada, something like the Dennis Report might have been made sooner.

Interest in the program was evident in the discussion it inspired over refreshments served by hostesses Miss J. Tickell and Mrs. M. Ashley.

Successful Living

Man's Spirit Is Unlimited

By DORIS CLARK

For over half a century I have treasured a dark, star lit sky, marveling at its spacing grandeur, wishing to know what it holds and how it survives.

Now I have learned, with awe, a very little about the heavens: the unseen ages of the stars; their grand alignness from the earth; the proud familial bearings of the stars in associations, in clusters and in galaxies.

With the big-sagging Canopelia I have made a bowing acquaintance. My bedroom window frames the brilliant colossus of Orion, in which the red giant, Betelgeuse, faces the brilliant blue Rigel, diagonally, as Sirbeson, there the clairs the daisy, there starred "belt". These are new friends, when on clear nights I greet with wonder and with joy.

This earth on which we live out our years is just a speck among many. Our sun is a star among billions of stars, and our galaxy is one among even less others.

Emerson, philosopher of noble sentiment, has told us that man may feel perplexed in by time, but his mind can read "the thin rinds of the visible and finite"; his spirit "can crowd eternity into an hour, or stretch an hour to eternity."—Ellis Lewis, in Modern Maturity.

Dear Doris: I am reining the lower half of a duplex and there is no insulation between the floors so I can hear every sound that is made. If the lady upstairs drops a teaspoon on the floor it sounds like a ton if she dropped a bowling ball. When her toilet overflows it pours through the ceiling of my bathroom, bedroom and hallway.

Yesterday afternoon my little boy's two playmates came over. There was no yelling or screaming but our landlady told my daughter to send them home as that she didn't want any kids around here. The children were playing in our part of the yard and they were not go on hers. Does she have the right to do that?

Three years ago the tenant living upstairs fell down through our livingroom ceiling. One leg came all the way through. By some miracle she caught hold of something up-stairs and my husband had to push her leg up through the hole.

1. Can she send children out of our yard, that we are paying for?

2. Does the law say that there must be insulation between floors?

3. Isn't the fact that we have heard couples making love an invasion of privacy? — Angry.

Dear Angry: 1. No. 2. Yes; or a certain amount of solid flooring to prevent unchecked break-throughs. 3. I'd say so.

Visit the municipal offices of your town or township with your complaint. The officials will help you to either bring about better conditions, or break your lease and move. Not all landlords are so uncaring.

Ann Landers

Noisy Dentures Mean A Poor Fit

DEAR ANN LANDERS: First of all, no home town and no initials, please. I've got to get a message across to my father in a roundabout way. I know he reads your column faithfully.

I love my father dearly and I would rather die than hurt his feelings, but he is driving me crazy and he doesn't even know it. Daddy got dentures last year. He refuses to wear denture paste, or use whatever that stuff is that holds the plates to the gums. At mealtime the clicking and clacking drives me bananas. Sometimes we have guests I want to crawl under the table.

It's been getting worse. Now he clicks and clacks when he talks. Please print this letter and maybe he'll recognize himself. Thanks loads. — NO HOME TOWN, NO INITIALS.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR NO: Here's the letter but don't expect him to recognize himself. Readers often recognize friends, neighbors and relatives in this column — but rarely themselves.

Tell your father noisy dentures mean a poor fit. Gums have a tendency to shrink and this is probably what has happened to him. He should go to his dentist for a readjustment — and while he's there let's hope the dentist gives him a free sample of a good denture paste and suggests that he continues to use it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Chris and I have had a good 21 years of marriage. By good I mean better than 90 per cent of the people we know.

Chris tells me over and over how much he loves me and how lucky he is to have me. Yet, rain or shine, sick or well, he must see his mother every solitary day. If he doesn't see her on his way to work, he drops in on his way back. This childish habit has made me feel like a failure. If I mean everything in the world to him, why does he have this ridiculous need for his mother?

I feel like telling him to move in with Mama if she is so important to him. I hinted at this yesterday and he accused me of being mean and petty. I'd like your unbiased opinion. — SECOND PLACE.

DEAR S.P.: My unbiased opinion is that a daily visit to Mama's is a bit much but since it's been going on for 21 years you ought to be used to it by now.

Why do you consider yourself a failure? Sonny Boy's compulsion to see his mother every day is his neurosis — not yours. Any woman who says her marriage is better than 90 per cent of the people she knows should not be complaining to Ann Landers about her husband.

STAFFORD, England (AP) — Three feet have been sliced off a six-foot high brick wall surrounding a children's play park here to stop neckers — teenagers using it after dark.

Prince and Pauper?

LIMA, Peru (AP) — A Lima doctor says many mothers have received the wrong baby in Peruvian maternity hospitals because of improper identification of the new-born. Dr. Manuel Lezama told the National Congress of Biology that the country's hospitals and clinics should adopt a system of footprinting babies to avoid such mistakes.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Freeze These Cookies

By MARY MOORE

Today's is the fourth and final cookie baking recipes for cookies that will freeze. I hope our cookie makers have clipped the columns from three previous Mondays to have them for reference when they have time and urge to make Christmas cookies. They were Pecan Balls, Coconut Cherry Jumbles, Frosted Angel Bars, Fruit-Fruit Balls, Chocolate Raisin Clusters (unbaked but not freezable), Sweet Marie Bars, Chocolate Marshmallow Slices.

CHINESE CHEWS
(Yield 60 - will freeze) -

½ cup unsifted all - purpose flour
1 cup granulated sugar
1 tsp. baking powder
3 large eggs, beaten
1 tsp. salt
1 cup chopped nuts
1 cup chopped dates
Mix dry ingredients together then mix in eggs, nuts and dates. Spread on buttered 9 x 9 x 2" pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 25 min. Immediately cut into squares. Roll the squares between your palms into balls then roll in fruit sugar. You may have to break some of the crust off if it cooks and hardens too much to shape. Set out on cookie sheet and chill. Freeze wrap and freeze.

SNOWBALLS (Courtesy Judy; will freeze; yield 36 tsy balls)

1 cup light brown sugar
3 eggs
2 tbsps. melted butter
1 cup finely chopped dates
2 cups desiccated coconut
1 cup chopped nuts
Coconut for coating (optional)

Beat eggs and brown sugar together then add butter, nuts, dates and coconut. With wet hands shape into 1" balls. Roll in additional coconut if desired. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. on ungreased Teflon or greased foil - lined cookie sheets for 8 min. exactly. They should be pale gold. Remove from pans at once. Freezewrap and freeze.

MONDAY
Savory Meat Loaf; Tomato Macaroni Bake; Spinach; Fruited Jelly; Angel Cake; Tea.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1970

Last Period Surge Too Late For Short-Staffed Fairways

By ERIC EMERSON
STAFF SPORTSWRITER

There's a tasty four letter word circulating around the Belleville Fairways dressing room these days — Sick.

Three regulars were missing from the lineup in last night's match with the Kingston Frontenacs.

Still another four - letter word capitled quite readily to the remainder of the team during the first 38 minutes of play — DEAD.

Kingston completely outplayed the short-handed Fairways for most of the contest building a 5-1 lead before the home team caught fire in the third period, and almost pulled out a win. The final verdict was 5-4 in favor of the Frontenacs.

Missing from the Belleville lineup were right winger Dave Smith and defenceman Kevin Dockrill, both reported to be suffering from mononucleosis. They are expected to be out of the lineup for at least two weeks. Also missing the game because of illness was rearguard Tim Yohn.

The loss of Yohn and Dockrill left the Fairways with only three defencemen dressed for the game.

Even taking into consideration their short - handed situation, Belleville play in the first two frames left much to be desired. They were outshot by a 27-15 margin in the opening 40 minutes of play and only some sharp work by goalie Ron Jury prevented the score from climbing even higher.

Two newcomers to the Belleville lineup helped provide the third period spark that almost pulled the game out of the fire, despite the Fairways previously inept play.

Left winger Paul Whittam, playing in his first Junior B game poked in a goal from a scramble in front of D'Arcy Walters to narrow the Kingston lead to 5-3 at the fourteen minute mark of the final period.

Tweed hard - rock Brian O'Loin provided some spark of another kind in a brief third-period scuffle with Nelson Greenville. This, coincided with six Frontenac penalties in the final period second to give Belleville the lift that they needed to get back in the game.

After a goal by Don Lapensée had been allowed, and then disallowed because the whistle had blown before the puck entered the net, defencemen John Mulvihill beat Walters to make it 5-3.

Denny Lapensée, who had been shooting well but not getting many good scoring chances closed the lead to one goal when he beat the Frontenac goalie with a low drive in the far side of the net.

Belleville couldn't manage to get the equalizer, despite lifting Jury for an extra attacker in the final minute of play.

Two goals by Tom Nelsmith sandwiched around a tally by Dave Harwood accounted for the first period scoring. Don Higgins and Gord Rivers scored in the second period for the Frontenacs, while Dave Johnston notched the eventual winner at the three-minute mark of the final period.

Jury was beaten twice on the short side by Kingston, but came up with some outstanding work on many of the 32 stops that he was called on to make.

Belleville's passing was often off the mark as coach Floyd Crawford was forced to juggle his lines because of the player shortage.

Peter Ackerman was the best Belleville rearguard, defensively, keeping Kingston honest with some solid checks. John Mulvihill moved the puck well but was caught up on the ice on occasion, while Dave Ferguson showed some good offensive moves, but was also inconsistent.

Centre Phil Kirby and right winger Doug James played solid games up front for the Fairways, who drew seven of the game's 17 penalties.

Tonight Belleville travels to Cobourg to take on the Cougars. A bus will be leaving the arena at 4 p.m. with some seats still available for interested spectators.

Keeping Them Waiting

Kingston goalie D'Arcy Walters goes down to make a save, while Belleville's Peter Ackerman waits for a rebound in their Eastern Ontario Junior B contest played in Belleville Sunday night. The Frontenacs opened up a 5-1 lead and then held on to take a 5-4 decision from the Fairways, who will be looking for their first win of the regular season when they travel to Cobourg tonight.

Art Walt Sets Commonwealth Mark But Waiting for Final Standing

While Art Walt will have to wait to determine his standing at the Canadian Weightlifting Championships this weekend, the Apollo Bar Bell Club member doesn't require any waiting to evaluate his success in the two head match.

The Belleville lifter hoisted a new British Empire record of 275¾ pounds, almost four pounds more than the previous record held by Montreal's Claude April.

ART WALT

Results of the Canadian championships are telegraphed to Winnipeg where the final standings are tabulated.

Walt's total lift in the 181-pound class was 830 pounds, 35 less than brother Bob totalled in the 198-pound division. The other Apollo member taking part in the Canadian championships was 114-pound Ron Hayes, who lifted a 460-pound total.

Meanwhile, another 13 members of the club were competing against 65 lifters from across the province in the Ontario Intermediate competition at Woodstock.

Gary Walt and Roger Hayes both walked off with firsts in the 242 and 123-pound classes.

Walt totalled 835 pounds while Hayes lifted 390 pounds.

In the 99 - pound class Robert Kershaw placed third with a 305 pound aggregate.

Norm Walt's 750 total was good for third in the 114-pound class, while Dave Cee-Bristol placed fifth. Joel Carr-Bristol also had a fifth in the 123 pounds less than Hayes' was good for seventh spot.

In the 132-pound group it was Jim Travers placing second (480 pound total) while Brian Rossbush took fourth in the 148-pound weight class with a 510 lift. Gary Ferguson was seventh in the class.

Manly Hy's 590 total was good for fifth in the 181-pound group, with Fred Hy taking 11th.

Richard Hy added a third place finish to Gary Watt's win in the 242-pound class.

Cory Leads Picton to Fourth

Runners from Prince Edward Collegiate led the Quinte area runners to a strong finish in the All-Ontario Cross Country Champions hips at Woodbridge held last Saturday with a fourth place team finish.

Individually Paul Cory of Picton placed third behind Roger Serin of Port Hpe in the senior race.

In the junior age class Quinte Secondary ranked eighth out of 43 schools that had qualified for the championships.

With over 250 of the best distance runners in Ontario competing in each age group, a finish in the top 100 is a major accomplishment and many area runners achieved notable success.

Ron Brown of Centennial started the day with a 32nd place finish in the midget race. In junior competition Quinte and Trenton runners placed well. Pat Quinn, Gerard Farrell (23rd) Roger Ray, (104), Ron Ball (117) and Dennis Tuck (127) contributed points to their eighth place team finish.

Grant Thompson (43rd) and Dave Thompson (88th) led Trenton in a 17th place finish. Jim Thompson of Centennial picked up a 34th place finish.

Hill Park of Hamilton won the junior championship.

Roger Serin led the senior race from start to finish of the 4.2 mile course while Cory was edged out of second at the wire.

Filling out Picton's fourth place team were Larry Ferguson (38th) Chris Condo (53rd) and a junior, Robert Reesy (112rd).

Dave Grant of Moira rated a 45th finish while Jim Farrell of Quinte followed closely in 46th.

Minor All-Star Teams Have Perfect Weekend

Towers Food City Novices (minor) their scoring totals in a pair of lopsided weekend wins to pace the minor hockey all-star squads.

Saturday, Towers bombed Gananoque 13-0 with Brian Cook and Dave Stoksbury picking up the shutout.

Gary Frederick and Gary McInroy both had a hat trick for Belleville, while Dan Duffy and Mike McDonald added two goals apiece. Other scorers were Nelson Frederick, Randy Carr and Andy Pierce.

Sunday, the novices again clobbered Gananoque, this time to the tune of 9-1. Dan Duffy scored three times for the winners to tie Gary McInroy for top goalgetter in the game. Pat Wilman, Gary Frederick and Bruce McInroy neded the other scores.

Maurice Rollins peewees also added two weekend wins,

Bitter Jauch Blasts Officials After Loss to Calgary

EDMONTON (CP) — Bitter in defeat, coach Ray Jauch blamed the officials but then conceded that Calgary Stampeders may have had something to do with beating his Edmonton Eskimos 26-9 in the Western Football Conference sudden-death semi-final Sunday.

"Calgary has a pretty good football team," he said. "Maybe that had something to do with us losing."

But no did the officiating, Jauch said in a gloomy dressing room, suggesting that a school is needed for WFC referees.

Calgary coach Jim Duncan was just glad the game was over.

"It's the toughest game of the year, this sudden-death playoff."

Calgary had the edge in the bruising defensive battle and fashioned a 9-0 lead in the third quarter, but Duncan said Edmonton "just kept getting tougher and tougher."

Led by their defence, the Eskimos clawed their way back with three field goals by Dave Cutler, to the delight of 22,195 fans watching the first playoff game at Clarke Stadium since 1961.

But, with time ticking away, Edmonton lost a severe costly when a pass interference penalty permitted Calgary to march 75 yards for the winning touchdown, by fullback Hugh McKinnis.

It was this penalty that infuriated Jauch.

On second down, Calgary quarterback Jerry Keeling threw toward Herman Harrison who had three Eskimo defenders nearby. Dave Gasser, and Edmonton linebacker, almost intercepted the ball, but umpire Ken Stein of Vancouver called Mike Law of Edmonton for interference.

"They ought to get more guys out of this league."

Jauch, the 1970 coach-of-the-year in the Canadian Football League, said he had "never complained about officials in my life before, but I don't know what happened, they just lost control."

He said the Eskimos were "robbed" of points in the second and fourth quarters by questionable officiating.

Harrison caught a 16-yard touchdown pass and Larry Robinson kicked a field goal and convert as Calgary advanced to the best-of-three final series.

The final starts in Regina next Saturday and Jauch said the odds favor the Saskatchewan Roughriders "about 80-40."

Asked about the Eskimos' inability to score a touchdown against Calgary—they reached the 25-yard line twice in the fourth quarter—Jauch said "it's nothing to be ashamed of against Calgary's defence."

"There was some good hitting out there," he said. "(Don) Trull took some good shots. A couple of clean shots, too."

One ignited a free-for-all with 36 seconds left on the clock.

Trull, Edmonton's quarterback, was thrown for a loss and a Stampeder came in late and belted him. Players left both benches to join in the swinging, pulling and pushing that followed.

McKinnis, Harrison and Gerry Shaw were the Stampeders who managed to solve the Eskimos' defensive maze, with McKinnis rushing 13 times for 78 yards and catching one pass for 21, Harrison caught four passes for 76 yards and Shaw four for 72.

Keeling and Larry Lawrence, who was inserted for two plays, completed 13 of 28 passes for 190 yards. Calgary also had a net of 46 yards rushing as they collected 14 first downs, six more than the Eskimos.

As has been the case throughout most of the season, the Eskimo offence was ineffective picking only 185 net yards.

It was the defence that kept Edmonton in the game. John Wydrzynski was back as kicker-for 42 yards and Joel Hernandez blocked a punt to set up field goals, but their efforts were not enough to avoid Edmonton's first-ever semi-final loss at home.

The Stampeders are the first team since 1963 to emerge from third place to reach the final. Only one third-place team, Winnipeg Blue Bombers, has ever made it to the Grey Cup game. The Bombers did it in 1953.

Defence Shines in 16-7 Win

Als Spring Upset On Argos

TORONTO (CP) — Gary Inkeep probably best summed up the collapse of Toronto Argonauts, kicked early in the season as the Canadian Football League team most likely to win the Grey Cup this year.

"You got to want it more than we did," the Toronto defensive end said Sunday after Montreal Alouettes defeated the Argos 16-7 and eliminated them from the Eastern Football Conference playoffs before a sellout crowd of 32,135.

The Alouettes now meet Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the EFC two-game, total-points final. The first game will be in Montreal Sunday.

Argos, who during the season rarely reached the offensive excellence expected of them, had their Grey Cup hopes deflated in Sunday's EFC sudden-death semi-final by a team that had to rearrange its lineup because of suspensions.

And while the patched-up Montreal offence appeared stronger rather than weaker, the Argonaut offence came out under a relentless attack by the Alouette defence.

Near the end of the game some of the Toronto fans began chanting "Goodbye Lee" to Toronto coach Lee Caldwell but John Bassett, chairman of the board of Argos, squashed rumors that Cahill will be fired.

"He is absolutely not fired," Bassett said. "He has two years to go on his contract and as far as I know, nobody has any intention of firing him."

Bassett paid tribute to Montreal coach Sam Etcheverry, who less than a week before the game suspended fullback Dennis Duncan, the team's top ground gainer, and Bob Cathcart, a wide receiver, for breaking club curfew regulations.

"I want to pay tribute to the guts Etcheverry showed in taking disciplinary action against two of his regulars at that critical time," Bassett said. "In my view it was a gutsy move and was fantastic for football."

It was not only a "gutsy move" for Etcheverry but the whole season was a triumph for the first-year Montreal coach who brought 18 new players this year to a club that finished last in the East for the three previous years.

Many of these new players played key roles Sunday in subduing the Argos. One, George Springate, the 25-year-old place-kicking specialist and a Montreal native of the Quebec national assembly, kicked three field goals and converted the Alouettes' only touchdown by wide receiver Tom Pullen. Pullen was obtained in a trade with Ottawa Rough Riders.

Toronto's points came on an 85-yard pass-and-run play from quarterback Tom Wilkinson to flanker Jim Thorpe. The touchdown was converted by quarterback Don Jonas.

Argos led 7-6 at half time and preserved that lead going into the fourth quarter. The Als then scored their converted touchdown and a field goal in the final 15 minutes.

The Montreal defence, led by linebackers Charlie Collins, Mark Kosmos and Mike Widger and ends Wally Highsmith and Steve Sessor, was menacing all day and held Argos to three first downs in the first half and a total of eight yards rushing and 138 passing, including the 85-yard touchdown pass to Thorpe.

Besides Thorpe, halfback Bill Symons was the only other offensive threat for the Argos. He made 34 yards in nine carries, returned one kickoff 37 yards and another 33 and threw a pass for 22 yards.

The Als were expected to be weakened by the absence of Duncan and McCarthy, but Bruce Van Ness, who replaced Duncan, got 65 yards in 18 carries while the other running back, Moses Denson, ran for 80 yards in 13 carries.

Split end Terry Evanshen caught five passes for 71 yards and Peter Dalla Riva three for 37, one pass for 39 yards in the fourth quarter set up Montreal's only touchdown.

The Als led 2-0 on Springate's first field goal set up after Wilkinson's first pass of the game was intercepted by defensive back Gene Gaines to give Montreal the ball on the Toronto 18-yard line. Thorpe's touchdown made it 7-3, the last score for Toronto.

Springate's 35-yard field goal was the only scoring in the second quarter. There was no scoring in the third quarter but with the fourth quarter less than three minutes old, Montreal quarterback Sonny Wade threw to Pullen for a touchdown after Pullen got behind Ron Arends in the goal-line.

Midway in the final quarter, Gerry Sternberg was running back a Wade 34-yard punt when the ball was torn from his grasp and Montreal recovered. This led to Springate's final field goal at 11:32.

Montreal led Toronto in first downs, 18 to 15, in yards rushing 153 to 45 and in net offence, 315 to 308 while Toronto outpassed Montreal 280 to 172 yards.

Dempsey Boot Travels 63 Yards

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New Orleans Saints beat Detroit Lions 19-17 on a record 63-yard field goal by Tom Dempsey on the last play of their National Football League game Sunday.

Dempsey admitted it wasn't an ordinary feat but Detroit coach Joe Schmidt said the Lions were beaten by a miracle.

The kick surpassed the 59-yarder kicked Oct. 28 by Dave Cutler of Edmonton Eskimos in a Canadian Football League game against Saskatchewan Roughriders. The previous NFL record was 56 yards, kicked by Bert Rechichar of Baltimore Colts in 1956.

"I knew I could kick the ball that far, but whether or not I could kick it straight, kept running through my mind," Dempsey said. "I knew I had to hit the ball awfully hard and would need a little extra time. But the Lions' held up perfectly and I got a perfect snap from Joe Scarpati."

The field goal had a field day in other NFL games Sunday. Cincinnati's Horst Muhlmann kicked five three-pointers as the Bengals bested Buffalo Bills 43-14; George Blanda's a 52-yarder helped Oakland Raiders trim Cleveland Brown's 23-20; Fred Cox sailed four field goals in Minnesota Vikings' 19-16 success over Washington Redskins; Mike Mercer's 38-yard boot was the difference in San Diego Chargers' 24-21 victory over Denver Broncos and Pete Gogolak ripped three as New York Giants upset Dallas Cowboys 23-20.

Atlanta Falcons and Los Angeles Rams played to a 10-10 tie; Philadelphia Eagles won their first game since Nov. 23, 1969 by beating Miami Dolphins 24-17; San Francisco 49ers routed Chicago Bears 37-16; Kansas City Chiefs slugged Houston Oilers 24-9; St. Louis Cardinals walloped Boston Patriots 31-0 and Pittsburgh Steelers toppled New York Jets 21-17 in the other games. Green Bay Packers and Baltimore Colts clash tonight in Milwaukee in the Monday night television game.

Dempsey's booming drive cleared the cross-bar by mere inches, and he admitted it took some special ingredients.

"There's so much involved in kicking a 63-yard field goal," he said. "You've got to try and hit the ball as hard as you possibly can and yet, kicking it straight is a hard thing to do.

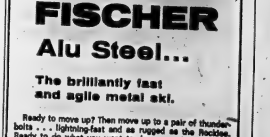
"It just happened that I hit it right that time and it happened at the right time."

It was a crowd-pleasing Hollywood finish that enchanted a disbelieving New Orleans audience.

Detroit appeared to have won it when Errol Mann kicked an 18-yard field goal with 11 seconds to give the Lions a one-point lead.

But New Orleans' quarterback Billy Kilmer completed a pass to Al Dodd after the Detroit kickoff and Dodd went out of bounds at the Saints' 45 with two seconds left.

Then Dempsey, born iceless on his right kicking foot, did his thing.



Muhlmann drilled field goals of 22, 30, 12, 36 and 43 yards for Cincinnati, which snapped a six-game slide. Buffalo's O. J. Simpson suffered a severe bruise on his left leg.

Bruins Batter Canadiens 6-1 In Rugged Struggle on Sunday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens found out during the weekend how quickly the fortunes of a team can change in the National Hockey League.

The Canadiens, who counted to an easy 11-2 victory over Buffalo Sabres in Montreal Saturday night, found the going a lot tougher at Boston Gardens Sunday night.

Boston Bruins, in a game that erupted in a wild brawl in the final minute of the first period, downed the Canadiens 6-1 to take over sole possession of first place in the East Division.

The fight broke out when referee John Ashley called a tripping penalty on Boston's Dallas Smith. Claude Larose of the Canadiens and Ken Hodge of the Bruins, who previously had exchanged heated words in drawing minor penalties, tangled.

Wayne Cashman of Boston and Guy Lapointe of Montreal then started a fight and players from both benches leaped on to the ice to join the fray.

Meanwhile on the Canadiens' bench, Boston Derek Sanderson and Montreal's Phil Roberto engaged in fisticuffs. When fans attempted to join in, Montreal players had to be restrained by Boston police.

When order returned to the ice, Ashley handed major penalties to Lapointe, Larose and Terry Harper of Montreal and Hodge, Don Awrey and Cashman of Boston. The others escaped penalties as the final 27 seconds of the first period were put over to be played just before the start of the second period.

In other games Sunday, Philadelphia Flyers beat Buffalo 3-1 and Detroit Red Wings and Pittsburgh and Chicago Black Hawks and Minnesota North Stars played to ties, both by 3-3 scores.

Saturday, New York Rangers downed Los Angeles Kings 6-2, Vancouver Canucks edged Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2, Boston and Pittsburgh Penguins tied 2-2, Chicago tied Philadelphia 1-1 and St. Louis Blues and Minnesota also played to a 1-1 tie.

Phil Esposito, NHL scoring leader, paced the Bruins with one goal and two assists against the Canadiens. Esposito set up a goal by Ed Westfall at 8:13 of the first period when the Bruins were shorthanded, assisted on a goal by Ken Hodge and then scored his first goal in five games in the third period. Mickey Redmond scored Montreal's only goal.

Philadelphia handed Buffalo its seventh straight defeat. The Sabres, with the Canucks the two new teams in the NHL this year, have not won a game since Oct. 22 when they defeated Detroit 4-3. During that losing streak, they have given up 39 goals and scored nine.

Wayne Hillman scored the winning goal for Philadelphia with 38 seconds gone in the third period. Jim Johnson and Bob Kelly got the other Philadelphia goals while Gil Perrault scored for Buffalo, his seventh of the season.

Don Luce, playing in his fourth game with Detroit after being traded from New York, scored one of the Red Wings' goals against Pittsburgh. It was his second NHL goal.

The Wings built a 3-1 lead on Garry Unger's second goal of the year, coming at 15:46, but in the third period, with two Wings in the penalty box, Ken Schinkel scored on a power play for the Penguins to put Pittsburgh within one goal. Jean Pronovost scored with two minutes left to tie the game.

Second-period goals by Bobby Hull and rookie Dan Maloney gave Chicago a 3-2 lead over Minnesota but Danny Grapp, with his second goal early in the third period, gave the North Stars the tie.

Montreal rookie led the assault on the Sabres Saturday night as Guy Lapointe, Marc Tardif, and Rejean Houle each scored twice. The Sabres played even with the Canadiens for the first 25 minutes and 28 seconds when the score was 2-2 but Pete Mahovlich's goal at 5:36 of the second period touched off a seven-goal barrage in that period.

Vancouver, in beating Toronto for the second time this season, got the winning goal from Murray Hall and another from Dale Tallon, the former Toronto Marlboro junior player and Vancouver's first draft choice.

The Minnesota-St. Louis game was a duel between goalies as Gump Worsley for the Stars and Glenn Hall for the Blues turned in outstanding performances. Charley Burns scored for Minnesota and Red Berenson for St. Louis.

Benvenuti Loses Title To Monzon

ROME (AP) — Is Nino through?

That was the question Italians asked this weekend as Nino Benvenuti, the pride and powerhouse of their country, succumbed to the thunderous right of Argentina's Carlos Monzon.

With that right hook — in the 12th round — the world middleweight boxing crown slipped away from Italy, also ending doubts on Benvenuti's future.

He is, after all, 32 years of age and no longer the speedster he was when he won the gold medal in the 1960 Rome Olympics.

After losing only two fights in the first eight years of his professional career, Benvenuti has now dropped three of his last seven decisions, two of them by knockouts.

But he is convinced he still is not over the hill — and he wants a rematch against the Argentine who engineered Nino's first defeat in his homeland.

"I still feel worthy to fight at the world level," he said after losing the title," adding that Monzon "must not deny me the chance for a rematch."

Monzon, victorious in his first crack at the title at the age of 28, and his manager say they'll be happy to face Nino again, although contract for the fight Saturday contained no such provision.

But, said Tito Lectoure, Argentina's prime promoter: "There are other boxers who have priority over Benvenuti."

Petes Lose First Game

Ottawa 67s Sunday handed Peterborough Petes their first defeat in 13 Ontario Hockey Association Junior A regular season starts. The 67s prevailed 3-1 before a crowd of 6,172 at the Ottawa Civic Centre and helped second-place S.t. Catharines Black Hawks gain ground.

The Black Hawks moved to within five points of the Petes through a double defeat of the last-place Oshawa Generals. St. Catharines won 6-3 in Oshawa Saturday and 8-1 24 hours later in the return contest.

In two other Sunday games, Toronto Marlboros outscored the Junior Canadiens 8-3 and London Knights downed Hamilton Red Wings 4-1.

Blake Dunlop ended Peterborough's undefeated streak with the winning goal for Ottawa in the second period. He later set up the clincher by Paul Sheard and rookie Ron Bobbette scored the other Ottawa goal.

Doug Gibson of the Petes wrecked the shutout try by Dave Capstick in the second period.

Netminder John Garrett came through with another strong effort for the Petes as the leaders were on the short end of a 49-18 shot tally.

The 67s took over third place in the tight race, one point ahead of Toronto and Hamilton and two ahead of Montreal.

The Black Hawks assuried Oshawa reminder Ted McComb during the opening period Sunday at St. Catharines on their way to the 8-1 win. Doug MacMillan and Brian McKenzie led the winners with two goals each. Marcel Dionne, Bob Pepler, Clyde Simon and Mike Bloom each scored once.

Larry Thompson scored for the Generals after St. Catharines built a 5-0 lead into the third period.

Saturday, Simon led the Black Hawks with two goals at Oshawa. McKenzie, Dave Pay, Don McCulloch and Glen Chickello scored once each. Gerry Methe, Gary Manno and Terry O'Reilly replied for the Generals.

At Montreal, the Marlboros fought off a late rally by the defending Memorial Cup champions as captain Bill Harris topped a strong game with the winning goal. Harris, who collected four goals and one assist, fired the winner with 67 seconds left in the game. The Junior Canadiens threatened with three fast goals after Marlboros had established an 8-4 lead in the third period.

Steve Shutt, with two goals, Gavin Kirk, Steve Vickers and Dave Gardner rounded out the Toronto attack. Richard Martin and Robert Lalonde produced the bulk of the Montreal attack with three goals each. Serge Gamelin and Michel Latrellle each scored once.

At London, Tom Williams gave the Red Wings their brief lead before Dick Decker, Mike Bellanger and Jay Babcock struck for London.

Soviet Space Program Seems to Be Making Strong Recovery

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet space program appears to be making a strong recovery both for manned flight and space-robot missions after several years in the shadow of United States triumphs.

Although the Russians lost the moon race, they have rebounded this year with their own moon-scooping machine and have just completed their fourth unmanned round-the-moon shot in the Zond series.

In addition, they have contributed to space medicine by testing man's endurance in a record orbital experiment lasting 18 days.

If public statements by cosmonauts and scientists can be taken at face value, more impressive feats with men and robots will be attempted in the near future.

Cosmonauts Vitaly Sevastyanov and Andrian Nikolayev started the comeback in June when they set the duration record and concluded that the dangers of prolonged weightlessness still constitute a barrier to flights of more than a few weeks.

The Luna 16 mission three months later gave the Soviet Union its own samples of moon soil and also had the effect of restoring credibility to a space program which had not scored a major first between 1964 and 1970.

Then in October, Zond VIII zipped neatly around the moon on a photographic expedition and splashed down by remote control in the Indian Ocean, the fourth Soviet round trip to lunar space.

A new Venus shot, a refined version of earlier Venus capsules, was launched in August and is due to reach that scorching planet in mid-December. If it lands in operating condition Soviet space authorities can look back over a successful year.

The swelling of national pride that goes with these achievements is bound to help counter the feeling among many Russians that money is being wasted in space while the Soviet consumer is neglected.

No Soviet moon landing is in preparation, frequent dissidents in Moscow say, but it is likely that more unmanned scoopers will see more soil samples.

Any Soviet space planners embarrassed when Apollo 11 and 12 landed on the moon must feel somewhat vindicated now. Besides the prestige of their Luna 16 moon-soil mission, they have the satisfaction of watching the U.S. re-evaluate the need for manned flights.

President Nixon's science advisory committee has recommended after a special study that unmanned shots take precedence over rides in space by U.S. astronauts. The committee decided that man's presence aboard spacecraft "could not be shown unequivocally to be essential for any of the probable scientific objectives in the next decade."

Looking toward the future, cosmonauts and Soviet space administrators on tour abroad have spoken only in general terms of what comes next from the Baikonur launch pad—the manned space center 1,400 miles southeast of Moscow.

The Academy of Sciences president, Mstislav Keldysh, says manned flight to Mars is "theoretically possible," and might take place by the end of this century.

Unmanned round trips to Mars and Venus, using the knowledge gained from the Luna program, apparently are in the works for the 1970s.

Cosmonauts Sevastyanov said in Washington last month that a long-term orbital space station is the next objective in the manned program.

The first U.S. manned space station is scheduled for 1972, generally believed to be behind the Russian timetable.

The Soviet Union has expressed tentative interest in a joint U.S.-Soviet orbiting station manned by an international crew.

Communists Behind FLQ

Socreds Say All Must Join To Fight Reds and Terrorists

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Canadians of all national backgrounds must co-operate if Canada is to be saved from the threat of Communists and terrorists, the annual meeting of the Social Credit Association of Ontario was told Saturday.

Camille Samson, Quebec leader of the Ralliement des Creditistes, said that communists lie behind terrorism in Quebec and adopting a hard line is the only way to deal with the FLQ and international terrorism.

"I ask the big silent majority not to be silent any more," he said.

Oza Tetrault, Ralliement des Creditistes member of Parliament for Villeneuve, said the best way to fight communism is to offer Canadians something better.

"Give Canadians decent houses, jobs and security and there will be no interest in communism whatsoever," he said.

He criticized the current system where, he said, there is widespread misery.

Dr. J. A. McGillivray of Collingwood, association president, said there are 40 persons who are willing to run for the party in the next provincial election. In the last provincial election the party had four candidates. None was elected.

The convention passed resolutions dealing with education, pornography and pollution.

One resolution said the Social Credit party would put the government school system "back on a solid scholastic footing."

"The necessities of modern basic education will be served before any money is spent on frills," the resolution said. Another resolution said taxpayers should be free to "support either the public or Catholic school systems, or other approved systems."

A third resolution called for the enforcement of existing laws dealing with pornography and exploitation of sex.

The formation of a standing committee to "make a thorough and "critical study of environmental pollution," was also called for.

Liberals Ready for Election Once Policy Parley Is Held

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon told the annual meeting of the Toronto and District Liberal Association Saturday the party will be ready for a provincial election any time after its policy conference in January.

He said he expects the election next autumn.

He said the recent New Democratic Party leadership race has given the Liberals "more room than we've had in some time" and that the NDP is "off our backs."

"They have elected an able but radical leader and they need labor support. Soliciting support from one group in the community won't win an election; and real socialist goals won't fill the needs of Ontario."

The Liberal leader attacked the Progressive Conservative government's shelter exemptions and "special handouts" to farmers and pensioners.

"I don't object to these people getting help," he said, "but the real answer is equity in the tax system. What they're doing now may be the Conservative idea of tax reform but it is not good enough for the Liberals."

Greene's Denver Views His Deep Convictions

TORONTO (CP) — J. J. Greene, federal minister of energy, mines and resources, said Saturday his deepest convictions were written into a speech he gave last May in Denver in which he warned the United States that Canadians were determined to own more of their own resources.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Toronto and District Liberal Association, Mr. Greene said the controversy generated by the speech to the Independent Petroleum Association of America was due mainly to misunderstanding and misreading of it.

"The Denver speech said that we in Canada have made a clear determination as a people, in my view, to do our own thing. That is, to build a civilization and a people that are not pale shadows of any other civilization."

Stanfield Prefers Back Yards

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield says he prefers being able to "put the cat out in the back yard" to high-rise apartment living in downtown Toronto.

Mr. Stanfield is staying in a ninth-floor apartment during a four-day visit to Metro Toronto to better appreciate the life the style of the urban apartment dweller," in the words of a statement from Progressive Conservative headquarters.

"The time may come when we might prefer to be able to leave for a month or so without worrying about the house being kept up." Mr. Stanfield said in an interview Sunday. "But in the meantime I like putting the cat out in the back yard at night."

After walking tours through areas of high-rise apartments and urban renewal housing, Mr. Stanfield said he agreed with experts who suggest preserving older housing through renovation.

Maclean-Hunter Offered Repeated

Church, McGraw-Hill Say Ryerson Could Be Cancelled

TORONTO (CP) — The possibility of cancellation of the sale of Ryerson Press to an American-controlled publishing house was raised Sunday night by spokesmen for both parties involved.

The sale of Ryerson Press, owned by the United Church of Canada, to McGraw-Hill of Canada Ltd. was announced last Monday.

Rev. Frank G. Brisbin, secretary of the church's division of communication, which is responsible for Ryerson, said the ultimate responsibility "for the sale "on the doorstep of the Ontario government.

"We must deal with McGraw-Hill in good faith, but if the government, perhaps Premier John Roberts, were to step in the church to reconsider its position, I'm sure we would be relieved to hear that," he said.

Dr. Brisbin said that if the government was prepared to use its "good offices" to bring together church representatives and any other Canadian publisher interested in making "absolutely firm" offers, we most certainly would be available for discussion."

John F. Macmillan, president of McGraw-Hill, said he would "most certainly" be willing to discuss scrapping the purchase agreement if the church asked him.

The selling price of Ryerson to McGraw-Hill is thought to be $2 million. Dr. Brisbin has said the reason for the sale is the church's need for money to support its failing religious publishing operations.

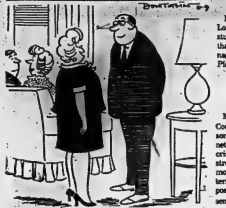
At least three Canadian groups are reported interested in the purchase of the 140-year-old publishing operation.

Donald G. Campbell, president of Maclean-Hunter Ltd., which had previously made an offer to the church, repeated his company's offer Sunday night, describing it as "fair and substantial."

Mr. Campbell said he had been unable to learn the difference between his bid and McGraw-Hill's.

Christopher Ondaatje, president of Toronto's Pagurian Press, said his company, a group of Toronto businessmen and another major Canadian publishing house whose name he would not divulge, had been actively seeking Ryerson for a year.

Mr. Ondaatje said his group asked Ryerson's bankers in the fall of 1975 to inform the church it was interested in buying the publishing end of the Ryerson operation.



He said his group was told at that time that the publishing section alone was not available and that any sale had to include the plant and other assets.

"We told the bank that if the publishing end were ever made available, we would attempt to buy it," Mr. Ondaatje said.

The sale announced Monday included inventory of books, copyrights and author's agreements and goodwill, but did not include the United Church Publishing House or Ryerson's printing operations, also owned and operated by the church.

Tim Reid, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature who was a vigorous critic of the Ryerson sale to the American-controlled firm, said last week a group of Toronto businessmen, whom he refused to identify, were prepared to make an offer for Ryerson.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"I never lie about my age. I'm exactly over 21, and I'll admit it."

Lortie's Hosts 'Very Nice, Very Quiet'

MONTREAL (CP) — Bernard Lortie, 19-year-old university student who testified Saturday at the bail hearing of Pierre Laporte, lived for a short time with "very nice, very quiet people" before police swooped down on a west-end apartment building to arrest him Friday night.

Details about the arrest came from Marcel Champagne, 53, manager of the Gaston Apartments on Queen Mary Road beneath Mount Royal, and his 22-year-old son.

In interviews, Champagne and his son Michel said detectives came to the apartment building about 7 p.m. Friday, went directly to apartment 12, then called uniformed officers who had surrounded the building.

Three officers asked the elder Champagne for his keys and made a search of every apartment in the building.

Michel Champagne said a girl living on the third floor told him she saw police enter apartment 12 and say to a man inside, "You are Lortie?"

"No, I'm Boldue," came the reply.

"No, we know you are Lortie," a policeman replied.

The man was then handcuffed and led out of the building.

He added that his family was surprised to find out later the man was Lortie, named in a police warrant as wanted for the kidnapping of Mr. Laporte Oct. 19.

The labor minister was found strangled a week later, apparently killed by his Front de Libération du Quebec abductors.

The younger Champagne said he was unaware that Lortie had been staying in the apartment with Richard Therrien, a student, his sister Collette, a teacher, and a friend, Francine Delisle, all in the 30s.

"They were very nice people very quiet people," said the elder Champagne. "They certainly didn't look revolutionary."

Police later arrested the other three occupants of apartment 12.

Separatists May Benefit

MONTREAL (CP) — Ramsay Cook, a York University professor, said Sunday he believes the net effect of Quebec's October crisis may be an increase in the strength of the independence movement, although in the short term terrorist activities have possibly dampened separatist sentiment.

"English Canadians have no grounds to expect that the result of the affair will be to undermine the separatist movement," Prof. Cook said in an interview.

"When emotions calm and fears disappear, some people may feel increased resentment against Ottawa for the vigorous measures they have taken."

Prof. Cook told the conference of the Canadian Association of American Studies on war and North American society that the government had no alternative but to act the way it did.

The future, he said, would depend largely on the ability of both the Ottawa and Quebec governments to deal in the coming years "not with terrorism, but with economic problems."

Prof. Cook said the government was gambling by preferring charges of seditious conspiracy against men who, in recent years, have become public figures in Quebec.

The government has no alternative," he said. "The choice is to make them martyrs or set them free."

Publishers Organize To Stop Take-overs

TORONTO (CP) — Fourteen publishers have formed an organization to seek government assistance "to save what's left of the Canadian text-book publishing industry."

Peter Martin of Peter Martin Associations said the organization; the Emergency Committee of Canadian Publishers, developed from last week's sale Ryerson Press to the United States-controlled McGraw-Hill Co. of Canada Ltd.

Barbara Cross Staying With Bern Ambassador

BERN, Switzerland (CP) — Barbara Cross, wife of the British diplomat kidnapped in Canada, and her daughter Susan are staying privately with the British ambassador in Bern, Eric Midgley, the British embassy announced today.

The brief announcement added: "She is grateful to the news media for their forbearance and hopes that all concerned will continue to respect her privacy."

Their departure from Montreal Friday was secret.

James (Jasper) Cross, a senior British trade representative, was kidnapped from his home in Montreal Oct. 5 by the Front de Libération du Quebec.

The London Daily Express quotes unidentified Canadian sources as saying that Cross may be reunited with his wife outside Canada.

"A deal with the kidnappers is seen as a distinct possibility," the paper said in a Montreal dispatch.

Sharp Says Large Quantities Of Arms Still Not Located

TORONTO (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp warned Saturday that large quantities of weapons and dynamite have still not been recovered by police in Quebec.

He said in an interview Canadians cannot assume there will be no return to violence.

Mr. Sharp was attending the annual meeting of the Toronto and District Liberal Association.

Defence Minister Donald MacDonald, also at the meeting, said the government will have to take a hard look "at the ability of the armed forces to deal with this kind of subversive threat."

"This is a question for civilians to decide—whether we enlarge the role of the RCMP or establish another police agency.

"It's obvious that we are going to have to take some steps to provide more elaborate protection against these threats. If we do this, some expansion of the civilian police powers will have to be the result."

NDP Will Fight For Act Changes

TORONTO (CP) — Deputy Leader David Lewis of the New Democratic Party says the NDP will fight like blazes" for changes in Prime Minister Trudeau's proposed substitute for the War Measures Act.

However, the NDP will continue to support the new legislation in Parliament, because the Front de Liberation du Quebec "has to be destroyed," said the York South MP.

Mr. Lewis made the comments during a debate on the NDP's position on the Quebec crisis with Globe and Mail columnist George Bain on the CBC network show Weekend Sunday night.

The NDP deputy leader said his party opposed the original War Measures Act because of the immense powers it gave the federal government across Canada, not just in Quebec.

He said the New Democrats support the thrust of the new legislation because it deals specifically with the FLQ and sharply curtails the power of police to hold suspects without charges.

New Bill Opposed

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Civil Liberties Association said Sunday it disapproves of the federal government's bill to replace the War Measures Act.

The bill, called the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, IPPC was introduced in first reading in the Commons last Tuesday.

The association said in a brief the new legislation still poses dangers, including the fact that a person could still be jailed for five years for membership in or support of the Front de Libération du Quebec without proof that he took part in, plotted or even considered a terrorist act.

The association also is against punishing a person for merely attending past FLQ meetings.

The brief said more vigorous laws should be enforced, but nothing justified the "risks that we have taken . . . with the civil liberties of innocent people."

Banker New Envoy To U.S.

LONDON (AP) — The new British ambassador to the United States is an outspoken banker who says "it will be important to explain to the Americans why we must move closer to Europe."

The government announced today that the 52-year-old Earl of Cromer, head of the great 19th century banking family of Baring, will replace journalist-politician John Freeman in Britain's No. 1 diplomatic post.

Cromer was British economic minister in Washington from 1959 to 1961, and for the next five years was governor of the Bank of England. His plain speaking in that post was at times a thorn to both the Conservatives who appointed him and the Liberals who inherited him in 1964.

Slaying of Laporte Aided PM - - Levesque

QUEBEC (CP) — The federal government was saved from strong attack for invoking the War Measures Act by "the reaction of shock and horror" that followed the slaying of Pierre Laporte, Rene Levesque suggested Sunday.

The leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois told a meeting of 1,000 supporters:

"The death of (Labor Minister) Pierre Laporte was not wanted by these men (the government), but it proved very useful."

Mr. Levesque recalled that Mr. Laporte was murdered by his Front de Liberation du Quebec kidnappers on Oct. 17, the day the federal government invoked the War Measures Act in a move that outlawed the FLQ.

Recalling the announcement by Mr. Trudeau of the invocation of the Act Oct. 16, he asked:

"What would have been the reaction of the population if a day later, the body of Pierre Laporte had not been found?"

Liquor Board Boss Is Playing It Tough

TORONTO (CP) — Word has spread among Ontario restaurant operators that the province's new chief liquor policeman is tough.

A former Sunday school teacher who believes that alcohol caused the fall of Rome and Alexander the Great, James Mackey, new boss of the Ontario licence board, has said liquor laws will be "strictly enforced."

A look at his first 48 days in office shows that the former police chief of Metropolitan Toronto, who admits he "can drink a year," means it.

Since he took over the post, eight licences have been suspended, about 35 warnings issued, four beermaids in a Hamilton pub fired and Ottawa's best-known topless waitress banned because they showed a smiling girl carrying mugs of beer.

In four separate disciplinary sessions over 21 days, he temporarily lifted the licences of two Kenora pubs, three Windsor clubs, a Canadian Legion branch in Mitchell and two Toronto pubs for either permitting drunkenness or failing to serve meals with drinks in dining lounges.

Four of the eight suspensions were for 30 days, one for a first offence. The total is more than half the number issued by Judge Tyrie Robb in the whole of 1969.

Mr. Mackey denied in an interview suggestions of stepped-up knuckle-cupping:

"I don't think I have a new policy. They (restaurateurs) have to live up to the regulations of these standards."

The standards, described as archaic by former chairman Judge Robb as early as 1963, and set out in regulations and legislation, give the board what has been described as the most sweeping and unchecked powers of any provincial agency.

Once charged, an operator has no opportunity to cross-examine the inspector making the charge and if he loses his licence has no right to appeal.

Former Chief Justice James McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court said once the liquor laws are "unbounded," "dangerous" and an "extreme example of the legislative indifference to the rights of the individual."

That is how what many Toronto restaurateurs now feel.

"The tension still hasn't worn off," said an employee of mid-town restaurant that received two warnings.

"The minute an unidentified person walks in, a whole shiver goes through the room."

The feeling is similar at a downtown spaghetti house, where the owner once had his licence for 10 days and an estimated $1,500 in business because an inspector managed to get a drink without food, and at bars on the Yonge Street Strip.

Mackey took over," said the owner of a Yonge Street bar. "All of a sudden our inspector was wanting to go downstairs in the washrooms, out back places he never even thought of before."

George Brakyelis, president of the Canadian Restaurant Association, Ontario region, says:

"They're all a bit edgy. They don't know exactly what's going to happen. Big Brother is here. And the whole atmosphere is 'You better watch yourself'."

"He said he was going to enforce the law to the letter," says Jim Decorvalis, head of the association's liquor and licensed operations committee.

"And that's what he is doing."

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"I wish I'd realized earlier what size she wears —I tried drinking champagne from her shoe once at a party, and when I came to we were married."

In Museum Basement 111 Years

Aphrodite's Head Found

NEW YORK (AP) — A battered stone head found in the basement of the British Museum is from the long-lost nude Aphrodite of Cnidus by Praxiteles, one of the ancient world's most famous and copied statues, an archeologist said Sunday.

Iris C. Love, the archeologist, said the head has been removed from the museum's basement, where it gathered dust for 111 years, and is being readied for exhibit.

The chin, mouth, nose and most of the cranium have been chipped away by time, but one can see it was once the image of a beautiful woman, probably Praxiteles' mistress, Phryne, the archeologist said.

In London, a former keeper of the museum's Greek and Roman antiquities discounted Miss Love's report, but other British experts said they were reserving judgment until they could see the U.S. archeologist's evidence.

The former keeper, Prof. Bernard Ashmole of Oxford University, said Miss Love had "stirred up a mare's nest." The head did come from Cnidus, Turkey, he said, but not from the temple of Aphrodite. It was found at the site of the temple of Demeter a mile away and it seems most likely that the head came from a companion statue of Demeter's daughter Persephone," the professor said.

Records at the museum show that Sir Charles Newton, the man who found the head in 1858, believed it was the work of the Athenian sculptor Leochares, contemporary of Praxiteles.

Miss Love said she found the head in the museum basement last May.

Top Dogs Have Mixed Emotions Over Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texas and Mississippi recorded victories in United States college football games Saturday but their supporters can't be blamed for feeling it was a lost weekend.

Top-ranked Texas won a 23-14 scrambler over Baylor, for the Longhorns' 7th consecutive victory, but still lost prestige because second-ranked Notre Dame trounced 46-14 over Pittsburgh.

And Mississippi lost superquarterback Archie Manning for the season while downing Memphis State 36-14. Manning suffered a broken left arm.

Ohio State, ranked No. 3, kept pace with Texas and Notre Dame by whipping Wisconsin 34-7. Penn State—ranked No. 4 and No. 5 Michigan ran their winning strings to eight consecutive games. Nebraska clobbered Iowa State 54-39 and the Michigan Wolverines slaughtered Illinois 42-6.

Stanford, sixth ranked, came from behind to trim Washington 28-22 and nail a Rose Bowl berth for the first time in 19 years.

No. 7 Arkansas topped Rice 28-16, No. 8 Tennessee nipped South Carolina 20-18 and No. 10 Auburn blitzed Mississippi State 56-8.

Queen's University Golden Gaels scored a 29-8 win over University of Waterloo Warriors Saturday to win the 1970 Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association football championship.

Queen's finished the season with six wins and one loss for a total of 12 points.

The O-QAA champions meet University of Manitoba Bisons in the Western Bowl at Winnipeg Saturday.

McMaster finished fourth with a 2-4-1 win-loss-tie record and five points. McGill and Waterloo trailed with three and two points respectively.

Helen Lillies led the play for the Gales Saturday with a touchdown and a 70-yard run on the first play from scrimmage. Art Rochette and Brian Warrender added touchdowns, with a convert by Doug Cosak and a single by Carl Leesti rounding out the Queen's scoring.

MR. TWEEDY by Ned Riddle

"Relax, Doctor—You said you laught them everything you knew."

"Don't tell me it's something more serious than a dead battery."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've lost confidence in an otherwise excellent doctor because his has proved lately to have a closed mind to newer developments and theories.

For example, he has poohpoohed the idea that oxygen treatment will ever help the circulation in the brain of an elderly person. As I am 78, but fortunately alert mentally and active, I am not being sensitive for personal reasons.

But I have friends in my age group who have slowed up: have trouble remembering names, what they had for breakfast, etc. These are supposed evidences that their brains aren't getting sufficient blood and oxygen due to arteriosclerosis.

But I've read of some newexperiments that seem to indicate that giving oxygen treatments may help some elderly person. Is there any truth to all this? — Mr. B.

COMMENT: In 1969, E. A. Jacobs, MD, and his associates reported in the New England Journal of Medicine on beneficial effects of oxygen administered under high pressure on some senile patients with cerebral arteriosclerosis.

They made gains in "intellectual functioning" — even though transitory. Therefore, I agree with you, Mr. B., that we should hope that a way may be found to carry oxygen to brains that need it badly.

For example, there seems to be little question that oxygen treatment produces improvement in another area — that heart that has suffered a coronary thrombosis.

As long ago as 1944, Alvan L. Barach, MD of New York City, wrote: "Some of the phenomena of senescence may be due to a diminishing oxygen supply to the brain as a result of narrowing of arteriosclerotic blood vessels."

In trying to restore brain function in some cases he has recently suggested: "Inhalation of 70 to 100 per cent oxygen by mask for 10 to 15 minutes three or four times daily — a technique found useful in patients with frequent attacks of angina — also would be practical for use over long periods of time."

So you see, Mr. B., many excellent physicians and investigators still have open minds about the possible benefits of carrying oxygen to brain cells that crave more of it than they have been getting.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a moderate drinker. What I'd like to know is this. When I'm out socializing how many drinks is it safe to take, if I expect to make it home after a dinner party? In there some formula? Ordinarily I don't take more than a highball before dinner at night. But at a party, I may take three or four. — Mr. P.

COMMENT: A recent release from the National Safety Council should help. We know that the body disposes of alcohol through elimination and oxidation. This process usually takes about one hour per drink.

Although the Safety Council still believes that motorists should avoid drinking and driving, they do say an alternative for those who have been drinking or intend to, is to have only one drink per hour or to wait at least one hour per drink before driving. If this rule were followed, a person would be able to engage in social drinking and still be able to drive safely.

At least, Mr. P., you now have a formula to help you. But there is still one important derable: What do you mean by "One highball"? How strong is it? How many ounces of liquor per drink?

Oxygen May Help Curb Senescence

Three Thousand Frogs Fight Six-hour Battle

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — More than 3,000 frogs of four different varieties fought a furious battle lasting more than six hours, local reporters said Sunday. They said the frog war took place in a swampy valley beside a Hindu temple at a rubber estate near Sungai Sipul, 108 miles north of this Malaysian capital.

At first, only about 50 frogs were involved but as the numbers swelled, the reporters said, adding that about 1,000 persons assembled to watch the frogs bite and tear at each other. Many were dead at the end of the battle.

Maria Soosay, 30, who had lived for years near the area, said the war is almost an annual event.

"But they have been small fights," he said. "This is the biggest so far."

Local superstition has it that frog wars come just before big national disasters. Just 12 days before the May-Chinese race riots May 13 last year a small frog war was reported to have taken place at Butterworth, 200 miles northwest of here.

Other frog wars have been reported at various times in different parts of peninsular Malaysia. No one has so far come forward with any theory why such battles take place.

RYLSTONE — The annual Sunday school entertainment was held at the Chapel Hall on Friday evening. Refreshments were served at the end of the program.

The first card party sponsored by the Rylstone Women's Institute will be held on Saturday, November 7 at 8 p.m. at the W. hall. Three card parties are held on alternate Saturdays during winter.

Plastic Does Good Job In Body Repair Work

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"I was recently involved in an accident in my three-year-old V-8. The damage is fully covered by insurance. The rear bumper is bent and the chrome is torn off in several places, and one side of the car is slightly dented from front to rear.

"I have two repair estimates. One body shop claims that nothing but solder should be used to repair dents, and the other insists that in certain places the use of body plastic will do a good job. As the latter shop's estimate is a little less, the insurance adjuster prefers that they do the work.

"Both repair shops have suggested replacing the damaged bumper with an exchange unit that has been straightened and rechromed.

"Two questions. What is your opinion on body plastic? Will an exchange bumper be as good as a new one?" — Mr. P. L., Redcoake, Ont.

It is sometimes said that solder should be used only as a body filler, but when applied properly and used in the right areas body plastic does an excellent job.

Body plastic has been in use for decades and today practically all body shops use it and guarantee it. The best used to melt and apply solder, but it's warp and destroy a long body panel. Or at least, it may lead to several extra hours of labor to straighten it. No heat is required to apply body plastic and, therefore, its use eliminates the possibility of warpage.

However, if used in areas that are subjected to constant flexing, plastic fillers may crack or chip. Before applying it to sections that are filled with small holes, rivets or pieces of solid metal should first be welded into place to support the plastic. If this is not done, rusting action could gradually loosen the plastic and it would drop away. Just a minute hole at the base of the plastic will allow dampness to enter and destroy the bond.

When used with discretion, body plastics formulated by reputable manufacturers can reduce body-repair costs, with today's increased cost of labor and material, price as well as quality of workmanship is a major consideration.

But beware of extremely low repair estimates. A fast-buck artist can patch up rusted-out bodies with plaster and putty and after covering it up with a coat of paint it may look great. But shortly after, the fillers will drop away and the rust will reappear.

The important thing is to find a reputable body shop which will thoroughly examine the existing rust damage and come up with a reasonable price for a lasting job. Whether solder or plastic is used is not the main issue. It's where and how they are used that really matter.

Regarding bumpers, they can usually be straightened and rechromed if not too severely twisted. In almost all cases, damaged bumpers are required as an exchange basis. When properly repaired and plated they are as good as a brand-new unit.

Warning. With vehicles that have been internally rustproofed, the use of heat when repairing a damaged body panel will likely melt the inside rustproofing material and it will flow away. Newly-repaired sections should be inspected and re-rustproofed if necessary.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Mentally Ill Slighted

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I'd like to share with you today part of a letter I received from a reader:

"It's degrading to me," she writes, "to see how often the term 'former mental patient' is used. It's uncanny that labels such as 'former heart patient' or 'former Catholic' or 'former Democrat' are not used to label people committing crimes.

"Is our society so naive to believe that every person who has been in a mental hospital is so-called 'cured'? Don't they know that there are different types and degrees of mental illness? Do people who have been in mental hospitals have to walk on eggs for the rest of their lives because they have a label?

"There are as many, if not more, emotionally ill people walking the streets as there are in hospitals. It seems to me the issues is whether you're intelligent enough to recognize their illness and receive proper treatment, and have understanding families who do.

"If one has heart trouble, he seeks professional help, so why do people think emotional illness is any different or in any way shameful? The ignorance of society is appalling.

"Will you comment?"

Gladly. I agree with every word you say, and have written about this psychosomatic illness more than 20 years. The label, "former mental patient," is a stigma that lasts for many people forever, when it should be forgotten or at least used as a compliment to their insight and recuperative powers.

Using this phrase — and the newspapers, I am afraid, are as guilty as anybody else in this regard — is usually an meaningless as referring to St. Paul as "a former persecutor of Christians," or to Gandhi as "a former convict," or to Thomas Jefferson as a "former slave-holder."

Indeed, some of the finest and greatest of men in history have had breakdowns of one sort or another. Lincoln was the victim of severe depression and melancholia with suicidal tendencies, and might have been treated clinically had there been any mental therapy in his age.

At the same time, while this reader's indictment is just, it must be pointed out that we have come a long way in the last century, in our attitude toward, and treatment of, mental illness. Psychological understanding and compassion — triggered mostly by the magnificent breakthrough of Freud and his colleagues — are vastly superior to the fearful and shameful atmosphere of the last century. The tag, "former mental patient," may be the last remaining vestige of our primitive world; and it, too, may pass, even in our own lifetime.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 10

Your birthday today: Steady effort is your passport to growth and achievement in this coming year. You have beneficial influences working for you when you meet people's needs halfway. This should be thought of as a pressure year rather than a time of arrival. So much more is yet to be achieved once you build the base that is within your reach now. Ties of affection quietly deepen. Today's natives are sensitive to vibration and color, often use this talent in art and design work.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Sudden moves defeat their own purposes today. Consult others for and evening are fine hours for dismantling anything, clearing the decks, but not for decision-making.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Find things to do which do not depend on others: check your goals. Argumentative people are that way because of misunderstanding, confusion. Don't add to it.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Expect differences, lost mail, failure of attention. If you controversial, wait and let things up ahead. Retire early. Pray.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): There is much demand on your time. Assign priorities in your own mind, first things first. Postpone decisions; let nothing and nobody rush you.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Find out all about acquaintances both new and old, before involving yourself in their schemes. Travel is convenient. Take-exceptional care, if you must go.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Let well enough alone in your family today. Chances are you're harsh comment, realize it is not of your making, wait for clarification. Reaction now would be premature.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Forcing issues will boomerang. Postpone promises or major decisions. Experiment; buy something you secretly impulse-act, watch it fall of its purpose in some subtle manner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Don't allow emotional stress to override your well-worked-out plans. The opposition comes from people who understand little of what you are doing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Any squabble swiftly becomes a quarrel. Easy does it. There is an excuse for skipping out — just be discreet and don't make a scene.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): This is a cross-questions-oblique — start of day or which matters are best kept simple and to the point. Let core-cumb go unresolved where you can.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Expect decisions to become confused. Tact with friends will things take on a different aspect once this period is past.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Even rather safe-looking projects are wild gambles today. Seek the fun side of life, make no promises. Fast, gaudy and interesting bits of fact come to you unbidden.

Midway King, Conklin, Dies

HAMILTON (CP) — James Wesley (Patty) Conklin, known for his honest and forthright approach in four decades of operating midways at Canadian fairs and exhibitions, died in hospital here Sunday night. He was 78.

In failing health for three years, he entered hospital Aug. 28, the opening day of the Canadian National Exhibition.

Born in Brooklyn, N.Y., Patty got his start in the carnival business when his father died in 1920 leaving him $2,200. Patty bought 28 gross of kewpie dolls and headed for St. Boniface, Man., to try his luck on the Western Canada fair circuit.

Within a few years, he was able to buy into a travelling show and by 1933 the Conklin Shows, with Patty and his brother Frank as partners, were ready to move east.

Patty hit the big time in 1937 when he landed the midway operation contract at the Canadian National Exhibition, a franchise he held ever since.

In 1953, Patty accepted the challenge of building the $2.5 million Cayway at the Seattle world's fair, but he broke away while the fair was running to supervise preparations for the CNE.

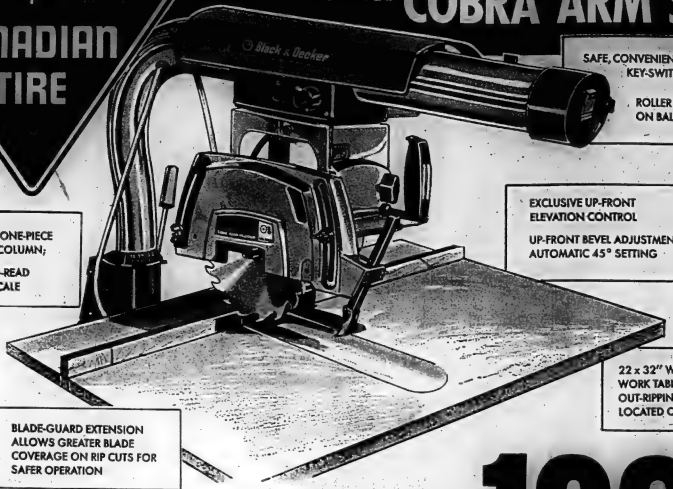
"World's fairs come and go, but the CNE goes on forever," he said.

Always his slogan was: "Give the sucker a break."

He was nicknamed Patty because he always stood pat on a deal, even if it was sealed by no more than a handshake. He personally policed his midway operations, firing dishonest employees on the spot.

"We never cheat a kid," he said. "You'll find that even when we're busiest they get just as long a ride as when things are slow. Those are my orders."

Although he turned over much of the day-to-day operation of the Shows to his son Jim in recent years, Patty was the master of every facet of the business from the technical details of a new ride to the percentage of winners in a game of chance.



"The business is a combination of bohunk, salesmanship and sex," Patty once said.

"Most of these rides throw the girl against the fellow so he can be protective towards her. I believe in helping the natural instincts."

Man Who Saved France Mourned By the World

Police Pursue Kidnap Trail

MONTREAL (CP) — Detectives, armed with names and other details, Monday began to concentrate the search for kidnapped James Cross in areas near the British trade commissioner's home on Mount Royal.

Pressure appeared to be mounting on the kidnappers to accept a government offer of safe transport to Cuba in return for Mr. Cross, 49, kidnapped Oct. 5 from his Redpath Crescent home.

Meanwhile, the Quebec government announced it will ask that federal troops remain on special duty in the province until mid-December.

Justice Minister Jerome Choquette of Quebec said pulling out the army would be premature because the Laporte-Cross kidnappers are still at large, terrorist planning is still being checked out, considerable amounts of dynamite are still missing and the public needs security.

He suggested Quebec may ask Ottawa for temporary press censorship powers if the media use FLQ propaganda under the guise of news.

"If there are abuses, I don't think I would have any choice but to ask the federal government to be more severe," he said.

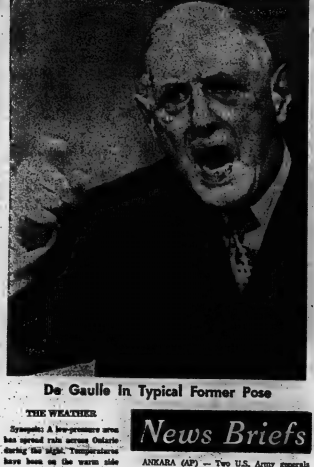
FLQ communiques since the kidnapping have been highly political in content, urging armed revolution and blasting "U.S. imperialism" and federal, provincial and municipal governments for social ills in Quebec.

Shortly after Mr. Laporte's body was found Oct. 18, police issued warrants for five men and one of them, 19-year-old student Bernard Lortie, was arrested last Friday night in an apartment on Queen Mary Road, near the University of Montreal.

Lortie gave details of the Laporte kidnapping at a coroner's inquest Saturday. Another witness, Mrs. Jean-Paul Rose, testified that her sons Jacques, 23, and Paul, 27, and Francis Simard, 23, admitted that the Cross kidnapping was probably "the work of Jacques, Pierre and Alain," and otherwise identified.

Mr. Cross was kidnapped by the Liberation cell of the Front de Liberation du Quebec, a terrorist group outlawed Oct. 16. The Chenier cell, named after a hero of the 1837 rebellion in Quebec, abducted Mr. Laporte.

FLQ communiques said the Diespe cell "executed" Mr. Laporte.



The justice minister said, however, the FLQ has made no move to accept the government's offer of safe passage to Cuba.

The offer, made the night Mr. Laporte was slain, has entailed setting aside part of St. Helen's Island, site of Expo 67, as Cuban territory.

The Lortie arrest came four days after federal and provincial governments offered a total of $150,000 for information on the kidnappings.

A police spokesman said it came as a result of a routine check of a list of telephone numbers found at the Armstrong Street hideout in St. Hubert where Mr. Laporte was held and slain.

De Gaulle Dies At Rural Home

FROM REUTER-AFP

COLOMBEY-LES-DEUX-EGLISES (CP) — Charles de Gaulle, towering figure of modern French history, died suddenly in his country home Monday night and will be buried in the simple churchyard of this east French village.

His death, at the age of 79, shocked France and the world, and appeared to have resulted from a condition often linked to a hardening of the arteries.

Initial reports said he had died after a heart attack while playing a game of solitaire.

Informed sources said later that de Gaulle died as a result of a burst aneurism—a swelling of the wall of an artery. In the general's case, it was believed to be a result of the hardening of the artery wall with advancing age.

In some cases, where doctors are warned by pain or symptoms, aneurismal conditions can be corrected, particularly in young and fit patients. Even after the aneurism bursts, it is sometimes possible to save the patient by swift surgery if the resulting hemorrhage develops slowly enough.

But de Gaulle died within half an hour, and experts said this indicated the hemorrhage was too abrupt and severe to allow effective treatment.

A little before 7 p.m. de Gaulle stepped out of his office into his country retreat, put both hands before his waist, and told his wife Yvonne, "Oh, how it hurts."

'Suffered Terribly'

He slipped to the floor, and a servant immediately called the doctor and Rev. Claude Jeagry, the village priest. Father Jeagry said that when he arrived he was hurried to the second-floor room where he saw de Gaulle stretched out on the floor, fully dressed in a dark suit.

Father Jeagry said de Gaulle was not dead, but seemed to be unconscious.

"He was suffering terribly," the priest said.

"I gave him the last rites of the church."

An earlier account had said de Gaulle was seated in an armchair playing cards and waiting for the evening television newscast when he died.

The priest said that when he left the de Gaulle home the former president was dead. Father Jeagry was asked to promise to keep the news silent. More de Gaulle, he said, reacted to her husband's death "with perfect dignity, even nobility."

De Gaulle died at approximately 7:30 p.m. Monday night (1:30 p.m. EST), 13 days before his 80th birthday.

Assembly Informed

The French National Assembly had just opened its daily session in Paris when the president of the chamber, Achille Peretti, announced the news. The session was immediately adjourned until Thursday.

Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas hurried to the Elysee Palace to confer with President Georges Pompidou when the news reached Paris. A special cabinet meeting was called amid talk of a state funeral, but an Elysee spokesman read a statement prepared by de Gaulle in 1952 saying he wanted to be buried without ceremony in his family plot at Colombey.

"I do not want a national funeral," de Gaulle wrote, adding that he did not want the president, cabinet ministers, national assemblymen or local officials in attendance.

French radio stations interrupted their programs to announce the general's death, and the television gave details of his life and played somber music.

Aside from his long and distinguished political career, de Gaulle was a prolific writer and the latest volume of his memoirs appeared only last month ahead of schedule.

The general's death closed a chapter in modern French history, one which he lowered for many years.

Although he had lived in retirement at Colombey, 100 miles east of Paris, since his resignation as president in April, 1969, the general's shadow still loomed large over France and his successor, Pompidou.

Ark Royal Hits Soviet Destroyer

LONDON (AP) — Britain's biggest warship, the aircraft carrier Ark Royal, was in collision with a Soviet destroyer during British naval manoeuvres in the Mediterranean, the admiralty said today.

Two crew members of the Soviet warship are missing, the admiralty said. There were no casualties aboard the Ark Royal.

An Admiralty spokesman said the 43,060-ton Ark Royal was on combined manoeuvres with the RAF and the collision occurred in the Mediterranean east of Malta Monday night.

Ryerson Men See Robarts

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Premier John Robarts announced Monday that he will meet today with the principals in the pending sale of Ryerson Press to an American-owned publishing company by the United Church of Canada.

The premier's announcement highlighted a day in which the proposed sale of Ryerson to McGraw-Hill Co. of Canada Ltd. was blasted by a group of Canadian publishers, discussed in the House of Commons and defended in Calgary.

Mr. Roberts told the Ontario legislature he would meet representatives of both Ryerson and McGraw-Hill in his office at 11 a.m. EST "to see what can be done."

He said William Davis, Ontario's minister of education, and Stanley Randall, minister of trade and development, may also be present.

John McMillan, president of McGraw-Hill, said in an interview Monday that if the church "approached us and asked if we would consider dissolving the sale, we would listen to them."

Quebec Libre Still Lingers

De Gaulle's Death Significant to Canada

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The death of Charles de Gaulle is an event of great historic significance for Canada since the general played such a prominent role in Canadian politics following his 1967 shout of "vive le Quebec libre" in Montreal.

De Gaulle's passing, mourned by all who revere the giants of history, may make it easier for the French government under President Georges Pompidou to continue the process of rendering Franco-Canadian relations less frigid than they had become under the general.

De Gaulle began taking a serious interest in Canada long before his dramatic arrival at Quebec City in July, 1967, and the emotional procession to Montreal, which was climaxed by his explosive proclamation of hope for a "free Quebec."

In his latest volume of memoirs, published only last month, de Gaulle wrote of seeing "the inherent contradictions in the (Canadian) federation" during his visit to Canada in 1960.

The coexistence of French- and English-speaking Canadians seemed to him at the time "only a compromise of submission and not at all national unity."

He recalled telling then Prime Minister Diefenbaker that for France to commit itself wholeheartedly to closer ties with Canada, the "French people" in Canada "must, like any other, be able to determine its own future."

By that time, the general—who moulded the Fifth French Republic first as prime minister and later as president—was beginning to implement his vision of a solid sense of community among the world's French-speaking countries.

This was the celebrated concept of "Francophonie" and Canada, as well as former French dependencies in Africa and elsewhere, was part of it, together with European nations such as Belgium and Switzerland.

Some observers, looking back on de Gaulle's political career after his resignation as president in 1969, saw the beginning of his downturn in his performance during the Canadian visit two years previously.

Many Frenchmen were shocked by what was considered in Ottawa and other capitals as the visiting president's statement of support for the separatists of Quebec.

Although widely accused of interference in the internal affairs of a foreign country, de Gaulle was not to be so easily rebuked and followed up his July utterance four months later with insistence that Quebec should be raised "to the level of a sovereign state with mastery of its national existence."

"Of course this state of Quebec, freely and in equality, must work out with the rest of Canada the details of their cooperation," the president told an eagerly-anticipated news conference in November, 1967.

Many separatists in Quebec reacted joyfully to de Gaulle's Montreal outburst but others argued that the situation in the province was approaching crisis proportions well before the general appeared on the scene.

Meanwhile, Ottawa was forced to tolerate frigid treatment of its representatives in Paris as de Gaulle's government showered Quebec officials there with special attentions and gave similar red-carpet treatment later to French-speaking visitors from the Maritimes.

The situation, anguished to a war of nerves, between the French government and the federal authorities.

Pupil-Teacher Ratio Higher in Hastings

The ratio of pupils to teachers in local schools has been maintained this year at a higher figure than the provincial average for 1970.

According to calculations given last night to Hastings county board of education, the ratio in elementary schools is 26 to 1 and in secondary school is 17.22 to 1.

Last year the provincial average was 25.3 to 1 for elementary schools and 18.4 to 1 for secondary schools.

However, deleted from the elementary school calculations are 16 teachers who are required to maintain programs in industrial arts, home economics, French and instrumental music — proposals not offered on a county-wide basis. Another 14 teachers were recruited for programs such as speech therapy and they are also deleted from the calculations. If these back-ups are included in the over-all total, the elementary school ratio would be lowered to 25.1.

As of Sept. 30, 1970 the board employed 1,136 full - time teachers and 22 part-time.

Comparable figures for the Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board are not yet available. But ratepayers in a brief presented to the board two weeks ago, estimated the pupil-teacher ratio at about 30 to 1. The separate school figures apply only to elementary schools.

The pupil-teacher ratio does not indicate the number of pupils in each classroom.

Included in the calculations are teachers who spend all or part of their time on administrative duties, including principals, vice - principals, librarians, guidance teachers and department heads.

Cable TV Outlets Urged to Provide Local Programs

Pressure should be exerted on community cablevision companies to produce local information programs, the Quinte District Labor Council was told last night.

Cable television is a public service and should be used to inform the public on local issues and events, Robert Andrus, QDLC president said.

The QDLC and other community groups begin pressing for such a service, said Mr. Andrus, but a decision is made in the Belleville area were "owned by one organization, mainly."

"If we don't become interested, it's going to be up to one person, or one small interest, what you are going to get on cable television."

Cablevision companies can, if they wish, program such features, he said.

"And they can — if there is enough pressure applied — provide local information over that television. And this, I think, should be looked into by everyone."

Council Would Give Approval To Bus Fare Increase - - 'If'

Adult fares for Belleville bus riders could be due for a 25 per cent increase, but at the same time senior citizens could be given consideration.

This was indicated at city council yesterday following a lengthy discussion on a request from the Belleville Transit Commission for council approval to an adult fare increase from 20 to 25 cents.

If the increase is granted, strip tickets would sell at five for $1 instead of the present six for $1.

Students and children's fares would remain the same.

Falling revenues resulting from a decrease in the number of riders since August, was given as the reason for the fare increase request.

Without a fare increase and an increase in the number of riders, transit commission officials forecast a total annual deficit of more than $70,000 instead of the estimate of $58,000.

But city council begged in approving the fare increase without more information or some consideration being given toward reducing fares for senior citizens.

Alderman Donald Soutter wanted to know the reasons for the decrease in number of riders and whether consideration had been given to the possibility of a still further decrease if fares were increased.

Mayor J. Russell Mills felt there was little council could do except go along with the request although he felt the commission should fill up the empty bus seats by giving senior citizens free rides.

"This is a progressive city and the senior citizens are deserving of it," he said.

Alderman Jack Ireland noted that the blind are given free rides with the transit commission being reimbursed by the city.

But Mayor Scott said he wouldn't agree to such a system.

Alderman Soutter noted that the province was doing a study of municipal transit operations throughout Ontario with the view of a possible subsidy being granted. He suggested the fare increase request could be premature.

It was suggested that the transit commission be given the opportunity to come up with the proposal for giving senior citizens consideration.

Alderman Gerald Joyce felt Mayor Scott's amendment was a bit dictatorial and brought in another amendment asking that the commission "give consideration" to senior citizens.

"I'd like to see something worked out — maybe reduced fares for senior citizens during off-peak hours."

The alderman's amendment was carried by an 8-2 recorded vote, and the original motion to grant the requested fare increase was changed to allow the transit commission to come up with some proposal for senior citizens.

In the motion council indicated willingness to grant the fare increase "provided" the commission gives consideration "to some change in the fare scheme for senior citizens."

Special Meeting Before Endorsing

The Quinte District Labor Council plans to hold a special meeting before endorsing candidates in this year's local municipal elections.

The meeting will be held after nominations for local government offices are completed later this month.

The QDLC made the decision last night after hearing a request for support from a candidate for public utilities commissioner in Trenton, businessman Charles Hilton.

The QDLC already has endorsed the re-election of two of its members — Trenton councillor George Lewis and Hastings and Prince Edward Separate School Board trustee, Willaim Sinclair.

Trenton utilities commissioner Clifford Baker also has requested QDLC endorsement.

Board Could End Up in Red

Hastings county board of education may end the year about $60,000 in the red.

The deficit position may reduce the deficit, business administrator Kenneth Wormald told the board last night.

The board approved a series of transfers of money from one budget category, to another to match overexpenditures in some departments with underexpenditures in others.

Director of education Eric Runacres indicated that the cost of teachers' salaries was underestimated by $250,000 at the time the $17,804,000 budget was drawn up early in the year.

Part of the reason for the underestimation was a clerical error. Salary negotiations were settled at less than the board expected, but the wrong figure was entered in the budget calculations. As a result, $129,000 was removed in error from the total estimated teachers' salary costs.

The remaining $121,000 overexpenditure in teachers' salaries results from increased use of supply teachers and re-categorization of teachers who earned credits in winter and summer school courses during the year.

"This is unique to my experience; I have never had it happen before," said Mr. Runacres of the $60,000 extra the board had to pay this year because so many of its teachers upgraded their qualifications.

The extra amount spent on supply teachers because of the illness of regular teachers is now the subject of a staff study and analysis.

But by budget transfers, almost the entire sum overexpended will be returned. If board revenues do not increase to cover the remaining $60,000, outstanding purchase orders can be cancelled at the end of the year to balance the books, Mr. Wormald said.

QDLC Stand:

Sale of Ryerson Press Should Be Protested

The public — including students — should strongly protest the sale of Ryerson Press to an American publisher, the Quinte District Labor Council was told last night.

The council endorsed an Oshawa Federation of Labor stand last week against the proposed sale of the textbook publishers, and will circulate its resolution to district senior government politicians.

"I think the people of this province should speak out strongly on this," said QDLC member Douglas Sword, of Belleville.

Mr. Sword said he was amazed that students, who readily participate in demonstrations on other issues, have not triumphed any protest against the proposed sale.

Canadians should make known their dislike of industry being sold to the United States he said.

"We don't like, in particular, our textbook industry being sold to the Americans," said Mr. Sword.

Robert Andrus, QDLC president, noted the OFL at a convention last week had thoroughly aired criticism of the proposed Ryerson Press sale.

Market's Last Stand

Only a few stands remain on the market square as the fresh vegetable season draws to a close. Marketers Gerald Murphy of RR 2, Belleville, Ross Wight of Wellington, and Earl Onderdonk of Carrying Place, all agreed that weather has a lot to do with attendance of marketers at the square. "A few years ago there was some talk about using the arena as a closed market, year-round (as Brantford has) but I think maybe the large stores opposed it too much," was one comment. "Maybe with the new arena, this might yet come about."

One Found, One Lost

KALADAR (Staff) — One of two deer hunters missing since yesterday in the Moira-Salmon Lake area of the Quinte district, was found safe late this morning.

Provincial police received a report about 10.30 a.m. that James Wilson, 53, missing in dense bush near Buckshot Lake, about 25 miles northeast of here since noon Monday, was found by searchers this morning.

The report indicated Mr. Wilson, whose home address was not known by police here was suffering no ill effects after a night in the bush.

Meantime, a search was being organized by police west of Highway 41, in Effingham township, for Douglas Stone, 32, missing since 9 a.m. Monday.

The search for Mr. Stone, whose address also is unknown, was being concentrated near a lumber camp operated by Sawyer Stoll Lumber Company.

Police said if the ground search fails to find the missing hunter, the air force at CFB Trenton could be requested to send spotter aircraft into the area.

According to police, the vehicles came into collision just after Tooley's vehicle turned onto Dundas Street from Herchimer Street.

Damage to the vehicles was estimated at $1,000.

Remembrance Day A Challenge Says Speaker

Belleville Rotarians yesterday observed two minutes' silence in memory of the fallen of two world wars and heard the Rev. Laurie Sutherland of St. Andrews' Presbyterian Church suggest that Canadians cannot go away from tomorrow's Remembrance Day unchallenged.

"We dare not fail to challenge the generation that has grown up since 1945," said Mr. Sutherland, adding that this was a difficult task and films like the Battle of Britain held little if anything for the majority of today's movie audiences. They did not teach today's society anything or provide any challenge toward the limitation or elimination of war.

"We realize that the hopes of two armistice days within 27 years have not been reached yet. But whether our individual lives are affected much by the failure, or our actions much determined by it, is another question."

Present at the lunch was Miss Edith Green, who has succeeded Miss Hilda Lane as Belleville branch nurse of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

A native of Deseronto, Miss Green received part of her education at Belleville Collegiate. She studied public health nursing at the University of Toronto and received a B.Sc. at the University of Western Ontario. She spent almost a year at Belleville General Hospital and latterly has been with the medical services division of the Department of Health and Welfare.

One Contract Approved For Sidney St. Bridge

Construction of the new Sidney Street bridge over the CN double tracks will be carried out in one contract instead of under two as had been originally proposed.

This was agreed yesterday by city council as authorization was given to consulting engineers Dames and Smith to make the necessary plan revisions.

The original intention of building the new four - lane bridge in two stages will still be carried out but construction of both stages will be let as one contract.

Cost of the new bridge with land acquisition is now estimated at $1,041,709 with the city's share given as $368,871. The Highways department, transport commission and railway will contribute to the cost of the overpass.

Revision of plans to provide for construction under one contract will cost an estimated $5,000, but the single contract will result in a saving of up to $17,000.

Council's original intention had been to construct stage 1 of the bridge this year and to build stage 2 next year.

But financing problems were foreseen if the original schedule was carried out and it was decided to delay construction by one year.

Now, estimated costs of the bridge have gone up, but under new grant policy, the city will receive a 50 per cent provincial subsidy for the bridge instead of the former one-third.

Property acquisition for the approaches of the new bridge is estimated at $258,530.

However, all property acquisition is still not completed and City Engineer Wilbur Purcell, in a report to council urges that this be done as soon as possible if an early construction start is to be expected next spring.

Construction plans for the new bridge calls for stage 1 to be constructed immediately west of the present obsolete structure. When this is completed and put into use, the old bridge will be removed and stage 2 of the new bridge completed.

In this way traffic will be able to continue to use the overpass while construction is in progress.

Manager to Seek BSPB Approval

At the regular meeting of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, Thursday, at 7:30 p.m., in council chambers, a request from J. R. Reynolds, City Manager, seeking confirmation of the appointment of the City Solicitor as solicitor for the board, will be tendered in the form of a letter.

The city solicitor, John C. Miller, BA, LLB, entered employment with the city on Aug. 4 at a salary of $10,000.

As well as handling the legal affairs of the city, Mr. Miller's salary has been drawn down to include the Utilities Commission, the Parking Authority, the Transit Commission, the Board of Parks Management, the Board of Police Commissioners and the Planning Board.

These various authorities, boards and commissions have the authority to appoint their own solicitor.

It is because of this authority that the city manager will request the planing board's appointment of the city solicitor to handle its legal transactions.

Upon receiving the written appointment of the BSPB and possible suggestions and comments regarding salary allocations, the city manager will take the written approvals before city council.

More on Dissent

Maybe the prosecution will have difficulty making those seditious charges in Quebec stick. At one of the defendants said, he wants to know of what act, of what omission I am accused . . ." Well, that will be up to the prosecution and the jury in the trial scheduled for January.

Nevertheless from five of the accused at the preliminary hearing there came shouts, slogans and profanity as they were led from the court. These manifestations of latter-day behavior in themselves do not constitute sedition, but they are nevertheless synonomous with the kind of political dissent that is familiar to most of us today.

The Chicago Seven trial was a typical example some months back.

A variation, moreover, of this modern phenomenon of dissent, occurred at a recent conference on social change in Winnipeg. It was called Milieu '70 and as described in part by The Globe and Mail's Frances Russell the deliberations supposedly were a "constant assertion of concern for fellow man" and readiness to accept ideas. Yet it was here, according to reporter Russell, that "a chilling, three-hour attack on the humanity of a man occurred simply because he was a member of the federal cabinet."

Minister Without Portfolio Robert Stanbury was "verbally pummelled" for some two hours. "When he answered questions, he was told he should listen. When he listened, he was told he was vague and evasive. When he was told governments were not doing enough and he suggested other fields for action, he was attacked for destroying local control."

"The barrage of conflicting criticisms," the report said, "finally got to him. His replies became more halting and finally they stopped entirely. He sat in front of the audience with his head down."

How can such conduct be condoned, even in the name of our so-called participatory democracy? Is this dissent — or is it near-anarchy? Is it democracy or the ignorance of the mob? Is it useful, open debate — or the planned, deliberate and offensively phrased rantings of the New Left?

One thing is sure, it is new. Call it participatory democracy if you will, but there is this other dimension to it, a destructiveness and intolerance that is the hallmark of political activism today.

'Escape Artist'

In an age of materialism and violence — of murder, rape and sudden death — in an era when politics are thrusting themselves upon the public more on an increasingly vicarious degree, it is a pleasure to escape occasionally into the world of art.

The CBC special on the 100th anniversary of composer Franz Lehar was such an occasion. The hour-long program of his music, with songs, waltzes and operettas that captivated three generations during Vienna's Golden Age.

The Merry Widow — and much else — against a background of Vienna in the days of the Austro-Hungarian Empire.

Writer-narrator Orlo Lowry's engaging accent and dialogue were just right. At one point his narration went like this: "Escape? (there followed an eloquent shrug of the shoulders) . . . Art? Well, let's say Lehar was an outstanding escape artist!"

In other words he was not in the tradition of the great classical composers. Rather he was the forerunner of the Rodgers and Hart, Rodgers and Hammerstein, Jerome Kern, Cole Porter era of light classical, a romanticist whose rich melodies illuminated his day and live on in our own harsh times.

B.C. Threat

At the height of the FLQ menace in Quebec it came as rather a surprise to learn of support for the terrorists among left-wing radicals in Vancouver, even a suggestion there might be FLQ cells in the city.

But perhaps it is not so surprising in view of the recent influx of hippies, dropouts and dissidents into the city. Now there is a warning from the senior military officer in British Columbia of the possibility of Quebec-style violence breaking out in the western provinces.

Considering such a potential, let us hope that the precautionary steps to counter this threat will be taken now. They were not taken in Quebec when they should have been, with what appalling consequences Canadians are now fully aware.

Senior Citizens Organize

750,000 Signatures Aim of "Pension Power" Members

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It is going to put an awful lot of people, but a large new power bloc, the 800,000 senior citizens of Ontario receiving Old Age Pensions are starting to organize.

They now have a cadre of dedicated leaders sitting out across the country to organize some 1,500,000 other seniors.

A young activist leader in Toronto's Yorkville hippie district, Alwyn Ambrose, has been heading a militant campaign for more public funds for free youth hostels, has laughed over the composition of the pensioners at the Treasury door as a blend of "the unbeautiful people of the Order of Sir."

Cute crack, perhaps, except that hippie Andrews could not understand that it many of the pensioners are, in fact, "unbeautiful people," as he sees them, there is a very obvious explanation for their lack of beauty.

They lost it through all those long, hard grubby years of depression and war trying to make themselves what Alwyn Andrews and his shaggy tribes all over the country demand be made for them.

In fact the pensioners have the gall to organize most come as a shock not only to so-called alienated youth, the pot apologists, poverty professionals, welfare architects and other Treasury raiders, but to governments, too.

Imagine! The cheek of those "unbeautiful people", always so silent, now starting to speak up and ask for just a little more of what they spent a life-time creating — the national wealth that existed for the good Canadian life.

What, only recently, spurred this "silent majority" of some 1,700,000 pensioners to do what so many others have been doing, simply learn to speak with a single strong voice?

Perhaps it has been the preoccupation of the federal Progressive Conservative Party with the "demands" of the young and the repeated "warning" by Leader Robert Stanfield that Tory survival depends on the youth vote.

It was the keynote sounded in the report that the recently retired National Organizer of the Conservatives, Malcolm Wickson, left with Mr. Stanfield.

"The party's present base," he counselled Conservatives alarmedly planning the coming election campaign, "is elderly and rural, so the emphasis has to be on the enlisting of the young urban voter."

Fair Advantage, perhaps, but the Conservatives are forgetting that Sir John A. Macdonald and John Diefenbaker took them to the party's greatest triumphs ever by not just disregarding and even forgetting the older voter, but making a very special and prolonged effort to win the support of senior citizens.

A blot of 1,700,000 or more pensioners is something for any politician to respect and cultivate. Add to it the other millions in the 50-65 year bracket and even among the "over 65s."

What may have turned on the Tories so is the unexpected act of those new voters between 18 and 21.

Could be, too that while they are not altogether with the "Never - Trust - Anybody over - 30" swing set, they seem far too compulsively ready to trust that new party of what is to the right, the Conservative way.

What also seems to have in other citizens very upset has been the regimentation made by some organized groups that if not outrightly opposed to withhold from pensioners who have become aware the no - called blessings of the Welfare State may be drawn.

It seems inconceivable that such a population should have been made, but made it has been in a Royal Commission on Income Security.

Inconceivable especially when you consider that in every sense of the word they, these humble have been earned. Paid for, too, in income and other taxation.

Inconceivable, but true, confirmed by Senator David A. Croll, Chairman of the Senate Poverty Committee, not just a single representative, he says, "but one voice from almost all of those new voters between 18 and 21.

But just because it was a representation, it does not mean that it will be accepted and be heard a recommendation of the Senate Committee — nor, and this is even more important, that movement it is well on its way into the federal Government's White Paper on Social Welfare, long under preparation by National Health and Welfare Minister John Munro and his resident experts.

Be warned, though, it could be a problem.

Even then it would still have to clear the barrier of both the House of Commons and the Senate.

By now, then is the time for the senior citizens in the province in defence against what so very many of them see as a threatened grave social injustice.

Organizing is just what they are doing. Mrs. Jim Campbell, Penfold, 94, and Reginald Watson, 67, both of Toronto.

At the moment they are on an opening western swing, starting at Thunder Bay through to Victoria, Lake Cowichan, Quebec and the Atlantic Provinces. Their message: write your MP. They want an initial 750,000 letters to hit the House of Commons with this new "Pension Power."

In the next edition of Offbeat: How they are setting up their organization, and what their program and priorities.

PM Versus 'Boobs, Windbags and Second-Raters'

Poet Irving Layton Roasts Canada's Subversives

Letter to The Globe and Mail

Like the good Membership he is, David Lewis hears aside at the wrong questions. Instead of questioning the wisdom of the War Measures Act or the motives of the Prime Minister of his own, no doubt, are lily-pure) he should inquire why it took kidnappings and assassination to alert the federal Government to the terroristic nature of the FLQ. What I and many others would like to know is this: what's being done about the tie-up between the FLQ and the regimes in Algeria, Cuba and Jordan and the training in guerilla tactics the former are receiving in those countries?

How deeply did the FLQ infiltrate into the police forces in Quebec and the higher echelons of the civil service and trade unions, not to mention the universities and the CBC? What if anything does the Government propose to do about the spread of Maoist - Communist subversion in our schools and colleges? Do we need more bombings, more kidnappings, more assassinations before this country really begins to come down hard on those who are hostile to our democratic institutions and are bending all their efforts t o destroy them?

Mr. Lewis and others like him think there were enough laws and statutes on the books to have dealt with the crisis in Quebec; if necessary, more could have been added. Agreed, but would they have established the Government in good up the nucleus of the FLQ and forestalled its conspiratorial network? Would they have given heart to the bewildered inhabitants of the province and stopped the swift erosion of public confidence in its elected representatives, many of whom are paralyzed by fear and indecision? Anarchy and confusion is what the FLQ revolutionaries and terrorists aimed at, hoping they would slide into power on its greasy surface; and anarchy and confusion they might have achieved had the War Measures Act not been invoked.

I sympathize with Pierre Trudeau having to struggle with a collection of boobs, windbags, and second-raters fields and outside the House of Commons. They are not fit to tie the laces of his ski-boots. However, he may take comfort in the thought that they speak for no one but themselves, for the overwhelming majority of Canadians are not interested in clever sophistries, debating points or other ready-made opiniums of little men. They are concerned with life and liberty and they have no doubt as to who, at this juncture, they can rely on for their preservation.

Irving Layton,
York University, Toronto.

Letter to The Toronto Telegram

As a taxpayer, law-abiding citizen and a Canadian, I think I speak for all of those in this category — both French and English speaking.

I am sick to death of babbling imbeciles (students and professors alike) who find sanctuary on our university campuses. They are, in my opinion, unbalanced-trained militants, wrecking crews, flag-bar-ing parasites and a good percentage of them are engaged in slow suicide via drugs.

I am fed up with leftist segment all across this country. They are constantly being exploited in the news . . . .

Cry for the youth of today who feeler on our campuses — never! I will however, shed tears for decent, self-respecting self-supporting citizens; and for senior citizens who built this country and who, in my opinion, are receiving too little reward for their past efforts on our behalf. Many of them are starving in this land of opportunity today because they cannot afford the high rents and high cost of living in some of our major cities.

Instead of giving all our tax money into our education system (which is not appreciated by those who benefit from it) we should give more aid to the deserving citizens of Canada.

I will also shed tears for the victims of two world wars who fought to preserve freedom in this country. No, I will never cry for the uncontributing youth of this generation.

And, I cry for Mr. Cross and Mr. Laporte — both innocent victims of student - professor, left-wing, radical unrest. If depriving a man of his freedom, his family and eventually his life — if that's political activism, then rape is a social event and stick-up is a hobby if a most business transaction.

Mrs. Pat Stevenson,
Oshawa.

Ryerson Press Goes American

Windsor Star

Who would have thought that the most crushing blow to the Canadian schoolbook publishing industry would come from the United States of Canada? By selling the Ryerson Press to U.S. interests (McGraw Hill's Canadian subsidiary), the United Church has succumbed to the influence of the U.S. dollar.

The sale of the Ryerson Press should not be taken lightly by Canadians. It is not the same as selling a candy company, a washing machine parts manufacturing company, or a shoe factory to foreign interests. What has happened in this case (and in another a few weeks ago — the sale of Clarke Irwin to a Chicago company) is the relegation by Canadians of their responsibility to provide wholly Canadian text books for their own children.

No one can take any credit. The Ontario government, which took a well - deserved roasting for allowing the W. G. Dags Company to be sold to U.S. interests, could only have exhibited the Government in good up the nucleus of the FLQ and forestalled its conspiratorial network? Would they have given heart to the bewildered inhabitants of the province and stopped the swift erosion of public confidence in its elected representatives, many of whom are paralyzed by fear and indecision? Anarchy and confusion is what the FLQ revolutionaries the forefront of socially important activity in this country, acted more like an auctioneer than a good Canadian citizen. The church sold to the highest bidder, no matter who that bidder was, despite what the president of Maclean Hunter Publishing Co. Ltd., a Canadian firm, described as a "serious and substantial" offer from his company.

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

Ryerson Press, the oldest Canadian publishing house, has been sold to McGraw-Hill Inc. of New York. Ryerson has been a long - established publisher of Canadian textbooks, especially for use in Ontario schools. The unpalatable result, therefore, is that a large part of the textbook supply for Canadian children of the future is to be under U.S. control. The news may create visions of Canadian children being indoctrinated with Canadian schools to believe that George Washington was the father of our country and slavery was not abolished until 1865.

Nothing as extreme as that is likely to happen. Ontario textbooks will continue to teach that slavery was abolished in Ontario in 1793, and in the rest of Canada in 1833. Nonetheless, it is bad news that such a sensitive segment of Canadian industry has fallen into foreign hands.

It is especially ironic that the move is by a selling Ryerson Press is the United Church of Canada. What it is doing in this instance appears to be the opposite of keeping Canada united.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

November 18, 1948

A top rankling performance in high class entertainment was enjoyed by a large number of Belleville and district residents at BCI auditorium when an all-star variety revue was presented by George Taggard, well-known Toronto impresario.

Two young teachers of the district, Betty Redner and Winona Judge, who are exchange teachers to England, had the pleasure of viewing the state procession for the recent Royal opening of Parliament, London. They occupied places in the fore court of Buckingham Palace on the invitation of the Lord Chamberlain, and witnessed a ceremony both colorful and impressive. Later, they lunched at Lord Marshall House, with other Canadian teachers, and visited Canada House.

30 YEARS AGO

November 18, 1938

On Nov. 10 and Nov. 17 Bridge Street United Church will celebrate the 125th anniversary of this, the pioneer church of Belleville. It was in 1776 that the Rev. Darius Dunham, a Methodist circuit preacher, held the first religious service of which there is any record here. In 1826 the church was destroyed by fire and was rebuilt and reopened in 1827. In 1925 Church Union of Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational Churches was observed.

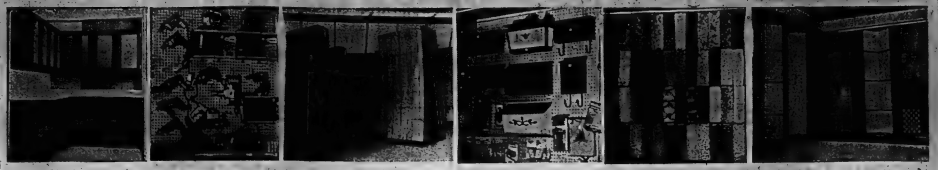
40 YEARS AGO

November 18, 1928

Civic unemployment relief bureau in Belleville and at least 40 families will benefit as the heads of the family secure work. The public court this morning was crowded with men and to single men who are supporting widowed mothers. There are two gangs of 20 men each, working on the sewer now on Baldwin St. and the other on Purdy, Frank and Elmer Sts. The gangs will be given three days of work apiece and then 40 more men will be taken on for a three-day period. Thus, everybody will benefit.

50 YEARS AGO

November 18, 1918



Mayor Riggs and ex-Mayor Walmsley occupied the bench at the police court this morning and dispensed of several cases.

A. Tom, proprietor of the Royal Cafe, has taken over the Newfoundland Cafe in this city. Mr. Tom has had charge for years of the Newfoundland Cafe, is giving up business in order to attend Aylen County.

Good Old Schooldays

A scene evoking memories of the little red schoolhouse where children of past generations learnt their three R's is enacted by a group of women at the "seasonabelle" show organized by the Eastminster Church UCW on Monday night.

UCW 'Seasonabelle' Show Deemed A Success

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

The sounds, sights and colors of the four seasons filled the Eastminster United Church Hall on Monday night when the UCW presented a "seasonabelle" show consisting of songs, dances, pantomime and skits.

With the rapidity and continuity of a movie the show moved from spring to summer and then slid from fall to winter, transporting the audience for two brief hours from a mundane, workaday world to a world of song, fantasy, color and laughter.

The show was introduced by the UCW group leaders Audrey Daniels, Ruth McMillan, Evelyn Wood and Georgina Zaback. Each one presented the UCW president Maria Wishart with a jar of money collected by her group since the UCW members had contributed their money, time and talents to this production rather than to a bazaar which is more customarily organized by church groups.

A hilarious hat parade ushered in the "spring" part of the program. Ingenuous hats and other accessories created from materials which the most imaginative milliner would not have dreamt of such as paper cartons, plastic bottles, shower caps, shopping bags and paper flowers were modelled by Winifred Allcott, Mary Barstow, Pat Harvey, Dorothy Locke, Barbara McDowell, Gerry Read and Mollie Uens. A lampshade hat made out of a big lampshade and decorated with colored bulbs which were lit for an instant was particularly eye-catching. A brilliantly witty commentary in keeping with the lighthearted mood of the hat parade and hailed of the whole show was read by Joan Dixon.

A beach scene took the audience across the sands of time to the "lazy, daisy, crazy" days of summer. Dancers Verna Harrison, Dorothy Irwin, Ann McInroy and Eleanor Slopen, demurely dressed in old - fashioned bathing suits imitated the prim movements and coy looks of Victorian bathing beauties. A tap solo performed by Barbara Worsnald dressed as a latter - day beach beauty in a green two - piece bathing suit, was an uninhibited, hip-swinging routine by comparison.

Since fall means "back to school" time for many a youngster, the scene shifted to a "little red schoolhouse" with Georgina Zaback playing the part of an old-fashioned school marm in a prim, grey gown and a group of women acting as her mischievous charges sent the audience into gales of laughter.

A cardboard fireplace realistically painted set the scene for the last part of the program which was an "ode to winter" in song and dance. A group of women dressed in ski pants and cosy jackets gathered round the fire and sang a number of songs while four dancers in red pinafores with black blouses and matching tights captivated the audience with their evil co-ordinated movements.

Throughout the show, piano music was provided by Lion Read, dressed as "Miss Miranda Melody". Violin music was played by Marion Stratton.

Proof to social indeed en

Before the show commenced, the guests were invited to view a display of handicrafts in the Sunday school room. The exhibits were divided into four sections depicting spring, summer, fall and winter, thus carrying out the theme of the program to follow. In the "spring" section a variety of paper flowers made by CGIT members were exhibited. A display of beach towels and bikinis evoked memories of summer while a group of girls sat around a "camp fire" singing to the strains of guitar music played by one of them. This scene depicted a CGIT camp.

In the "fall" section Lillian Peddle demonstrated oil painting. A number of her finished paintings including landscapes, portraits and abstracts were also exhibited. In the winter section two winter hobbies were demonstrated. Rug hooking was done by the women of the silver group and rug hooking was demonstrated by Barbara McDowell.

Refreshments convened by Sara Armstrong and Ruth Maw were served after the show. The show was produced, directed and choreographed by Hilda Henderson.

Hide Anxiety

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto psychiatrist has advised parents to hide anxiety during times of crisis. Dr. Clive Chamberlain, of the Hincks Treatment Centre, told a meeting sponsored by the Children's Education Association that parents should not give evidence of too much distress. Wine, Cheese Party Held By Club

Members of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's along with a large number of guests were entertained at a wine and cheese party held at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Brown, 2 Forin Street, on Monday evening.

The successful social event was convened by membership chairman Mrs. Gleta McNeil and her committee who had arranged huge trays of tidbits to go along with sampling of wines.

President Jeane Stephenson, vice - president Mrs. Lois Brown and the hostess warmly greeted the guests in the vestibule of the spacious home.

A time of fellowship was enjoyed by all and during a lull in the conversation Miss Stephenson welcomed the gathering with a special welcome to guests present. Mrs. Dorothy Brown, a past provincial president also welcomed everyone and clearly outlined the aims and purposes of the Business and Professional Women's Club, its primary aim being to improve the status of women.

A drive for new members is now in progress and it is hoped through get - acquainted events such as these that there will be a decided increase in membership. Anyone wishing further information may contact membership chairman Gloria McNeil (962-2911).

Royal Purple Ladies' Night

A Past Honored Royal Ladies' night of the Order of the Royal Purple was held Thursday evening in the Elks Hall when fifty members Mrs. Ruth Gordon, Mrs. Nina Dulmage and Mrs. Rita Francis were honored.

The gathering was addressed by Associate Royal Lady Elsie Browning who also congratulated the honored guests, each of whom received a red rose corsage. A huge cake was beautifully decorated for the occasion and a delightful evening was enjoyed by all.

HARDER THAN SHE THOUGHT — Teenage model Wendy Jewell says she didn't know modelling would be such hard work when she started. She soon learned that a model has to be graceful at all times, even when riding on the back of a bicycle-built-for-two during a fashion show. (CP Photo)

Modelling Career Not Easy Task

EDMONTON (CP) — Part-time modelling sounds a glamorous way to earn money while going to school—but it's not as easy as it sounds.

"When I started I didn't know that modelling would be such hard work," said Wendy Jewell, 18, who is earning money modelling while finishing classes before going on to university.

She took a course last spring at Cover Girl, a city modelling school and agency. And she was one of six who completed the course successfully, and was accepted by the agency as one of its models.

She began working in the summer.

"Not that I earned much money last summer," she said. "It takes a long time to get known as a model. So I used the summer to get known.

"But for work while going to school or university it's a lot better than getting a Thursday - Friday - Saturday job."

Linda Speers,' a former model who now runs the agency, said Wendy's chances of making it as a model are good.

"Most of our models are part-time workers. We have 28 girls, eight children, nine men and one poodle—nine— all working. I can keep most of them busy."

The female models have a variety of jobs—some are housewives, but there is also a bank clerk who models in the evenings and on weekends, two university students and one secretary.

Even if she doesn't earn a great deal of money, Wendy is still glad she took the course.

"It's given me a lot of confidence. Now I wear what I want, and I- try different things."

She's five feet four inches—"short for a model"—and weighs 105 pounds. She's slender and willowy, but says she has to watch that she doesn't put on weight, especially on her thighs.

"I don't know whether my measurements are ideal—but they are mine. And you have to be honest with yourself about your good and bad points.

"You make the most of your good points and you play down the bad ones—and try to eliminate the ones that are caused by laziness."

Models don't spend hours primping before mirrors to get that model look, Wendy said.

"You do have to look good all the time. But everyone should be well groomed at all times, so in a way it isn't any more time-consuming."

But she agreed that it was difficult at first to get into strict good health and beauty routines.

"When you are taking the course Linda drills into you that you have to be graceful every minute. I even learned to mount a horse in one graceful movement."

Once the gracefulness is learned, it becomes almost second nature.

Wendy was lounging comfortably in while slacks in a wicker chair in Cover Girl's red-and-white offices during the interview. She looked as though a photographer could begin to take fashion photos without her moving an eyelash. Not-models in the room shifted uncomfortably, feeling as though they were all knees and elbows.

Wendy says she is not beautiful in the classical sense, but that she has nice hair and that her eyes are good points.

And her big brown eyes—looking bigger because of skilful but unobtrusive makeup—and long, silky, brown hair are attractive assets.

So far, she has done promotional work for two commercials, been photographed at a photography convention, modelled for television commercials and posed for several newspaper advertisements.

"And I've done two large fashion shows—which were fun. It's rather like acting.

"It's hard work at times. But the money is good. And I enjoy it."

Columnist Receives Many Copies of School Days' Poem

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: It thrilled me to read the letter from Mrs. Cornelius (maiden name for the poem, In School Days, which is by John Greenleaf Whittier. My mother, who passed to her rest last year at the age of 89, could tell about that poem and many others until the last days. — W. D.

— I was like Mrs. Cornelius — School — Days right off. I am 78 and in a wheel chair. — Mrs. M. W.

— This is for the old lady, who, like myself, is fond of poetry. I am 80, two years behind — K. H.

— I am happy to know that there is still people who care for this kind of poetry. Although just 80 I remember many poems I learned in school — M. G.

Dear W.D.; Mrs. M.W.; K. H.; M.G. and Happy Oldest: We are grateful. Is this a long poem — 11 verses, and many copies were laboriously copied out by patiently hands, all the way from BC to Rehoboth and. I did that! Doris.

It is a charming story — all about very young love! Now that we have it, anyone may obtain a copy by sending in for it, enclosing 10 cents and a six-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

Dear Doris: My husband farms with his dad, who lives about 10 miles from our place. This means he has our half-ton truck most of the time.

"I understand he needs it on the farm and I don't want to start a fight but I do think I should be able to go to town (five miles away) to do a little shopping, to go and have coffee with the neighbors or to go to a homemakers' meeting.

My husband is very quiet and sociable and when he says, "Stay home," he means it. He only make matters worse. Sometimes I can't even speak to him. — No Car Privileges.

Dear No Car: I don't like that last paragraph of yours. Good marriages are built on the ability of two partners to clear everything out together.

If you accept these dictums now, you husband will be sure he is the only authority around your house. He will possess the truck and he will not develop any thoughtfulness for you or your need to get away sometimes.

If you don't like an argument just make a statement. Say you plan to go to town and would be glad to drive him to his work before going there — tomorrow! For once, let's see whether you can't change the statement to "What I say goes".

Dear Doris: This boy asked me to be his steady the second date and he told me to kneel low on the third. Although this seems a little rushed, he was from the beginning very open with me on his views, sex included. He was staying with his grandmother and now has gone home.

He said I could date but he wouldn't. I am sure he meant it and that he does love me now but only using him at holiday times, this devotion might not last. Saying I am waiting for him will lend dignity to my undated state but will scare away any possible dates.

If he does find another girl, I'll be stranded. Should I wait and pray or should I wait and date? I am 16 and he will be 18 in the coming months. — Dear Insecure: Don't wait: date. You have stand up the situation nicely.

Who wants dignity with dullness? Going steady at 16 is too confining; even if your steady happens to be around to take you places.

Spaghetti Dish Named After Famous Singer

By MARY MOORE

The story goes that Enrico Caruso frequented at Italian restaurant in New York, ordered spaghetti with chicken livers, tucked a napkin in his collar and dug in. The dish came to be known as Spaghetti Caruso and has wowed many a spaghetti lover ever since.

Pete had lunch with me on Saturday and he tucked into it as enthusiastically as any Caruso.

SPAGHETTI CARUSO
(3 generous servings)
7-oz. pkge ("little size") thin spaghetti
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
½ lb. (2 cups) sliced mushrooms
½ lb. quartered chicken livers
¼ cup chopped onion (or bottled flakes)
¼ tsp. oregano
¼ tsp. thyme
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. MSG
One 7½-oz. can tomato sauce
1¼ cups hot water
Put spaghetti on to boil in a large amount of salted water until it is done to the degree of tenderness you desire. The Italians want it to be a little bit underdone and cook it only eight to 10 min. Canadians seem to like it better cooked at least 11 min.

Meanwhile melt butter, slice the mushrooms and sauté them in the butter or margarine until just limp, not at all brown, along with the quartered chicken livers, onion and seasonings. You have to stir this almost constantly to cook livers properly keeping a watchful eye on them to make sure they are not overcooked. Now add the tomato sauce, which out the can with the hot water and adding it too, and simmering a minute or two longer. Drain spaghetti through colander and serve directly onto prebuilded dinner plates. Top with the Caruso sauce and pass Parmesan cheese at the table to be sprinkled over.

Dinner Menu

Baked Sausages; Rosy Apple Rings; Baked Squash; Creamed Peas; Parsley Cole Slaw; Canned Plums; Chinese Chews (see Monday); Coffee.

Ann Landers

No Sex in Weird Marriage Setup

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 22, have been married five years and was a virgin until six months ago. Someone other than my husband consumated the marriage.

When Cal and I were going together he spoke with great reverence about my virginity. He kept saying our wedding night would be everything a wedding night ought to be. But when that night finally came we were both exhausted from the ceremony and reception and the 180-mile drive. Nothing happened. The following day Cal got himself a terrific case of sunburn. He couldn't put on a shirt for two weeks. When his sunburn healed he suddenly decided to have a knee operation on an old football injury.

After 18 months of excuses (and getting kissed goodnight on the forehead) I was convinced that I must be the most undesirable woman in the world. It was then that an attractive man at work rescued me from a nervous breakdown by suggesting that we have an affair. I accepted immediately.

Your column a few weeks ago, quoting the Ohio psychology professor (he said the importance of sex in marriage was greatly exaggerated) really did it. Cal showed me the column and crowed, "See . . . here's what I mean!" Your answer was a gem, Ann. You said you weren't going to comment until you heard from a professor's wife. If then told Cal maybe he could live without sex but I couldn't, hoping he would view it as a challenge. His reaction was shocking. He said, "It's O.K. with me. Let's have things as they are."

I am hurt and fed up and I refuse to live like this. I am not interested in marrying my lover but I definitely want out of this weird marriage. What is your advice? — RENEE.

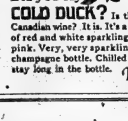
DEAR RENEE: Try to get Cal to go with you for counselling. If he refuses, see a lawyer. You might be eligible for an annulment. I see no reason for a 23-year-old girl to settle for a brother-sister marriage with cheating privileges.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 19 years old; stand 5' 10" and I weigh 240 pounds. I have plenty of energy and enjoy excellent health in spit of the fact that I have been overweight all my life. The reason I am writing is because I want to join the Marines. According to the regulations I must get down to 182 pounds. I am at present under a doctor's care and adhering to a very strict diet. My doctor says it will take me until March to drop the 78 pounds. I forgot to mention that I am a girl.

Is there a possibility that the Marines will take me now, if I promise to take off the necessary weight? I am already down to 190. — LOVE THAT UNIFORM.

DEAR LOVE: Which uniform? His or hers? What with Women's Lib trying to muscle in everywhere I'm not taking anything for granted.



Neither the Men's Marine Corps nor the Women's Marine Corps will accept you until you meet the weight requirements. So keep counting those calories if you want to see the Halls of Montezuma and the Shores of Tripoli.

Points for Parents

Mother: "Tessie gets on my nerves the way she whines and fusses all the time she's in her playpen, but now that she can crawl, she gets into constant mischief if I'm not watching her."

Put the playpen beside a low window or near the kitchen door so the small child can watch you at you work. A change of scenery may keep a tiny tot content for as long as an hour.

Playpens are useful safety measures but children who are mobile (creeping or toddling) are likely to be happy in them only for limited periods. Use your ingenuity so the playpen does not seem like a prison to the child.

Did you say COLD DUCK? It this a name for a good Canadian wine? It is. It's a name for a crazy blend of red and white sparkling wines. It's very, very pink. Very, very sparkling. It comes in a very champagne bottle. Chilled then opened, it won't stay long in the bottle.

Businessman Produces Plan to Roof Downtown

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — A bold plan by a Brandon farm-machinery dealer to turn four blocks of the downtown area into a roofed mall, heated and air conditioned, has caught the imagination of the Prairie city's 32,000 residents.

Glen Lawson grew tired of hearing businessmen talk but do nothing about rejuvenating the deteriorating sagging district, so he commissioned an architect to draw plans for roofing the area.

Mr. Lawson took his $1.5 million proposal and architect's drawings to a recent meeting of downtown businessmen and went away as chairman of an 11-man Rosser Avenue Mall Committee, set up to study the project's feasibility.

"If you fellows don't get off your backs now, you will go out of circulation," he told the meeting.

Under the proposal, the roof would touch the second floors of all existing buildings and would also be used as a parking lot for about 200 cars, with ramps leading from side streets.

"What precipitated my thinking," said Mr. Lawson, "was the threat to the downtown shopping district posed by the new $4 million shopping centre now under construction on the southern outskirts of Brandon, less than two miles from downtown."

The centre, with many national retail stores, is scheduled to open in February.

"Today our downtown is faced with the same problems that old downtowns in small North American cities face when big shopping centres come up," he said.

Mr. Lawson said Brandon's shopping area is losing an estimated $16 million in retail sales every year to Winnipeg and Minto, N.D., both within 200 miles of Brandon.

"This great business leakage is because people simply don't like dingy old downtowns which also have parking problems," he said.

"If we had a good downtown shopping area here, most if not all of that $16 million would have been going into Brandon's cash registers."

The ramp committee has asked the provincial government to apply for department of regional economic expansion funds for the project.

But, added Mr. Lawson, "even if we don't get a cent from the government, we will not give up our efforts."

"The roof and the entire mall will belong to the city, so we can ask the city to issue debentures for $1.5 million and recover the money with interest from downtown merchants in property taxes over a period of 20 years."

Mr. Lawson said merchants in the area "seem willing to accept such an arrangement."

With his own business half a mile from the downtown area he wants to cover, Glen Lawson appears an improbable benefactor.

But he says:

"It is man worked only to make a living, this world wouldn't move.

Ottawa River Pollution Attacked

OTTAWA (CP) — A tripartite attack will begin in earnest next year on Ottawa River pollution but it will take years and millions to clean out industrial and sewage wastes.

Agreement to undertake the task was announced at a news conference Monday by the federal energy minister J. J. Greene, Ontario Resources Minister George Kerr, Quebec Resources Minister Gilles Masse and Dr. Victor Goldbloom, Quebec's minister of environmental quality.

An important first step is just about completed—a $250,000 survey by several consulting engineering firms of the present state of the river.

Mr. Kerr and Dr. Goldbloom both indicated that the report will spell out a sad state of industrial and municipal pollution pouring right under the noses of the Canadian Parliament.

Mr. Greene said the report, result of a 2½-year investigation, will be completed in February and turned over to the three governments.

This will be followed by establishment of a federal-provincial committee of officials. They will make recommendations to the three governments on the type of control programs required.

After that, the governments will talk money.

Mr. Kerr said he is sure Ontario would be prepared to contribute one-third of the cleanup costs. But no total figure could be worked out until after the pollution survey report is examined and programs of control designed.

The agreement amounts to acceptance in principle of taking the steps necessary under the new Canada Water Act. This enables substantial federal funds to be contributed and provides enforcement teeth if they are lacking in provincial laws.

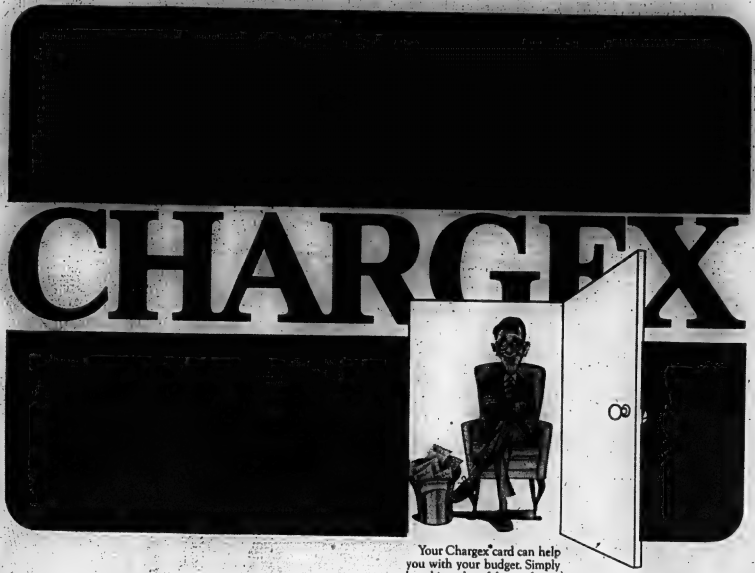
Mr. Kerr said the Ottawa agreement is only the first of a series to cover the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes basin.

The plan on the Ottawa River may provide the first substantial test of the extent to which he public is able to influence the cleanup plans.

Moral Persuasion Said Best

OTTAWA (CP) — Ghanaian Prime Minister K. A. Busia said Monday neither trade nor guerrila warfare is likely to break the rule of the white minority government in South Africa.

Instead, he suggested, African and Commonwealth states should negotiate with the South African government while encouraging "constitutional and moral change" from within the white-ruled country.



Mr. Busia made his comments at a news conference held after meetings with Prime Minister Trudeau and Canadian External Affairs Minister Mitchel Sharp.

A Canadian spokesman said the prime ministers discussed a variety of African issues, including South Africa, Portuguese Africa and Rhodesia.

Mr. Sharp gave assurances that Canada would continue to place Ghana high on its priority list for international development assistance.

Canadian aid to Ghana since 1960 has totaled about $27 million in grants and loans. The allocation for 1970-71 is $9 million.

Budget on it.

Your Chargex card can help you with your budget. Simply by taking a lot of the confusion out of budgeting.

For example, when you use your Chargex card, you only get one bill every month. Instead of a whole pile of bills.

That means you only have to write one cheque. Which, you'll find, is a lot easier (and cheaper) than writing a whole pile of cheques.

At the same time, your Chargex billing gives you a complete record of your monthly purchases. It tells you where and when you bought it, and how much you paid.

So you know exactly where you stand. And that's half the battle.

After all, what's the sense of putting yourself on a budget, if you can't tell whether you're sticking to it or not?

To Contemporaries de Gaulle Was Brilliant, Difficult Man

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Charles de Gaulle was praised by almost all his contemporaries for his unswerving devotion to France, but many found him arrogant and unbending—a man who could be extremely difficult and cold to work with.

Those who dealt with him during the trying years of the Second World War, like U.S. President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Winston Churchill Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S Truman, gave their impressions of the French leader in books written in later years.

Eisenhower in Crusade in Europe, 1948:

"I personally liked Gen. de Gaulle, as I recognized in him many fine qualities. We felt, however, that these qualities were marred by hypersensitiveness and an extraordinary stubbornness in matters which appeared inconsequential to us. My own wartime contacts with him never developed the heat that seemed to be generated frequently in his meeting with many others."

Churchill in The Hinge of Fate, 1950:

"Certainly I had continuous difficulties and many sharp arguments with him. There was, however, a dominant element in our relationship. I could not regard him as representing captive and prostrate France, nor indeed the France that had a right to decide freely the future for herself. I knew he was no friend of England. But I always recognized in him the spirit and conception which, across the pages of history, the word 'France' would ever proclaim.

"I understood and admired, while I resented, his arrogant demeanor. Here he was—a refugee, an exile from his country under sentence of death, in a position entirely dependent upon the good will of the British government, and also one of the United States. The Germans had conquered his country. He had no real football anywhere. Never mind; he 'defied all!'

Truman in Year of Decisions, 1952:

"De Gaulle was a man of dedicated courage who had rendered important services to France in 1940 at a time when French morale had hit bottom. The desire of the French people to regain something of their lost power and prestige was understandable and American policy it easy to sympathize with them. De Gaulle's methods of championing French interests and causes, however, were not always along peaceful lines, and his tendency to use force to press national claims made for difficult situations."

Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery in The Path to Leadership, 1961:

"In my opinion there is only one great national leader in the Western world today—Gen. de Gaulle. He has vision, political courage, honesty and the ability of speaking. His life is dedicated to the task of France, and his leadership is known in the Western world. I have a tremendous admiration for him. He is a great man."

De Gaulle's 'I Am France' Borne Out by Country's Fate

There had been no previous indications that any recent ill-health had struck the man who became a world figure as leader of the Free French forces in the Second World War after the humiliating fall of France to the Germans, and who rallied France in his own dissension in the government threatened to tear France apart.

Visitors last month de de Gaulle reported him in fine health, relaxed, an attentive host and mentally vigorous. In June, he and his wife made a motor trip to Spain.

An obscure army brigadier when France fell in 1940, de Gaulle seized the leadership of those who would not give in to defeat and wielded the Free French movement.

After leading his forces back to Paris, he headed a provisional government until January, 1946, when he took his first retirement from the political politics which plagued pre-war France and revived quickly after the war.

He returned to power in June, 1958, when the Algerian war threatened to split France apart. Ruthlessly brushing aside his military supporters who wanted to keep Algeria French, he ended the war in North Africa, freed France from her colonial encumbrance, and then founded the Fifth Republic, giving it a strong presidential form of government.

De Gaulle occupied a towering place in the history of the 20th century as a soldier-statesman driven by a vision of the greatness of France.

For more than a decade, he dominated the scene in Europe like an autocratic and sometimes arrogant colossus. As president of the Fifth Republic, he gave France stability and confidence and Algeria independence.

He never doubted that he was a man of destiny—first as the embodiment of free France during the Second World War and later as his country's savior from political chaos.

A giant in physical as well as political stature, his view of himself is perhaps best summed up by a remark he made to Winston Churchill in the dark wartime days of 1940—"I am France."

He was a brooding figure in the political wilderness for 12 years, mainly writing his memoirs, until 1958 when he returned to power as agent for General de Gaulle, as I recognized in him many fine qualities. We felt, however, that these qualities were marred by hypersensitiveness and an extraordinary stubbornness in matters which appeared inconsequential to us. My own wartime contacts with him never developed the heat that seemed to be generated frequently in his meeting with many others."

Churchill in The Hinge of Fate, 1950:

"Certainly I had continuous difficulties and many sharp arguments with him. There was, however, a dominant element in our relationship. I could not regard him as representing captive and prostrate France, nor indeed the France that had a right to decide freely the future for herself. I knew he was no friend of England.
